SMUGGLED RUM INTO DOMINION AS 'NUTMEGS' AND 'ARROWROOT'

Revealed, Commission Investigation Canadian Import and Export Company.

CORRESPONDENCE READ.

Report Shows Plan To Ship Rum Foiled By Customs Officials.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 30 (Canadian Press).—An attempt to smuggle rum into Canada as "nutmegs" and "arrowroot" was revealed to the Royal Customs Commission yesterday afternoon, with A. Mathews, of the Canadian Export and Import Trading Company, Limited, on the witness stand, R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the Commission, went into correspondence, the plan to ship the camouflaged rum from Kingston, St. Vincent, British West Indies, to Halifax, was foiled by Customs officers at the West Indies port.

Correspondence produced by Mr. Calder and read into the official record, was interesting. The first letter, which was written by Mr. Mathews on July 2, 1926, to L. S. Dier at Kingstown, contained elaborate directions for the camouflaging of the rum. Mr. Mathews first informed Mr. Dier that he was sending him thirteen second-hand rum kegs which were not mentioned in the advice note "because it is a purely personal matter." He pointed out that people, especially those from the West Indies, enjoyed a drink of good rum, and stated that "since prohibition came into effect in Canada it has become very difficult to get something good at a reasonable price."

Rum Camoflaged

Mr. Mathews, in his letter, asked his correspondent to put five gallons in each of seven of the rum kegs and then secure seven sugar barrels. Also, he requested Mr. Dier to obtain a quantity of arrowroot and nutmegs. The kegs of rum were to be placed in the middle of the sugar barrels and the nutmegs or arrowroot to be used as filling at ether end. Then the barrels were to be marked "nutmegs" or "arrowroot" and shipped to Halifax.

The kegs should be filled to capacity so that they cannot he heard making any unusual noise, Mr. Mathews wrote. He instructed Mr. Dier to consign that shipment to the Canadian Export and Import Trading Company, sending a separate invoice from the rum to him personally.

In his reply Mr. Dier told of the difficulties which he had encountered in the carrying out the commission entrusted to him.

"I had all the arrangements made for the shipments of ten casks," he wrote in October, "but I can assure you that I have had the most narrow escape in my life from the worst penalty that could have been inflicted in this small colony." He goes on to say that "The very man who sold me the rum gave me away to a customs officer, and had I not been so popular in this island, I certainly would have been in for a very nasty time." Mr. Dier assures Mr. Mathews that he does not intend to enter any similar transactions in future.

Acted as Agent

Mr. Mathews admitted that he had written the letter read, and that it was his intention to bring the rum into Canada for his own personal use and for his friends. He denied that he was going to sell it, and he stated that he had written a letter cancelling the order when he discovered the method used by Canadian Customs officers to examine such packages. He also admitted acting for a Mr. Cross, of St. John's, Newfoundland, in a transaction involving the purchase of 20 puncheons of Demerara rum. He declared to Mr. Calder that he did not know whether it was the intention of the purchasers of this rum to sell it in Canada or the United States. He was merely an agent in the matter. He denied ever negotiating with parties in Detroit for the delivery of liquor camouflaged as fish.

Commission auditors made a report on Oland and Sons brewery of Halifax. On the stand, A. E. Nash testified that this brewery had paid sales and gallonage taxes and also import duties. The records of the brewery showed sales direct to customers at points in Nova Scotia outside of Halifax as well as in the city.

"Are the sales in Nova Scotia contrary to the prohibition law?" asked Mr. Calder.

Mr. Nash said he thought they were. He had found the books of this company regular and all expenditures fully vouchered.

Colonel Sydney Oland, manager of the brewery, siad that sales of strong beer were made in Nova Scotia. He thought they would amount to about thirty per cent. of the general business of the brewery.

Denies Offering Bribe.

Albert Fillmore, of Port Elgin, N.B., was called in connection with evidence which was given during the Saint John sittings by preventive officer Veniot who charged that Fillmore had suggested paying him to release a cargo of liquor seized by the customs. Mr. Fillmore denied offering Veniot money.

"What did you offer him?" asked Mr Calder.

"Nothing." Mr. Fillmore denied being in the liquor business, although he admitted that a seizure of liquor had been made at his house.

"And you didn't know it was there?" asked Mr. Calder.

"Yes. I knew it was there. I was paid for storing it," was the reply.

LITTLE ONE DIES FROM INJURIES

Nina Fletcher, 6, Passes Away Few Hours After Accident.

INQUEST ORDERED.

Little Nina Audrey Fletcher succumbed last night about midnight to injuries received yesterday when the little tot, only about six years of age, ran across the street to get a drink at the fountain on Confederation square and was struck by the rear fender of a car driven by W. H. White.

It was a very pathetic accident, the little tot having asked her father to kiss her just before the tragedy occurred. She was with a friend of her parents at the time of the accident, and this woman is suffering from the shock.

An inquest will be held.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence 127 Smith St., with the Rev. Wm. Allan officiating.

BYRD ADVISED TO TURN SOUTH

British Air Ministry Sends Advice on Weather Conditions.

RELAYED BY SHIPS.

LONDON, June 30.—(United Press.)—The British air ministry shortly before 10 a.m. addressed a message to Commander Richard E. Byrd of the monoplane America advising him to take a more southerly course because of adverse weather conditions on the path of the no-therly coures.

The Ministry advised Byrd to strike for the Brittany coast, North France, instead of following the route taken by Lindbergh and Chamberlin, and which Byrd announced he would follow.

The air ministry's message was sent to all ships with the request that they relay it to Commander Byrd's plane.

50-Year-Old Flag, Hand-Made, Is Flown

Undoubtedly the oldest of the hundreds of flags used in the decoration of Peterborough for the Diamond Jubilee celebration, is the large Canadian ensign displayed outside the home of Mrs. Bickle, 145 London street. This beautiful flag was made over 50 years ago by Mrs. Bickle's mother, who sewed every stitch by hand, a real labor of love.

Optimism Justified

The Examiner has been consistently optimistic about Peterborough's celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. We started months ago to boost it, editorially; we issued yesterday the best Jubilee Number that has made its appearance, with a preponderance of local references and articles.

And our vision of the celebration is justified.

To-day Peterborough is in gala attire, and people are excited and thrilled as they have never been before. They know that to-morrow will be the biggest day that has ever been crowded into twenty-four hours. And it is the people who have made it.

The Examiner unhesitatingly declares that, with the preparations already made, Peterborough's celebration to-morrow and following days will be one of the biggest in the Dominion.

And we hope that no citizen will be so unfortunate as to miss it.

BYRD NOW CROSSING FRANCE TO REACH PARIS LATE TO-DAY

Aviator Hopes To Complete Flight at 4.30 To-day.

SCIENTIFIC FLIGHT.

Conducting Technical Experiments To Aid Advancement of Commercial Flying.

NEW YORK, June 30 (Canadian Press).—Commander Byrd has communicated with Le Bourget Flying Field and expects to reach Paris at 10.30 Paris time (4.30 Eastern Standard time).

Near Land's End

PARIS, June 30 (Canadian Press).—A Havas despatch from Cherbourg late today stated that Commander Byrd had signalled his position to Cherbourg aviation field at 35 miles north of Land's End, England. It was not expected that he would arrive over Cherbourg until 2.30 Eastern Standard time.

Reception Prepared

PARIS, June 30 (Canadian Press).—Commander Byrd and his companions in the trans-Atlantic plane, "America" will receive a great reception when they arrive at Le Bourget Field here tonight, but the weather will not contribute. The prediction is "Cloudy, partially stormy, with rains and squalls. Winds from Southwest to West."

As soon as the plane is reported approaching the French coast, a French naval despatch boat and two American destroyers will put to sea from Cherbourg to escort the plane to shore. Despatches from Berne say Chamberlin and Levine, who flew from New York to Germany, hopped off today for Paris and expected to meet the America at Le Bourget.

South Pole Flight Next

NEW YORK, June 30 (Canadian Press).—The New York American in a copyright story today says Commander Richard E. Byrd, now over the Atlantic on a scientific journey to Paris, will sail, Sept. 16 at the head of a flight expedition to the South Pole. The newspaper says work has already been started on three Fokker planes which will be Commanded by Byrd, Floyd Bennett, and Bert Acosta.

NEW YORK, June 30. Canadian Press. — Richard E. Byrd's flying test tube, the monoplane America, was on its way to France last night on the first scientific adventure in non-stop ocean flight.

The America left Roosevelt field at 5.24 yesterday morning. Reports on her speed were conflicting. The Associated Press log showed nearly 100 miles an hour. The flight over Nova Scotia was covered in one hour better time than that made by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in the Spirit of St. Louis. Last night the plane was speeding over the Atlantic with Newfoundland behind her.

The scientist-aviators who manned the America were conducting as they flew technical experiments which promised to aid the advancement of commercial flying in the days to come, and as they experimented radioed to their friends ashore their progress, observations and greetings —an accomplishment in itself new to oceanic aviation.

That others may fly in safety later on, Byrd and his three companions, faced the dangers of uncharted winds to wrest the secrets of the elements out of the regions where storms are brewed.

The purpose of the flight over an air trail already blazed by two planes primarily interested in speed and distance, was the study of atmospheric conditions over the ocean at different altitudes.

Formulate Rules.

It was planned to formulate some broad general rules by which aviators may be able to subjugate the winds to a condition of servitude and to make allies out of storms which at present are the airman's principal enemies.

Less than eight hours after the take off Commander Byrd himself indicated that the purpose of the flight was already being achieved. A message from the America picked up at Halifax concluded: "We think we are getting some scientific data."

He did not say what this data was or of what practical use he believed it could be put to, but from the hopeful tone of the message there had been discoveries which might be expected to have direct effect on flying of the future.

The America flew during the day through weather which was fitting subject for scientific experimentation such as Byrd and his companions planned. There were large patches of fog to be passed through; in places the wind was unfavorable and in other ways opportunity was offered to study conditions at present inimical to flying, but which Byrd believes can all be turned to account when more is known of them

Send Messages.

The science of communication reached new heights during the day, as Byrd kept in almost constant communication with the ship and shore by radio. Not only did he write his only progress report and deliver it back to his starting point as he wrote but he sent messages to friends.

In a message picked up at Halifax Byrd sent best wishes to the army aviators who yesterday completed the non-stop flight to Hawaii and conveyed a greeting to Floyd Bennett, the original pilot of the America, who is recovering in a hospital from injuries suffered in a test flight when the plane was first built.

JUBILEE SERVICE.

On Friday morning, July 1st, the Diamond Jubilee celebrations will begin with a brief service of praise, prayer and thanksgiving, at 9.30, on the market square. The service will not exceed 15 minutes' duration, and will be presided over by the Rev. D. Wren, of Trinity church, supported by other ministers of the city and district. The form of service will be as follows:

1.—Short address, by the Rev. D. Wren.

2.—Hymn of praise, to be sung by all present:

"All people that on earth do dwell,
Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice;
Him serve with fear, His praise forth tell,
Come ye before Him, and rejoice.

For why? the Lord our God is good;
His mercy is forever sure;
His truth at all times firmly stood,
And shall from age to age endure."

3.—Psalm 72— To be read by the Rev. W. S. Edgar, of the Gilmour Memorial church.

4.—Prayers and thanksgivings, to be offered by the Rev. J. L. Hughes, rector of St. George's church.

Benediction.

National Anthem—"God Save Our Gracious King."

EXPERTS PICK MONTREAL SITE FOR AIR TOWER

$350,00 Mooring Mast Will Be Erected on Large Area.

ON C.N.R. LINE.

Expected That Dirigible Service Will Commence Within the Year.

OTTAWA, June 30.—Montreal, it was learned today, has been officially selected as the location of the mooring mast for the proposed trans-Atlantic airships, the outcropping of the deliberations of the last imperial conference. The necessary order has been passed. Negotiations are now in progress for a site of nearly 600 acres of land and it is understood that it lies between St. Lambert and St. Bruno on the line of the Canadian National. A price i nthe vicinity of $175,000 will have to be paid. It has been estimated that the, mooring mast, which is in the nature of a huge steel tower, will cost about $350,000.

Montreal has been officially chosen by the government on the advice of Major Scott, the British expert. He reported favorably upon this location by reason of accessibility, population, rail facilities and other factors.

Work Starts Soon

As soon as the site is purchased the work will start on the mast, because it is the plan of the British government to initiate, at least to a certain degree, the trans-Atlantic air service next summer.

DRIVERS MUST GET LICENSES

Applications Must be Made in Person—Cost One Dollar.

AGE LIMIT SIXTEEN

Instructions for the issuing of operators' licenses have been received by the secretary of the Ontario Motor League. Frank Stinson is the issuer for Peterborough and district. Applicants are required to fill out and sign their own applications, and every question on the application must be answered.

The age placed on the application must be the age of the applicant at last birthday. An instruction permit for a period of sixty days is to be used for beginners without the instruction license if they have driven for a period of six months and for a distance of five hundred miles.

The act prohibits any person driving under sixteen years of age and those between sixteen and eighteen will be forced to obtain chauffeurs' licenses. The present licenses will expire on December 31, 1928, and new ones will be obtained annually thereafter.

The fee for an operator's license will be one dollar and the fee for the instruction permit will also be one dollar. The examiner's fee will be the same price. Motorcycle permits may be obtained only at Toronto, and duplicate license cards may be obtained at Head Office for fifty cents.

While the applications must be filled out and signed by the applicants personally they may be mailed to the office of the issuer.

H. E. Dunsford will continue in the city as examiner. Part 10 of the Highway Traffic Act book that has been issued to owners has a clause on pages 77-79 that refers to the issuing of these permits.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was a warm and sultry day, the thermometer going up to 86 degrees in the shade, and the humidity being pronounced. Last night's lowest point was about 60 degrees. However cool the month of June has been, it is endeavoring during the last few days to bolster up its avering to a respectable figure. To-day at noon the temperature was up to 90 degrees. This is the highest figure this year, and one degree higher than the warmest day last summer.—W. P.

CENTRAL JUBILEE COMMITTEE MAKES FINAL ARRANGEMENTS

Closing Rehearsal For Pageant To-Night

All those taking part in the Historical Pageant at the Exhibition grounds to-morrow and Saturday evenings, are requested to be present at the dress rehersal this evening, commencing at seven o'clock. Every member of the cast is required for this rehearsal, when costumes, musical score and lighting arrangements will be available for the final practice. Passes for the evening performances will be distributed to the cast to-night.

ROUTINE WORK IN COMMITTEE

Three Civic Bodies Prepare for Monthly Council Meeting.

TENDERS ACCEPTED

The Financial Committee spent a very short time at the regular meeting last night, passing the accounts and reading a few letters in preparation for Monday's Council meeting.

The Board of Works followed with equally routine business. The only signs of interest shown by the sweltering aldermen was when the question of lifting the street car tracks came up. The Mayor said the committee should wait until Monday, saying he had a man ready to buy the street railway and sell it to the city at a bargain. This drew a scornful reply from Alderman Stocker of "We don't want it."

Consideration of paving on Water street, north of Smith was laid over.

The Mayor will interview the Barnardo Home authorities about cutting down trees at the railway crossing on Barnardo Avenue. Complaint has been made by residents of the street that the crossing is dangerous.

The Mayor and City Engineer will look into the matter of building a sewer on O'Carroll street. There is one house under construction on this street now, but others are in prospect.

Numbers on Crescent street, Aylmer street, south of Lake street and Park street south of Lake street will be adjusted to do away with existing confusion.

The Property Committee accepted the tender of the Sanitary Ice Co. for ice for the public drinking fountains at a price of $118.50 for the season.

The tenders for coal for the city buildings were as follows:

Hodgson Bros	$7.59
Taylor and Son .....N.....	8.00
J. E. H. Fitzgerald	8.60
J. E. H. Fitzgerald	8.35
J. E. H. Fitzgerald	7.85
J. E. H. Fitzgerald	8.20
Robert Hicks	7.75
Cooney and Jopling	7.89
Cooney and Jopling	7.59
Peterboro Fuel and Transfer Co..	7.19

The matter was left for the chairman and caretaker to look into.

BRITAIN WON'T PRESS PLANS

Recognizes Impossibility of Revising Washington Treaty at Present.

TO PRESENT VIEWS.

GENEVA, June 29.—(Canadian Press)—Great Britain, according to information in authoritiative circles, has tacitly recognized the impossibility of revising the Washington naval treaty at the present tri-partite conference here without the consent of the United States as one of the Washington signatories.

This reported British acceptance of the United States viewpoint does not mean, however, that the question of size of battleships will not be discussed here, as the British delegation seems keenly desirous of an opportunity to present its views before the plenary session of the conference.

MOVIE STAR'S DOUBLE KILLED

Boat Upsets in Swift River and Ethel Hall Meets Death.

FOR DOROTHY DAWN.

MERCED, Calif., June 30 (Canadian Press).—Miss Ethel Hall, double for Dorothy Dawn, moving picture heroine, was fatally injured yesterday. She was scheduled to be abandoned by a movie "villain" in an open boat and to be rescued by Tom Mix as she neared the Merced River Rapids. Before the "rescue" was staged, the boat was overturned and she was swept into the rapids and dashed against a boulder.

Feeling of Optimism is Evident in the Last Meeting.

CHANGES MADE

Mayor to Turn Sod of Collegiate Extension and to Plant Maple.

The last meeting of the Central Jubilee Committee assembled last night in the Council Chambers to trim the edges, and put the finishing touches to the arrangements for Peterboro's Mammoth Diamond Jubilee Celebrations beginning tomorrow with a divine service in the Market Square. Alderman Roland Denne occupied the chair and there were present Mr. Mr. Stevenston, F. H. Dobbin, secretary, A. Costello, C. D. Cooke, Alderman J. M. Greene, R. M. Glover, T. Browne, Col. G. Hall, Dr. J. J. Craig, H. Huffman, W. Turner, T. Donaldson, A. J. Reynolds, Claude Rogers and Paul Manning.

The chairmen of the various committees reported progress made towards the completion of arrangements.

An optimistic feeling favored the whole gathering, and the opinion offered general that Peterboro is about to witness three colorful days that will long live in the memory of those who look on or who take an active part in the proceedings.

It was decided that in view of the short time available, the reserved tickets, priced 50 cents, would be sold from a special booth at the gates, with those offered for sale uptown.

Discussing the question of the parking of cars, the members of the committee emphasized the fact that there will be abundance of room at the east end of the grounds, where cars may be parked for 35c.

Mr. Donaldson reported that all the arrangements had been made regarding the fire works which will follow the pageant.

Change of Route

It was decided on the motion of Mr. Glover, seconded by A. Costella, that a slight change should be made in the route of the parade on the approach to Exhibition Park. The possession will march down Princess street from George street on the way to the Park street entrance instead of down Prince street as was formerly the intention.

On the motion of Mr. Turner, seconded by Mr. Greene, it was agreed to issue admission passes to all those taking part in the pageant and chorus. These will admit the holders in the evening on which they will perform.

Mr. Glover, seconded by A. Costello, tising of the celebration declared that on comparing the efforts of the other towns or cities, he did not think any place of its size was making an effort corresponding to that of Peterboro, nor did he think any other city has advertised so well. If the celebration did not attract the biggest crowd ever seen in Peterboro he said it would be a strange thing to him.

Mr. Green raised the question of securing adequate police patrolment of the river bank at the wharf during the aquatic sports. It was decided to ask Inspector Reid to put two men on duty there instead of one as had at first been proposed.

Track Watered

It was intimated that the Board of Works of the City Council had undertaken the responsibility of watering the track on the Exhibition Grounds.

After a consultation with His Worship, who was attending a Council committee meeting in the Board Room downstairs, Dr. Craig was able to announce that the Mayor would occupy a central position in the grand stand at the arrival of the parade, in order to take the salute from the militia and school cadets.

Gun Salute

Armament Sergeant Q.M.S. J. M. Cockburn, of the Royal Canadian Ordance Corp, who will supervise the firing of the 21 gun salute on Exhibition Park, on Friday at noon, arrived from Kingston yesterday and examined the guns. He has given an assurance that the guns are in good order for the firing of the salute and that the location of the gun at Exhibition Park will prevent any damage to property from concussion.

Turn First Sod

Previous to the march off of the parade two interesting ceremonies will be performed. At 12.30 Mayor Holloway will turn the first sod of the extension to the Collegiate on the west of the present building and short speeches will be made by the Mayor, by H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute and by E. B. Fowler, chairman of the Board of Education. This ceremony is not expected to last more than 15 minutes. Then the Mayor will be called upon to perform another duty at 12.45, the planting of a real Canadian maple on Confederation Square, commemorating both the Diamond Jubilee and the local celebration of the event.

Ladies To Assist.

The ladies of the Female Voice Choir will assist in the singing at the afternoon celebration service on Sunday, July 3rd, at Victoria Park. It is expected that over 3,000 school children will take part. The detail program for this event has been issued.

Kumassi, the capital of Ashanti, which only a generation ago was a collection of mud and straw huts, now has electric light and a splendid college.

ARMY FLIERS REACH GOAL OVER PACIFIC

Maitland and Hagenberger Cover Distance in 25 Hours, 51 Minutes.

CREATE NEW MARK.

Machine Appears Suddenly Over Field, Having Missed Escort.

HONOLULU, June 30 (Canadian Press). — Arriving from the American mainland in the brilliant sunshine of the new day, Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, of the United States Army, completed yesterday the first flight over the Pacific Ocean to Hawaii.

They came unescorted, for the army's welcoming planes lost them in the murky darkness and rain of early morning. No money prize was theirs, but they received the acclaim of the highest officers of the Army and Navy, the congratulations of the Governor of Hawaii, and the spontaneous, whole-hearted applause of the thousands who had waited hours in the rain to greet them.

Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger rested last night, happy in the accomplishment of another aviation triumph in the progress of the world, and proud in the possession of a personal telegram from the President of the United States praising the skill of Maitland as a pilot and of Hegenberger as a navigator.

Prizes might have been theirs, for as civilians they would have their chance to win the James D. Dole prize of $35,000 for a Trans-Pacific flight after August 12, as Army men whose duty had been fulfilled they declined $10,000 offered them by a newspaper for an exclusive story. What they did and their narration of it, instead, was contributed freely to history.

But no happier men ever stepped from a plane than they on Wheeler Field, heralded as heroes of the air, trim, bronzed, extremely capable and immaculate, too, they appeared as they shed their flying clothes and emerged in the spic and span uniform of the Army Air Service to salute their superior officers.

Realized Life Dream.

"I have realized the dream of a lifetime," Maitland told the Associated Press correspondent a few minutes later. "I have always wanted to fly to Hawaii."

There was no time for a detailed information then, for the Governor of Hawaii and the commanders of the Army and Navy in the islands, the Mayor of Honolulu, and scores of men and women prominent in civil affairs, were impatient to tender greetings for which they had waited through the night of rain.

But a couple of hours later, refreshed by bathing and the brief rest, the two young lieutenants smilingly faced newspapermen in a hotel suite.

Still hungry, although they had eaten, they prepared to answer questions concerning their flight. Slightly deafened by the constant roar of their plane's three motors, they requested their visitors to raise their voices.

Set New Mark.

From the time Maitland and Hegenberger took off from Oakland on Tuesday at 7.09 a.m. until their monoplane parted the clouds off the Hawaiian coast and rode into Wheeler Field, the Army air field, 25 miles from here, on a sunbeam, they were sighted by only one vessel, and that in mid-ocean. Whirling through space at close to 100 miles an hour, they finished the 2,400-mile passage over the Pacific waters in 25 hours 50 minutes. They landed at 8.59 a.m. Pacific time.

Radio beacon signals that were to have guided them functioned only a part of the time; they set their course by dead reckoning and by the heavens.

No line of warships stretched along their course to save them should disaster befall; their plane would have floated only a short time on the stormy waves. But sustained by the knowledge of a perfected aeroplane and by their own stout courage, they carried on, gaining their goal and the glory that goes to brave accomplishment. Theirs was the longest ocean flight on record.

Maitland and Hegenberger were tired and hungry when they arrived, for nearly twenty-six hours they had driven the great monoplane onward, ceaselessly vigilant and active. They had had nothing to eat, for the chicken sandwiches and coffee supplied by friends had become lost within the plane.

Maitland and Hegenberger then narrated incidents of their dramatic adventure calmly as though merely discussing some routine, everyday mission. They admitted frankly that they were pleased with having been given the Trans-Pacific assignment, but pointed out modestly that there were other pilots and navigators in the Army Air Corps who undoubtedly would have performed the task successfully.

No. 12 motored to the home of Jerry O'Connor, their retiring teacher, as a surprise party, and presented him with a handsome brown cow hide club bag. Edward Quinn made the presentation while Samuel Bibby read the following address:

Dear Mr. O'Connor,—We, the members of the Sacred Heart school section have assembled here to-night to manifest to you our sincere appreciation of the interest you have taken as teacher in our school for the past three years. As we look back over the past years we have many pleasant memories and your loyal support, given with such good will and wholeheartedness will serve as an example to those who succeed you. As a little remembrance we desire you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic value, but rather because of the good will and appreciation it representa.

Signed on behalf of S.S. No. 12.
Samued Bibby.
Edward Quinn.
Patrick Collins.

In a few well chosen words Mr. O'Connor expressed his sincere gratitude towards the school supporters for such a handsome and useful gift, and thanked them heartily for the loyal support and co-operation rendered during three most pleasant years while teaching in the school. He promised to be ever willing to do as much again and more for the school, one of the best rural schools in the province, and to carry away many pleasant memories.

MANY CONTRACTS DURING HALF-YEAR

Diversity of Buildings Good Sign —Ahead of Last Year.

Construction in Canada for the first half of this year has maintained the record volume in dollar value established during 1926, less three million dollars. This has been accomplished by more projects in more localities which is decidedly better for the industry at large. More contractors are busy, more men employed and materials orders are spread around.

During the first six months of 1927, according to MacLean Building Reports, Ltd. contracts have been awarded to the value of $191,323,800, throughout the Dominion. This compares with the corresponding figure of $194,543,600 for 1926—a decrease in dollar value of 1.6% but an increase in business for those connected with construction. Proposed work for the same period is greatly in excess of 1926, indicating a good volume of wirk still to be undertaken this year. The figures are:—6 months 1927—$384,961,000; 6 months 1926—$304,598,500.

The greatest amount of contracts up to June 30th have been awarded in the Province of Ontario where new construction enterprises to the value of $80,500,100 have been awarded or 42.1% of all construction. In Quebec Province 23% or $63,165,800 worth of contracts have been awarded for the same period. 15.1% or $28,844,900 is credited to the Prairie Provinces, while British Columbia shows 7.1% or $13,635,800 and the Maritimes $5,177,500 or 2.7%.

By classifications the apportionment for the six months period is as follows:—Business Buildings $73,561,500 or 38.4%; Residential, $58,688,300 or 30.7%; Engineering $36,184,7000 or 18.9%; Industrial, $22,889,300 or 12.0%.

Durin June, according to classifications, work actually started was divided as follows:—Business Buildings, $19,278,300 or 36.94%; Residential, $13,800,600 or 26.43%; Engineering $11,666,700 or 22.4%; Industrial, $7,483,000 or 14.33%.

Thirty-nine and one half percent of new contracts during June were awarded in the Province of Ontario at an estimated value of $20,654,800. The remaining divisions show totals as follows:—Ontario $20,654,800 or 39.5%; Quebec $16,593,400 or 31.7%; Prairies Provinces, $10,110,600 or 19.3%; British Columbia $2,573,000 or 5.5%; Maritimes $1,996,800 or 3.60%.

TRAP SPEEDERS.

Motorists Are Warned About Snares in Quebec.

QUEBEC, June 30 (Canadian Press).—"Police traps" are to be established for the purpose of catching speeding motorists in Quebec, according to Hon. J. L. Perron, Minister of Highways, last night, and next Sunday will see the first of them started. However, Mr. Perron does not wanted the "scorcher" to be caught totally unawares and he declares that the government intends to warn all motorists of the routes on which these "police traps" are hidden. Should the speeder then fall foul of the law, it will be his own fault, Mr. Perron said.

LAKEFIELD PEOPLE READY FOR JUBILEE

Everybody Active in Work of Celebrating Dominion Day Properly.

LAKEFIELD, June 30.—All over the village the citizens are preparing for the celebration on Friday, the Citizens' Band, which heads the procession, has been working for weeks on their program for this Red Letter Day. Merchants are decorating their store windows with the national colors, arranged in artistic designs. Householders are preparing to fly their flags whether of bunting or the little cotton variety, all emblems of this our Country and Empire. Lakefield's activity is just one link in the chain which is binding the Dominion closer than ever before.

Mr. W. G. Morrison is chairman of the Lakefield executive, with Mr. George H. Spence the secretary-treasurer.

Honor Graduates

At the graduation exercises of the Annunciation High School, Detroit, on June 16, two young ladies, formerly of Lakefield, were among the graduates, Misses Roleen Agnes Darcy and Margaret Elizabeth Darcy. Miss Roleen Darcy won a scholarship, which entitles her to a year at Marygrove College. This was one of four scholarships open to a class of 47. Both young ladies received Latin diplomas which is the highest diploma one can receive. Miss Margaret Darcy was the youngest one in the class.

Both girls received their public school education in Lakefield and give credit to their teachers here for the splendid grounding which helped them in their work in High School. This honor to members of a former Lakefield family will be interesting to many friends in Lakefield and the vicinity.

Business Men's Excursion

The annual excursion of the Lakefield Business Men, known locally as "Father's Day" was held on Thursday afternoon by the steamer "Stoney Lake" to Buckhorn where sports and a ball game provided an incentive to the appetites for the excellent meal provided.

The sail home was pleasant, but rather chilly and the men who had provided themselves with overcoats were considered to be very fortunate. About sixty men attended and spent a very pleasant afternoon and evening.

Mr. W. J. Charlton is putting up an office on his property near his grain elevator, on the corner of Colborne and Concession streets. The building will be of concrete.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Courcellette

THE MAIN STREET OF COURCELLETTE AS IT IS TODAY. THE RUINS ON THE RIGHT MARK THE SITE OF THE FAMOUS DUGOUT KNOWN AS "NUMBER TEN."

Dear Mac:

Courcellette! Much of the ground that we have covered on the Somme so far has been interesting only because we travelled it or lived on it during the days that preceded and followed our own private battle. We have paid tribute to our British divisions and to the South African contingent. We have admired the French troops that held the line here. But now we are on Canada's ground. Ours by right of conquest, ours by our heroic dead. Courcellette.

Rarerly in the Somme offensive did the destructive guns leave anything in the nature of a landmark. At the beginning of an attack there may have been standing some fragment of a farm, or a wall of a roadside calvary, but, ere the ground had definitely become ours, the guns of one side and the other had conspired to reduce it to the level of the surrounding earth.

One of the very few features of the landscape to survive this steady process of utter destruction was the old sugar factory at Courcellette. Even after the Canadians, with fine spirit and the assistance of the newly-introduced Tanks, had driven the Germans from the sugar factory down to the village of Courcellette, a substantial portion of the factory building remained above ground. Thereafter, the place was within range of enemy guns for six months, but the worst that they could do did not succeed in wiping off the map that respectable pile of bricks and iron.

Even after the enemy artillery had posted itself on the other side of the Hindenburg Line, the old sugar factory had not seen the last of war, for there was sharp fighting hereabouts in the retirement of 1918, and in the subsequent victorious advance.

Nevertheless, on that high ground which marks the end of Poizieres ridge, before the Bapaume road dips slightly towards Courcellette, you may still see against the long wall of an extensive new farmhouse which the Mayor of Courcellette has built for himself, a black fragment of that old factory.

I feel a little uneasy about its fate, because, at the time of my visit, men were levelling off the ground hereabouts, but I trust that the invincible qualities of what stump of brick and iron which survived the worst that war could do, will defy also the energies of workmen. Perhaps a considerate landowner will reprieve it, so that it may serve as a unique memorial of the War, although near by are two fine memorials of another kind.

One of these memorials commemorates Canada's men who, after driving the enemy from this high ground decided that, although they had no orders to do so, they might as well clear him out of the village. This memorial takes the form of a park, laid out with flower beds and lined with maple trees. In the centre is shortly to be placed a block of Canadian (Stanstead) granite weighing fifteen tons and suitably inscribed.

The other memorial hereabouts is a monument to the Tank Corps. It is a simple obelesk with what appears to be a post and chain fence about it, but, actually, the posts are gun barrels taken from the earliest Tanks, and the chain is made up of sections of driving chains from the same source. Round the base of the memorial are four miniature Tanks, one of which faces Flers where the Tanks made their debut, and another towards Courcellette where, for a long time, two derelict Tanks were distinctive features of the landscape.

The new village of Courcellette bears more traces of war than do many of the Somme villages. Down the main street, are to be seen some considerable ruins. The delay in rebuilding may be due to the extensive cellars which existed here, and the removal of which will be a somewhat difficult operation. One of these cellars known to soldiers as "Number Ten Dug-out", running under the road, can still be identified, though its capacious depths cannot be penetrated because of fallen debris.

It was strange to walk down Courcellette high street and to take a bock in the village estaminet. Time was when a walk on this route meant, for the infantryman, a hazardous visit to "C. Dump" or "Manchester Dump", for wire to take out to that valley of desolation where the troops spent the winter of 1916-17 squatting in filthy shell holes, paved with ice, or standing up to the thighs in mud and water, looking over towards Pys or Miraumont, or wondering what was meant by all the racket going on about the "Pope's Nose" or the "Lady's Leg", as two difficult features of the ground had been named.

One is tempted to linger about the cemetery at Courcellette, with its story of a score of different regiments famous in the battle history of Canada. One does linger—is it possible to ever pass on? Some Peterborough boys rest here—the 21st Battalion lost heavily in the struggle for Courcellette. The old line of Regina trench can still be traced, after all these eyars, one of the few lines that can be followed. In a few years it, too, will have been levelled out.

Many officers known in Peterborough led Brigades and Battalions in that battle. On the right of the Bapaume road was the 4th Brigade, under Brig.-Gen. R. Rennie, M.V.O., D.S.O., and on the left the 6th Brigade, under Brig.-Gen. H. D. B. Ketchen, C.M.G. The line of the 4th Brigade was made up as follows: 18th Battalion, Lt.-Col. H. L. Milligan; 20th Battalion, Lieut.-Col. C. H. Rogers 21st; Battalion, Lieut.-Col. Elmer Jones. Brig.-Gen. J. H. Gunn, who was in Peterborough as President of the Canadian Legion, commanded the 24th Battalion (as Lieut.-Col.) in Brigade reserve. The attacking line of the 6th Brigade consisted of the 27th Battalion, Lieut.-Col. J. P. Daley; 28th Battalion, Lieut.-Col. J. F. Embury, C.M.G.; 31ts Battalion, Lieut.-Col. A. H. Bell. The 29th, under Lieut.-Col. J. S. Tait, was in Brigade reserve.

The artillery preparation for the assault on the Sugar Refinery commenced on September 14, in the afternoon. We'll leave it in progress until my next letter, this being long enough, and then I'll take you over the ground again.

OBITUARY.

HENRY NUGENT.

OMEMEE, June 30.—In the death of Mr. Henry Nugent, who passed to his Eternal reward on Monday, June 20th, the village of Omemee lost not only a very highly esteemed citizen but a resident of Omemee and district for the past forty-five years.

Mr. Nugent had almost reached the good old age of 82 years, and for some weeks prior to his death had been in failing health. His dauntless will power kept him up, however, until the day before his death when following a slight stroke he gradually passed into the sleep that knows no waking.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. A. Mahood, interment being made in Riverside cemetery, Lindsay, and was very largely attended by friends from near and far. The service was in charge of the Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor of Trinity United church, who having known the deceased gentleman all his life, paid a glowing tribute to his memory.

Mr. Nugent was a wonderfully read man and could converse freely on all the topics of the day. In politics, he was a strong supporter of the Liberal Government and in religion a faithful and staunch member of the former Methodist church and later of the United church. He was one of the few surviving veterans of the Fenian Raid of 1870.

An aged and sorrowing widow, who three years ago celebrated with her husband their golden wedding anniversary, survives, also two daughters and four sons, namely: Miss Ida Nugent of Toronto, Mrs. Mahood of Omemee, Rev. (Dr.) W. H. Nugent of Portland Oregon, Milton of Grand Forks, N.D., and Fred and Percy of Lindsay; another daughter, Mrs. Ira Rehill predeceased him five years ago.

Many and very beautiful were the floral tributes which surrounded the casket, sent by sympathising relatives and friends.

The remains were tenderly laid to rest by six old friends, Messrs. T. C. Ivory, Charles Ivory, T. J. Parsons, O. G. Williamson, G. Haygarth and A. Laidley.

Among the many friends from a distance who attended the funeral were: Messrs. George Cork, John Cork, Milton E. Cork, E. Cork and C. L. Lander of Toronto; Mrs. Annie Robinson and son Will, of Janetville; Mr. William Flavelle, Mr. Stuart Flavelle, Mr. H. S. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Mayor Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. James Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gordon and daughter, Jean, Miss Maye Endicott, Mr. W. W. Staples, Mr. W. Carlisle, Mr. J. E. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Green, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. E. Golden, Mr. James McElroy, Miss Bernice Golden, Mrs. A. Jefferies, Mrs. William Pyne, Mrs. W. H. Endicott, Mr. Ben Bateson, all of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Clark Butler of Baddow; Mr. and Mrs. Wright and Mrs. William Robinson of Yelverton.

WEDDING BELLS.

MILLS—PARKER.

OMEMEE, June 30.—On Saturday evening, June 25th, a very quiet wedding was solemnized in First United church parsonage, Lindsay, when the Rev. T. E. Holling united in marriage Mr. Philip Cecil Mills, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Mills, to Miss Adeline Parker, only daughter of Mr. W. Parker and the late Mrs. Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills have taken up residence at the groom's home on King street West.

MILLAGE—DARLING.

LAKEFIELD, June 30.—A very pretty June wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Douro, on June 22nd at 4 p.m., when Hazel Isabelle May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Darling, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Stanley Millage, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Millage, of Smith, by Rev. S. A. Kemp.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of ivory satin trimmed with rhinestones and wore the customary bridal veil, and white shoes and stockings, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and maiden hair fern. The bride's only ornament was a green gold bar pin set with amethysts, the gift of the groom.

The bride was attended by her only sister, Miss Grace Darling, who looked lovely in a gown of pink crepe de chene trimmed with satin and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and maiden hair fern. The groom was supported by Mr. Stanley Darling, cousin of the bride.

Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Frances Fairbairn, cousin of the groom.

The ceremony was performed on the lawn under an arch of ferns and flowers. Following the ceremony about sixty friends and relatives partook of a bountiful supper, the dining room being tastefully decorated in pink and white. Immediately afterward the happy couple left, amid showers of confetti and good wishes, for their honeymoon, which will be spent in Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Queenston.

The bride's going away costume was a navy silk canton dress, navy coat and hat, with trimming of gray and gray shoes and stockings.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a signet ring, to the pianist, a silver compact, and to the groomsman, gold cuff links.

The young couple were the recipients of many costly and useful gifts. On their return from their trip they will reside in Smith.

SABATINO—WINDSOR.

LAKEFIELD June 30. — The marriage took place on Wednesday morning at eight o'clock, at St. Paul's church, Lakefield, of Miss Iva Agatha Windsor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adner Windsor, to Louis, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bonato Sabatino. Rev. J. J. Garvey sang the nuptial mass. The bride wore a becoming gown of white silk crepe with ruffles of white satin, and wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms, and white silk stocking and silver shoes; she carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and was attended by Miss Isobel White of Toronto, niece of the groom. She wore a jade green silk crepe frock with hat to match, and a fox fur, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Peter Asta of Peterborough, was the groomsman.

Bridal music was played by Miss Margaret Bissonette, while the choir of the church sang very sweetly.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents on Albert St., in the evening at 8.30, which was attended by more than 100 friends of the contracting parties, and who expressed their good wishes to the young couple who are very popular in the village, as the large number of handsome presents which they received testified. The evening was spent in social intercourse and dancing. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Sabatino left for Toronto and Niagara Falls, where they will spend their honeymoon.

The bride travelled in a black crepe gown with blonde trimmings, a blonde hat, blonde hose and black satin shoes, coat of navy poiret twill with tapestry trimmings and fox fur. On their return they will reside on Queen street east.

The bridegroom is well known in hockey circles, having played in the O.H.A. and district league.

A large number of guests from Peterborough attended and included Mr. and Mrs. Lucano (Lucy Sabatino), and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Asta (Mary Sabatino), and family, with Miss Edith Carlos, Mrs. Minicola, Miss Minicola, Mr. Peter Asta, Mr. Frank Lucano, and many others.

OLD MASTERS

Wynken, Blynken and Nod one night
Sailed off in a wooden shoe—
Sailed on a river of crystal light
Into a sea of dew.
"Where are you going, and what do you wish?"
The old moon asked the three.
"We have come to fish for the herring fish
That live in this beautiful sea;
"Nets of silver and gold have we!"
Said Wynken,
Blynken
And Nod.

The old moon laughed and sang a song
As they rocked in the wooden shoe;
And the wind that sped them all night long
Ruffled the waves of dew.
The little stars were the herring fish
That lived in the beautiful sea—
'Now cast your nets wherever you wish—
"Never afeared are we!"
So cried the stars to the fishermen three,
Wynken,
Blynken
And Nod.

Here are shown prominent figures and places, having reference to the claims of E. Brooke Daykin of Toronto that he is the eldest son of the late Rajah of Sarawak, Borneo, Sir Charles Brooke and his first wife, Tia, a native princess. Daykin claims that he has been unjustly disinherited and is going to make formal protest with the British government seeking compensation or the abdication of the present rajah. The pictures are, top left, Sir Charles Brooke in oval, below, the tomb of Sir James Brooke, the first white rajah, in Sheepstor, Devon. The large oval in centre shows Sir James Brooke himself and next is Isaka Brooke (Mr. E. Brooke Daykin), with his daughter, Mrs. Gwendolyn Bach, and his little grandson. In the small circle, upper right, is Mr. Daykin at the age of 20 years and below the coat of arms of the Brooke family.

GARDEN PARTY GREAT SUCCESS

Beauty of Grounds and Decorations Striking Feature at St. John's.

MANY ATTEND.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 30. — "Isn't it lovely?" was the remark by 99 out of a hundred of the hundreds who attended the garden party on St. John's church lawn last night.

Evidently believing in first impressions, the flower booth, with its oriental design and illuminated with many Chinese lanterns, was placed near the entrance to the grounds and every one lingered many minutes drinking it all in. This booth was in charge of Miss Young.

As the night grew darker, however, and the hundreds of electric lights got a chance to play on the elm and maple leaves on gigantic branches forming a natural roof over the lawn, the flower booth in all its beauty had to be content with second place, with at least one of the admirers of things beautiful.

With the greater part of St. John's being former Methodists, any comments regarding the supper would be superfluous. Mrs. Nelson Stone and a large number of assistants, saw to it that no one went hungry away. While Mrs. Tom Free attended to the gathering in of a small fee for the good things partaken of.

The candy booth with Miss Redden in charge and Mrs. McLaren, Mrs. Birmingham, Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Payne assisting, looked very pretty and did a good business.

The home cooking booth in charge of Mrs. Hannon, with Mrs. Palliser assisting, found a number of cakes, doughnuts, pies, etc., on their hands at closing time. These were very quickly disposed of by the many-sided Charlie Davidson. In one day's work Mr. Davidson sold a half dozen cars, shot a game of pool, umpired at the Campbellford-Hastings game, played the big drum in the Regimental band and wound up the day cleaning out pies, cakes and eggs by auction.

The ice cream booth was decidedly popular. Mrs. Diamond was in charge and was ably assisted by Mrs. Turner.

The Home Sewing booth, where numerous pretty and useful articles were offered for sale, was liberally patronized. Mrs. Kingston assisted by Mrs. Wood, attended to the wants of purchasers at this booth.

The soft drink booth, in charge of Mrs. Ashton assisted by Mrs. Williams, had a steady line of customers, no permits were necessary so that there was no delay in getting your orange crush, lemon sour, or orangeade.

The fish pond was put out of business before the evening was fairly well started, so great was the run made on it. The ladies in charge of this booth could not be seen.

The oversight of all the activities of the evening was in the hands of Mrs. Charles Davidson, President of the Ladies' Aid Society, which accounts for everything running like clock-work.

The really big treat of the evening was in the basement of the church, where three performance of the pageant, "The Making of Canada's Flag," were staged. The committee in charge of this were Mrs. Hazel, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Armour. This pretty little patriotic sketch began with the singing of "Rule Britannia," by a quartette—Miss Cherrie Turner, Miss Irene Stevens, and Messrs. Henson and Hazel.

During the singing, Mrs. Robert Scott, as Britain's Queen, entered and took her seat upon the throne and gave a very instructive talk on the English flag. Then entered Miss Georgie Davidson in kilts and all the rest of it. It was felt by those in the audience that St. Andrew's Society should present the committee with a gold medal for selecting Miss Davidson to represent Scotland. Following Miss Davidson, came Ireland's representation, Miss Helen Thomas, who gave a very nice talk on the Red Cross.

When the young ladies representing England, Scotland and Ireland had introduced their flags and sang "O Canada," during which Mrs. Arthur Armour, representing Canada, accompanied by two pages, Will Richardson and George Smith, took her place on the platform. Mrs. Armour ably filled her part, and while not wishing to omit one of the crosses from the British flag, stated that there was something to be added, and that was the emblem of Canada. The Queen demanded evidence that Canada was entitled to a place on the flag and that evidence was forthcoming in abundance.

First came Miss Velma Runnells as Laura Secord, who stated that she was there as a "queer old-fashioned figure," and told about the Canadian frontier in 1813, and how Canada had won the right to have its emblem placed on the flag. Then the boys of '66, Chas. Palliser and Harvey Doval, were called. Then came the South African Veterans, Ward Archer and Claude Duncalf. Then the brightest-looking of the lot, the Canadian boys from Flanders: Millar Donald, Morley Horsman, Ross Hind, and Jack Boyd. Then there was a solo by Walter Henson, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall, "with all joining in chorus; and Her Gracious Majesty decided that Canada had a right to place its emblem on the flag. The flag was then kissed by two pretty little girls, Betty Dolman and Helen Palliser, and with the singing of the National Anthem the enjoyable was brought to a close. This pageant, at the request of many, is to be repeated in the near future.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. John's Church is to be congratulated on the very fine arrangements made for the entertainment and enjoyment of their evening guests at the garden party.

HASTINGS BEATS CAMPBELLFORD

Errors of Home Team Enable Visitor To Collect Winning Runs.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 30. — Campbellford went down to defeat yesterday at the hands of Hastings in one of the best games of baseball ever seen on the local diamond.

It was a Northumberland League game and each of the five runs made by Campbellford was well earned. The same cannot be said of the seven runs to the credit of Hastings, for not a few were due to errors on the part of Campbellford. By this is meant no reflection on Hastings' team for they are all ball players from the word go. Better fielding has never been seen on this diamond than that put up by Hastings yesterday. The pitching was good, and the catcher, with the exception of one error, when he allowed a high foul to bounce from his glove, gave splendid support.

There may be 101 reasons why Campbellford did not win, but if the team would turn out and practice we don't think the other 100 reasons would cut any ice.

The plate umpire Bill Wellman of Hastings, came in for more than the usual share of brickbats, but perhaps some ball fans never will learn that the best place to decide on balls and strikes is right behind the catcher, not in the bleachers.

The oldest fan on the grounds today was Fred Dunwoody, age 86, and the youngest Douglas Blakely, aged 4.

The following was the line up:

OLD PETERBOROUGH RELICS DISPLAYED

The somewhat meagre knowledge that most of us possess of the Peterborough of last century may be supplemented in illuminating fashion by a study of the many relics of old Peterborough, which are now on exhibition in the north window of The Examiner, and are the property of F. H. Dobbin.

The oldest exhibit on view is that of the day book of 1817 and 1818 of James Cummings, one of the pioneer business men of the city. Another worth while relic is the assessment rolls for 1869.

One of the most interesting things on view is a copy of the Weekly Despatch of 1848, Peterborough's first newspaper, which, like practically all of the Canadian journals of that day, gives reams of news of European affairs and comparatively little space to the matters of interest to Canadians. There are several columns devoted to the trial for sedition of Mitchell, the Irish agitator, and editor of the United Irishman.

Also on view is an old copy of the by-laws of the first Town Council of Peterborough meeting in the year 1850, the town clerk of that time being recorded as Ivan O'Bierne.

A sidelight on the prices prevailing in Confederation Year is given by the notice of a sale on a farm in Asphodel. A hoe and a fork are advertised at 40 cents, a buffalo robe at $8.75, and a bag of flour at 90 cents.

Another interesting advertisement is that of a Grand Velocipede Masquerade to be held on May 24th, 1867, in the Drill Shed, a carnival which, the ad. said, would be opened by the grand entry of the Pawnee tribe in war paint; and, lest the appetite of the audience for thrills had not been appeased, the programme was to close with a terrible scalp dance giving a proper idea of Indian ferocity, followed by an oration, presumably still more ferocious, in the Indian dialect from Chief Miawatomie.

Another advertisement which hints at the mysterious and uncanny is that of a terrible phantasmagoria, which announces all kinds of weird performances, but winds up with the prosaic announcement that all taking part are requested to meet in the Drill Shed.

There were evidently big doings on Victoria Day in 1900, if the affair lived up to its advance notices. Fireworks, trades and military parades, baseball and football games and kalithumpians—men on horseback, dressed as Indians—comprised the programme. And the whole was free!

There are several interesting pictures of local scene of some decades ago—the drill shed which formerly stood on George street, St. Paul's church and Central Park (now Confederation Square) as they appeared in 1893, George street on Circus day 1862, the 57th Regiment in camp in 1871, a group of officers of that regiment, snapped at Crawford's Grove, and Peterborough Cricket Club of 1863.

SMUGGLED RUM INTO DOMINION

At the conclusion of Mr. Fillmore's examination, Mr. Calder submitted to the commission that Veniot had told the truth and Mr. Fillmore had not. He suggested that the commission send the evidence taken to the proper quarters with a view to determining whether or not a charge of bribery should be laid against Fillmore.

The commission took the submission under consideration.

The rum voyages of the "Arthur J. Balfour," were dealt with when George A. Mader, of Mahone Bay, took the stand. He is one of the shareholders in this schooner, and he told the commission that he believed she was now on her way to St. Pierre. When the name of the vessel was announced, Chief Commissioner Brown asked if the permission of the British statesman had been obtained before she was named. Mr. Mader stated that rum had been sold from the "Arthur J. Balfour," on the high seas off Mahone Bay. He told of going out to the vessel and collecting the cash made from these transactions. The rum was obtained for 45 cents a gallon in St. Pierre, and it sold for $4.00 off the Nova Scotia coast.

William Gleason, surveyor of the Port of Halifax, expressed the opinion that between forty and fifty thousand pieces of personal baggage was landed in Halifax in a year. J. B. McCormick, chief preventive officer newly-appointed under the re-organization, said that the appointments to his staff were made by Ottawa.

"On your recommendation?" he was asked.

"No," he replied.

Albert C. Foster, who audits sales tax, gave the commissioners some information about this branch of the work. He said it would help materially if rulings by Ottawa were sent through him instead of direct to the licensees as at present.

Severe "Body" test of Marvelube "F" by Ford Owner

A GRUELLING test of Marvelube "F" was carried out last year by Mr. Adolph Miller of Lacombe, Alberta,

In the two months following the purchase of his Ford, Mr. Miller was so pleased with the apparently "unbreakable" quality of Marvelube "F" that he drove 4,500 miles without changing oil more than once; adding a total of only 1½ quarts during that time.

Admitting that he had violated the recognized laws of safe lubrication in not changing oil more frequently, Mr. Miller points to his record as a convincing test of the heat-resistance and wear-resistance qualities of Marvelube "F". Read Mr. Miller's interesting report:

"I did not change oil until I had covered 1,100 miles. The oil was still unbroken. I filled up again and ran 1,400 miles without renewing. I added a pint and later a quart. The car has run close to 2,000 miles since.

"The car was thus driven 4,500 miles on the first and second fillings, with the addition of one pint and one quart.

"I consider it the best oil that I have ever put into a car and I have been driving cars and handling tractors for 15 years or more.

Mr. Adolph Miller
Lacombe, Alberta

This remarkable record is not given by Mr. Miller or quoted by us as an example of judicious practice—it is to be regarded purely as a "stunt." But it is a stunt that points so unmistakeably to the unbreakable "body" of Marvelube "F" as to merit the serious attention of every Ford owner.

With a crank-case change every 500 miles, there is satisfactory, trouble-free lubrication in the regular use of Marvelube "F."

SUNSHINE.

The Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and other exponents of the out-of-doors are enjoying benefits of life in the open, says The Belleville Intelligencer. They see the things of the world in a new light and understand nature better. They meet friends in the same cause, swap stories and form congenial companionships. Every student of the big out-doors gets new object lessons, makes new resolves and forms new links of character with the day of sunshine.

Sunshine is the test of summer-time. It ripens the grain and fruit and gives strength to the camper. All nature has a smiling face when the sun causes the plants to grow, the flowers to open and the fruits to mature. Sunshine induces youth to get out, amid the fields and forests, drink in the pure air and enjoy the healthfulness of exercise in the open.

There are profits in sunshine that one does not always reckon on when planning an outing in the open. It creates beauty and attractiveness and thereby adds to efficiency and usefulness. It helps in fitting one for future work and inculcates a desire for keeping young in order to continue enjoying the playfields of youth. Yes, there are countless benefits to be derived from mingling with the all-outdoors. The sun paints smiles on the cheeks of humanity in ineradicable lines.

SPECIAL RULES.

Once again may The Examiner invite the co-operation of motorists in particular and of all citizens in general in helping the City Police Department to make Peterborough's Diamond Jubilee celebration both safe and sane.

It will be noticed that special rules have been laid down by the police in the regulation of motor traffic.

During the water sports tomorrow morning no parking will be allowed on George street between the C.P.R. Station and Townsend street, and, of course, no cars will be permitted on the wharf.

Motorists are asked to observe these rules as necessary to avoid accidents.

George street between Smith street and King street will be entirely closed to motor traffic from 12 o'clock tomorrow until the parade has passed.

This will enable the procession to be arranged with a minimum of confusion, and at the same time will permit of a splendid view of the mammoth parade.

In connection with the great service in Victoria Park on Sunday evening, which brings the celebration to a close, the streets bordering on Victoria Park will be closed to motor traffic, thus enabling the singing of the Jubilee Chorus to be heard to best advantage.

Motorists can greatly assist in the success of the celebration by giving their loyal support to the police in the carrying out of these regulations.

CANADIANS UNITED.

On the eve of the celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee The Examiner sincerely wishes for every citizen of Peterborough and the district a happy, colourful three days of rejoicing and thanksgiving.

All differences of creed or race are forgotten; in this time of jubilee we are all Canadians.

Tomorrow, a people united and proud of our lot as citizens of a great country and of a great Empire, we begin the ceremonies planned in connection with the unique celebration.

Native-born or Canadian by adoption, it matters not a whit; we are on common ground in our love of this splendid country, and in our regard for the freedom of action and of religion that is ours because of our citizenship in Canada and our membership in the commonwealth of self-governed nations which constitute the British Empire.

We are citizens of no mean country, and when we celebrate the vision of our statesmen of yesterday, the development of our Dominion since Confederation and the peace and prosperity of our own day, we at the same time serve notice on the world that this is Canada's century and that we look forward to an era of unprecedented expansion and growth.

Canadians united, let us make this celebration a real milestone in the history of our country and of our community.

THE JUBILEE PROGRAMME.

The programme arranged by Peterborough's Diamond Jubilee Committee is a comprehensive and successful effort to give voice to the city's feeling of gratitude and thanksgiving.

Nothing so elaborate has been attempted here before.

The Diamond Jubilee parade, for example, will include several thousand people, a colourful, glittering, striking procession of some sixty floats of large dimensions and a wealth of special features that will make it live long in the memory of all who will see it.

To describe it properly would exhaust the available supply of adjectives, but The Examiner confidently predicts that every citizen tomorrow will agree that nothing like it has ever been witnessed in Peterborough.

In the morning an exhibition of unusual water sports will be given.

The afternoon programme of vaudeville, aeroplane flights and other features will provide plenty of entertainment; a midway, under the auspices of the Rotary, Kiwanis and other organizations, will contribute its quota of amusement; and in the evening the Jubilee Chorus, the huge historic pageant, "Masques of Canada," and a mammoth tattoo and mammoth display of fireworks will bring the first day's celebration to an effective close.

On Saturday afternoon, in addition to the vaudeville performances, a race meet, under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club, acting for the committee, will furnish three exciting races, while at night the choir, pageant and tattoo and fireworks will supply another memorable evening's programme.

The Sunday ceremonies include the official opening of the Charlotte Nicholls' memorial gates at East Nicholls' Park, a huge children's service at 3 o'clock in Victoria Park, and the concluding feature of the programme, a mammoth citizens' service of music and thanksgiving in Victoria Park in the evening, with the Jubilee Chorus and Martin Chenhall and the Rangers and Salvation Army Bands participating.

ON DANGERS AND PERILS.

The average citizen contemplates with incredulous amazement the spectacle of an adult mentality which sees a menace to our free institutions and a peril to Anglo-Saxon civilization in the fact that children of the Public Schools are being taught to sing "O Canada" in French. The survival of these ancient grudges and archaic prejudices and their injection into a matter so innocent of offence as the National Jubilee music is an extraordinary demonstration of provincialism which we should have considered impossible in this city, and in this age and generation.

We are not greatly impressed with the super-loyalty which rallies vociferously to defend the Union Jack against insidious and underhand attacks by those who sing "O Canada." So far as we can see, the objections to "O Canada" from the super-patriots are based on the fact that it came out of French Canada and that the French people sing it much more effectively than do the English-speaking population. If that is sufficient reason for condemning the song, then we have no right this week to be celebrating the Confederation of the Provinces.

The solemn debate of the Public School Board, which resulted in the solemn decision that teaching the students one or two French songs does not constitute instruction in the French language, was worthy of comic opera. The insular mind which prides itself on the possession of a fixed set of unconvertible ideas, usually based on false premises and faulty logic, sometimes assumes a fictitious importance through its presence on official bodies, but the people are not long deceived. The bogey of racial feeling is pretty well annihilated in Canada, and it will take more than the eloquent platitudes of a few isolated firebrands to kindle the dying embers of religious and language difference.

The whole incident would be of no consequence whatever if it were not for the fact that in the minds of those unacquainted with local conditions it may create a complete misunderstanding of the relations under which French and English live in Ottawa. It should be made plain that the real spokesmen of the Capital are neither intolerant nor bigoted, nor do they seek to propel themselves into public prominence through the double-barrelled weapon of race and language.—Ottawa Journal.

A NATION APART.

Surely if there be such a thing as Divine Providence in the life of nations Canada has been under His guiding and beneficent hand. So many things in her circumstances and in her history have pointed the way to high destiny that the conclusion is well nigh irresistible that she has been given a great and significant place in more than human schemes and planning.

In the first place, the fact that she has been the mingling in a unique way of two great races, the French-speaking and the English-speaking, has suggested the possibility of some unusually fine achievement in nation-building. It is true that this fact has been her problem and her difficulty for many years, and that the problem has not all been solved even yet, nor have the difficulties all been got out of the way; but one day, when that mingling has been a little more intelligently and perfectly done, this thing will be her crown and glory. No matter what prejudiced narrowness may say, it was no tragedy at all, but quite the opposite, that so many thousands of the flower of France were left upon this northern half of the continent to join with their English-speaking compatriots in building up a Canadian nation.

And then again our Canadian Confederation has brought together such widely-differing sections of country whose interests could never be the same, indeed must often be quite antagonistic. What would be good for the Maritime Provinces might not be good for Manitoba; the interests of Ontario and British Columbia might sometimes seem to be in quite opposite directions. If ever any people were called to mutual understanding and consideration and forbearance, as, for instance, between east and centre and west, between French and English and European and Asiatic, the Canadian people have been so called. They haven't responded very perfectly to such a call as yet, but they are doing better and will do better, and their lessons in unselfishness and mutual consideration will help much in fine nation-building.

And, then, Canadian history has been beset with problems and difficulties, but one day we will have the wisdom to see many of these as among our greatest of blessings and causes for gratitude. Our immense distances, for instance, have furnished the patriotic spellbinder with rolling sentences, but what troubles they have made for us all If we had a compact country without such immense waste spaces in it and with a coherent and readily co-operating population, how much easier would a thousand things have been to us! But would they have had a thousandth part of the opportunity in them? One of the special things that Canada has to be grateful for, and that points the way to fine achievement, has been that nation-making has been a tremendous task and has called out qualities that apparently could not have been attained in any other way. And this thing also has set her a nation apart.—The New Outlook.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it a never-to-be-forgotten celebration. Most of us will not see the next one.

We're all Canadians tomorrow, and as citizens of a great country we have every reason to rejoice and to give thanks.

Let it be a safe as well as a joyous celebration. Courtesy and caution should be everybody's watchward.

Motorists should note the regulations of the Police Department. They are framed to protect the public during the jubilee celebration.

"God Save the King and Heaven Bless the Maple Leaf Forever."

We all love Canada or we would not be living here. We can show our love for this country during the next three days.

Members of the Diamond Jubilee Committees have done a vast amount of work. Their fellow-citizens should recognize that fact during the celebration by a record attendance at all the events.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 30.—The closing down of the abattoirs, and no killing over the two days holidays has suddenly slowed down trade, and the week-end market looks as if a few of the commoner cattle may be left over. There was a total offering of about 1,300 cattle, including left overs, in the market yesterday morning. A few choice heavy steers and handy butcher were picked up at steady prices, but on the general run considerable price shading was going on, in an effort to make a clean up before the holiday. Common and medium butcher stuff averaged about 25c lower. A dollar was taken off lambs.

Choicest grass butcher steers, and a few very choice dry fed steers sold steady from $9.00 to $9.25. General run of good to choice butcher, grassers $8.25 to $8.65. Plain common, $6.50 to $7.00.

Stocker type, selling from $6.00 to $7.00.

Calves steady from $10.50 to $11.50.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., June 30.—(Canadian Press.)—The foreign demand for grain in the Montreal market yesterday showed no improvement and exporters generally reported trade dull.

The only business of importance in the domestic market Tuesday was a sale of a round lot of Canadian western No. 1 feed oats at a c.i.f. price. There was some demand from country buyers for odd car lots to meet immediate wants.

There were no further developments in the local flour market for spring wheat grades, prices being about steady but the demand was again of a limited character from local and foregn buyers.

A very firm feeling prevailed in the market for winter wheat flour and slightly higher prices were realized in some instances for car lots of choice grades, but no general advance was established. The volume of business was small.

A fair volume of business was done in most lines of millfeed and the undertone was firm. There was no change in standard grades of rolled oats for which the demand was steady.

There were no new developments in the local egg situation, the undertone to the market being firm and a fair trade was done. The receipts were 1,957 cases.

There was no improvement in the demand for old crop Canadian potatoes and as the offerings continue fair for the season an easier feeling prevailed in the market and prices scored another decline of 50 per bag with sales of odd cars of Quebec white B grade at $1.55 to $1.65 per bag, and Reds at $1.35 per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, ex-track.

The butter market was without any special feature to note, business being of a very limited character but prices as yet show no change. The receipts were 1,625 packages.

There was no improvement in the condition of the cheese situation on account of the fact that foreign buyers do not seem disposed to pay present asking prices when they can buy from other exporting countries at less money with the result that the volume of business passing for export account here is usually small for the period of the year. There was no further change in spot prices, but the feeling was easy with Western No. 1 white colored quoted at 17¼c. to 17 3-8c. per lb. and eastern grades at 17c. to 17 1-8c. per lb. The receipts were 6,562 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 30 (Canadian Press).—High temperatures bringing about rapid growth of corn, led to lower prices yesterday for every kind of grain. Values were also depressed by revival of chances that the Illinois Legislature may put under drastic control of state officials all grain exchange transactions of a future delivery character.

Closing quotations on corn were heavy, 1¾ to 2¾c net lower, with wheat 1¼ to 1¾c down; oats ½ to 1c off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 17 cents.

Wheat and rye were bearishly affected by assertions that shipments of new rye were expected within twenty days. Rye for next month's delivery suffered a break of five cents a bushel at one time. Black rust was reported in South Dakota, but experts said there is no danger from rust until wheat is headed, and that the spring crop was starting to joint in South Dakota. Meanwhile harvest conditions for winter wheat southwest and west remained ideal.

Most deliveries of provisions were lower, chiefly as a result of grain weakness.

A Thought For To-day

WHAT SUCCESS WOULD YOU HAVE?

What success would you have trying to sell the open ocean to a well-frog?

The very nature of the well-water toad would not take to the wide sea. He is a creature of a smaller sphere.

Now, some writers try to persuade the mill-pond bull-frog that he belongs in the Seven Seas—that if he is not out in the ocean he is out of his sphere.

Being the biggest toad in a small puddle beats getting lost in the Gulf Stream.

Being a courteous and active bellman in a good hotel is far better than trying to bluff your way through on borrowed money.

Being a conscientious waiter, a courteous elevator man, an attentive door-man, is of more consequence to the community than a room full of lounge-lizards waiting for their weekly remittance check.

I can see more dignity in a uniform on a loyal employee than in a dozen dinner coats that cover a bunch of slackers.

My soft, gray hat is off to the man in uniform who is educating his sons and daughters to be useful citizens—to the man of service, who, perhaps, lacks sufficient education or experience to be a banker, but who performs his duties politely and punctually.

It is better to remain in the pond than to jump in the lake and get lost. Better to be in a navy blue uniform than in some of the borrowed black suits. Better to begin near the bottom as an elevator man and then rise than to start near the top as a society climber and then tumble and soil your tuxedo.—The Silent Partner.

JUBILEE SERVICES

Warsaw Presbyterian Church

WARSAW, June 29.—The Presbyterian Sunday School observed the Dominion Day Diamond Jubilee on Sunday. They used the form of service gotten up by the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Dr. Munro, the superintendent, followed the program fully. He gave the talk on "Our Dominion, Christ's Dominion." He spoke of the Sunday school lessons for the next three months, and said that we might find out how much like Saul we may all prove to be. He noticed it is a common habit to say our Dominion, our farm, our anything we have. This is true only relatively. We cannot take anything of these material things out of the world. If these things were really ours, we would have them always, and live forever. Some people act as though they thought they would live forever.

In speaking of Canada, we are apt to give its boundaries, and speak of the great wealth of land, mines, lumber and other like things. But these things do not really make Canada, Canada is what the people make it. Canada is today what the older and middle-aged people are. Canada will be tomorrow what the boys and girls of today will be. Canada has nine million people. A conglomeration of peoples from all countries, and we are asked to assimilate these people and make them good citizens. If their wealth alone is considered, we will be nonentities. The nation dwells in the homes, and the young people are most important, because they make Canada. Speaking to the children he asked "What makes you," and answered, two things, heredity which we cannot help, and the environment. The environment is found in the home, the day school, the Sunday school and the church. The home has the greatest influence, and if the homes are all right, the nation will be. There will be no need to worry over the future of our country. He quoted some of "The Cotter's Saturday Night."

In some places the children are so anxious for amusement that they are away from home so much and hardly become acquainted with their parents. In other places the fathers, and sometimes the mothers have so much business and so many clubs they hardly know their children.

A person cannot be a good Christian without being a good citizen. We are commanded to fear God, honor the king, and deal justly with all men. If this is done, Canada cannot help but be a great nation. The spirit of Christ will be revered at home, and honored abroad. The day school has the next greatest influence. The Sunday School is often the only place the children learn of spiritual things and the church comes last, because it really does not deal directly with the young people.

Let the homes be what they should and so make Canada, our Canada, Christ's Canada.

Carmel United Church

MILLBROOK, June 29.—A Patriotic Worship Service was held in the Carmel United Church on Sunday at 3 p.m., when Rev. Joseph Wilks delivered the address, a good congregation being in attendance.

"The Messsge of the Bells" was the title of the program followed, suitable hymns, responsive Scripture readings, and prayers in unison, conveying embodying appropriate sentiments for a service that was commemorating Canada's Diamond Jubilee. The choir sang, "Praise Ye the Lord," and "Lest We Forget," and there were also two recitations by scholars of the Sunday School, "Dominion Day" by Louie Olan, and "One is Christ," by Mildred Gardiner. Miss Martha Lunn presided at the organ. Carmel appointment has no regular preaching service, the special program on Sunday being under Sunday School auspices.

Flags and maple leaves were appropriate decorations, early summer flowers being arranged about the altar. Next Sunday, July 3, the school will begin in the morning, the hour being 10.15, and continue through the summer months. Rev. Mr. Wilks read his Scripture lesson from Deuteronomy 4, his text being from verses 5 and 6: "Behold I have taught you statutes and judgments, as the Lord my God commanded me; keep, therefore, and do them."

Stressing the fact that God's promises to a people enslaved were fully kept, the speaker pointed out that while Israel had a goodly heritage in Palestine, Canadians, in this year when patriotism is being specially emphasized, should remember with justifiable pride that their land exceeds that of the chosen people in area, natural resources, and beauty, and in possibilities of development. "We have a larger heritage, too, in educational advantages, church life, and the opportunities for growth in things spiritual, and we would not overlook the fraternal and benevolent societies and institutions, which are a by-product of the church. By experience I know that the character of the lodge is determined by the church life and influence in a community.

"What do we owe in return? Keep therefore and do His commandments and statutes. A true Canadian feels humiliated at the revelations of the customs probe; the far-reaching evil influence of the liquor traffic, the murders, the immorality in the home, the banditry which, with other evils, have been flourishing in our midst. If we fail to honor God's will and commandments, He will cease to be with us. Canada needs to take heed; other nations went down when they disregarded God's laws.

"Right living, individual and national, brings reward both here and hereafter; "Trust in the Lord and do good; and verily thou shalt be fed." Canada needs the Sunday School; such work as you are doing means that you are actually building better than you think."

A Soldier's Wound is Healed at Last

Remarkable test proves the exceptional healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

For years this ex-service man had suffered with a running wound which Army Surgeons and regular medical practitioners failed to heal. It is only natural that he should now be enthusiastic about the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment for he has obtained complete relief by its use. Read his letter.

Mr. Samuel Bozman, Looma, Alta., writes:—"I had been bothered with a running wound for the last seven years and was treated by Army Surgeons and Civil Practitioners, but could get no relief. I was in despair, thinking that all my life I must be content to suffer my lot. I had a brother who knew about Dr. Chase's medicines and on his advice I started using your Ointment. I obtained excellent results from this and am now finally relieved. I have nothing but praise for Dr. Chase's Ointment and would recommend it to any ex-service man troubled as I was with a running wound."

Wherever there is irritation of the skin or a sore which refuses to heal you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to afford prompt and lasting relief. 60 cents at all dealers, or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SAUL CHOSEN KING

Text: 1 Samuel 10: 17-25

And Samuel called the people together unto the Lord to Mizpeh;

And said unto the people of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms, and of them that oppressed you:

And ye have this day rejected your God, who himself saved you out of all your adversities and your tribulations: and ye have said unto him, Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore present yourselves before the Lord by your tribes, and by your thousands.

And when Samuel had caused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was taken.

When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul, the son of Kish, was taken: and when they sought him, he could not be found.

Therefore they inquired of the Lord further, if the man should yet come thither. And the Lord answered, Behold, he hath hid himself among the stuff.

And they ran and fetched him thence: and when he stood among the people, from his shoulders and upward.

And Samuel said to all the people, See ye him whom the Lord hath chosen, and there is none like him among all the people? And all the people shouted, and said, God save the king.

Then Samuel told the people the manner of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the Lord. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man of his house.

Israel was choosing a king. Trust in kings and princes has not always been an evidence of spiritual life and progress, and Samuel, who as a religious leader of the nation had also been acting as judge and guiding the destinies of the people, evidently considered the desire of Israel to have leaders like the surrounding peoples, an evidence of worldiness and materialism rather than of spiritual depth.

As a matter of fact the idea of the people in wanting a king seemed to be associated somewhat with the age-long idea of war and battle. They wanted a warrior who could lead them as other peoples were led. Incidentally it was a warrior rather than a prophet that they secured, a giant in physical powess rather than a man of splendid character and spiritual power. Samuel yielded to the clamor and the choice taken, apparently, by lot had fallen upon Saul, the son of Kish.

Saul Was Good Choice

But Saul, like many men of great physique, was bashful. At this stage of the game he had no desire for power, and when the people sought him, he could not be found for he had hidden himself among the baggage. However, when they sought him forth it was seen that he was higher than any other of the people from his shoulders upward. Was it any wonder that Samuel set him before them as their king?

No man ever assumed a great task under more favorable auspices than this man Saul. The hearts of the people were receptive. He was himself in a duly humble and teachable frame of mind He had the strong support of outstanding people in Israel for we are told that when he went home to Gibeah after his choice as king "there went with him a band of men whose hearts God had touched."

It is true that there were some, called sons of Baliel, who murmured about the choice of Saul, and who said, "Shall Saul reign over us?" But even here Saul showed his strength and magnanimity, for when the people demanded of Samuel that this disturbing element opposed to Saul should be put to death Saul intervened and said, "There shall not be a man put to death this day Jehovah hath wrought deliverance in Israel."

No course could have been better adapted to win to Saul those who in the beginning were opposed to him. Apparently also Saul assumed his task with a sense of its moral responsibilities. He seemed to have concurred in the action of Samuel in writing down the manner of the kingdom, or, as we should say in our days, writing the constitution in a book, and in the religious ceremonies and consecration to Jehovah with which his kingdom was initiated.

Downfall Came Later

Later lessons will tell the tragic story of Saul's downfall, but if we would grasp the meaning of the picture as a whole we must first of all see Saul in his full stature entering upon his kingdom with every apparent assurance of success, and above all, in what seemed to be the proper spirit. It is a study worth following to see how this man, nature's nobleman, became overwhelmed with the power of evil suggestion and evil passions. With all his strength of body he lacked the great strength of soul of his namesake of New Testament times, better known as Paul, who found it necessary in the hours of his triumph to buffet his body and keep himself under lest he himself should be cast away.

From this day of auspicious beginning we trace the career of Saul through jealousy and periods amounting almost to madness to his ultimate suicide on the field of battle in his hour of defeat. We may anticipate the lessons of his whole life by emphasizing the warning, "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

ART TREASURES ARE DESTROYED

Dissatisfied Servants Ruin Many Rare Objects During Spree.

TOTAL LOSS $250,000.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(Canadian Press).—Dissatisfied with tips and wages given them by their wealthy employer, C. B. Lihme, retired millionaire, three apartment house employees held a drinking orgy in his exclusive Fifth Avenue apartment, according to police, and destroyed $250,000 worth of rare furnishings and art objects. Hambones, ale bottles, knives, and tongs were tossed recklessly about with valuable Van Dyck and Rubens canvases, statuary, costly rugs, and tapestries as the principal targets. A mirror, fifty feet square, was smashed to bits and a seventeen thousand dollar organ wrecked.

John Healy and George Tiernan, both employees, await arraignment in Harlem court today, while police seek the third alleged participant.

An interior decorator stumbled over the debris of a Chinese vase and kicked an empty Canadian ale bottle as he entered the apartment, on the twelfth floor at 950 Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth street. The foyer was full of broken glass and smashed porcelain. Two carved and gilded chairs lay on the floor, their legs and backs broken. Two pastel portraits of beautiful young women hung on the walls at crazy angles, both badly damaged from a bottle bombardment and blows with tongs. Smashed bottle necks and bottoms lay about the floor. There were big stains on the walls and on the rugs.

To Remove Tapestries.

The interior decorator had come with authority from Mr. Lihme to remove four sixteenth century Flemish tapestries to be hung in a loan collection. As soon as he had recovered from the shock caused by the appearance of the foyer, he hurried into the salon, which was decorated by the tapestries and other chief art treasures of Mr. Lihme.

"The Portrait of an Old Man," by Rubens, looked down with half the forepart gone and a series of dents in the richly gowned and jeweled body. On the west wall the beautiful Marchesa Lomellini and her two quaintly dressed children had been badly hacked and battered. These damaged figures, life size, were from the brush of Van Dyck, and reputed to have cost Mr. Lihme $200,000.

The decorator did not wait to study further details of the damage, but called the elevator boy and hurried downstairs.

"Mr. Lihme's apartment has been wrecked," he exclaimed.

Escorted to Police Station.

The news was taken with a show of surprise by John Healy, the doorman, a powerfully built man of middle height. About three hours later, however, Healy, in his grey livery and gold buttons and braid, was escorted to the East Sixty-Seventh Street Police Station. He had confessed that he was the chief smasher. He did it, he said, because he did not get a salary rise and a bonus which he expected; because he did not get tips enough to suit him, and because he had mixed whiskey with Canadian ale.

RYAN AND WILLS FAVORED TO WIN

California Tennis Stars Are Expected To Meet in Ladies' Finals.

AT WIMBLEDON.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 29.—(Canadian Press).—All followers of the Wimbledon tennis championships favor Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Helen Wills, both of California, to reach the finals in the women's singles. Miss Ryan is expected to defeat Senorita De Alvarez, Spanish star, while it is regarded as certain Miss Wills will win over her semi-final opponent, Miss Joan Fry of England.

"How many millions have you been offered today?" is the greeting of court stars. Many of them appear to relish the joke, while others seem pensive when queried by intimate friends about the reports of offers made to them to enter the professional field, but thus far there have been no deflections from the amateur ranks.

MR. DENNE THANKS COUNTY COUNCIL

On Behalf of the Fair Board For Grant.

In acknowledging the County Council's grant of $1,000 to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, Mr. Roland Denne, president, said to the Examiner: "Speaking for the directors of the Board I wish to say that we appreciate very much this special grant. It is to be used for a new cattle barn which we certainly need. Of course it would have helped us a lot more if the County could have made the grant $1,500, because we will have to go out and collect $500 or more to complete the sum to pay for a new barn.

"I know the directors are delighted to see an increasing spirit of proprietorship in the exhibition shown by residents of this city. This same spirit reflected by members of the County Council, and it proves that they have caught the true spirit of our exhibition. It is not solely a City of Peterboro enterprise. A large number of our directors are farmers and they are setting the pace in enthusiasm for the exhibition. We have no hard and fast boundaries for our members, but we certainly do feel that we deserve to be regarded as Peterboro County's fair. And as the county enthusiasm for an exhibition spreads out we will be stronger than ever. We deserve to be classified with Ottawa and London right now, and the more farmers that swing into line with us and feel that the fair is their's the sooner will we be in the class we are aiming for.

"I see no grant was made to the Keene fair, and as they did not have a show last year, I have heard they will discontinue their fair. Personally, I didn't like to see that because the Keene fair has had a long, clean record. But if they are going out of business, I'd like to see their directors join us in a body. We need more representation in Otonabee, and these men have had experience in fair work. They might form a branch of the main directorate of the Peterboro Exhibition and work with us in that way. However, that is a detail possibly for the future. Monaghan and Smith farmers are very active, and speaking for myself I'd certainly like to see the Otonabee Agricultural Society's board with us if they are not going to carry on. We want that county vision to spread, and I'm glad it has already developed so much. I thank all the members of the County Council for their grant, especially those who voted for it, and while we are making steady progress, I hope it won't be long until the Government recognizes us on par with Ottawa and London."

During the period he has held the British premiership Stanley Baldwin has received more than 8,000 pipes as gifts.

Rents amounting to more than $1,000,000 are collected annually by the City of London from property which it owns.

Peterborough's Diamond Jubilee Parade

The following is the order and a short description of the history attaching to every float in the big parade on Friday. Take this sheet with you when you watch the parade.

KEEP THIS PROGRAMME FOR REFERENCE

VETERANS, 1866.

CANADIAN PIONEERS (Ancient Order of Foresters).

BRITAIN AND HER COLONIES (Sons of England). BRITISH EMPIRE FLOAT.

Brittania, with her overseas Dominions, are represented by a group of Young Ladies of Canada at the rear centre of the float, occupies a prominent position befitting the place in the galaxy of nations forming the British Empire.

India, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand are placed one at each corner. Brittania in the centre, the dominant figure of the group, representing not only Great Britain but all her colonies, dependencies and mandated territories scattered all over the world.

An Empire whose past is glorious and whose future is envisaged by the words of Rudyard Kipling: "God Who made thee mighty, make thee mightier yet."

The Sons of England, Lansdowne Lodge No. 25, are preparing this float.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND (Parade Committee). . . ..

When Prince Edward Island was taken over by Britain, her lands were surveyed and divided into large estates or "lots" which were numbered. The fact was advertised among the friends of Government in London, and upon a set day, corresponding numbers written upon tickets were cast into a hat and favored government supporters were allowed to draw one lot apiece. The corresponding lands in Prince Edward Island were granted to the fortunate holder of the ticket. The system caused endless trouble and hardship among the Prince Edward Island settlers, and the evil was not done away with until the Dominion lent Prince Edward Island sufficient money to buy out the surviving absentee holders.

NOVA SCOTIA (Dawe and Pearson).

This province will be represented by a scene from the life of Evangeline, a young French girl whose story has been idealized by Longfellow. Though there are evidently two sides to the story of the expulsion of the Acadians, we must, I think, admit that these simple farmers were the victims of French intrigue on the one hand and Protestant bigotry on the other.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

The float representing the lumbering industry of this province by the three Loyal Orange Lodges of Peterborough.

New Brunswick has been and is to-day a land famous for its forests, which consist chiefly of spruce, fir, pine, birch, maple, cedar, and poplar. That forestry operations contribute largely to the wealth and revenue of this community, is shown by statistics from 1917-1921, a five years' average, which amounted to $18,621,929.

New Brunswick is divided into fifteen counties. It is a rolling country of no great elevation, well watered by numerous rivers and streams.

Other important industries are fishing, mining, and agriculture.

The undeveloped water-power of this province also presents great possibilities.

This province has a coast line of 600 miles and an open port all the year round.

New Brunswick is the largest Maritime Province of Canada.

QUEBEC (Kiwanis Club).

Canada was captured by Sir David Kirke and his sons in 1629, and remained in the hands of the English for three years. During that time most of the French inhabitants returned to France, but the first Canadian farmer, Louis Hebert, and his son-in-law, Couillard, remained at Quebec. When Champlain came back as Governor of the restored French colony, he was welcomed by the Heberts.

ONTARIO—QUILTING BEE—1795 (57th Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E.)

Among the early settlers bees of all kinds were very common. Help was not to be hired so the settlers helped one another in logging, raising, ploughing, husking, quilting bees, etc.

MANITOBA (Parade Committee).

In 1811, Lord Selkirk obtained from the Hudson Bay Company a deed to a tract of land greater in extent than the British Isles. There, in the Red River Valley, he settled Scotch crofters who had been evicted from their cottages at home. At once hostility arose between the settlers and the North-West Fur Trading Company. Duncan Cameron, an employee of the Company, cultivates the friendship of the Highland Colonists and offers to transport 200 of them, free of cost, to Eastern Canada. Those who are loyal to Selkirk, gather in the little log smithy of one, John McLeod, and there prepare themselves to resist attack by the Nor'-Westers.

SASKATCHEWAN—'The Story of Wheat' (Peter Hamilton Co.)

ALBERTA (Knights of Pythias).

In the history of early Alberta, whether by story, play or picture, there are many things that stand out as part of the country itself almost. We have always the renegade Indians, the unpatriotic and self-seeking half-breeds, and the persistent and courageous settler.

But is it doubtful if any one thing stands out as a necessity to a picture of Alberta as does a covered wagon. Early settlers coming in, long before the N.W.M.P., and long afterwards, used this common means of transport.

So when the people see in the July 1st parade, a covered wagon, entered by the Knights of Pythias, we want them to remember its significance and all the courage and suffering, joy and sorrow and heartache that it depicts and which its mere presence must bring to mind.

By means of a covered wagon, settlers went from war and near to Alberta. Many were the fights, the deaths, the ill-luck, the starvation and privation, until at last their foothold was so strong that it was recognized by the Government at Ottawa and our fair Western Province was brought into being.

Be sure to see this covered wagon, but imagine it only in its proper setting as a means of transport in our early West, a home on the road and off, the only haven of many of our courageous pioneers.

BRITISH COLUMBIA (Parade Committee).

YUKON (Parade Committee).

This "lone-land" will be represented by a mining scene.

FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION (Parade Committee).

CONFEDERATION (Women's Patriotic League).

The float to be entered by the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham in the 1st of July celebration parade will be a representation of "Confederation," with Brittania as a central figure, surrounded by nine ladies representing the different Provinces of the Dominion.

Y.W.C.A.

The Young Women's Christian Association, with its four-fold purpose, holds up to girls an ideal expressed in the following lines:

"To guard my health and keep my body fair,
That I may stronger be to do and dare.
To keep my mind unsullied, pure and free,
That truth and beauty may abide with me.
To be a friend and prove from day to day,
Sincere and kind, at home, at work, at play.
To follow always upward life's high quest
And find through knowing Christ, my very best."

The Association's many activities all aim to develop in each girl the very best and thus, physically, intellectually and spiritually fit her for a life of service.

The Y.W.C.A. through the 60 years since Confederation has developed wonderfully. There are now 39 Associations in Canada with many branches. Peterborough Y.W.C.A. was organized 37 years ago, and since then has grown to meet the needs of more and more girls by enlarging buildings, increasing equipment, adding to its staff and always seeking to use every opportunity for usefulness to the community.

In the July first parade the Y.W.C.A. float will remind the citizens of Peterborough of the influence of the Young Women's Christian Association in the development of good citizenship for our city.

The float will show the Spirit of the Association, overshadowed by the blue triangle, and encircling in her arms the eastern and western hemispheres, representing Association work over the whole world. At her feet a group of eager girls look to the Spirit of the "Y" for leadership, training and guidance along life's way.

LEIF ERICSON (Nashua Paper).

About 1,000 A.D., according to Norse legend, Leif the Lucky, son of Eric the Outlaw, crossed in an open boat from Greenland and sailed past the "slaty rocks" of Labrador, the meadows of Nova Scotia even as far as Rhode Island's vine-clad shores. But the grim shadows of the forest, the hostility of the Skraelings and the lure of the rolling drifts of their native land prevented their permanent settlement in North America.

THE LANDING OF COLUMBUS (Knights of Columbus).

Although, at first sight, it might seem that the landing of Columbus, on a West Indian island, had little to do with the celebration of the Confederation of Canada, it is nevertheless the fact, that the revelation, by Columbus, of the existence of the New World, was the starting point of all the history, not only of the West Indies, but of Canada, of United States, and of all other nations on this Continent.

Columbus was the intrepid pioneer who blazed the trial for others to follow; and, while his landing on the shores of the island of San Salvador is, to the older peoples of civilization, the most stupendous discovery of the Christian Era, it is of even greater significance to the younger nations who are working out their destinies in this New World, to which he guided them.

When, therefore, the Knights of Columbus were asked to undertake the representation of the landing of Columbus, they felt that it was a historical event which should, rightly, form one picture in the portrayal of the history of Canada.

The following description of the incident is taken from the account given by Washington Irving, in his "Life and Voyages of Christopher Columbus":

Columbus first landed in the New World on 12th October, 1492. The existence of land had been ascertained during the night, and when day dawned Columbus made signal to cast anchor, and to man the boats.

He entered his own boat, richly clothed in scarlet, and bearing the royal standard of Spain. Martin Alonzo Ponzon and his brother, Vicente Yanez, who were the captains of the two other ships, likewise put off in boats, each bearing a banner emblazoned with a green cross, and having on each side the letters "F" and "Y" surmounted by crowds, the Spanish sovereigns, giving the island the name of San Salvador. He then called on all present to take the oath of obedience to him as admiral and viceroy, and as representative of the sovereigns.

The natives of the island, who had at first fled to the woods, finding that there was no attempt to molest them, gradually returned, and approached the Spaniards with great awe, frequently prostrating themselves. During the ceremony of taking possession they remained gazing, in timid admiration, at the complexion, the beards, the shining armour, and splendid dress of the Spaniards.

JACQUES CARTIER (Parade Committee).

Early in May, 1534, Cartier with a little band of sailors and soldiers explored the Gulf of the St. Lawrence. He landed at Cape Gaspe and erected a cross on which were inscribed the words, "Vive Le Roy de France." The Indians fearful that the strange pale faces were stealing their land, gathered about, but Cartier with bright trinkets and gleaming knives, won their goodwill.

CHAMPLAIN (Women's Catholic League).

Champlain sailed from Orleans to Quebec, arriving there on July the Third. He searched for a suitable place to settle, finding it at Quebec. He set right to work to establish a colony.

Champlain's Quebec was very poor in everything but courage. The fact that it was founded by men who had just failed in Acadia, gives proof of this virtue. Immediately upon his return from Port Royal to France, Champlain showed De Monts a map and plan which embodied the result of his explorations during the last three years. They then took counsel regarding the future, and with Champlain's encouragement De Monts resolved to continue his noble and meritorious undertaking, notwithstanding the hardships and labors of the past. It is significant that once more Champlain names explorations as the distinctive purpose of De Monts.

Champlain developed a very flourishing fur trading industry. He got on the right side of the Indians fighting for the Algonquins and Hurons against the Iroquois League or Five Nations, which won for him the name of "Father of New France."

Champlain was gifted with very fine qualities. He was sly, clever and daring and tried very hard to spread the faith of Christianity among the Indians.

At the beginning of October, 1635 he was stricken with paralysis, and passed away on Christmas Day of the same year. We do not possess the oration which Father Paul Le Jeune delivered at his funeral, but there remains from Le Jeune's pen an appreciation of his character in terms which to Champlain himself would have seemed the highest praise.

HEROES OF NEW FRANCE (Parade Committee).

But neither Indian raid nor foreign war nor fur-traders' greed could quite offset the self-sacrifice of priests and heroes. Fathers Brebeuf, Lalement and Daniels both figuratively and literally gave their lives for their children in Christ. Though Huron Missions were wiped out, these names stand out as examples of fidelity and Christian fortitude. Then, too, such men as Adam Daulac and his little band regarded it as a religious duty to give their lives at the Long Sault Rapids to save Montreal, Three Rivers and Quebec from the tomahawks of the Iroquois. Even as late as 1696 outlying farmsteads were not safe from their raids. In that year, Madeline de Vercheres, a girl of fourteen, assisted by two boys, a couple of soldiers and an old man of eighty, held her home for eight days against an Indian war-party.

FRONTENAC (Parade Committee).

By this time, however, Count Frontenac had not only saved Quebec from the English but had terrorized the New England Colonies and except for occasional raids, had pacified the Iroquois, treating them as children, praising them when good and punishing them when disobedient.

LA SALLE (Parade Committee).

This lull in border warfare, enabled the French to send out exploring parties far and wide, ever searching for the fabled waterway to China. Exploration, however, went hand in hand with religion. With Joliet went Father Marquette. These two blazed the way for La Salle who finally sailed down the Mississippi to its mouth, and in 1684 was murdered while attempting to found a colony there.

MONTCALM AND WOLFE (Parade Committee).

Frontenac's lesson to the New Englanders had no permanent effect. Whenever England and France were at war, the colonists fought one another. At last, in 1756, began the Seven Years' War. After varying fortunes, the tide finally turned in favor of the British. In 1758 Wolfe captured Louisburg in Cape Breton and the next year took Quebec. His opponent there was Montcalm, a French nobleman and able military officer, handicapped however, by the Governor's jealousy and the corruption of Intendant Bigot.

THE FUR TRADERS (Barrier' Limited).

Though the French were disappointed in their search for wealth of the Orient, they did discover in forest, farm and stream a more lasting wealth, a wealth the acquisition of which builds character rather than saps it. Nevertheless, in the earlier days, trapping and fur-trading had the strongest here. In 1670 Radisson, having suffered from the French system of monopoly, went over to the English and founded the Hudson Bay Company. This organization built forts at the mouths of the rivers where the Indians brought their furs to barter for trinkets, blankets, guns and ammunition.

HEROES OF WAR OF 1812 (Parade Committee).

On October 26, 1813, De Salaberry with 250 French and Indian awaited the advance of 3,000 Americans through the woods at Chateuguay River near Montreal. Almost at the first shot, the forlorn litle band broke and fled. De Salaberry, seizing his bugle-boy, ordered him to sound the advance. McDonnell, coming up with reinforcements, mistaking the signal for the call of victory, ordered his owh buglers to sound the advance and his men to cheer like devils. The advancing Americans became demoralised and sounded the retreat. Thus was the battle won by a bugle boy held to the sticking point by the hand of his commander.

JOSEPH BRANT (Parade Committee)

Joseph Brant was the Chief of the Mohawks during the American Revolution. They remained loyal to Britain and, led by Butler and Brant, laid waste the Wyoming Valley. This incident, by the way, is the basis for Campbell's poem, „Gertrude of Wyoming." The remnants of this tribe came to Ontario with the other loyalists and received a grant of 700,000 acres of land.

GENERAL BROCK (Parade Committee).

In the war of 1812 to 1814 Sir Isaac Brock was in command, first of the troops that captured Detroit and later of the armies on the Niagara frontier. On the night of Ocober 12, 1812, the Americans landed and in the morning held Queenston Heights. Brock hastened up from the mouth of the Niagara and without waiting for reinforcements, charged the Heights. His brilliant uniform was an easy mark for the American snipers. Brock fell while encouraging his men.

TECUMSEH (Parade Committee).

While Brock was waiting before Detroit in 1812 he was joined by Tecumseh, the great Shawnee Indian Chief. When Brock left, Tecumseh remained with Proctor, the Canadian Commander of the fort. In 1813, when the Americans got control of Lake Erie, and cut off provisions from Detroit, he accompanied Proctor on his march to Burlington. At Moravian-town they stopped and gave battle to the pursuing enemy. Before the battle ended, Proctor sounded the retreat and left the Indian allies to finish the battle. Before the end of the fight Tecumseh was killed.

LAURA SECORD (Laura Secord).

Laura Secord crossing 12-mile creek in her heroic journey across the Black Swamp and through the woods to warn Lieutenant Fitzgibbons at Beaver Dams of an intended attack by the Americans in June, 1813.

THE LANDING OF PETER ROBINSON (Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E.).

In 1825 Hon. Peter Robinson paid a visit to England and while there was spoken to by Sir Wilmot Horton as to the advisability of directing a large tide of emigration from Ireland to Canada. Mr. Robinson thought very favorably of the scheme and was induced to take charge of the matter.

As late as 1824 the site of the future town of Peterborough was inhabited only by Adam Scott, his son, and a few workmen. They had erected a mill at the end of King Street. Then it was that emigration on an extensive scale, conducted by Hon. Peter Robinson under the auspices of the British Government, conducted to the speedy settlement of the country. Four hundred and fifteen families availed themselves of the advantages thus afforded them. They arrived at Quebec and were forwarded to Kingston. In the meantime Mr. Robinson had sailed from Liverpool to New York and procured from the Surveyor-General information in reference to the land he was about to settle. He then proceeded to Cobourg, then to "Scott's Plains," as it was called. Returning to Kingston in August, 1825, he embarked five hundred emigrants, and next day landed them in Cobourg. From here they proceeded by land to Rice Lake. Here a flat-bottomed boat was built, 60 feet in length and 8 feet wide. This was propelled by several oars at each side.

The first party which ascended the river consisted of thirty of the healthiest settlers and twenty men hired as axemen. They brought with them provisions, saws, saw horses, axes and other necessities. The landing place was just above Spaulding's Bay, at the spot afterwards used as a steamboat landing. Special mention is made of the great assistance rendered by Captain Rubidge, Colonel McDonnell, Dr. Reade, and Rev. Mr. Crowley, who celebrated Mass.

Until 1827 Peterborough had no other name than "Scott's Plains." Its present designation was then chosen as a merited compliment to Hon. Peter Robinson, to whose successful labors in promoting immigration the country felt itself so much indebted.

OBSERVATION GOOD IN PART OF DARK ZONE

Total Eclipse Witnessed By Thousands in England To-day.

ASTRONOMERS SUCCEED.

Mists Mar View in Many Parts of Path of the Shadow.

GIGGLESWICK, Yorkshire, Eng., June 29.—(Canadian Press).—Tens of thousands of awed spectators in the totality belt of this morning's solar eclipse saw a magnificent sight, such as had not been witnessed in Great Britain in more than a hundred years. In many parts of the totality zone, the counties of Lancashire, Cheshire, Durham, and Yorkshire, the spectacle was more or less marred by mists and fleeting clouds, but it was observed in perfection here, where a large crowd was assembled and where astronomical watchers made what were described as the best observations they have ever been able to take.

Brilliant Eclipse.

GIGGLESWICK, Yorkshire, June 29. Canadian Press. — Sir Frank Dyson, the astronomer royal, heading the Royal Observatory expedition, told the Associated Press to-day, that this morning's eclipse was the most brilliant he had ever observed, and said that the very accurate observations made may lead to new conclusions.

MERLE APPEAL IS DISMISSED

Found Guilty of Murdering Andre Marrella at Montreal.

HANG ON AUG. 15TH.

MONTREAL, Que., June 29. — Canadian Press. — George Merle, convicted murderer of Andre Marrelle will be hanged on August 5th, unless the Federal Minister of Justice orders a commutation of the sentence.

Merle was found guilty of the murder of Marelle who was shot to death in a house in the east end of the city. Evidence at the trial revealed that the killing was the result of a quarrel over the affections of a woman. The hanging was originally set for June 10 but a stay of execution was granted to allow the hearing of an appeal entered by Merle but which was dismissed by the court here yesterday.

CHILDREN GUESTS OF OMEMEE LADIES

At Picnic at Fee's Landing on Saturday—Omemee News.

OMEMEE, June 30.—Mrs. William Irwin and Mrs. Thomas Rowan gladdened the hearts of several children when they supervised a picnic at Fee's Landing on Saturday afternoon. The day was anything but suitable for a picnic but in spite of the loud claps of thunder and heavy downpour of rain the children were provided with plenty of amusement and thoroughly enjoyed the picnic supper and numerous servings of ice cream.

The annual public school picnic was held on Monday afternoon to Green Landing, where a good programme of sports was carried out and a splendid time enjoyed.

Entrance examinations are being tried in Omemee this week. Thirty-six candidates are writing, the presiding officer is Miss G. M. Meredith, B.A., the high school principal.

The first home grown strawberries were brought into the village on Saturday evening by Mr. Herb Howden and were readily sold at 32 cents a box. Mr. Howden, who supplied large quantities in previous years is very doubtful about the coming yield of fruit, the recent frosts having done a great deal of damage. Mr. J. Bushnell also complains of the same misfortune.

On Monday evening the Omemee Juniors met on Athletic Park in a friendly game of softball, with the team from Reaboro. E. W. Rowland umpired the game, which resulted in a score of 6-5 in favor of the locals.

Whenever Queen Victoria traveled by train, although it might only be a few miles, she always insisted that a time table printed on silk be prepared for her use.

Plane Terminal Plans Are Almost Completed

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, June 29 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — Plans concerning the projected mooring-mast and ground equipment for an airship terminal in the Union are almost completed. It is agreed that the airship service shall be controlled by the Union's railway administration, and that approximately $350,000 will be spent on the mast itself. It is understood this will be located near Cape Town. The Government committed itself to construction of a mast as the Union's contribution to an inter-Empire airship service.

His Worship could not find sufficient to commit the defendant Davis to trial, so the case was dismissed. Davis will be tried on the other two charges.

Man Fires Possible After Breaking Leg

BISLEY CAMP, England, June 29 (Canadian Press). — During the first stage of the Air Force rifle championship shoot to-day, Wing Commander Grant Dalton, who lost a leg in the war, broke his artificial leg. He instantly secured an automobile, dashed back to camp, adjusted a new artificial leg, and returned to the range in time to make a "possible," a perfect score.

VOCAL PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

Fine Programme Given By Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park's Pupils.

MANY IN AUDIENCE.

(By Jeanette.)

A very interesting recital by the pupils of Dorothy Allan Park was given in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, with an attendance which filled the large hall almost to capacity. Much enthusiasm was manifested over the various numbers, prolonged applause greeting the more difficult operatic selections which formed the contributions of the senior members towards the close of the programme. An arrangement of massed daisies on the stage made a pretty setting for the dainty frocks of the singers. During the evening, bouqets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Park and to Miss Mary Agnes Logan, who played accompaniments with her proficient style and pleasing comprehension of the possibilities of each number.

The songs were suited to the temperament of the singer and were pleasingly rendered in each instance. They included a number of the daintier, lighter type of vocal composition which is attractive in rendition; the latter portion of the programme merging into heavier selections from various operas, several being sung in Italian. These included the "Habanera" from "Carmen," sung by Mrs. Ida Clark in clear, attractive soprano voice; Micaela's aria from the same opera, in which Miss Daisy Murray's powerful, soaring soprano was heard to splendid advantage, and the duet, "Every Flower," from "Madame Butterfly," sung beautifully by Mrs. Fred Free of Campbellford, as Susuki, and Miss Margaret Dickson, as Cio Cio San. Other like numbers were an excerpt from Handel's oratorio, "Judas Maccabeus," in "Arm, Arm, Ye Brave," ringing out in Mr. Sidney Willis' robust bass; the duet from "La Gioconda," "T'amo come il Fugor del Creato," with dramatic rendition of the song of the rivals given by Mrs. H. F. Doig, as "Gioconda," and Mrs Ida Clark as 'Laura," and the "Vissi d'Arte" aria from "La Tosca," which gave fine scope to Miss Margaret Dickson, her vibrant, ringing soprano with its sweet cadences being especially attractive in this selection. The birdlike sweetness of voice and exceptional technical ability in rention possessed by Mrs. H. F. Doig were demonstrated admirably in a difficult number, "The Destruction of Jerusalem," and a splendid concluding duet was a bit from "Aida," "'Neath the Chances of Battle," one of the outstanding numbers of the programme, in which Miss Daisy Murray as "Aida," and Miss Emma Meiklejohn of Campbellford as "Amneris" excelled themselves in the power and control of the two fine voices.

The programme was as follows:

"The Moon Hath Raised Its Lamp Above"— Misses. Stanley and Sidney Willis.

"From Out the Mist"—Miss Mildred Magee.

"Boat Song"—Miss Ethel Mabee.

"In the Starlight"—Misses Padgett and Wolstenholme.

"My Dear Soul"—Mrs. Lou Ingram.

"A Pastoral"— Old English Air—Miss Doris Donley.

"I Would That My Love"—Misses Magee and Allison.

"Thoughts Have Wings"—Miss May Jory.

"Request" (Garden of Kamo) — Miss Margaret Wolstenholme.

"Fairings"—Mrs. Ingram and Miss Mabee.

"A Caution"—Miss Freda Allison.

"Spring's Awakening"— Miss Daisy Davidson.

"Crying Water"—Misses Lytle and Jory.

"Solveig's Song"—Miss Jean Padgett.

"How Changed the Vision"—Miss Bertha Hill.

"At Eventide"— Misses Lamb and Hill.

"Oh Fair, Oh Sweet and Holy"—Mr. Stanley Willis.

"The Lass With the Delicate Air"—Miss Helen Lytle.

"The Fairy Queene"—Misses Donley and Davidson.

"Three Little Fairy Songs" —Miss Helen Lamb.

"How Do I Love Thee"—Mrs. Fred Free of Campbellford.

"Romance"— Miss Emma Meiklejohn of Campbellford.

"Habanera from Carmen"—Mrs. Ida Clark.

"Micaela's Aria from Carmen" — Miss Daisy Murray.

"Every Flower" (Madam Butterfly)—Cio Cio San, Miss Dickson; Susuki, Mrs. Free.

"Arm, Arm, Ye Brave" (Judas Maccabaeus)—Mr. Sidney Willis.

"T'amo Come Il Fulgor Del Creato" (La Gioconda)—Gioconda, Mrs. Doig, Laura, Mrs. Clark.

"Vissi D'Arte" (La Tosca" — Miss Margaret Dickson.

"The Destruction of Jerusalem"—Mrs. H. F. Doig.

"'Neath the Chances of Battle" (Aida)—Aida, Miss Murray; Amneris, Miss Meiklejohn.

ARMY AVIATORS REACH HAWAII

Complete Oakland - Honolulu Flight in 25 Hours.

HONOLULU, June 29 (Canadian Press).—The army Fokker monoplane, carrying Lieutenants Maitland and Hagenberger, arrived here from San Francisco at 6.22 a.m. today. (8.52 Pacific time).

The army fliers, who left Oakland at 7.09 a.m. yesterday, finished their trans-Pacific flight in 25 hours and 43 minutes. In their flight of approximately twenty-four hundred miles Maitland and Hagenberger completed the longest trans-oceanic flight ever accomplished.

The landing was made on a rain-soaked field. The huge plane, taxied the entire length of the field, then circling, came back to the front of the review stand, where the highest army, navy, and civil authorities in the island were waiting to extend congratulations to the fliers.

Crowds who were on the way home hurriedly returned to field and went wild with enthusiasm as the plane stopped.

Throughout their long flight they had been reported seen only once, by the steamer Sonoma, 750 miles from California. The army fliers came in through bright sunshine that had cleared away the rain and the gloom of night that shrouded their landing place.

The thousands who had waited through the long night had begun to disperse when the aviators came through the haze to a triumphant landing.

FIRE BRIGADE IS DECORATING

Flowers and Flags Being Put On Hall—A Sign of Progress.

HORSES GO SOON.

The Fire Department began this morning to decorate for the celebration at the latter end of the week. Flower boxes were being filled, and placed on the windows, flags were being hung ,and with the new coat of paint on the hall, it will present a very smart appearance in honour of the First.

In seven or eight weeks, horses at the Fire Hall will be but a memory, for a new motor-waggon ladder truck is to make its appearance in a short time. The Peterborough Fire Department has indeed grown in accordance to the size of the city. Going back to Confederation times, it is interesting to read an account of The Examiner of that date when the volunteer firemen played cricket. Since those early days, the Department has steadily grown, adding more equipment yearly, until it now has what might be termed an "excellent brigade," under the expert leadership of Chief George Gimblett.

The new truck is to be the same make of the present Number 1 pumper, the La France type, and is to carry all the ladder equipment.

BEER BY GLASS FOR MANITOBA

Majority in Cities For This Sale Overcomes Rural Opposition.

RETURNS INCOMPLETE.

WINNIPEG, June 29 (Canadian Press).—Sale of beer by the glass in licensed premises under Government Control appeared to be assured for Manitoba today, following the referendum held yesterday in conjuction with the provincial election.

It was a case of country versus cities, and the cities, on the result of incomplete returns, appear to have won.

Returns today still were far from complete but the large majority rolled up in the cities is believed sufficient to assure the passing of the extension regulations. In towns and rural districts the sale of beer by the bottle with a "cash and carry" system was favored.

EDITOR ARRESTED BY PARIS POLICE

PARIS, June 29 (Canadian Press).—Maurice Pujo, editor-in-chief of the Royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise, was arrested to-day, following further investigations at the newspaper plant, where police believe the telephone calls originated which resulted in the release from prison of Leon Daudet, Royalist leader, his lieutenant, Delest, and the Communist, Semard.

A SONG OF JUBILEE.

This song written by Miss Adeline C. Roberts 701 Stewart street, is to be screened for community singing at a Jubilee celebration, near Toronto, on July 1st:

(Air: "Battle Hymn of the Republic" or "John Brown's Body.")

Come, all Canadian people, raise the song of Jubilee,
To greet our loved Dominion, let it sound from sea to sea
Sing it for our country and the glorious years to be,
As she goes marching on.

Chorus.
Glory, glory be to Canada,
Glory, glory be to Canada,
Glory, glory be to Canada,
As she goes marching on.

The Union Jack's our emblem, it's the nation's flag sublime,
It floats wherever freedom reigns, no matter where the clime,
The motto of our country shall be, first, and all the time,
She goes marching on.
Chorus: Glory etc.

On rolling western prairie, and by stream or mountain grand,
In lonely forest clearing and by ocean's wave-beat strand,
In every town and city of our dear Canadian land,
We all are marching on.
Chorus: Glory etc.

After sixty years of progress we are marching onward still,
And so we purpose doing with a heart, and mind, and will,
For Onward is our watchword, and we'll follow it until,
The world stops marching on
Chorus: Glory etc.

DOCTOR BLAMED FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Jury Returns Verdict Finding Peritonitis Immediate Cause.

OAKVILLE, June 30.—"We find that death was caused by peritonitis and blood poisoning, brought on by an operation.

"And we find further that the operation was performed by Dr. Ryckman at Hamilton on June 1 and 2."

The above verdict was returned at Palermo last night by the jury empanelled by Coroner T. W. Peart of Burlington to inquire into the death of Agnes Esther Heslop, aged 20, who died on June 18 at the home of her parents in Appleby, Nelson Township.

Statement Is Read.

The jury agreed upon a verdict in 35 minutes. The most startling evidence of the inquiry was the reading by Crown Attorney W. J. Dick of Milton of a signed statement by Miss Heslop a short time before death. In this statement, Miss Heslop said she knew she was dying and that she had an illegal operation done by Dr. Ryckman of Hamilton at his office on June 1 and 2 last.

Cavan Heslop, her brother, present when the statement was made and signed, and who himself witnessed it, said he believed his sister did not understand the statement.

Ivan Rasberry, a young man of Clappison's Corners, was named by Miss Jean Gates, a nurse, of Hamilton, as the person who paid her $40 for her services to Miss Heslop during the latter's illness.

Dr. Ryckman was present, but did not testify. He was arrested a few days ago on a charge of manslaughter. Charles W. Bell, K.C., of Hamilton, his counsel, and Crown Attorney Dick, clashed once or twice regarding the questioning of witnesses. George W. Ballard, Crown Attorney of Wentworth, attended the hearing.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith Hathway did not smile or extend her hand as she walked steadily and proudly to meet Chris Wiley, the man who was legally her brother-in-law. Her eyes took him in with impersonal thoroughness. He was undeniably good looking in a theatrical over-accentuated fashion.

"How do you do, Faith! Or am I supposed to say 'Mrs. Hathaway?" Chris greeted her with casual, laconic cordiality. "I asked for Cherry, my wife—"

"Cherry does not want to se you, Chris," Faith replied coldly. "I hope you are fully recovered from the mastoid operation?"

"Quite, thanks," Chris retorted. "I am sorry my illness prevented my standing trial with Cherry, I don't believe I have ever thanked you and Hathaway from having rescued me from the clutches of the law at the same time you rescued my wife. May I thank you now?"

"Anything we did was for Cherry's sake," said Faith.

Chris Wiley seated himself in the big wing chair—Bob's favorite chair — then leaned forward, his hands clasped loosely between his knees. Faith, why is Cherry behaving like this? Why won't she live with me? God knows I love her—"

Faith was trembling as she dropped into a corner of the big couch. "But Cherry dosen't love you. How can I advise her to live with you? You should never have made her marry you. You knew you were not good enough for Cherry—"

"That's rather funny," Chris laughed shortly, bitterly. "After the revelations from the witness stand, as to Cherry's numerous love affairs—"

"That's not fair and you know it!" Faith cried. "They were innocent, all of them. Cherry never did any real wrong! she had just flirted because men were so crazy about her. You ought to know! But what's the use of rehashing all those old stories? I suppose you've come to ask Cherry to return to you."

Chris Wiley's face darkened and his mouth twisted into an ugly loop. "I certainly have. She is bringing suit for divorce, and I want to warn her I'll fight it to the last ditch! She kept me dangling for months, jilted me twice for other men, married me on the night she was to marry Cluny, lived with me one day, got me into the nastiest mess a man ever had to crawl through, then left me flat, made a laughing stock out of me in the papers—" His voice chocked on rage that was ugly to see.

"May I ask, Chris" Faith interrupted quietly, her face very white, "how you intend to fight her? What sort of attack you will make?"

"I'll file a counter suit for divorce and name George Pruitt as co-respondendent," Chris flung up his head and glanced at his sister-in-law savagely.

"George Pruitt!" Faith gasped. "You must be insane, Chris. You haven't a chance in the world to pin anything on George Pruitt. He's one of the cleanest, finest, squarest men in the world. Why, Cherry has been out with him only once—"

Chris laughed contemptuously. "Do you think I've been sitting around twiddling my thumbs? I've had a detective shadowing them, and Cherry has been seen with him four times—"

"That's a lie, Chris Wiley!" Cherry's voice shrilled from the doorway.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By Howard R, Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MOSS HOUSE

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

"Well, well! I wonder who lives here?" asked Uncle Wiggily of himself one day. He had been hopping through the woods, looking, as usual, for an adventure and, all of a sudden, down in a little dingly dell near a bubbling spring, the rabbit gentleman saw a tiny green house.

"It is made of green moss," said Mr. Longears, still talking to himself as he hopped nearer. "My what a cute little house! I must find out who lives in it; perhaps it is the home of a green fairy."

The house was about half as large as a roller skate without the wheels. The top and sides were made of soft, green moss such as always grows in the forest. The little green moss house had tiny doors and windows, and for a chimney the empty shell of a periwinkle. But now no smoke was floating out of this queer, tiny chimney, so Uncle Wiggily guessed that no one was at home in the moss house.

Hopping nearer, but taking care not to bump against the little house for fear he might topple it over, Uncle Wiggily knelt down and looked inside. He saw that the moss house was filled with furniture made from tiny acorns. But he saw no sign of any fairy or whoever else might live in the place.

"This is very queer," whispered the rabbit gentleman getting up and brushing some pine needles off his trousers. "There must be a secret about this moss house. But I shall stay here until I find out who lives in it."

He sat himself down on a flat stump, but though he waited hour after hour, no one came to enter the tiny green moss house and Uncle Wiggily stretched his legs and said:

"Well, I can't wait here all day. I must go adventuring. I'll come back tomorrow." So he hopped away, wondering and wondering who might live in the moss house.

Uncle Wiggily had only half an adventure that day, not worth telling you about, but when he hopped to the moss house next day, still there was no sign of any one having been in it, and though he waited several hours, no one came to the place.

"This is getting more and more curious," whispered the rabbit. "But I have made up my mind to find out this secret, so I will come tomorrow." This he did, but still he could not learn who lived in the moss house.

So it went on for nearly a week until at last the Fox and Bob Cat noticed that Uncle Wiggily was going very often to the same place in the woods. One day the two bad chaps followed the rabbit and saw him take his seat on the stump near the little moss house to wait.

"Ah, so that's why he comes here!" whispered the Fox to the Bob Cat. "He wants to find out the secret of the green moss house."

"Well, I can't tell him, for I don't know it myself," mewed the Bob Cat.

"Neither do I," snarled the Fox. "But I know one thing, and that is how we can play a trick on Mr. Longears and catch him to eat."

"How?" asked the chap with the silly little tail.

"Tomorrow," whispered the Fox, "you and I will build a large green moss house here near this little one. We will build our moss house in front of the little one and hide it. When Uncle Wiggily comes, as he is sure to do, he will be so surprised at seeing the big moss house that he will fail over backward and we can easily catch him!"

"That suits me!" snarled the Bob Cat.

Next day the two bad chaps built a big moss house in front of the mysterious little one, and hid themselves in it. When Uncle Wiggily reached the dingly dell as he was much surprised to see, as he thought, how big the little green house had grown.

"Oh, I am so surprised!" he cried, not knowing what to think.

"Well, here's another surprise for you!" howled the bad chaps, leaping out at the rabbit.

But before they could bite him two big June Bugs zoomed out of the little green moss house and, banging against the eyes of the Fox and Bob Cat, made so many tears flow that the bad chaps couldn't see to grab Mr. Longears. The Fox and Bob Cat staggered around in the woods and at last ran away, after bumping against the stumps many times.

"Thank you, June Bugs, for saving me, but I didn't know you lived here," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes," said Mr. Bug, "that little green moss house is mine. I built it and furnished it and then went away to get married. My wife and I just came home now, in time to scare away the Fox and Bob Cat."

"And I'm glad we could do you a favor, Uncle Wiggily!" buzzed the lady June Bug, as she and her husband went into the little moss house.

"Thank you, I'm glad too, and I'm glad I found out the secret," chuckled Mr. Longears.

Big Demand For Renzyme

Druggists say that the merit of this new product makes it a quick seller.

Even though Renzyme is a drugless product and entirely different to the usual medicines found in a drug store, druggists are very enthusiastic in regard to it.

They recognize in it a natural treatment which cannot fail to afford relief and have found that their customers do not use it long before becoming absolutely convinced of its merits.

Mr. E. M. Crosthwaite, Druggist, St. Mary's, Ont., writes: "The sale of 'RENZYME' has been remarkable and no stomach medicine has been put across the counter with so little argument. Our experience has been once a customer tries it he will accept nothing else, as it seems to do the work.

"One of the most favourable points in selling it is the idea of no drugs which the public seems to take to. Our sales are gradually increasing and it has been gratifying to see it go across with so very little effort."

You can obtain Renzyme from your druggist at $1.50 a bottle or it will be sent to you, postpaid, on receipt of price, if you mention this paper. The Renzyme Laboratories, Toronto, 2, Canada.

Gehrig Ties With Ruth For Home Run Honors

YANKEES TAKE FIRST OF SERIES

Boston Pushed Little Deeper Into Cellar by 8-2 Defeat.

GEHRIG TIES RUTH

NEW YORK, June 30.—(Canadian Press).—The New York Yankees pushed the Boston Red Sox a little deeper into the cellar here yesterday, taking the first of a four-game series by 8 to 2. It was the eleventh straight defeat for the visitors. Gehrig tied Babe Ruth for the season's home run honors, hitting his twenty-fourth in the fifth inning. Ruth was back in the game after a three day layoff and hit a double and three singles.

The Senators knocked the Athletics out of second place yesterday, winning the first game of their home series, 8 to 5. Cochran hit a homer in the eighth scoring Simmons ahead of him. Thurston was effective for Washington and although relieved by Marberry in the eighth, was credited with the victory.

Chicago and Cleveland broke even in a doubleheader yesterday, the Sox winning the first game, 5 to 0, and the Indians the second, 3 to 6. Blakenship was in great form in the opener, the White Sox bunching hits of Levsen and Smith for an easy victory. Heavy walloping in the second called out a bunch of pitchers, all of whom had a hard time.

Detroit swept their four-game home series with the St. Louis Browns by winning the closing contest. The score was 9 to 3. The Tigers made their runs in clusters, scoring four in the sixth with the aid of only one base hit and five more in the eighth on four hits, all of which were for extra bases. Fothergill started the second rally with a home run over the left field fence.

STARS INCREASE LEAD IN LEAGUE

Capture Second Game of the Season From Bisons 4 to 1.

HOMERS FEATURE

NEW YORK, June 30 (Canadian Press). — The Syracuse Stars captured the second game of the season from the Bisons at Buffalo yesterday by a score of 4 to 1, again increasing their lead to four games.

Home runs by Williamson and Bisonnette featured . Bissonnette rifled his fifteenth homer of the season over the right field fence with the bases empty to take the league leadership for circuit drives.

The Newark Bears repeated Tuesday's performance by winning yesterday's game at Baltimore, the second of the current series, 8 to 4. Cantrell, who started the game for the locals, was replaced by Henderson after Conlan, the first man up, clouted out a home run, followed by Elliott's single and another homer by Lee. After the fifth, the visitors continued their scoring, while Sheedy of the locals hit for the circuit.

Reading broke its losing streak of eight games by defeating Jersey City, 8 to 2, in the second game of a double-header at Reading, after losing the first game in eleven innings, 8 to 6. Pinch Hitter Davis' single, with Dave Barbee on second in the seventh, gave Reading the second victory.

The annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge universities has been known for several generations as the "battle of the blues"—dark blue being the Oxford color and light blue for Cambridge. In the first race, which took place in 1829, the Cambridge crew rowed in white shirts and pink sashes; Oxford wore dark blue jerseys. Just before the second race, in 1836, the Cambridge men found that they had no colors in the bow, and one of them was dispatched to the nearest shop with instructions to "buy Eton ribbon for luck." Light blue ribbon was purchased and it has ever since been the Cambridge color.

Walker Now Ready To Enter the Ring

LONDON, June 30.—(Canadian Press).—Mickey Walker, American middleweight champion, is trained to perfection and all ready to enter the ring for his battle tonight with Tommy Milligan of Scotland.

Both fighters are equally confident of victory and the betting is generally about even although the fellow countrymen of both fighters are willing to give slight odds on their respective favorites.

Milligan, who eats lots of porridge, says that he was never more fit in his life. "I feel sure that I will win," was his statement yesterday.

The fight is for 20 rounds to a referee's decision.

MENIE LOSE TO GLEN ROSS

Locals Blew in Bad Innings—Visitors Secured Eight Runs.

LEAGUE RACE CLOSE

BURNBRAE, June 30.—On Monday evening the Menie softball team again bowed to defeat on the home grounds when Glen Ross handed them a 10 to 8 drubbing. The visitors secured 8 of their ten runs in one bad inning when the Menie fielders could not seem to do anything right. The rest of the game was close and exciting with very little heavy hitting on either side. Smith, the Glen Ross' hurler, has a freak delivery which fools the best of batters. On his first appearance here this season he weakened at the last, but in Monday night's encounter he had the local batters guessing all through the chapter.

The league race is very close and a defeat to any team means the cellar while a win puts the last team right in the running again. Menie have two games with Mt. Pleasant and one with Glen Ross and will have to win two of these to secure a .500 average for the season. Several games will be played around the holiday season and by next week the race should be almost over and the finalists decided.

STARR STERLING'S PROBLEM

A Serial for Boys - By BERT REED

"Looks as though we were in for a storm Larkspur," exclaimed Paul Gray as a low rumble of thunder reached them. "I wonder how far Sterling and Northway have gone. We'd better look them up and get back to camp."

"The original Starr and Harry can look after themselves," replied Larry, glancing up at the clouds rolling down the valley in black billowy formation.

"We'd better go while the going is good." Quickly reeling in, the two boys prepared to leave when a splitting roar, as if from the throats of a thousand guns, awakened the canyon. Before either could speak, the sky opened, and the wind, whistling down the narrow gorge, blanketed them with wet sheets of driving rain.

Instantly Gray realized the seriousness of their position. They were in danger of being swept over the edge of the cliff.

"The other side," he shouted through the roar of the wind, "the other side."

Clinging to each other and fighting to keep a foothold on the slippery rocks, the boys were driven on, nearer and nearer the deep gorge, whose rocky sides were lashed white with the foam of its roaring waters.

"Down, Lark, down," yelled Gray, dropping to the ground and pulling Larry with him. "It's our only chance."

Flat on their stomachs, their fingers digging deep into each narrow crevice which afforded any kind of a hold, they slowly worked their way from the edge of the canyon. The wind and rain in furious onslaught more than once threatened to sweep them from the edge.

It may have been minutes, to them it seemed hours, before they reached the far side. Both were breathless—both exhausted. They lay for several minutes in the shelter of a great rock while the driving rain swept past them.

Before them for half a mile in a series of rocky terraces the ground fell away until it merged into a section of timber.

"Well, we can't expect much worse than this," cried Gray, his mouth close to Larkspur's ear, "Let's make a break for it and run." At that moment a thin blue streak cut the curtain of semi-darkness and at that moment on the terraces not one hundred yards away the boys saw two men working their way through the storm.

"Fishermen!" exclaimed Larkspur, "As wet as we are and worse off."

Now that the lightning had revealed the men, the boys could still see their forms moving slowly forward. Suddenly the whole sky was illumined with a vivid flash and the men were sharply silhouetted against the rocky back-ground. The next instant as if some invisible hand had caught them up—both disapeared.

In dumb wonder Larkspur and Gray starred at the spot where a moment before the men had been.

"Well, what do you think of that!" ejaculated Larkspur. "The Mysterious Presto Brothers in their great disappearing act."

The step like terraces afforded them some protection from the wind, but the rocks were sharp and the progress was slow. At the point where the men had disappeared they stopped and looked around. They could see no one.

Below and above rocky heights rose on every hand, huge rock terraces as if built for the staircase of some fabled giant. Here and there bushes sprang up from clefts in the rock, but nowhere was there in evidence the slightest indication as to where the men had gone.

Foot by foot the boys examined the face of the rocky step on which the men had stood.

Suddenly Gray had been pulling bushes aside, made frantic signals to Larkspur. Larry hurried to his side. Behind a large bush that Paul was holding back he saw a small opening. The mystery of the disappearing men was solved. The unspoken question in each of their minds was, would they follow

Who were these men and what would this mysterious opening reveal? It was Larkspur who decided.

"I'm on," he grinned.

Without further words, without questioning the wisdom of following, Larkspur pulled back the bush, squeezed in and disappeared, and without the slightest hesitation Gray followed.

In order to enter, it had been necessary to stoop. Now in the blackness they found that they could stand upright. For a moment neither spoke. Then Gray whispered in Larkspur's ear. "No light for a moment. Let's make sure they've gone ahead before we use our flashes."

For fully five minutes the two stood motionless, then Paul flashed his light.

A narrow rocky passage confronted them. Ten feet ahead it was lost in a turn. Quickly the two crept forward, watching each step that no loose stone should betray their presence. Gray had warned Larry by a light pressure on his lips not a word was to be spoken by either. The two moved silently on.

The character of the passage varied but little—here it widened, now it narrowed, here almost straight for stretches of some hundred of feet—now turning at sharp angles.

They had come to one of these turns when, acting on a single impulse, both stopped. Ahead the pathway divided. There were two openings. Snapping off his light, Paul leaned close to Larkspur with a single word.

"Which?"

"Don't know," came the whispered answer, "but whichever way, we stick together."

There was little use in debating the question as to which course they should take. They chose the one on the right and followed on.

For fully ten minutes they travelled in silence. Then somewhere down the passage Gray detected a sound. Feeling their way they crept forward.

The scraping was now quite distinct. Afraid to use their flashlights, the two groped forward in the dark. Now it was closer—now directly beneath them—then without warning Gray stumbled and fell forward on his face.

His hands came in contact with a body. Then Larkspur's light cut a path in the darkness. To his amazement Gray had fallen face forward over the gagged and bound bodies of Sterling and Northway.

"Sterling!" cried Larry.

The next moment he had Gray on his feet and was cutting the cords that bound the two boys. Suddenly he stopped—clear and distinct, the sound of footsteps reached them. Some one was coming down the passage in their direction.

Lark snapped off his flash and with Gray slid quickly into a protecting niche.

A faint light each moment growing brighter was moving toward them. Then it stopped. For a moment it rested on Sterling and Northway. Then as if satisfied that both boys were securely bound, its owner turned and was lost in one of the many turnings.

The next instant Gray and Larkspur were at work releasing their chums. The man who had bound and gagged them had taken no chances on their releasing themselves. Both were cramped and numb. The first few words were painfully spoken.

Then after a few moments a whispered consultation followed. Quickly Sterling told them of their fall—the finding of the money and their capture. In turn Gray related their experiences.

Said Sterling thoughtfully:

"It seems that we have the choice of two things to do—either to find our way back to camp or to stick and see this thing through. Both men are armed and in all probability desparate. A theory has been running though my head ever since they left us bound and gagged in this here passage. If I am right we'll have to watch our step."

"Who do you think these fellows are?" questioned Gray quietly.

Sterling shook his head.

"I'm not guessing, but I do think that they are going to find a new location for that bag of bills and I'm for seeing just where that new location will be."

Both Larkspur and Northway were with Sterling—Gray hesitated.

WRIGHT WINS FIRST HEAT

Sturdy Young Oarsman Conquers T. D. Collett in Epic Race.

RIVAL IN COLLAPSE

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, June 30 (Canadian Press Cable). — An epic of sculling was the victory of Joe Wright, Jr., of Toronto, over T. D. Collett in the preliminary heat of the Diamond Sculls yesterday afternoon. Wright and Collett furnished one of the most gruelling struggles ever seen on these old waters, where the amateur sculling championship of the world has been fought for during 63 years.

The Canadian came from behind, recovered from a momentary weakness, and rowed the Englishman into exhaustion in a terrific struggle Wright at the finish, despite his tremendous physical stamina, was not in much better condition than Collett, who gave up very near the finishing post.

Wright goes into the semi-finals on Friday, and if he wins, into the final on Saturday.

The three other contenders victorious in the heats to-day are Jack Beresford, the winner of the Diamond Sculls the last three years; D. Guye and R. Lee, English university scullers.

During Heavy Downpour.

Wright and Collett strained against a strong stream in a hard downpour of rain. The distance was a mile and 550 yards. Wright broke away, rowing 35 strokes to the minute, against Collett's 37. The Canadian gained a momentary lead of a foot, but lost it again. Collett, noted for his speed in the first half-mile, was leading by three-quarters of a length half-way through the race.

Wright was making magnificent spurts, and rowing at 39 strokes to the minute now, he lessened Collett's lead to half a length at the mile post.

The crowds, heedless of the torrential rain, rushed from shelter to follow the scullers the last phase of the race, and they cheered thunderously.

COGS LEAD LEAGUE RACE

Scored 32 Runs, Hit 37 Safeties and Had Seven Errors.

BATTING .261

Cognawagas are leading the parade in the East Peterborough Baseball League, their record for five games being three wins, one loss and one tie. The Cogs have scored thirty-two runs, hit safely thirty-seven times, and have had seven errors. The team has a batting average of .261.

Bethany with but one win and three losses has the best batting average, with a mark of .304. The next few games should see the Durham team's position much improved.

Crescents, with only four games played, show up well both at bat and in the field, the team batting average being .279.

Raybestos is proving a disappointment. The team is getting good pitching, but is weak at the bat, with a low mark of .148, and is erratic in the field.

The League standing is:

EVEN SERIES WITH PIRATES

Cards Rally in the Eighth Inning for 10-9 Victory.

SPLIT RED SERIES

NEW YORK, June 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Cardinals rallied in the eighth inning for five runs and evened the series with the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates by taking the final game yesterday, 10 to 9. The world's champions thus closed their home stand with twenty victories and nine defeats and took to the road only a half a game behind the Pirates. Each team used four pitchers. With the Cardinals one run behind, Manager Bob O'Farrell, who had been out since May 18 with a sore arm, took his place behind the bat to inspire his players. The Pirates added three more runs. Then in the eighth the Cards found their batting stride, slamming Yde for three singles and Kremer for a six and two doubles. Torporcer's base hit brought in the winning run.

The Reds and Chicago Cubs split the Cincinnati series two-all yesterday when the Cubs squeezed in a run in the tenth inning to win a pitchers' duel, 2 to 1. Osborne held the Reds to 11 widely-scattered singles for eight innings and Carlson held them hitless for the remaining two. While the Cubs only got eight hits off Red Lucas, they were a little more scientific in pacing them.

Philadelphia won the home series opener with Brooklyn yesterday by 5 to 4, Alex Ferguson vanquishing Jess Petty on the mound. The Phillies put over four runs in a fourth inning rally and another in the seventh to clinch the game. Barrett of the Robins hit a home run.

CAUSES OF LUMBAGO

The lower five moveable vertibrae of the spine are called the lumbar vertebrae. Many people are troubled with pains or aches in this section of their body. It is especially noticeable with middle-aged people, and this kind of trouble is seldom experienced by the very young.

The nerves issuing from these vertebrae go to the lower abdominal organs and also form into nerves going into the leg. An ache in the lumbar region may come solely because of a reflex from some disorder in these parts below the waist. For example, inflammation of the womb or prostate may reflex into the back so as to cause a conscious pain only in the lumbar region, and not at all in the organs affected by the inflammation. Wearing shoes with too high or too low heels may cause a strain upon the nerves in the legs, but may not be felt in the legs at all and only in the lumbar region. An acute pain may develop in any of the lumbar vertebrae if they are suddenly twisted slightly out of their normal alignment. Slipping on a wet pavement or a misjudge of distance in going down steps may be sufficient to produce such a subluxation of the vertebrae.

A person in good health usually recovers rapidly from such an injury, but if the system is full of impurities or the injured one is subject to attacks of rheumatism, the rheumatic toxins may form around the seat of the spinal lesion and bring on a chronic case of lumbago. Most lumbar aches are really caused by such a congestion of morbid material which irritates the nerves issuing from and through the openings in the vertebrae.

Most patients who have suffered from lumbago for any length of time have had their tonsils removed and teeth extracted, after following the advice of physicians who believe that local infection is the primary source of rheumatism. It is true that sometimes the removal of these local pus-pockets will bring about temporary relief, but if the trouble is caused by a rheumatic toxicosis, this fundamental poisoning must be removed before one can hope for a complete and permanent recovery.

If the heels of the shoes are too high or too low, they must be changed to a reasonable height. If the vertebrae are pinching upon an impinged nerve, this mechanical trouble must be removed through manipulative treatment.

If you have been suffering for years with lumbago, the first thing to do is to rid your system of any primary toxemia which may exist, and at the same time, use other measures to increase the circulation of blood through the lower body and especially through the lumbar region. If irritating poisons have deposited around the lumbar vertebrae it is unwise to treat them by manipulative therapeutics until after the systemic toxemia has been removed.

In the next article, Dr. McCoy will tell you how to cure lumbago.

Play will commence at 1 p.m. sharp and will continue until 6.30 p.m. This should be one of the best games of the season as the visiting club is one of the strongest in the Toronto Council League and is tied for first place with the Bell Telephone Club.

The local club will field its strongest team, as follows:

Thorpe (capt.), Dunkerly, Stuart, F. Dyer, R. Dyer, Jefferson, Smith, Barton, Hamilton, Gore, Sr., Hammond. Reserves—Gore, Jr., Massey-Cooke.

BELMONTS WIN LEAD IN GROUP

Take Lead in First To Defeat the Lockworks 12 to 8.

CLOSELY CONTESTED.

The Belmonts, by virtue of a 12 to 8 win over the Lock Works, won first place in Group 1 of the local Softball League. Althouh the fielding was not up to the usual standard of a championship game the fans were treated to a good game, with many thrills.

Dunkerley, hurling for the Lock Works, was inclined to be wild in the first three innings, allowing the Belmonts seven runs. Errors by the Lockboys were also numerous at the first of the game. "Hap" Harrison, pitching for the Club, hurled steady ball, but was also given indifferent support from his teammates.

The Lock Works made a great bid for a win in the sixth inning, chalking up four runs and coming within a run of tieing it up, the score standing 7-6 at the end of the sixth inning. Belmonts, however, came back strong in the seventh and run in five runs.

Crary had the feature catch of the night when he leaped high in the air and stabbed Delahaye's hot drive. Smith, at first, also turned in a great performance. Delahaye in left field and Green in center were the Belmonts' best, each having nice catches. Green made at great play on Holland's fly, getting Westbrooke at at home plate by a perfect peg, after the latter had tried to score on the out.

The Belmonts now meet the C.G.E. for the Taylor Cup, playing a two-game series.

The following is the line-up:

Belmonts—Green, lf; Haskill, c; Frick, 1b; Harrison, p; Holyman, ss; Delahaye, lf; Batten, 2b; Hall, 3b; Fanning, rf.

Lock Works—Weese, ss; Westbrooke, 3b; Nicholls, lf; Galbraith, rf; Dobson, c; Holland, cf; Crary, 2b; Smith, 1b; Dunkerley, p.

Umpires—Swanston and Scates.

FRENCH PLAYERS WIN MORE HONORS

Tilden and Hunter Defeat Young Englishmen 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

WIMBLEDON, June 30—(Canadian Press).—Only seven matches out of 35 listed were played at Wimbledon yesterday, a torrential rain wrecking the program.

Bill Tilden and Francis Hunter defeated the young Englishmen, Latchford and Pryce-Jones, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, Hunter and Miss Elizabeth Ryan defeated Theodore Mavogordato and Miss D. Alexander, 6-1, 6-2.

The French pair Cochet and Brugnon also advanced in the men's doubles, but the other matches are not likely to affect the finals. Premier Stanley Baldwin was unfortunate in selecting yesterday to attend the tournament. He saw one contest and then departed as the rain came.

Today promises to be the greatest tennis day of the present tournament, all the semi-finals in the men's and women's singles being listed. Miss Ryan and Senorita de Alvarez will begin the day's work on the centre court; then the long awaited Tilden-Cochet match will come on followed by Helen Wills and Joan Fry and lastly Lacoste and Borotra. Weather permitting, the four finalists in the singles should be selected tomorrow.

Though the players were for the most part idle, promoters of professional tennis improved the unshining hours, and the stands reeled under the heavy amounts mentioned as being offered to amateurs to discard their simon-pure status.

Regarding the offer to her daughter, Mrs. Nuthall said: "Betty is to decided this evening. The decision rests entirely in her hands."

Betty Nuthall herself is quoted as remarking: "I have no desire to become a professional, but I wish the offer had not been so attractive." She appeared to be rather melancholy over the uncertainty.

One of France's "three musketeers" as Lacoste, Cochet and Borotra are known, has also been approached, but has refused to consider the proposition.

SOCCER GAME SATURDAY 10 A.M.

Masseys Versus Thistle Play at King Edward Park in League Match.

The local soccer attraction this week end is a league fixture between the Masseys and the Thistle at King Edward on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock promptly. Referee is John Ward, who is instructed to get the teams started to the schedule time.

If the local "Jags" intend to make any attempt in the running for the silverware, they will have to register a win against the league leaders — Masseys—who have not met defeat this season. They have at present one of the best balanced elevens that ever kicked the leather in this city.

The soccer fan will not be disappointed in the class of soccer provided between these two teams which play a different style of attack and defence.

The early kick off at ten o'clock will give all enthusiasts the rest of the day to the other attractions.

Challenge Americans To Game of Baseball

GENEVA, June 29.— (A.P.)— Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States' delegation, addressing the representatives of the press of the world yesterday afternoon, said: "The United States' delegation finds itself in a delicate and critical situation."

Every newspaperman and woman present started scribbling, casting furtive glances toward the door in the expectancy of making a rush to file copy.

"I call upon all of our own press to stand behind us," continued Mr. Gibson, "and ask the press of the other nations to show us the same fair treatment they have accorded us so far."

The ambassador, with long face, continued: "I might as well come to the point. We have just had a communication from our friends the Japanese."

Amid a tomb-like silence the envoy then read a challenge from the Japanese correspondents to the United States delegation and correspondents to play them a game of baseball, probably on the Fourth of July.

"I suppose the umpire might be an impartial Britisher who has never seen a game," Mr. Gibson ventured, amid much laughter, which followed the let-down of the tension. "Anway, that is a matter for negotiation."

GOLF NEWS

There will be a mixed two-ball foursome at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club on Saturday, July 2nd. Players will tee off at two o'clock. Several prizes have been put up for this competition. It is hoped that a large number will enter for this event. It is requested that gentlemen members entering this competition will hand in their names in advance to Mr. R. Grant.

DELORO WINS FROM C.N.R.

Game at Smelter Town Finally Played After Three Rainy Days.

FINAL SCORE 10-5.

The clashing of Belleville C.N.R. with Deloro, thrice rendered impossible this season through intervention of Jupiter Pluvius, was a possibility yesterday, the Nationals losing to Manager Elliott's Blackcaps at Deloro by 10 to 5. The game, played under sweltering sun, was watched by some four hundred odd spectators. Leal, who pitched eight innings and part of the ninth for Deloro, was in his best form. Gibson, his rival, fared somewhat badly in the second when he was hit for five runs and was pulled in the third for Chummy Gerow.

No score marked the first innings. Good fielding by Regan in the second disposed of three Belleville batters.

The home side got the crowd hysterical in taking their turn at the plate. After Hughes was out at first, J. Quinn walked; Brown singled; Leal hit to shortstop, all runners being safe on the latter waiting to throw. Jack hit to flayler, Quinn scoring, and all runners safe. Regan fanned. A. Quinn's terrific triple to left scored Brown, Leal and Jack. Boudreau singled, scoring A. Quinn. Jack was out at first, retiring the side.

The Nationals again retired scoreless in the third. In Deloro's half Hughes walked, J. Quinn was out at first, Hughes reaching second. Brown singled advancing Hughes. Gerow replaced Gibson. Leal hit into a double play retiring the side.

The fourth innings was uneventful. In the fifth Belleville came near to registering when Flayer was run down between third and home. The Champs again failed to increase their lead. In the sixth, H. Mills walked W. Mills replaced Young. W. Mills forced H. Mills at second, going to second on Quinn's high throw to first. Harper was out at first. W. Mills being held at third. Scott doubled, scoring W. Mills. Flayler out at first.

In Deloro's half, H. Mills made a good catch of Leal's hit and no score was registered.

Brown's catch of Weir's long fly to left was a feature of the seventh. Post replaced flayler at shortstop, the latter taking second. A. Quinn singled, Boudreau safe on pitcher's muff. A. Quinn safe on second; Jack popped to Gerow. Hughes forced Boudreau at second, A. Quinn reaching third. J. Quinn doubled, scoring A. Quinn. Brown with another nice double brought in Hughes and J. Quinn. Leal singled, scoring Brown. Bond out at first, retiring side.

Belleville again registered in the eighth. Ross was out at first. H. Mills doubled, and W. Mills flied to second. Flayler's single brought in H. Mills. Scott popped to Leal. Deloro retired in order.

Slackening in the ninth, the Smelters let the visitors in for a trio of runs. Post flied to Bond. Hagerman doubled to left. Derry, batting for Gerow, singled, scoring Hagerman. Weir singled. Ross singled scoring Derry. C. Wood replaced Leal in the box. Weir scored on the catcher's overthrown of second. Ross was out at plate trying to get home. H. Mills flied to Regan.

The teams:

Belleville.—Weir, ss; Ross, cf; H. Mills, 1b; Young, rf; Harper, 3b; Scott, lf; Flayler, ss; Hagerman, c, rf; Gibson, p; W. Mills, c; Post, ss.

HAWAII GREETS DARING FLIERS

Many Activities To-day After Good Night's Sleep—Hungry on Flight.

FOOD UNDER TARPAULIN.

HONOLULU, June 30. — Canadian Press — Pleasant penalties of heroism were fixed upon Lieutenants Lester Maitland and A. Haigenburg today, as all Hawaii hailed them for their swift, sure flight from the Golden Gate to Honolulu.

The two trim, wind-bronzed aviators had spent the night at a Waikiki Beach hotel in an endeavor to make up for the sleep they lost in their long flight.

The two airmen suffered from hunger while food was within an arm's length of them. They had searched repeatedly for the soup, chicken sandwiches and coffee which had been placed in the plane prior to the start, but couldn't find it. A brother officer hearing the complaint, grinned. "You poor fish," he said, "why didn't you look under your feet? I found enough grub under a tarpaulin to feed you a week!"

AT THE REGENT.

TOM MIX' DAD O.Ks. 'THE BRONCHO TWISTER,' SON'S LATEST THRILLER.

Father of Famed Star of the West Had Never Seen His Son in Action on the Lot—At Home When it Came "Broncho Twisting."

"The Broncho Twister" is the best picture drama Tom Mix ever made, E. E. Mix, the star's father, makes this declaration after camping on all sets and locations while the production was being made. Tom agrees with his father, but not because Dad Mix is an authority on film dramas.

"The Broncho Twister" was the first of his famed son's films that the father ever saw in production. E. E. Mix of DuBoise, Pa., was on his first visit with the actor at his Hollywood mansion when "The Broncho Twister" was started at Fox Films studios and "it was all new to him" except the horseback riding. When Tom and his broncho busters mounted their horses Mix senior was right at home and ready to tell 'em how to ride because he is a native of Texas, and lived there until autos became so thick that horses had no chance on the highways.

"The Broncho Twister," which will have a showing to-day at the Regent Theatre, shows Mix in a lot of new daring acts, including rolling from the top of a fifty foot tower in a powder barrel that is left in splinters when it hits a tree. Mix has the starring role of Tom Mason and opposite him in the feminine lead is Helene Costello. Others in the cast are Paul Nicholson, Doris Lloyd, Jack Pennick, Malcolm Waite, Dorothy Kitchen, Otto Fries and George Irving.

This latest Mix thriller was written by John Stone, scenarist of "The Iron Horse," "3 Bad Men," and other big hits, from an original story of Adela Rogers St. John, and contains an absorbing story packed full of suspense and glowing with romance.

"The Broncho Twister" was directed by Orville Dull.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE WORLD JUST HAPPENED

Someone has sent the railroad train
Upon its journey, that is plain.
It's fairly certain that some mind
The engine planned, the car designed.
Each day it comes this way again;
I'm sure some mind has told it when.
For back of all that moves you find
The impulse of some master mind.

Some mind, or so it seems to me,
Has sent the ship across the sea.
Some artisan has laid the keel,
Some captain stood beside the wheel.
And so each day the sun goes west,
Each year the world with spring is blessed,
And orchards bloom, and apples fall—
But that just happens, that is all.

ONE MAN OVERCOME.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 30.—A fire which did $20,000 damage to the building, stock and fixtures of M. Gates, 458 Queen street east, and which caused considerable smoke damage to the adjoining blocks and contents, started in the stairway leading to the basement of the Gates store and was one of the most stubborn fires the local brigade has had to combat this year. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Dense smoke, pouring through ever possible outlet when the firemen arrived on the scene, almost suffocated the firemen as they tried to gain an entrance to locate the base of the blaze. Lieutenant Thomas Wilson, of No. 2 Station was overcome by smoke while trying to work in toward the cellar steps and had to be carried out.

CHAPTER XXX

Five minutes passed. Ten minutes. A tuco-tuco, that strang South American animal which, like the mole, lives always underground, began its fantastic, resonant hammering beneath them. The green caterpillar, which had crawled up the wall, crawled down again and vanished into the crack from which it had come.

Fifteen minutes. Shots rang out from the trees near the gate. Elise's powder-smoked lips quivered. Twenty minutes. Still no signs of the two men who had departed.

Elise rested her weary wrist. "Do you think....he's....hit?" she asked slowly.

"No.... no-....Er....no." The old man's voice expressed a cheerfulness he did not feel. "He's all right."

"Let me tie up your arm again. The bleeding's recommenced."

She made the bandage tighter. As she did so, the door opened cautiously. Vilak stepped inside. His clothes were covered with mud, his face scratched with brambles.

"Bad shots," he grunted. "Or they would have had me. Moon went under for a minute. Thought I was safe but it came out in a hurry and they saw me. Fuse's lit all right."

The old man wonderingly watched him shut the door. "Where is....eh....Prentiss"

"Went over to the house to get something. Said he'd be back in a minute."

Once more the log thundered against the gate with an increased violence which showed that the attackers had well profited by their rest. The iron weakened by the previous assaults, could no longer resist the tremendous blows rained upon it. It cracked exposively.

"Broken through," Vilak snapped. "The water'll have to be fast."

A torch glared anong the creek, then another and another.

"Try to smoke us out, probably. Won't get them very far, when we're in this stone tower."

One torch seemed to speed through the gate. Vilak fired. The torch went out. A moment later all the torches were extinguished.

Vilak swiftly glanced at his watch. "Fuse been burning seven minutes," he said placidly. "Two minutes overdue as nearly as I can calculate a makeshift affair. Our friends are now undoubtedly crawling through the gate. If it doesn't go off soon, we'll be in trouble. Wonder what's keeping Prentiss."

He slipped a pelet of betel into his mouth and fixed his gaze upon his watch. A bit of mortar loosened by the firing dropped down upon his muddy black hair and a few of the grains fell into one of Elise's eyes. Quickly, dextrously, he began to remove them.

A flash of light colored the sky behind the house; the roar of a powerful explosion shook the ground. "There it goes," Vilak murmured.

The roar of the explosion was followed by the clatter of crashing rocks, then the steady, dull thunder of rushing water. Frightened shouts arose from the bushes at the creek; the watchers in the tower could see shadows scurrying frantically about, some dodging back to the gate, through which they had come, others racing to the house, all fleeing from the unseen, booming peril whose nature they could divine only dimly.

With a muffled report, the fazenda wall toward the lake collapsed as a huge wave of water sweping down from above surged against it. A mad, moving mountain, spreading wider and wider as it went, it circled house and tower, and hurtled toward the creek, sweeping away trees, walls, low-lying sheds, anything which came within its fierce embrace.

A second wave came down upon the first; it swirled up the ground around the tower and began licking at the foundation stones. The three inside watched it fascinated, tried to distinguish whether the black forms bobbing on its crest were branches or men. But the moon had gone under a cloud again and they could see clearly only a few feet ahead.

The water began trickling over the door-sill. The old man eyed it apprehensively. Vilak caught his caught his glance. "No use worrying, Nanny." Cody he lit his cigaret. The trickle became more rapidd. Vilak held out his cigaret case. The old man shook his head nervously.

"I tell you there's no use worrying," Vilak went on, his eyes again at the window. "Either the water rises, and makes the tower collapse, or it doesn't. These are the only two things that can possibly happen. If it collapses, then it'll be time to think about it. Meanwhile, we've done everything we can, and there's nothing to be gained by getting nervous about it. Wish it wasn't so confounded dark. Could see then whether our friends had gotten away or not. Wonder what's happened to Prentiss?" He extended the cigaret case to Elise. "You're not going to desert me, too, are you cousin?"

She brushed her hair back from her blackened face. "Surely, I'll smoke with you." She smiled faintly. "Not one of yours....if you don't mind."

The old man decided to join them. Vilak took the candle from the corner, lit the cigarets, then put the candle upon a shelf. The water began to inundate the room.

"Might as well get comfortable," Vilak said, as he pushed a heavy table toward the centre of the room. "If we all sit on this we may not get so wet."

They climbed up. "More water than I expected," he went on. "Lake either deeper, or we started that one next to it on a little voyage, too. One thing's in our favor: the higher the water rises, the more ground it has to cover. Certainly oughtn't rise much more."

They stretched out on the table, their feet overhanging the edge, the old man watching the water creeping higher and higher up the walls. Elise leaning down and trying to wash some of the powder stains from her eyes and mouth.

The water climbed half way up the table, then neared the top. The tower gave a slight quiver and a gap appeared in the stones near the foot. Nunnally let his cigaret sizzle into the water. "Don't your think....er....Vilak....we'd better try to depart from here? The water's still rising. And that wall seems about to....er....topple."

"Refuse to worry until it gets at least a couple of feet higher. Then we'll get out on a log or something if we have to. Water can't keep rising forever. And that's a pretty good wall and I don't think it's ready to fall. Yet, at least. I'm not going to let an insignificant crack in it rout me out of my comfortable seat." He leaned back lazily. A centipede crawled out from the under side of the table top onto his coat. He brushed it away.

The rise of the water slackened. Soon it became stationary. It remained thus for perhaps ten minutes, then slowly began to fall. Inch by inch it crept down the walls, exposing now the black nest of a broken chair, now the tops of two iron pots standing on the floor, now with a final swish vanishing and exposing the muddy floor itself.

They climbed down from the table and, going to one of the windows, attempted to peer out to watch the retreat of the rising water. But the disappearing of the moon for the night seemed permanent, their eyes could not pierce the obscurity. They could gauge its fall somewhat, however, by the growing faintness of the murmuring eddies as they dropped lower and lower down the slight rises on which stood the house and tower.

"Wonder how Prentiss fared in all this," Vilak said. He stretched again. Elise vigorously slapped a foot which had gone to sleep; the old man shifted the bandage to curiously regard the wound.

In a quarter of an hour they were standing outside, while Vilak was flashing his electric torch on the water in the low gully which lay between the tower and the house. "Be down enough to get across in a few minutes," he said thoughtfully. "Funny about Prentiss. Wait a little while and if he doesn't come we'll go out and look for him."

Soon after the odd trio slushed through the mud to the house. Vilak's lantern sprayed the gloomy exterior with a white circle of light. "Prentiss!" he shouted. There was no answer. "Prentiss!" Where the devil are you?" he called again, making a megaphone of his hands to gain greater volume.

His only reply was a wolf-like howl from an aguara off in the forest. His great blond eyebrows puckered. "Funny. Mighty funny.....Let's go inside."

They entered the desolate structure. Again they walked through crumbling living rooms, mouldering bedrooms, the ruins of a kitchen. They peered into every musty cupboard and pried into every skelton of an attic. In one hall which formed the gloomy entrance to the forlorn building were a few muddy prints which Vilak had no difficulty in recognizing as the marks of the heavy hunting shoes Prentiss constantly wore. Beyond this there was nothing. Man and dog as well had vanished.

Woodstock Welcomes Mayor of Woodstock

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 30. Acclaimed by a cheering crowd of thousands of citizens, Mayor Joshua Steele, of Woodstock, Oxford County, England, and his daughter, Miss Beatrice Steele, the Mayoress, arrived in Woodstock yesterday forenoon to take part in the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

On his arrival he was greeted by Mayor Parker, the City Council, the Old Boys' Re-union officials, and other prominent citizens, and was taken at the head of a procession a mile long, for a drive around the city to Victoria Park, where a public reception was held. There he was presented with an address of welcome and greeting by Mayor Parker, and a golden key to the city, while Miss Steele was presented with a bouquet of peonies by Miss Melba Parker, daughter of the Mayor. Mayor Steele replied briefly.

CHIANG'S ORDER BEING OBSERVED

Hankow Government Complying With His Ultimatum By Ousting Communists.

UNIONS DISBANDING.

SHANGHAI, June 30. — Canadian Press. — The news received here today from Hankow the seat of the radical Nationalist government, headed by Eugene Chen, while meagre, is interpreted as meaning that important changes are being brought about there, presumably in compliance with the ultimatum of Chiang Kai Shek, the moderate Nationalist leader, and General Feng Yu Hsiang, to oust the Russians, quash Radical labor unions and stifle Communism generally.

A British navy radio message states that the Russian Michael Borodin, adviser to the Hankow Nationalists, will leave to-night for an unstated destination, that all Rusians except members of the consulate staff, will leave within 24 hours, that certain labor unions have been dissolved, that the picketing system had been abolished and that there is a wholesale movement of troops across the River Wuchang to guard the rail heads.

The picketers laid down their arms last night, the headquarters being placed under control of the local garrison.

The authorities in their drive against the radicals are said to have even ordered the disbandment of the boy scout organizations, requiring their uniforms and walking sticks to be turned in. The uniforms will be allowed only on special occasions.

ECZEMA BROKE OUT OVER BODY

Could Not Do Any Work. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out over my hands, arms, feet and limbs and on my body. It appeared in pimples that itched something awful, and when I scratched, it caused the trouble to spread. "I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment and within a month I was healed." (Signed) F. W. Simmons, Tewatinaw, Alta., Oct. 4, 1926.

BEER BY GLASS SEEMS CERTAIN

Majority of 8,000 Now Recorded, With Small Polls To Report.

IN MANITOBA.

WINNIPEG, June 30 (Canadian Press).—The electors of Manitoba who voted for the sale of beer by the glass in licensed premises, under Government control, maintained a majority lead of well over eight thousand today, with practically half the country polls reported, and the establishment of "licensed parlors" likely will follow Tuesday's referendum.

The polls to hear from in the rural districts are small ones, and it is unlikely the present majority in favor of a change in the Liquor Commission regulations will be overcome.

Advertising Then And Now

It was the custom back in 1850 when farm animals were lost for the owner to have notice sheets printed, such as the one exhibited in The Examiner's window, in order to bring them back into the fold.

Nowadays, however, a small advertisement in the newspapers is not only cheaper, but reaches more people.

LADIES MAKE FLOAT.

Members of Ashburnham Patriotic League Do All Work of Building.

One of the most interesting points about the splendid float of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham is the fact that all the work of decoration and arrangement has been carried out by the ladies of the League, without any other assistance. There is not an ounce of paint on the whole structure, the fine color effects having been achieved entirely by the hues of decorations.

The float displays the crests of all the various provinces, and at the head is a beautifully decorated throne which is intended for Britannia.

DECORATIONS NEARLY READY

Arches, Pennants, Lights and Flags Give City Gala Appearance.

TO BE COMPLETED TO-DAY.

Decorating for the great jubilee celebration in the next three days is nearing completion, and the city at the present time is one mass of flags and ribbons which fairly cry out defiance to any bad weather conditions that may arise to darken the hopes of those citizens who have given all to make the program planned for the celebration a perfect success.

George Street, with its arches, Quebec Bridge and gay banners, is in itself a wonderful display, showing a part of the patriotic spirit with which the citizens of this city are celebrating this great jubilee of Confederation. The Rotary Club, working practically all of last night, has erected an arch in the middle of the block between Hunter and Simcoe Streets depicting part of the Club wheel. This is to be painted and decorated tonight.

Another arch was built last night below Sherbrooke Street and is gaily covered with flags and evergreens, on the same lines as the one already put up at the intersection of George and Charlotte Street.

Hardly a store on this particular street is not practically covered with flags, all showing in a personal way that it is their wish to make to-morrow and the following two days the greatest that Peterborough has ever seen. Banners have been strung from the Canadian National Station on Charlotte to George, and then extending on this street for many blocks on each side of Charlotte.

Visitors coming into the city on their way to the Lakes cannot but help express their admiration of the decorations being erected here. The Fire Hall has been very artistically done and presents a very fine appearance with its numerous banners and pennants.

The city is decorated: all signs point to good weather conditions tomorrow, so there is nothing left but to make the celebration in this city one to be remembered.

CARS COLLIDE.

Driver of One Agrees to Pay For Damage to Other.

Robert McMurray of Park street, had one wheel and the axle on his car broken last night at the corner of Aylmer and McDonnel streets, when he was driven into by Otto Lee. Lee was coming north on Aylmer street and he cut the corner at McDonnel, and in doing so collided with McMurray's car. Lee acknowledged being at fault and areed to pay the damages.

Nationalist China Warns the Geneva Council

ALDERMEN OBJECT TO REMARKS OF SOMEWHAT PERSONAL KIND REGARDING COUNCIL ACTIVITIES

Ald. Hancock Says Whole Council Responsible For By-law Change.

WITHDRAWALS MADE.

Routine Meeting of City Council Is Livened By Tiff at End.

A demand from Ald. Hancock that Ald. Denne withdraw a statement he was reported to have made that "Ald. Hancock was the chairman of the responsible committee" in referring to the market by-law fiasco, was countered by an offer from Ald. Denne to withdraw when Ald. Hancock withdrew his statement that certain members discussed matters outside the council and then railroaded them through, which precipitated five minutes sharp debate at the close of last night's council meeting.

The meeting had gone smoothly through to an early adjournment, which had already been moved, when Ald. Hancock opened the discussion. He reminded the aldermen that the by-law change had been made in Council, and the Property Committee had had nothing to do with the matter. He had had the matter thrown up to him by various farmers on the market, and he wanted a correction.

When Ald. Denne offered terms of withdrawal the complainant said that he had not meant the matter personally, but had addressed the chair. Ald. Greene asserted that the remark had been made just after he had made a suggestion and would naturally be taken personally. When the Mayor referred to the rules, he said that they called for no personalities and that Ald. Hancock's remarks had seemed to refer to the man who had just sat down. On Ald. Hancock giving his word that he had not referred to Ald. Greene, Ald. Denne asked to whom he had referred, and refused to accept Ald. Hancock's supposition that he had referred to himself as much as anybody else.

The Mayor, on consulting the rules again, stated that he could not see where Ald. Hancock had committed any breach by suggesting or insinuating that some of the members were doing the City's business in a "clique-y" manner, and that Ald. Hancock had declared that he had not referred personally to those to whom his remark seemed to apply. Ald. Hancock said that his only object in was that his name had been spun publicly in this connection, do him harm, and Ald. Denne agreed to withdraw the remark. He sent notice, however, that he would discuss the City's business with any alderman at any place he wished.

The Mayor reported that the Police Commission is taking up the matter of selling all bus licenses in the City, to enable the Council to make an agreement for one company to do the work.

Although the city now owns the street railway tracks they will not be paid up at present. On Water street north, where the residents asked that the strip be paved, the city will stir the road.

The city will not buy the overhead system of the Street Railway, nor will it deposit $1,000 with the Hydro Electric Power Commission to leave the wires there for a time.

Ald. Denne brought up the matter of the building by-law. He said that contractors had told him that other men were not complying with the specifications as to spacing of studding, etc., and that the engineer had never visited their buildings.

The City Engineer said that the by-law specifies nothing except that the studding be 16-inch centres. When Ald. McIntyre remarked that Mr. Parsons had been there when the by-law was revised, the Engineer said that he had prepared a by-law covering many points but it had been thrown out as being too cumbersome.

The Mayor said he had asked several contractors to read over the by-law and suggest alterations but they had refused. On motion of Aldermen Greene and Hancock, Ald. McIntyre and the Engineer will go over the by-law.

By-laws were passed as follows:

2724—To provide for the borrowing of money by the issue of debentures for the construction of a combination school ($395,000 for the extension to the Collegiate Institute).

2725—To authorize the construction of a sidewalk on Smith street from Auburn street to a point 625 feet west of Armour Road.

2726—To authorize the construction of pavements on Park street from 75 feet north of Rink street south to the first C.P.R. railway track, on Bethune street from the south side of Charlotte Street to the north side, on Bethune street from the south side of Hunter street to the north side, and on Hunter street from Belmont avenue to Walton street.

2727—To authorize the execution

FREIGHT OFFICE TO BE DWELLING

Is Being Removed From Charlotte Street Site To-day.

BEAUTIFUL WOODWORK.

Workmen in the employment of J. A. Paquette, who has bought the building from the C.N.R., began this morning the task of removing the old freight office on Charlotte Street to Bonacord Street, where Mr. Paquette proposes to locate the building after making the necessary changes to convert it into a dwelling-house.

One of the things which have prompted the retention of the structure is its beautifully finished woodwork in the interior. This is of southern pine, the varnish of which has mellowed with age. In fact the old office was much more elaborately ornamented than that recently built.

Mr. Paquette plans transporting the building in four trucks.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., July 5 (Canadian Press).—Sydney Mowatt, local aviator with a war record, may fly in the proposed London, Ont., to London, Eng., flight: The City Council of New Westminster has instructed that his application be forwarded and the necessary details be arranged to permit the aviator to make the flight.

Orange For Picking At Local Intersection

Oranges were to be had for the picking up at the corner of Hunter and George Streets yesterday afternoon. A cyclist, who had made some purchases at a George Street fruit store, was compelled hastily to dismount when the bag which he was carrying burst, and the golden hued dainties rolled across the street. The embarrassed cyclist relieved his feelings by the indulgence in some powerful 'langwidge." Finding this of little avail, he set himself to gather up his 'rol'ling stock." An obliging onlooker hurried along to the store and came to the rescue with another paper bag in which the oranges were safely deposited and the journey was resumed.

FOUR INJURED AS CARS CRASH

Cuts and Bruises Only Hurts Received By the Occupants.

CARS DAMAGED.

Four people received injuries as a result of an accident when two cars collided in front of the C.P.R. Station yesterday afternoon. No one was hurt seriously, and all received a few cuts.

J. J. Moore, or Keene, was driving his Ford car north on George Street, and as he crossed the railroad tracks he noticed that another car was following him. He put out his hand to warn the cars following of his intention to turn into the station yard, and did not see a car coming down George Street. He made the turn, and ran in front of a car driven by O. C. Bell, who had no chance to avoid the accident.

Mrs. P. Roach, of Keene, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Andrews, of Detroit, were travelling with Mr. Moore. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews were slightly injured, and were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. It is expected that Mr. Andrews will be able to continue his return trip to Detroit to-day. Keith White, of the 4th Line of Smith, was in the car with Bell, and he was thrown through the windshield and cut about the face.

The right front fender, running board, and windshield on the Ford car were smashed, and the windshield, front axle, right front fender, and head light on the other car were broken. Police-Sergeant Thomas and Constable Puffer attended the accident.

The Canadian farm woodlot plays a conspicuous part in the growth of forest products. According to the last census the total value of products provided by farm woodlots was $72,000,000, which was over 32 per cent. of the value of all forage crops. About one-third of the pulpwood used in Canadian pulp mills comes from farmers' and settlers' holdings.

AIRMEN GUARD BODY OF FLIER IN WIFE'S HOME

Great Piles of Floral Tributes Surround Coffin of Lieut. Johnson.

SOME FROM LINDBERGH.

Funeral Services To Be Held To-morrow—Casket Not Opened.

FENTON Mich., July 5.—(Canadian Press.)—An honor guard of enlisted men from Selfridge Field kept silent vigil to-day at the bier of Lieut. J. Thad Johnson, Selfridge Field flyer killed at Ottawa on Saturday when his plane was thrown into a dive by collision with the machine of a fellow aviator. The guard, consisting of two men, changing every three hours, will be maintained until the hour of the funeral to-morrow.

Great piles of floral tributes heap the room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams, parents of the flyer's widow, where the body lies. Among them is a spray of peonies, the tribute of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, whom Lieut. Johnson, with eleven of his fellow aviators, was escorting to the Dominion capital when the crash occurred.

The spray was presented to Mrs. Johnson by Lieut. Clifford Mallory. As she received it and heard Mallory's expression of sorrow, Mrs. Johnson said: "I've been expecting this, and your wife is expecting the same thing." The casket has not been opened since its arrival yesterday.

The funeral services to-morrow will be conducted by Rev. John W. Kitching at the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by Monsignor Patrick R. Dunigan, chaplain of the Michigan National Guard.

NURSERY RHYME SHOWN ON FLOAT

Old Lady Living in Shoe Depicted By Well Babies' Clinic.

One of the floats in the parade which had a great deal of hard work expended on it was the entry by the Well Babies' Clinic, a picturesque and novel affair, delineating the trials of the Old Woman who lived in a Shoe, dear to nursery rhyme.

The lady (Mary McPherson) minded her large brood of colorful dolls in a huge grey shoe, in a setting of daisies. These, with fringed paper, comprised the main decorations of the pretty yellow and white float, with daisies everywhere about it, even on its wheels, and four little girls with parasols companioning the two nurses who guarded the large family.

The committee in charge of this float, who expended several months of work on its construction, was composed of Dr. Jessie Birnie, Mrs. W. Galbraith, Miss M. Foote, and Miss M. Best.

The name of Bandmaster W. H. Peryer, who, with M. B. Chenhall, was responsible for the success of the Musical Tattoo at the Exhibition Grounds on the holiday, was omitted from the published account. Taking part in the second evening's performance also were Messrs. J. John, V. S. Foster, S. A. Harris, Alan Neal and Hugh Waddell. Messrs. Webber Turner and Hugh Lush used the megaphones which amplified the Pageant proceedings on the second evening.

They were conducted to the officers' mess, where they partook of the "wine of honor," as guests of the French flying officers.

COMMISSION INVESTIGATES ERNST ACCOUNT

A. Nash, Auditor, Files Report During Halifax Sittings of Board.

PROFITS IN RUM.

Figures Show Bonds Issued Aug. 1922 to May 1927 Amounted $2,972,371.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 5. Canadian Press. — Bonds issued on liquor shipments out of Halifax from August, 1922, to May of the present year, amounted to $2,972,381, according to evidence placed before the Royal Customs Commission yesterday afternoon. These covered shipments out of warehouse as well as in transit shipments.

A. Nash, commission auditor, gave these figures during the course of his examination yesterday afternoon. He also filed a report on the bank accounts of Seldon Ernst, of Lunenberg, who at a previous sitting admitted engaged in the liquor business. According to Mr. Ernst, he was interested in one shipment of twenty thousand gallons of Demerara rum, which was purchased at approximately forty six cents a gallon and sold at about $4.

Mr. Nash could not give the commission an accurate estimate of the profits made by Mr. Ernst and his brother but he suggested the sum of $218,166 is not accounted for. The profits he stated must have been very large and he based this conclusion partly on the comparison of rum prices in Demerara and Canada respectively. The amount suggested as possible profits covered transactions from 1923 to 1926 inclusive, he said. If duty had been paid on the business over four years the amount would be over a million dollars the auditor said.

Explains Checks.

Seldon Ernst was called and examined by Mr. Rowell in respect to certain cheques which have been found among his bank vouchers. He explained one for $5500 payable to William Duff by saying that it was the balance of an $11,000 payment on a boat. He had borrowed money extensively from Mr. Duff at times he said, in the year 1911; his borrowings from Mr. Duff ran as high as $54,000.

"In addition to bringing in rum you bought and disposed of $20,000 worth of whiskey from the 'D. D. McKenzie' in 1926?" Mr. Rowell suggested to the witness.

"Yes, I think it would be about that," replied Mr. Ernst. He said that he sometimes got as high as seven dollars a gallon for rum, but on the other hand it went as low as two dollars a gallon.

"What dou you say about the estimate of $218,166 profits made by the auditor?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"I wish it was true," replied Mr. Mr. Ernst.

Yesterday afternoon, with Barney Aaron of Montreal, who said that he had been a director of the Atlantic Import Company, and later with Alan Showman also of Montreal, on the stand, Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., endeavored to find out when, where and why the books had been destroyed Mr. Aaron, who has graduated from the position of director in the Atlas Shipping Comapany, of Halifax, which also deals in liquor, was first asked about the books. He said that they had been sent to Montreal about a year ago at the time the company went out of business, and that as far as he knew they were still there.

Manifest Impatience.

The commissioners manifested some impatience at the failure to produce the books. Mr. Aaron was informed that he had been subpoened to produce the books and documents of the company. He insisted that he could not do that because the books had been out of his possession for a year, and he did not know where they were. He had telephoned to Montreal for them when he found out that they were required but without success.

Alan Bronfman of Montreal was called to tell what he knew about the mising books. He informed the commissioners that he is the secretary-treasurer of the Brintcan Investments Limited of Montreal, which finances the Atlantic Import Company. This company, he stated, referring to the Brintcan investments limited, is a Bronfman organization. The books, he said, had been sent up to Montreal from Halifax when the affairs of the Atlantic Import Company were being cleaned up. Subsequently they were destroyed.

Labels As Souvenirs Sent By U.S. Tourists

Within the past two or three days, a large number of souvenirs of an unusual type has been despatched from Peterborough to the United States. An American visitor informs The Examiner that many of his fellow countrymen are finding great gratification in sending to their friends at home, the labels of the liquor bottles purchased here. One wag recently mailed ten different labels, representing ten various brands—each label, as he blandly expressed it, to be regarded as a representative of one year of prohibition in U.S. It is now ten years since the Volstead proposals became law south of the line.

NAVAL PARLEY NOW AT CRISIS

Britain and United States Differ On the Size of Cruisers.

COMPROMISE OFFER.

GENEVA, July 5 (United Press).—The most critical period of the Naval Armament Conference was expected to be reached today as the technical commission resumed its discussion of cruiser limitation.

The British delegation was insisting on a 7,500 ton limit on cruisers while the United States was equally firm htat the tonnage must not be reduced below 10,000 tons. The conference began the third week of its discussion with the Independence Day speech of Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones fresh in mind. Addressing the United States colony here, Jones, who is himself a member of the Commission, made it plain that the United States delegation would insist on a parity with Great Britain in naval power.

Should the conference accept Britain's figures on cruisers, the United States would have to construct 450,000 tons in cruisers to maintain a parity with Great Britain in that class alone.

U. S. Offers Compromise

GENEVA, July 5 (Canadian Press)—The American delegation submitted new total tonnage figures for cruisers at today's secret session of the experts of the tri-partite naval conference. Although official confirmation is lacking, it is understood that the United States in an attempt to meet Great Britain's expressed needs in cruisers, has suggested an increase in the maximum tonnage for Great Britain and the United States, so that the new total would be in the neighborhood of 400,000 tons.

This is one hundred thousand tons more than was indicated in the original American maximum proposal, and roughly corresponds with the existing strength of British cruiser fleet.

Pact Not Favored

GENEVA, July 5 (Canadian Press)—Talk in circles close to the three Power naval conference of possible renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance has brought the comment that the Japanese are fairly well convinced that a pact in the Pacific between Japan and Great Britain would not be looked upon favorably by the United States.

Japan Wants Subs.

GENEVA, July 5 — (Canadian Press).—Japan is making a last determined stand at the tri-parite naval conference for the treaty right to possess an unlimited number of submarines under six hundred tons displacement for purposes of coastal defence.

If she loses, as appears probable, Japan will immediately ask, it is understood, for an increased proportion of authorized submarines under the projected Geneva treaty.

The Associated Press learns that this question has been one of the thorniest of the present negotiations and far-reaching in its ramifications, for Great Britain has contested the Japanese demand for unrestricted small-sized submarines because of the effect acceptance of this demand would have on France in subsequent negotiations with both France and Italy.

FATHER ALONE SURVIVES CRASH

Mother and Six Children Die When Train Hits Car at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., July 5 (Canadian Press). — Toll of last night's level crossing tragedy was increased to seven today when Michael Pawloff, eight, died here. His mother and five brothers and sisters were instantly killed last night when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a train. The father, also injured, is now the sole survivor of the family.

MUST NOT DISCUSS QUESTIONS AFFECTING CHINESE INTERESTS SPOKESMAN TELLS CONFERENCE

Oppose Plan Britain and Japan Renew Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

CRUISER AFFAIR OPEN.

Japanese Delegates Receive With Reserve, Talk of Renewing Pact.

GENEVA, July 5 (A.P.).—Fourth of July Chinese fireworks exploded at the tri-partite naval conference yesterday, when Nationalist China issued a solemn warning that the delegates must not discuss questions affecting the interests of the Chinese people.

This warning was communicated to the press by Chu Chao Hsin, Chinese member of the Council of the League of Nations from his lakeside villa. It is believed to be China's answer to the reports in British newspapers that Great Britain and Japan are considering the wisdom of renewing the Anglo-Japanese alliance which decided at the Washington conference when the four Power Pacific pact was substituted for it.

Chinese circles see in such renewal an Anglo-Japanese combine against China.

'It has been repeatedly reported in the press in the Far East," said Chu in his formal statement, "that the naval conference now sitting at Geneva may also consider questions relating to China. I am therefore requested by the Chinese Nationalist Government to declare that the government and people of the Republic of China will refused to recognize any decisions affecting China which may be arrived at by the present or any other conference in which China is not represented and is not participating in a position equally in the deliberations."

Chu Chao Hsin was appointed to represent China in the League Council by the Peking government, and his formal declaration yesterday as spokesman of the Nationalist government is regarded as throwing light upon the increased power which Chinese diplomats give to the Nationalists.

Received With Reserve

Japanese circles in Geneva, according to the Associated Press, have received with reserve the talk of renewing the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The Associated Press correspondent thinks that the Japanese are of the opinion that such an alliance would be objectionable to them because it would create an impression among the Chinese that Japan would back the British policy in their country, and in Russia that Tokyo will side with Downing Street in its Russian policy.

The correspondent says that it is averred that Japanese feel that an alliance with Great Britain in the Pacific would prejudice Japanese-American relations.

Cruiser Affair Open

The cruiser affair still looms large as a difficulty in the business of disarmament. Great Britain's desire to maintain a considerable cruiser strength for the protection of her ocean transport and her dominions is said to be looked upon unfavorably by the Japanese. The United States, as it has been from the beginning of the conference, opposes Great Britain in this matter. The American delegation, however, is now understood to be willing to subscribe to a maximum total cruiser tonnage of 400,000. This is about 200,000 tons less than Great Britain wants.

No difficulty in reaching an accord on submarines and destroyers is anticipated. The figures already tacitly approved would give in destroyers Great Britain and the United States 200,000 tons each and Japan 120,000; in submarines Great Britain and the United States 90,000 tons, Japan 54,000.

Appeals Sentence For Killing Cyclist

LONDON, July 5.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Flying Officer Alexander Taylor, aged 22, appealed yesterday against a sentence of 12 months imprisonment for killing a cyclist in a motor accident. His counsel said that he would be cashiered from the Air Force in consequence of a conviction. "After all," his counsel said, "it is an air officer's duty to take risks."

"But not at the expense of others", remarked the lord chief justice, who declined to alter the sentence except to order that it be served in the second class division.

He was picked up by fellow-workmen, who sent for the ambulance, in which he was immediately taken to Nicholls Hospital. Dr. Howson attended the injured man.

Will Attempt To Come From England Across Atlantic.

SEVERAL IN PARTY.

LONDON, Eng., July 5. — Decision to attempt Trans-Atlantic flight from London to Ottawa, Ont., instead of from London to New York as previously planned, has been reached by a group of British pilots, seeking to make a Trans-Atlantic flight.

The pilots of the plane will be Lieut. Col. F. Minchin, of British Imperial Airways and Leslie Hamilton, British air taxi owner, who has just returned from a three months' air tour of continent. Capt. R. MacIntosh, also of the Imperial Airways, may be taken along as a passenger. Aviators plan to start within two weeks for Ottawa, refuel there, and then fly back to European continent, as far as their gasoline supply will carry them.

May Make Flight

SOUTHAMPTON, ENG., July 5.—Captain F. T. Courtney, who may spend next week end flying the Atlantic in a seaplane, now plans night landing off Battery, New York City. Arrangements are being made for searchlights and other guiding beacons for him in New York harbor. He expects to refuel at Newfoundland after the flight across the ocean.

CLUB PICNIC HELD AT CAVAN

Many Attend Outing Held at Matchett's School, S. S. No. 7.

CAVAN, July 5.—On Thursday evening the young people of Cavan Centre Community Club held a very successful picnic in the school yard of Matchett's School, S. S. No. 7. There were about thirty young people of the neighborhood present.

At five o'clock a softball game was played, the boys playing against the girls, with reversed batteries. The game was full of excitement, and the boys won by a small margin.

After the all game a good supper of salads, sandwiches, cakes, tarts and lemonade was served to the hungry crowd who sat around on the ground.

After supper were the races and other sports. The thread-the-needle race was won by Gwen Hunter and Lewis Pudsey. The girls' 75-yard dash was won by Ruth Staples and Muriel Matchett. Lewis Pudsey and Ralph Staples won the boys' 100-yard dash. In the high jump the order of the winners was: Ralph Staples, Eldred Snyder and Mac Newton. There were several tugs-of-war, which provided plenty of fun.

BETHANY PASTOR IN MOTOR WRECK

Car Driven By Drunken Man Crashes Into His, Damaging It Badly.

BETHANY, July 5. — While Rev. and Mrs. A. Poulter were returning from a visit with friends east of Peterborough, they met with rather a trying experience on a narrow place in the road between Peterborough and Norwood. They noticed a car driving toward them, and to avoid an accident they drew off the road. To their amazement the approaching car drove directly for their car without halting. Mr. Poulter's car was rather badly damaged in the contact, although the occupants escaped only with badly shaken bodies and nerves.

The car in fault swerved to the side of the road and into the ditch. Mr. Poulter went to speak to the driver of the second car, but received an abusive reply, as the driver was drunk. He not only swore, but grabbed Mr. Poulter by the arm and tore the sleeve out of his shirt. The car bore a Peterborough license plate, and Mr. Poulter has reported the accident to the authorities.

Grace Wrecks Plane In Pacific Hop-Off

MANA, Island of Kausi, Hawaii, July 5.—(A. P.)—The stunt flier of the movies, Ricard Grace, of Hollywood, Calif., crashed to earth in his plane here yesterday shortly after having taken off for the California mainland.

Grace and the dog which accompanied him were unhurt but the plane was so badly damaged that the trans-Pacific flight of more than 2,400 miles may be abandoned.

Grace made a good take-off at 5.24 a.m. from the rough and bumpy Barking Sands runway, which had previously punctured the tires of his plane's wheels, halting two attempts to fly. He circled the Island of Kausi, testing his machine before sailing out across the Pacific.

Trouble developed when the plane was over the village of Koloa. The tail of the monoplane was seen to flutter and then the plane plunged to earth in thorny bushes at the edge of the flying field. Grace had flown 51 minutes when he crashed to land at 6.15 a.m. The fuselage and one wing was wrecked and there was other damage, but the propeller and motor were intact.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Dear Mac:

We have followed the Canadians through their Somme battles, and we have been over most of the ground that was familiar to us in the months we spent there in 1916. There still remains much of interest though, towards Bapaume.

There is for instance, the village of Martinpuich, with its brand new church. Martinpuich looks over to High Wood, and High Wood being London's ground, survivors of the old 47th (London) Division and their friends have rebuilt the village school. But, Martinpuich has other British friends, for in the early days of peace, Southampton adopted the village, along with Guedecourt, and reconstructed the water supply in both places.

Not every Somme village has regained its church; in fact, relatively few are so fortunate as to possess anything more than an old British hut in which to worship. For that reason it is pleasing to find close to Martinpuich another village with a new church, namely, Le Sars, before whose shattered walls the Australians and troops of the English county regiments toiled in the mud and slime for many weeks. Le Sars, like Poizieres, was levelled to the ground, and to find a goodly-sized village here, with a church and substantial belfry, completely upsets one's recollections of the Bapaume road.

But memory is soon adjusted by the sight of the ancient Battle de Warlencourt, a little higher up the road. This is a primeval burying ground, or was such until the guns of a later civilization tore into its chalky slopes. Time was, before the Imperial War Graves Commission got to work, when you might read about the base and on the slopes of this little hillock, the story of its conquest in 1916. How many times it changed hands, one cannot ascertain, but the battlefield guides, those tough ex-service men in Albert, who are never timid of quoting figures, give the number as seventeen, and their calculation is just as likely to be correct as that of any history book, for fighting was incessant here in October, and headquarters were often uncertain, at the end of a day, which side held the Butte, and how many times it changed hands.

Today, you may see symbolised here, as I saw it, the change from war to peace. In the fields about the Butte I found ploughs instead of machine-guns, and sheep, guarded by an old man in many overcoats, in place of a steel-helmeted company. But there are still reminders of other days. At the base of the Butte, facing the Bapaume road, are three wooden crosses, one to that regiment of tough fighters, the Durham Light Infantry, and two to the South Africans, to the 3rd and 6th Battalions, who, after recovering from their heroic fight at Delville Wood, experienced a grim struggle for the Butte. On the crest, too, are crosses, strangely silhouetted against the sky. Here a wooden memorial to the German defenders of the Butte stands with two crosses commemorative of the valiant men who won it.

Travelling onwards, towards Bapaume, the War-time resident of this zone may strain his eyes for a glimpse of Loupart Wood, away on the left. Here might have been told another story of High Wood and Delville Wood, had not the enemy retired from it on the very morning on which it was to have been attacked by the same costly methods as won those other woodlands of the Somme.

Warlencourt awakens memories of the day when the Australians, finding it deserted by the enemy, gave a whimsical touch of civilization to its shattered appearance by stringing a clothes line across the main street and hanging thereon a white garment which fluttered in the breeze to greet the supporting troops—a bizarre touch which made men laugh as they rarely laughed on the Somme.

There is now no trace of the little German cemetery on the northern side of the road, near the lane that branches off to Warlencourt. The French and German governments have, happily, reached an agreement concerning the German dead in France, and their graves are being removed to their own country. It is better thus.

Ligny-Thilloy, the twin village near Bapaume, nestles comfortaoly between the hills, as villages with such pretty names were surely meant to do. Even in the days when their walls were broken and their gardens littered with shell cases, these two villages had a strange air of quietude and detachment.

By the southern side of the Bapaume road hereabouts, is still to be seen the narrow Decauville railway, which the British army built. Time was when it carried ammunition. Its last job was to convey the material from which was built the church at Le Sars.

The town of Bapaume shows more scars of war than do most of the villages. The French policy of reconstruction was based on the principle that agriculture being the mainstay of the country, the villages must take precedence over the towns in rebuilding, and so there is much leeway to be made up in places like Albert, and Bapaume. The old square, and Place Faidherbe, is still somewhat desolate, and the memorial to Faidherbe still consists only of the stone plinth. The effigy of the general was probably fired, in the form of shells, from the guns of the very nation against which he had made such an heroic stand in 1870.

Bapaume has some fine shops, establishments with elegant frontages, and its principal streets are bright with gay displays of goods. It seems strange, however, that in rebuilding the town, the old building lines, allowing of only a narrow road, and a mean footpath, should have been followed. But here again, is demonstrated that conservatism which won back this Somme area to peaceful pursuits. A less conservative people might have receded altogether from the thought of returning to this most devastated of devastated areas. Their desire to establish it "as before" is responsible for a triumph of reconstruction work, even if it is also guilty of some relatively minor errors.

Bapaume is the adopted town of Sheffield, England, which city also helped Puisieux and Serre, the fortress village of the Ancre where the unheralded gallantry and sacrifices of Sheffield's sons are suitably commemorated. The generosity of Sheffield citizens has given to Bapaume a welfare clinic for the children.

This association of Sheffield and Bapaume is surely a fitting thing, for just as Sheffield was one of the cities most devastated, in the industrial sense, by the consequences of the War, so Bapaume was one of the towns of France most devastated by the destructive forces of war.

NORWOOD, July 5.—A wedding of interest to Norwood friends took place on Wednesday last in St. Paul's Anglican church, Lindsay, when Verlie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, became the bride of Mr. W. Basil Tucker, youngest son of Mr. William Tucker and the late Mrs. Tucker, of Norwood.

Kidd, of Toronto, became the bride of Mr. Barrie Seabrook of Detroit, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Seabrook of Fraserville, Ontario. Rev. W. B. Caswell, pastor of the church officiating. The bridesmaid, Miss Anna Kenny, R.N., of Detroit, was gowned in peach georgette with lace and sequin trimming and a picture hat to match.

The groom was supported by Mr. C. R. Wasson of Peterborough, cousin of the bride. The groom's gift to the bride was a mesh bag, to the groomsman an engraved wallet. The happy couple left later for a boat trip down the St. Lawrence, the bride travelling in a white ensemble suit with hat and shoes to match. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook will reside at 5101 Chicago Boulevard West, Detroit, Michigan.

CLARK—DOBBIN

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Thursday afternoon, June 30th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Dobbin, when their third daughter, Lila May, became the bride of Mr. Hector George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Clark, all of North Monaghan, the ceremony being performed by Rev. D. Wren, of Trinity Church, under an arch of ferns, peonies and orange blossoms.

Promptly at one o'clock the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by her cousin, Miss Eva Taylor, of Otonabee. She wore a simple gown of white crepe, with the conventional wedding veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a lovely bouquet of butterfly roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Dobbin, very prettily dressed in Athenian rose georgette trimmed with sand and gold braid and rose blush shoes and stockings, and carried Ophelia roses. Little Beatrice Moncrief, the tiny niece of the bride, dressed in pink and carrying a basket of pink rose buds and baby breath, made a charming little flower girl. The groom was attended by M. Cecil Wood of Toronto.

After the ceremony the bridal party adjourned to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served to about thirty-five guests.

The young couple were the recipients of many worthy presents, showing the high esteem in which they are held in the community. The groom's gift to the bride was an amethyst bracelet, to the bridesmaid and pianist silver bar pins, and to the dainty little flower girl a topaz ring, and to the groomsman, gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in rose blush georgette trimmed with Italian lace and gold braid, navy blue coat trimmed with white fur, blonde hat and shoes and stockings to match. On their return they will reside in North Monaghan.

Poland Crowns Madonna to Fulfill Vow Made By King Before the War in 1656

VILNA, July 5. — Republican Poland, upon the initiative of Premier Pilsudski to-day fulfilled an oath taken in 1656 by King John Casimir, who, at the moment when nearly all of Poland was held by Swedish invaders, started a war to free the country by offering all the lands to Our Blessed Lady. After the victory, and in token of his gratitude, the King decided to crown the Madonna's picture with the Polish crown.

King Augustus II. fulfilled this obligation in 1717 by crowning the miraculous picture of Madonna Czenstochowa, while to-day the second part of the oath was accomplished by crowning the Madonna of Vilna, or "Ostrabrama," which is walled in the gate in the remains of the old fortification. With the Poles the Madonna at Ostrabrama is second only to that at Czenstochowa.

The former presumably is the work of a Cracow painter in the first half of the seventeenth century. It is a rare type of Madonna, as there is no Infant Jesus.

The ceremony was attended by President Moscicki, Premier Pilsudski, nearly all the members of the Caobinet, two Cardinals, twenty Bishops and several diplomats, including John B. Stetson, Jr., Minister from the United States.

There were present more than 100,000 pilgrims, among them 1,200 Latvians. In view of the fact that Lithuania shares with the Poles the same regard for the Madonna at Ostrabrama, the Polish Government opened the frontier for ten days to permit Lithuanians to enter without passports.

It was expected that the ceremony would help in smoothing over the dispute between Poland and Lithuania, but the Government of the latter country prevented all pilgrimages toward Vilna. Double sentries were posted along the frontier, with the result that only ninety persons succeeded in crossing the frontier into Poland.

TEACHER GIVEN SILVER SERVICE

Miss Florence Little is Leaving Lily Lake School This Year.

THERE SEVEN YEARS.

A very pleasant evening was spent on last Wednesday night by parents, scholars and friends of S. S. No. 1, Lily Lake School, when they gathered to say farewell to their teacher, Miss Florence Little.

Miss Little has taught in the school for the last seven years, and during that time she has made friends with everyone. She was always ready with a helping hand when called upon, and as she went in and out of the many homes in the community, she endeared herself to all those with whom she came in contact. She was presented with a handsome silver tea service and a bouquet of peonies.

During the evening vocal solos were given by Mrs. J. Manson and a piano solo by Dorothy Rowland. Warden J. A. Middleton acted as chairman for the occasion. Short addresses were also given by members of the Board of Trustees. After the presentation dainty refreshments were served by the ladies of the Lily Lake Sunday School. The following address was read by Cecil Hancock, presentations were made by Everett Tully and Dorothy Rowland:

Dear Miss Little:

It is with feelings of regret that we have learned of your intention to sever your connections with us as the respected teacher of Lily Lake School.

It is seven years since you first came among us. You came as a complete stranger to all of us. You leave us as a close personal friend.

You have done much in your work as teacher to build up and develop those finer traits of character which will mean much in the lives of those who have come within the sphere of your influence.

You have endeared yourself to us as you have gone in and out of our homes, by your kindly words and cheery presence.

We appreciate the splendid service you have rendered in the work of the school and as a token of our affection and esteem, may we ask you to accept this gift as a reminder of your sojourn among us, and with this goes our best wishes for your welfare and success in all your future life.

Signed on behalf of Lily Lake School:

Cecil Hancock.
Everett Tully.
Dorothy Rowland.

Miss Little thanked those present in a few well chosen words, after which all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

JUMPS FROM C.P.R. LINER

Montreal Man Makes Attempt To Escape Deportation To Europe.

IS RECAPTURED.

MONTREAL, Que., July 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Making an attempt to escape deportation, Mark Clifford jumped overboard from the C.P.R. liner Montcalm, off Goose Island Reef about 45 miles below Quebec, but in endeavoring to swim ashore he was picked up by the Cunard liner, Letitia, which was following astern of the Montcalm, and now he is reposing in Rimouski jail awaiting the next C.P.R. liner to take him to Europe. This became known here yesterday when steamship officials arrived from Father Point.

Clifford, taking advantages of the narrow stretch of river at that point made his dive in a spectacular "get-away." The Montcalm was too busy to slacken speed and to lower a boat, so her master radioed the master of the Letitia. The latter liner had already passed Clifford who was swimming strongly shoreward, but she swung around and lowered a lifeboat. Clifford was picked up and brought aboard the Cunarder from which he was disembarked on the pilot boat at Father Point and taken to Rimouski.

Ald. Hancock reported on some of the business done by the Union of Canadian Municipalities at the recent convention, to which he was a delegate. He advocated the adoption of a stop and go signal system on George street.

Fire Chief George Gimblett and the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, or some other alderman, will attend the Canadian Fire Chiefs' Convention at Hull.

Ald. Denne asked the Mayor, as a member of the Police Commission, to notify the public that the angle parking by-law on George street is not yet in force and that the cars should park straight.

Ald. Stocker drew a laugh when he said that the Chief of Police would soon be back from his vacation and then something would be done.

The Mayor explained that many of the cars on the streets now are from the United States, where angle parking is the rule. This helps cause confusion.

Ald. Greene suggested that as Rubidge street, now it is paved gets a great deal of traffic, it should be made a through street.

Ald. Ackerman opposed the creation of more through streets, with their corresponding stop signs. Ald. McIntyre asked the Mayor to have the police enforce the law requiring the crossing of intersections at not more than ten miles an hour. He felt that many people do not know that the law calls for this speed on through streets.

Insects have their own radio and produce light and cooling systems.

The best plant fertilizer is liquid manure.

By increasing the amount of moisture in the air during the winter, the wilting of plants indoors can be avoided.

TORY CONVENTION SET OCTOBER 11TH

Official Announcement Made Regarding Datae For Convention at Winnipeg.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 5 (Canadian Press).—Official announcement that October 11 has been confirmed as the date for holding the Conservative convention at Winnipeg is made in a statement issued last evening by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Opposition leader. An increase in the number of delegates at large up to and proportionate to the number of Federal representatives elected by each province is also made. Each province will select its own quota.

The statement, made public at the conclusion of yesterday's meeting of the general committee of the Conservative party, which is making preparations for the convention, reads:

"At a meeting of the general committee, appointed at the conference of last fall to make the necessary arrangements for the holding of a national convention of the Conservative party, held yesterday in the House of Commons, it was unanimously decided that no change would be made as to the date of the convention, and October 11th is therefore confirmed. The meeting also unanimously confirmed the method of voting by constituencies as set forth in March last. The matter of delegates at large from the different provinces came up for discussion, and the committee decided unanimously that each province could select delegates at large up to and proportionate to the number of Federal constituencies; thus Ontario will have 82 delegates at large, Quebec 65, Saskatchewan 21, Manitoba 16, Alberta 16, British Columbia and the Yukon 15, Nova Scotia 14, New Brunswick 11, and Prince Edward Island 4 delegates at large.

"The meeting adjourned, subject to call if necessity arose."

Lindbergh Escort Returns to State

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 5 (Canadian Press).—Eight planes of the United States air squadron returned to Selfridge Field late yesterday from Ottawa, where they accompanied Colonel Charles A. Lindberg to the Diamond Jubilee Celebration of Confederation.

Major J. T. Lanphier, Commandant, described the flight as uneventful.

The superior quality of northern grown seed is nowhere more strikingly shown than in the success obtained with Canadian alfalfa seed. For a long time it was found difficult to grow alfalfa successfully in many parts of Canada, but the development of an ample supply of hardy strains of seed has, to a certain extent, solved the problem of winter killing and the Dominion's alfalfa crop increased from 238,000 acres in 1926 to 858,000 acres in 1926.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE HOLDS ROSE TEA

Effort of Millbrook Church Ladies Proves Very Successful.

MILLBROOK, July 5.—The "Rose Tea", held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Gillott on Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of Mrs. R. J. McKnight's group of the Women's League of Grace church, proved a most enjoyable social event.

The daintily laid tea-tables were arranged on the lawn, and while no formal programme was planned, the opportunity for social intercourse was specially emphasized. The hostess, who recently passed her ninety-second birthday, was quite able to enjoy the occasion fully, a number of the guests being older members of the congregation and community, whom Mrs. Gillott had a particular pleasure in meeting in a social way, and under such favorable circumstances.

As convener of the group in charge Mrs. McKnight had a general oversight of all the arrangements, those waiting on tables, and helping in other ways being: Mrs. T. Ingram, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. W. J. R. Gillott, Mrs. Bothwell, Mrs. A. J. Armstrong, Mrs. J. Lancashire, and Mrs. A. Coyte.

Rev. Joseph Wilks recently passed his ninety-first birthday, the day being spent quietly with Mrs. Wilks in a pleasant outing at Cobourg. Mrs Wilks' many friends will be glad to learn that his health is very satisfactory this summer, having improved considerably since the winter months, and he was able to take the special service at Carmel last Sunday, and to give the address at the community Patriotic Service in the Anglican church the following week.

Though of such advanced age Rev. Mr. Wilks still quite capably takes charge of two preaching services a Sunday, when occasion demands, though when he supplies locally the United church withdraws its service at the afternoon appointment.

The Women's Institute is holding a Jubilee Lawn Party at the home of the president, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, on Saturday, June 9, with tea served from 4 to 7 p.m.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United church is preparing a special Confederation program to be presented in the church parlors on Wednesday, July 13, at 3 p.m. The mission band, mission circle, and C.G.I.T. group will have a part in the pageant.

NEWARK, N. J. July 4. Canadian Press. — John C. Wanner, 58, who probably escaped death dozens of times, in his 30 year career as a wild animal trainer, was to-day slain by a sledge-hammer in the hands of a chicken thief whom he had trapped in his menagerie.

The thief had stolen chickens several times, and Wanner laid in wait for him. When the trainer did not return his wife investiagted and found his body with the head crushed.

MOTORING IN JACKSON PARK.

The warning issued by the Nicholls Parks Commissioners in regard to careful driving in Jackson Park should be observed by the city's motorists.

With the Peterborough Health Association's summer camp in operation there and this beautiful spot visited by large numbers of children each day during the summer months, every motorist who drives through the park should be always on the alert.

There are some bad turns where cautious driving is necessary in any case, and at any point in the park a child is likely to run across the roadway, so that there is a double need for caution.

The Parks Commission has left no doubt as to what will happen if its warning is disregarded.

If there are evidences that the privilege is being abused the Commission will simply close the park to vehicles.

The safety of children is of more importance than the comfort of motorists, and if drivers show themselves indifferent they will have to leave their cars outside.

SHOULD BE CLEARED UP.

It should be somebody's job to deal with the situation at the local sewage disposal plant and remedy the present intolerable conditions.

The building of the plant was hailed as the dawn of a new era.

The pollution of the Otonabee River was to cease; all the sewage that had hitherto gone into this beautiful stream was to be scientifically disposed of, and the river was to be left as Nature intended it to be—fit to bathe in and to travel upon.

As conditions are now the last state of the Otonabee is worse than its first.

The sewage disposal plant has done nothing save add to the cost of civic government and impart to the atmosphere in its vicinity an odour that cannot exactly be described as that of attar of roses.

Instead of the sewage being disposed of effectively, as was intended, there are complaints that it is still reaching the river.

Scores of Peterborough citizens are camping on the Otonabee; their health and that of the people of the townships demands protection from such conditions.

It does not pay to delay in handling situations of this kind—Montreal's experience surely is evidence enough of that.

The sewage disposal problem should be cleared up as soon as possible.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

Confidence that the people of this city and district had too much good sense and moderation to abuse the privilege given them under the Liquor Control Act has been vindicated by the fact that throughout the three days of the Diamond Jubilee celebration the police were not called upon to make a single arrest for drunkenness.

The orderly nature of the big crowds that assembled during the main features of the celebration was most favourably commented upon by visitors.

No evidences of drinking, no rowdyism, no disorder—just a concourse of loyal, well-behaved citizens anxious to do honour to Canada in this greatest celebration in the history of the country.

The behaviour of the whole community during the three days deserves the highest commendation.

The Police Department, efficiently handling the additional traffic and other problems associated with gatherings of this kind, found ready co-operation from the citizens.

A few minor accidents were reported, but nothing of a serious nature developed during the celebration, and the absence of tragedies and the fact that not an arrest was necessary do credit to the citizens of Peterborough and district as well as to the hundreds of visitors here during the three big days.

OLD THEORIES REFUTED.

The Diamond Jubilee celebration has utterly chased away several theories that, before this great event, had many supporters.

In the first place, it proved that Peterborough has community spirit and can throw itself heart and soul into the task of making a success out of a big celebration.

And secondly, it completely reversed the oft-heard opinion that community singing, so far as Peterborough people were concerned, was simply not being done, that it was impossible to get a local audience to respond to an appeal for general participation in such vocal efforts.

Sunday evening's impressive service in Victoria Park, the climax of the three-day celebration, showed that there was nothing in that theory.

Five thousand people attended, and led by the massed bands and the Jubilee Choir, the majority of them sang with a will the grand old hymns selected for the occasion.

There have been few more impressive services in Peterborough, the effect as the volume of sound rolled up from that vast crowd being truly striking.

Mr. Martin Chenhall, leader of the Jubilee Choir, and the members of that organization deserve every credit for their contribution toward the success of the celebration, and particularly for their very fine work in connection with Sunday's services.

SUMMER HOLIDAYS.

(An Editorial for Young People from the Hamilton Spectator)

The long summer vacation has started, and just at present time Hamilton and the whole country is girding itself up to enjoying the Jubilee celebrations. We should not, therefore, mar the spirit of gaiety which prevails by a solemn discourse this week. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, and the boy or girl who has conscientiously passed through a school year is entitled to relaxation. We hope all our young readers will enjoy their holidays to the full and that they will take the best advantage of their opporunities for rest and recreation. Canada is a wonderful country for holiday-making. Our summers are delightful seasons in which to indulge in the various outdoor sports and amusements which are dear to the heart of healthy boys and girls. And nowhere in the world could better opportunities be found for the enjoyment of such pastimes, nor would it be possible to mention any place which has more beautiful scenery or more invigorating air than the resorts of our own province. Those living in Ontario are exceedingly fortunate in this respect, and even those who are not contemplating a change, but who will stay in this district till school assembles again, have little cause to complain. Right here at home are all manner of amusements conveniently at hand—swimming, hiking, sports, etc.

There is only one thing by way of warning we would add. Let the holiday be free from future regret. Idle hands, we know, tend to mischief. It is a trying time, very often, for the older folks during the long summer holidays, because of the inconsiderateness of young people. Noisy play, rude manners, destructive pranks—all very natural to boisterous youth—are a wrong and a nuisance to those who suffer from them. Remember to think always of others, and avoid giving offense.

TOO MUCH LUXURY.

A 15-year-old New Jersey boy, a son of a wealthy business man, left home the other day and went out to seek his fortune. Departing, he left word that he was running away to get away from the luxury that surrounded him. His parents had been keeping him in an expensive preparatory school; he wanted to go out and get a job.

And so, being, apparently, a youth of spirit, he went. He is now, presumably, working somewhere as he wanted to do; his father, searching for him, says he can keep his job if only he will communicate with home.

There are very few boys who ever run away from home because the parental roost is too luxuriously padded. Likewise, there are very few of us older ones who would ever take flight from the ease of riches. Yet we all sympathize with this New Jersey lad, and we can't help feeling that he must have the right sort of stuff in him.

Luxury such as great wealth makes possible doesn't hurt a grown person. But, after all, it is hardly the best environment for a growing boy. Youth needs a certain amount of hardship, a certain amount of privation, if it is to mature and develop properly. It must not be shielded too carefully. In that respect this Jersey youngster had the right idea.

Nor is this a problem which need concern only the rich. The rest of us folks of moderate—or less than moderate—means can ponder on it for a while with profit.

For we all have a tendency to pamper our children. It's the most natural thing in the world. We want to shield them from the bumps and hard knocks we took at their age; we want to make life as easy and soft for them as we possibly can.

It is a good thing that we so often fail. Youth that is sheltered is handicapped. There is only one way to learn how to meet life's problems, and that is to receive a few of life's jolts.

So all of us can bear that in mind even though we aren't rich. Without thinking, we try to give our children too much luxury. It is wiser for us to spend our time teaching them how to meet difficulties, not how to avoid them.

A FLAW IN THE LAW.

Although a man may be arrested while in charge of a motor car in an intoxicated condition and may be found guilty of the offence, it appears that he need not necessarily be sentenced to a term of imprisonment. A justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario has found, upon appeal from the decision of the police magistrate of Belleville, that a magistrate is quite within his rights in allowing such a person to go upon suspended sentence, notwithstanding the fact that the statutes specifically state that any person found guilty of having driven a motor car when intoxicated shall go to jail. This decision is in conformity with a section of the Criminal Code granting magistrates the right to impose suspended sentence whenever they choose.

Thus is another cherished illusion shattered. The province has thought that it was being protected from drunken drivers to the extent that they would be sent to jail, without option of a fine, if detected in the offence. And now it is held that a magistrate, should he choose to exercise his right, is within the law in allowing them to go upon suspended sentence, which amounts to perfect freedom unless the person concerned becomes involved in other difficulties which bring him to the attention of the authorities.

This is undoubtedly a flaw in the law which should be corrected at the earliest opportunity if it lies within the power of the Legislature. Organizations composed of motorists are almost unanimous in approving of a compulsory jail sentence for drunken drivers, who constitute perhaps the greatest menace to public safety that there is in existence. In recent months the press has been clamoring for an increase in the obligatory sentence rather than a decrease, in order that those who mix liquor and gasoline may be taught a salutary lesson. If magistrates are to be given the right to let such people off lightly when it occurs to them, the public will have been done a serious dis-service.

It is not likely, however, that many police magistrates will exercise this privilege. They are, in general, a body of men who believe in upholding the law and in imposing penalties which are equal to the offence. They know that the driver of a motor vehicle who, under the influence of intoxicants is not in a fit state to travel the roads and that the imposition of a jail sentence, perhaps the only means by which he may be taught a lesson. For that reason, notwithstanding the decision of the Toronto appeal judge, there is not likely to be any general application of his ruling. But that the law should tolerate such a practice is nevertheless, a decided weakness and it should be patched up as soon as possible.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 5 (Canadian Press).—The general holiday atmosphere throughout the country had its effect in the grain trade and the export business was quiet. Bids received from foreign buyers were not acceptable to exporters with the result that there was a general weakness in the market. Canadian Western oats declined 1 cent per bushel in sympathy with lower future prices at Winnipeg.

The flour trade is steadier for Spring wheat grades and there has been some demand over the week-end from English importers. The bulk of orders are for small lot shipments, however. The movement for local and country account is fair. The business in Winter wheat flour is moderate with prices sustained.

Millfeed and rolled oats are firm with a certain activity manifest. Supplies are not plentiful. The local baled hay market is quiet with prices nominal.

The egg trade is firm due to a decline in supplies and the decreased percentage of high-grade stock on account of the warm weather. The demand from grocers is steady and a fair trade is being done.

American new crop potatoes furnish the bulk of the trade in tubers and the market is steady. Spot supplies are ample to meet all wants at the moment. The trade in Canadian old crop is inactive, but offerings on spot are small.

Firmness in the local butter trade was disclosed by an advance of ¼c per lb. Local buyers created a demand for broken lots and a moderate business is being done. Receipts are increased over last week.

The cheese trade is strongr than it has been for some time and prices have scored an advance from ¾ tot ½c. Export business, however, continues quiet.

MILLER BROTHERS HERE NEXT WEEK

Big Midway Will Exhibit at Exhibition Grounds All Week.

Miller Brothers Exposition Shows will exhibit here at the Fair Grounds all next week, from July 11 to July 16. This is the largest exposition of shows, congress of riding devices, and conglomeration of novelties ever to exhibit here.

Harry Stearns, the show's representative and contracting agent, is in the city all this week arranging for the arrival of the shows and contracting for supplies. The shows travel on thirty-five double-length all-steel railroad cars, all show-owned, and they will arrive here in two sections. There are over five hundred people with this mammoth amusement enterprise, which is a veritable travelling amusement park. There are twenty-five big shows and exhibitions, twelve mammoth riding devices, novelties, curiosities, freaks, strange people, free acts, bands, wonders, marvels, surprises, trick riders, racing, and wild animals from the remote corners of the earth. There will also be a large Midway Cafeteria, lunch and soft drink stands, and ice cream booths galore.

This aggregation takes up more ground than the largest circuses and their arrival here will look like the coming of the "Greatest Show on Earth."

There are several recent foreign importations with this attraction which have never been seen here in the city and there are many new, novel, and unique shows and riding devices. Never before has such an array of amusements and novelties been exhibited on a single Midway.

BODY FOUND IN STURGEON LAKE

William Ayres Thought To Have Fallen From Dam at Bobcaygeon.

NO INQUEST ORDERED.

BOBCAYGEON, Ont., July 4. — (Special.) — The body of the late William Ayers wos found on Sunady morning between eight and nine o'clock in Sturgeon Lake near the Bobcaygeon dry dock, by H. Flint of Downeyville. He was last seen alive Thursday evening, June 30th. No search was made for him as he very often stayed away. A hat was seen floating on the lake on Saturday by some boys. It is not often that a body rises so soon to the surface but the two very hot days and the thunderstorm on Saturday are believed to have caused it.

Reeve W. C. Moore immediately notified the coroner, Dr. H. B. Johnson of Fenelon Falls, and town constable Lathin Garly of the accident.

The coroner ordered that the body be removed to the shore and left till he viewed it.

An examination at 11 o'clock showed that the deceased man had $85 in his possession at the time of his death, and in his purse was an identification card which gave the address of his daugther, who lives in Toronto. His clothes were not torn as they would have been if there had been foul play. His sleeves were held naturally in place and the body did not appear to have been dragged. Over the left eye was a large bruise, and the undertaker claimed that the pupil of the same eye was pushed back in the head.

Dr. Johnson, in speaking to The Examiner, after deciding that an inquest would not be necessary, stated that he was sure it was an accidental death.

It appears that Mr. Ayers was taking a short cut to the business section of the village. Going over the dam he fell into the Bib Bobcaygeon River, in the space on the surface of the dam, where the stop logs are put in and taken out, striking his head as he fell, and rolling into the water on the higher side.

The coroner added that if it had been suicide the man would not have fallen that short distance, and after due inquiry could find no one who spoke ill of him. As his money was intact robbery could not have been a motive. The position of the bruises also, concluded the doctor were such that a man striking another could not inflict. A friend of Mr. Ayers said that the deceased had a very weak heart, and his doctor had warned him that he should be careful. He thought that perhaps a weak spell may have attacked him on the dam which resulted so fatally.

Te late Mr. Ayers, who was over 60 years of age, is survived by his sister, Mrs. James Patterson, Bobcaygeon, with whom he resided; two daughters, one in Toronto, and the other near Kinmount, where interment is to take place; and one son in Toronto.

Mr. Watter, the leader of the party, said they greatly enjoyed their trip but expressed surprize at the way in which cars were handled on our highways. After viewing the "cutting in" he was not surprised to see over a dozen wrecks along the road. The party plans returning to Canada whenever the opportunity offers.

SAINT and SINNER

Faith found no opportunity that night to broach the subject of money to Cherry, for her sister had brought Frances and Bill Warren home with her for a rubber of bridge. Bob made a fourth at the table, while Faith sat very silent and subdued in a corner of the big couch, her fingers busy over a garment for Cherry's coming child.

Cherry was so bubblingly gay that whe won Bob out of his moody abstraction. She played opposite Bill Warren, and when she was not flirting with the serious-minded, thoroughly likeable, young man who had once been more than halfway in love with her, she was leaning her bright head so close to her brother-in-law—who had been engaged to her before he had fallen in love with Faith—that her copper-and-gold curls brushed his shoulder.

Frances Warren, with her fine-spun pale hair, her rose-and-lily complexion her demure cornflower blue eyes, seemed content, as usual, to play second fiddle to Cherry's more brilliant beauty and exuberant spirits. It was Frances who, when it was her turn to be "dummy," took a seat beside Faith and talked in low, confidential murmurs—never Cherry, who had eyes only for the two good-looking men. But when Bob was "dummy" he dropped to the hassock at Faith's feet and leaned his chestnut head against her knees, as if it gave him a quiet pleasure to be near her. And while he sat there Faith's hands were unsteady upon her sewing, and her large, wistful, brown eyes brooded upon him with an almost painful intentness.

He was hers—hers! Every line, every curve of his face was inexpressibly dear to her. The way his hair grew on his forehead—a little low in front and retreating sharply at the corners, giving him an expression of nobility; the very slight one-sidedness of his strong, flaring-nostriled nose; the crispness of his golden-brow eyebrows, which almost met in the middle; the shortness of his deeply curved upper lip, which he pretended to deplore because she had told him it made his mouth "pretty;" the leanness of his sun-bronzed cheeks; the little brown mole near his right ear; the fire and depth of color in his dark blue eyes—oh, she had named her treasure over and over so many times, but not an item of it ever failed to catch at her heart with the sheer rapture of possession.

"Faith looks at you as if she could eat you up," Cherry laughed at Bob, when the last rubber was finished. "Come along, beloved brother-inlaw! Let's dance!"

"No dancing for you tonight, young lady. It's bed for you," Bob grinned at her, but he rose as she tugged at his arms and stood beside her, their hands swinging in comradely fashion.

Faith saw Frances and Bill Warren exchange a significant smile as they too rose from the bridge table. What were they thinking, Faith asked herself on a wave of jealous anger? Could they see too that Cherry still adored Bob? Or did they think that it was Bob who—but she could not bear to give that thought room in her mind for a moment. It was sacrilege against their love—hers and Bob's. It was she whom he had married—not Cherry. But he had been engaged to Cherry first—

She rose hastily, aghast at her thoughts, tried to banish them as she stepped with dignity and sweet graciousness into the role of hostess. She smiled and blushed with genuine pleasure as Frances and Bill Warren reiterated their compliments on the new home and extended them an invitation to dinner for the following Wednesday.

But when the guests were gone and she turned her proud, smiling face to her husband, she saw that Bob's eyes were again clouded with worry, his mouth set and grim. And she remembered that she still had before her the ordeal of talking with Cherry about her extravagance.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Conflicting planetary influences distinguish this day, according to astrology. It is a precarious time for initiative.

Early in the morning the aspects are encouraging for all sorts of financial transactions, but there may be a tendency to extremes of economy.

There is a most promising sway for newspapers and advertising today, and there will be many extra editions of dailies, it is forecast.

Again publicity will be a concern of the United States government, which is to take cognizance of foreign correspondence.

This is not a favorable rule for commercial transactions and merchants may have certain disappointments.

Both merchants and manufacturers are to have an excess of business before the end of the year, it is prognosticated, owing to most unusual foreign conditions.

Food is to rise in cost, but it will be only one among many staples that will increase in price.

Under this direction of the stars there may be a tendency to look on the dark side of things and this should be combatted.

The American mind at this time is likely to be exceedingly sensitive and open to impressions. A negative attitude should be overcome.

Educators ... sort of pla... receive ex...

For those w... college this year, ... ities to achieve ex... are indicated.

Foreign service will be attained by many who will win fame as well as fortune.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid the temptation to exploit themselves. Modesty will pay best in the coming year.

Children born on this day have the augury of fame, but they may meet many enemies in the course of their careers.

RUM SCHOONER OWNERS APPEAR

Give Evidence at Sitting of the Royal Customs Commision.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 5 (Canadian Press). — Fictitious trips by Lunenburg rum schooners to Honduras, Havana, or other southern points were the subject of much questioning by the Hon. N .W. Rowell, K.C., when the Royal Customs Commission resumed here to-day. With the directors, shareholders, and officers of a number of Lunenburg companies which own these vessels on the stand, Mr. Rowell ascertained that the destinations for which clearance is made are practically never reached, according to the evidence the "American coast" is the Mecca for Lunenburg rum schooners. As a matter of fact, Alfred T. O'Leary, customs broker, of Halifax, who arranged the charter for a number of these liquor vessels, said the destination named was generally the "North Atlantic."

THE ROAD TO PROSPERITY

SIXTY years ago Canada's leaders agreed that the surest road to prosperity lay in Confederation. By uniting the scattered provinces under one strong Federal Government, Canada attained a national importance that has opened to her a position of world wide importance.

Their principle is as true commercially as it was politically. By uniting individual companies under one strong buying executive, Canadian Department Stores Limited have accomplished an importance that opens to us the greatest markets of the world, and enables us to bring to you, personally, the world's best merchandise at the world's best prices.

Thus the Confederation Jubilee is of very personal significance to us, and we have strained every effort to mark its celebration with the most unique, and sensational series of CHAIN BORDER SPECIALS it is possible to find.

They are to be presented intermittently throughout the whole of July, offering seasonable and fine quality merchandise at prices that represent hundreds of dollars savings.

Besides these Feature Specials many smaller quantities of popular lines are to be offered at remarkably low prices, and new regular values have been secured from the head office, that illustrate the saving the new organization makes possible to you.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL TO ASK FOR GRANT FOR STREET PAVING

Engineer Says Town Can Get Grant For Strips Linking Highways.

REGULAR MEETING.

Many Letters Read and Citizens Heard By Town Fathers.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 5. — The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held last evening in the Council Chambers. Those absent were Deputy Reeve Charles Davidson and Councillors O'Sullivan and Cole.

A communication from C. H. Gregg objecting to the building of a barn and the raising of rabbits on the lot adjoining his property was read. The Council spent some time in discussing this matter, and finally left it to the Reeve and Town Clerk to inquire into the matter as the best method to pursue in an effort to protect property owners from what is generally believed to be a nuisance.

A communication from the Cloth Company thanking the Council for fixing their assessment at $50,000 and asking that rate be guaranteed for three years, was read. The Clerk was instructed to write the company informing them that this Council could not suggest what future Councils should do.

A letter from the Society celebrating here on August 12th was read. The Society asked for the exclusive right for booths for that day. On motion of Councillor Wiggins they were given exclusive right, and location of same left to the Road and Bridge Committee.

A letter from David F. Robertson of Montreal, re right of way, was read. Mr. Robertson drew the attention of the Council to the fact that when his property was torn up, he had urged the Council to make sewer connections and at that time told them that in future they would have to pay if they wanted to make the said connections Mr. Robertson stated in his letter that he had installed a new well and pump, and that the property was not his sister's, but his own. He further stated that he would be in Campbellford in the near future.

A communication from M. F. Maybee, thanking the Council for their action regarding his previous communication, re representation, was read.

A letter from the Counties Clerk at Cobourg, billing the town for the expenses of John Mitchell at the Hospital for Sick Children was read and the Clerk instructed to notify the Counties Clerk that Campbellford had no such resident.

Another communication from Kingston General Hospital asked for $1.50 per day for treatment of one Flint. Clerk instructetd to notify hospital to bill the County, and when this is done Campbellford will receive an account from the County for 50 per cent of the amount.

A letter from the Liquor Control Board asked that certain steps be taken under Section 121, re fines. A by-law is to be prepared.

Engineer Fellows of the Department of Public Works addressed the Council on road paving and thought there was no question but that the town would get a grant. He advised the Council to get the main sewer done at once, and suggested that curb be placed on outside of poles. He thought the Council should pass a parking by-law for Main Street. He thought that a 20-ft. pavement costing $35,000 a mile would carry the traffic. If the town wanted a wider or more expensive pavement, the town would have to pay the difference. Pavements paid for out of the grant would have to be on streets linking up with highway. He advised the employment of an engineer at once to measure up the amount of pavement required. He advised against the calling for tenders at this time, thought that sufficient information could be obtained otherwise to enable Council to go before the Counties for the grant.

The town would have to finance the pavement until the completion of the same. He thought it was useless to put concrete base on streets with lots of stone such as the streets of Campbellford.

It is thought that Campbellford will have no difficulty in getting a grant for two miles of pavement. The matter is to be brought up at the December meeting of the Counties Council, so that the January session will be able to deal with the matter.

A citizen appeared before the council protesting against the sale of second hand motor cars in town without the paying of the transient traders' license fee.

The clerk was instructed to notify Chief Light to collect from the party referred to.

Roy Sweet appeared before the council calling attention to the fact that the house on which he was asked to pay taxes was burned down on Jan. 26th. Council recommended a rebate.

Mr. Smith announced himself as the sole remaining member of the County Hog Show Committee. He stated that Campbellford was the logical place for the holding of the hog show as Campbellford shipped more hogs than any other place in the country. The council granted his request for a donation of $25 towards the expenses of the show.

Arthur Graham blacksmith, stated that he was paying 24c on one side of the street and 6c on the other for oil on the streets. The oil was quite a way from his shop and he thought he was ehtitled to some reduction.

Mayor Kingston humorously stated that he thought that the farther away the oil was, the more one should be asked to pay. Mr. Graham was asked to bring the matter up at the Court of Revision.

Councillor Wiggins then brought in the pay sheet and stated that the Road and Bridge Committee had spent over $9000 to date.

Mayor Kingston reported on his interview with Mr. Palmer regarding right of way from Front to the river; this is recommended to the Department. If right of way is wanted on east side it will have to be purchased.

A matter of discontinuing the use of a sewer said to be only four inches inches below ground and with several broken pipes, occupied the attention of the council for a considerable length of time. The parties using this sewer are to be notified to discontinue the use of it at once.

On motion of Reeve Bygott, the council adjourned at 11 o'clock.

...S SCORE FIVE RUNS DEFEAT CRESCENTS

Ex-Champ Settles Down to the Grind

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Saratoga Lake, N.Y., July 5 (Canadian press).—On the eight anniversary of the day he crushed Jess Willard in a boiling sun at Toledo to win the heavyweight champion ship of the world, Jack Dempsey yesterday settled down to the grind of winning back the title. For the first time, Dempsey worked under an order issued yesterday by Leo P. Flynn, his new manager, that training sessions for the fight with Jack Sharkey, late this month, shall be private to all but newspapermen.

But the Dempsey who showered punches on a half dozen sparring partners yesterday in a six-round workout was anything but the lithe tiger man who smashed Willard into a helpless bleeding hulk in three rounds of fighting on the Fourth of July, 1919.

Dempsey that day was 183 pounds of blinding speed and terrific punishing power and probably in the finest condition he ever attained for any but his match with Luis Angel Firpo in September, 1923. Yesterday the former king of his class scaled 201, according to Trainer Jerry Luvadis, although he appeared several pounds over that weight and heavy about the shoulders and waistline.

DROP DOUBLE TO THE BISONS

Stage Fearful Carnage To Jolt Toronto Ace From Mound.

FOUR OUT OF FIVE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 5.—(Canadian Press).—The Bisons took another double fall out of the Maple Leafs at Buffalo yesterday making it four out of five in three days. The scores were 5 to 4 and 17 to 0. The Bisons staged a fearful carnage in the afternoon to jolt Faulkner, Toronto ace, from the box and continued against Nouman and Prudhomme until they had amassed twenty-two hits including six doubles and a triple. Bill Huber was the star stick swinger in hits massacre with four out of five. Mangum did what pitching was necessary for the Bisons in bang-up style limiting the Leafs to seven hits. Burke had a gala day for the Leafs collecting five hits in two games.

The Syracuse Stars won twice from the Tribe at Rochester, capturing the morning game by twenty to eight and the afternoon game by 10 to 7.

Rochester used four pitchers in the morning and they yielded eighteen hits. The fourth inning in both games featured for the Stars. In the morning they scored ten runs in the fourth chukker and in the afternoon seven in the same frame. The Tribe also scored seven runs in the fourth inning of the afternoon game.

CREATES SENSATION AT OTTAWA COURTS

Lewis N. White Defeats Two Opponents In Open Singles Event.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 5. Canadian Press. — Lewis N. White of Austin, Texas, sixth ranking player in the U.S.A., created a sensation here yesterday in his first appearance on the local courts, in the Ontario lawn tennis championships. He defeated two opponents in the open singles event, both with apparent ease, although one of them, E. C. Condon, Ottawa, is rated a fairly strong player. It was apparent that White was not extending himself at all to win.

W. L. Rennie, former Canadian champion, Gilbert Nunns and M. P. Margesson, were among a number of strong players to come through. Marcelle Rainville, of Montreal, won two singles, although extended to three sets by A. E. Purks of Toronto. Noble and Martin of Newton, Mass., both found little difficulty in advancing a round, as also did A. Cassils and P. Fontaine of Montreal.

In the ladies' events, Miss G. Gallery of Montreal won easily, and Miss E. Billings of the Montreal contingent, had an easy victory over C. G. Graupner, of Toronto. Mrs. G. D. Brown was the only other Toronto lady drawn, and she won after a three set tussle with Miss F. M. Claudet of Ottawa.

DEFEAT SENATORS FOR DOUBLE BILL

Yankees Score Thirty-three Runs to Their Opponents' Two.

NEW YORK, July 5.—(Canadian Press).—Scoring 33 runs to their opponents 2 in a double header yesterday the New York Yankees overwhelmed the Washington Senators, their nearest rivals for the American League lead. The scores were 12 to 1 and 21 to 1.

Two round trip blows the walloping first baseman of the Yanks figured largely in the scoring and gave him the lead over his team mate, Babe Ruth in home run hitting Gehrig made number 27 in the eighth inning of the first game and number 28 in the sixth frame of the second, while the Babe failed to add to his 26.

The double header was played before nearly 75,000 persons, one of the largest crowds that ever saw a baseball bill.

Cleveland took both its home games from Chicago, 2 to 0 and 6 to 2. Chicago with its record of 51 hits in four games at St. Louis before coming to Cleveland, was held to eight hits in the two contests. Levsen allowed the Sox only two this morning while Sahute gave them six in the afternoon.

Two protracted losing streaks were broken at Fenway Park yesterday when the Red Sox and Philadelphia Athletics divided a double header. Behind Grove's airtight pitching, the Athletics took the first game, 10 to 2, after dropping seven straight games, while the Red Sox smashed a 15 games losing streak by taking the second encounter, 11 to 3.

HYDRO SWAMPS OUTLAWS TEAM

Wins Exhibition Game By Score of 36-3 Last Night.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 5. — The Hydro and Outlaws put on an exhibition game at the Fair grounds last night. Owen played a wonderful game for the Outlaws, but lacked support. His catching was nothing short of marvellous, and but for his repeated brilliant plays the game would have lacked interest.

At the conclusion of this errorless game the score was 3-36 in favor of Hydro.

TILDEN AND HUNTER WIN DOUBLES CROWN

British Players Will Make Determined Effort To Save Titles.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 5. — Canadian Press. — The tennis players of the British Empire will make a determined effort to-day to save two titles, the women's doubles and the mixed doubles at the Wimbledon tournament.

Of the three events decided so far the men's singles was won by Henri Cochet of France, the women's singles by Miss Helen Wills of California, and the men's doubles by William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter of the United States.

Tilden and Hunter won the doubles crown yesterday when they defeated the 1926 champions, Cochet and Jacques Brugnon of France 1-6, 4-6, 8-6, 6-3 6-4.

Miss Bobie Heine and Mrs. J. Peacock of Sauth Africa, will meet Miss Wills and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of the United States in the final of the women's doubles to-day. The semi-finals and finals of the mixed doubles also will be played to-day, the last day of the tournament.

Leslie A. Godfree and Miss Kitty McKane Godfree of England, will meet Donald Greig and Mrs. P. H. Watson of England and Louis Raymond, and Miss Heine of South Africa will play Hunter and Miss Ryan in the two mixed doubles semi-final matches.

Mrs. Godfree and Betty Nuthall, the sensational school girl player of England, were eliminated from the women's doubles yesterday by the Wills-Ryan team, in a leisurely match, while Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Lycett, another strong English pair, were defeated in the mixed doubles by Hunter and Miss Ryan in the quarter finals.

The Tilden-Hunter victory gave Wimbledon another of its "wonder-recovery" thrills, the American pair being down two sets and within a point of defeat in the third when they came through to a brilliant victory. Despite the French defeat, Cochet appeared the best of the four players, Brugnon weakening perceptibly in the fourth and fifth sets.

Large Crowd Watch Pirates Defeat Champions 7-2 and 6-4.

"ALEC" OUTPITCHED.

NEW YORK, July 5 (Canadian Press). — Sixty thousand Pittsburgh fans watched the Pirates set back St. Louis in both ends of the holiday double - header yesterday. The League leaders won the morning encounter 7 to 2 and nosed out the Cardinals in the afternoon 6 to 4. Barnhart's double in the eighth scoring two runs decided the closing contest a few minutes after Holm had tied the score at 4 all with a homer into the right field stands. Meadows outpitched Alexander in the first game, limiting the Cards to eight hits, half of which went to Lester Bell.

Chicago won both games of the home bill from Cincinnati, taking the first game 2 to 1, in ten innings, and the aftermath 6 to 3.

The Cubs won the opener on Scott's single and Wilson's double in the tenth inning to end a pitcher's duel between Lefty Brillheart, who allowed only three scattered hits, and Jakie May, who was touched for nine.

Bush relieved Osborn in the afternoon game, when Osborn was driven off the hill in the second inning. Bush allowed only three hits during the remainder of the game and prevented further scoring. The Cubs bunched their hits on Pete Donahue in the second game, overcoming a three-run lead and winning handily.

The New York Giants successfully protected fourth place yesterday by winning both games at Brooklyn. They won the first in eleven innings, by 4 to 3, and easily captured the second game 9 to 4.

The opening game was a real thriller. Fitzsimmons pitched shut-out ball until the eighth, when with two out Mueller muffed a fly ball in left field, inaugurating a rally that overcame a three-run lead. The Giants won in the eleventh when Elliott passed Hornsby. Devormer sacrificed, Jackson walked, and Harper singled, driving in the winning run.

In the second game, the Giants pounded three Brooklyn pitchers for a total of nineteen hits, including a home run by Hornsby with one on. It was Hornsby's fifteenth homer.

Boston took both ends of the holiday bill at Philadelphia, winning the opener 5 to 4 and hammering Decatur and Willoughby for an 8 to 2 victory in the second contest.

The Phillies were in the thick of the fight for the opening contest until Ferguson passed three men in a row before Scott was rushed to the rescue. The Braves kept up their batting in the second game and handed the Phillies their sixth straight deefat.

Was Up Just 55 Minutes

He was up just 55 minutes, and his altmeter showed on landing that he had gone 37,500 feet. The official record will not be known until the barographs have been examined and calibrated by the Bureau of Standards today. The corrections may change the record upward or downward, but it is not expected that it will be brought down more than about 1,000 feet. Even if it should be lowered that much, due to drift, or wind, or for other reason, the distance will still be nearly a mile higher than any man has yet gone in a seaplane carrying a pontoon.

Lieut. Champion broke his own record, which he made on May 5, flying the same plane from the Naval Air Station at Hampton Roads, Va., when he went up 33,455 feet.

Yesterday's flight was made from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, and the weather was perfect. Lieut. Champion, who has been making a series of tests of altitude flying conditions, wore garments especially fitted for the cold climate he found aloft. His face was encased in a fur-lined leather helmet, and he fore special goggles, which were constructed in such a manner as would keep the moisture from freezing on the lenses.

Experimental Flight

The flight was one in a series of experiments that have been connected with this type of plane. The "Apache" was used in the record of May 5. On both occasions the climb was performed by a Pratt & Whitney "Wasp" engine, one of the new types that has been developed at the Bureau of Aeronautics, where was also developed the "Wright air-cooled engines used in the polar, Lindbergh, Hawaii, and America flights."

The world's high altitude record with a land plane is held by a Frenchman, who recently went to 40,000 feet, but it is now believed by naval aviators that the new "Wasp" engine in a land plane will break that record. The seaplane went yesterday as high as it could go, and used approximately forty-five gallons of gas.

CONVICT MAKES DARING ESCAPE

Climbs Through Window From Cells in Toronto City Hall Basement.

WANTED IN TENNESEE.

TORONTO, July 5 (Canadian Press).—Harry Duncan, alias John Revinsky, who admitted on his arrest a week ago that he was an escaped convict from Tennessee State Penitentiary, wrenched the iron screen from the window in the cells corridor in the City Hall here today and made good his escape for the third time in his criminal career. He disappeared in the busy streets in the vicinity of the Hall.

He was serving a twenty-year sentence in Tennessee Penitentiary for the murder of May Goodwin in 1916, when he eluded his guards the same year and was not recaptured for several years. He escaped the second time from the hospital ward.

Revinsky, as the man is known to the United States police authorities, was arrested here on June 25 and was held on four charges of robbery while armed. He appeared in court this morning and was remanded a second time. On being returned to the cells, which are just below the street level, Revinsky awaited a favorable opportunity and then tore the grating away. Clambering to the street, he successfully gained his freedom.

Police are scouring the city in an attempt to re-capture the prisoner, while officials are conducting an investigation regarding the condition of the cells in the Municipal Building.

EGYPT'S RULER VISITS LONDON

King Fuad Guest of King George During State Visit.

ALLIANCE REMOVED.

LONDON, July 5.— In a gorgeous state reception, King Fuad of Egypt made his first royal visit to London yesterday.

Four of His Majesty's destroyers guarded him across the English Channel to where the Prince of Wales met him at Dover, a squadron of airplanes escorted his special train to London and at the station he was met by King George and all the high Ministers of State.

After the Guards' Band played the Egyptian National Anthem, the cavalry of the royal household surrounded the two monarchs, who rode to Buckingham Palace through streets lined by guards and decorated by Egyptian flags. Great crowds jammed the streets.

King Fuad was received as a reigning sovereign equal in all respects to King George.

Last night at a state banquet, the famoues gold plate was used and the highest persons in the country were guests. Distinguished peers walked backward before him, while Queen Mary wore the ribbon of the Egyptian Order of El Kemal.

British defence was extended also to the members of King Fuad's retinue of household officials.

There are rumors that Sarwat Pasha, Egyptian Premier, who accompanied King Fuad, will meet Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain in a discussion of a close alliance between Egypt and Great Britain.

King Fuad will live in Buckingham Palace a few days and then will go to the Egyptian Embassy, where he will be served by thirty Nubians, each of whom is taller than six feet three inches and none of whom is allowed to speak. All communications with them are by signs. They are relics of the days when Nubian slaves with their tongues torn out served the Mamalukes and pashas. King Fuad's queen did not come.

LONDON, July 5 (United Press).—Just as the carriage carrying King Fuad of Egypt, King George of England, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of York was passing Victoria Street, Westminster, in yesterday's State procession, two loud reports were heard.

Mounted and foot police surrounded the crowd and interrogated a 19-year-old youth, who said his automatic pistol was only a toy. He was allowed to go after the police took his name and address.

Cheered By Crowds.

LONDON, July 5 (Canadian Press).—King Fuad of Egypt, who arrived here yesterday to pay a short visit to King George, to-day had a glimpse of London's picturesque ceremonies when, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, he drove in an open carriage through cheering crowds to Whitehall.

POISON LIQUOR CAUSES DEATHS

Two Men Die in Belleville During Holiday Week End.

AUTOPSY ORDERED.

BELLEVILLE, July 5.—Two men, Edward Roe and John Hunter, expired in this city over the week-end, and both deaths, it is alleged, were attributable to the drinking of rubbing alcohol or moonshine whiskey. The stomachs are being sent to Toronto for analysis.

Edward Roe was found dead about 4 o'clock yetserday morning, and Hunter was taken to the hospital on Sunday afternoon after being arrested by the city police on a charge of intoxication. He expired late Sunday night.

When Hunter was found he apparently was in good physical condition, but was suffering from bruises and had a bad wound at the back of the head. Whether foul play was committed shortly before his arrest has not been determined, but an autopsy is being held, and the stomachs of the two men are being sent to Toronto for analysis.

It is alleged that Hunter was in a fight late on Saturday afternoon, and that he wandered down by Victoria Park, and was there found by the police lying face downward in the driveway leading to the park at 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

Both men were well known in this city, where they had resided all their lives. Hunter leaves a wife and two children, while Roe was single. Both were young men. Inquests will be held by Coroner Dr. W. W. Boyce.

MINER FALLS DOWN SHAFT

Overbalances While Going Down Hollinger Shaft in Bucket.

HURTS MAN BELOW.

TIMMINS, July 5. — While descending No. 19 shaft in a bucket at the Hollinger mine, Raymond Brodeur, aged 36, load man on the shaft, fell from the 2,300-foot level to the bottom of the shaft, and was instantly killed yesterday morning. T. Fergie, a driller, was severely injured when the body of the dead man fell on him.

Brodeau's head was battered to a pulp in the fall and practically every bone in his body was broken. He was going to the bottom when the accident occurred

According to the stories of the workmen he overbalanced when the swinging bucket struck the timbers, striking the wall of the shaft as he fell.

Brodeur, who was married, had been employed at the Hollinger for about five pears

At the coroner's inquest, held yesterday afternoon, no explanation of the accident was forthcoming, as the apparatus was found to be in perfect condition when inspected immediately following the accident. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Among the gifts received by Captain Lindbergh while in Paris was a box of spaghetti, sent by Italian admirers who had read that he was fond of pie. The word "pie" was translated as "pate", which is also used to designate various productions of the genus spaghetti, hence the gift.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service — by Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, VILAK, who masquerades as her attorney under the name of DAVIS. Vilak, a curious mixture of American and Oriental blood, is a student of criminology. He tries to persuade Elise to leave the country, letting him stay with his friend, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery.

After her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped, to be found again by the alert Vilak, and another attempt is made on their lives, Elise agrees.

Her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers ride through the countryside, warning the natives. Vilak decides to go to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a recluse and a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of a knowledge of the conspiracy against her. Nevertheless, she agrees it is their duty to warn him.

Vilak learns that the flood warning was a ruse to get Prentiss out of his house and so informs him. The party is besieged in a small stone tower next to Prentiss' house by armed attackers. Vilak finally disperses them by dynamiting a dam and causing a real flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss has gone.

The next day, TINKY, Elise's little nephew, is stolen again. A search party is organized and the hunt through the jungle begins.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII.

They stopped half an hour to eat and rest, then went on. At two o'clock they came to a narrow river, seeming almost subterranean so enclosed was it on all sides by the jungle blackness.

Stately, gorgeous-colored herons stalked through the water; long, ugly alligators lay in the mud of the other bank.

The beaters ahead halted. Vilak urged them forward, for he could see where the path continued through the trees. The beaters shook their heads. Vilak demanded the reason. Paulos made cylinders of his hands, put them to his mouth, and puffed his cheeks.

"What does he mean?" Elise asked Vilak.

"Afraid of being shot at by blowpipes, I imagine." He questioned the negro once more.

Paulos nodded. "Ya-a-a," he grunted. "Ya-a-a. 'Fraid Indians past river here. Bad Indians. Never go. Nobody never go. Kill. Blow pipes. Thees way."

He repeated the signs he had made with his hands. Eat people, too, think. Never go. Bad. Bad. Go home now, yes? Late. Not want spend night jungle. Jungle not good night."

Vilak curtly ordered him forward. The other doggedly refused. "Me brave man, Paulos. Everybody know me brave. Fight jaguar. Kill jaguar. Many times. But not go cross river."

Vilak turned to the others. They re-echoed the giant's words, their refusal being even more vigorous as their fear was greater. Elise joined her efforts to those of her cousin. Together they pleaded, ordered, promised lavish increases of pay, threatened; the natives gloomily replied that they would rather be killed at once than cross the black shadowed river.

Vilak took a bit of betel. He shrugged his gaunt shoulders. "Looks as if we're up against a stone wall. I'd go on alone, but it would accomplish nothing. Nothing to do but go back and try to get some men in Porto Verde who won't be afraid of crossing. Just as well, perhaps. We have to go back anyway and get supplies to last us a couple of days, perhaps a week and a canoe possibly. Appears that this trip's going to last longer than I expected."

He saw Elise's face quiver slightly. "But don't you worry," he added quickly. "We'll find him. Can't help but find him. Just a little time. Just a little time."

They retraced their footsteps, and reaching the spot where they had left their horses, mounted and set off, leaving the beaters to find their way in on foot. Though they rode as swiftly as possible, it was night when they reached the fazenda.

Vilak at once set about superintending the collection of canned meats, blankets, hammocks, medicines and the other equipment necessary for an extended trip to the jungle, while the fat, asthmatic Schwartz, who knew most of the Indians round about, was detailed to search in the shacks and reed shelters on the outskirts of Porto Verde for fifteen or eighteen men who had the courage to make the journey.

Long after midnight, the three Americans were still making preparations for the journey. They were in one of the storehouses, Elise and the old man helping Vilak plug the leaks in a light canvas canoe, when Paulos, the huge black who had refused to go forward in the afternoon, shuffled uneasily through the door.

"What is it, Paulos?" Elise asked without looking up from the brush with which she was liberally applying shellac over a long tear in the bow of the boat.

"Got something say you, Senhorita Marberry."

"Go ahead and say it, Paulos."

His heavy black arms twisted awkwardly. "Paulos come to say he 'shamed what he do today. Come to say very 'shamed. Paulos brave man. You know. Paulos brave man. Everybody know. Paulos kill jaguar for you. Six, seven times."

"Yes, Paulos. I know you're a brave man. A very brave man. I'm glad you're sorry."

"Yes'm. Paulos very sorry. Come to say him go cross river any time you want cross. Other fellahs, black fellahs, Indian fellahs, they not cross, but Paulos cross. Paulos brave."

"I'm glad to hear that you are brave man, after all, Paulos." She put down her brush and smiled at him. "From tonight on, your salary's doubled."

He grinned and showed his white teeth, three of which had been filed into sharp points, Indian fashion. "Paulos come to tell you something else, to: Something about baby gone."

Elise put down the can of shellac she was holding so abruptly that it splashed over the blue apron she had donned. She hurried toward him. Her slight body was tense with eagerness. "You haven't found him? If you have—"

"No, Paulos not found him. But talk to somebody who have seen him. You get on horses this afternoon, after Paulos afraid. Paulos 'shamed he fraid. Paulos him very 'shamed. Look sad. Look very sad. Other fellahs see, laugh. 'Paulos sick,' they say. 'Paulos sick 'cause he fraid. Paulos just like us. Us no longer 'fraid Paulos. We not 'fraid anymore when Paulos tell us do something.' Paulos him not like this. Hurt Paulos. Hurt Paulos here."

He beat his enormous breast with his fist. "Paulos not like other fellahs. Paulos brave. Want other fellahs always do what he say. Paulos turn round. 'I show you,' he say, 'Paulos go back and cross river.' Come and see if Paulos cross river.' So Paulos go back. Only one come with him see. Indian fellah."

"Come to river," he went on. "Cross. Stay in bushes while Indian fellah wait. Going to go back to other side when different Indian fellah, bad Indian fellah, come out from tree, have bow, have arrow. Think he going try kill Paulos. Get knife ready. But other fellah not try kill. 'What you want?' he say Paulos. 'Kill Indian?' Paulos know Indian talk.

"'Not kill Indian,' Paulos answered. 'Paulos friend Indian. Paulos just look for baby.' 'White baby?' say Indian fellah. 'Yes,' say Paulos. 'Me see white baby,' say Indian fellah. 'White man have baby. Ugly white man. Look sick like fever. Tall like jungle reed, skinny same way, mark on forehead, white thing like white men wear round neck high round neck.' Right away Paulos know he mean Senhor Prentiss. Ask him more questions. Indian get tired of Paulos questions and go away. Then Paulos cross river again and come back to fazenda."

Elise's fingers began twisting her blue apron into a knot, heedless, unconscious of the sticky varnish spattered upon it. Her eyes did not leave the form of the huge black before her. Vilak put a pellet of betel into his mouth. "Astonishing," he grunted. "So astonishing as to be almost incredible."

Elise roused herself sufficiently to shift her glance to him. He crunched the betel nut between his powerful jaws. "Facts are facts. Have to revise my theories. That's all. No mistaking Prentiss. Not another man could be mistaken for him in all South America. Even an untrained person wouldn't do it. And these natives are keen observers. Whatever else they aren't."

The negro shuffled out. Elise picked up the can of shellac again and stonily, mechanically, began to apply the liquid to the canoe. "I tried to be fair to Prentiss," she said dully. "I felt sorry for him. You saved his life. But I'm afraid it was a mistake. A dreadful mistake. There are some people you can't be fair to. We shouldn't have interfered. Those persons who attacked him were avenging something brutal he had done to them. I know it. I feel it, and if we had not done it. . . Tinky . . . would still be . . . here."

Vilak began lashing a thin strip of springy wood to one of the canoe ribs which had broken. They worked in silence. The old man heated a gummy mixture over an alcohol flame. The heavy old-fashioned silver watch which he had taken out of his pocket and laid on a table, ticked out the minutes loudly, monotonously. A shadowy bat flapped against the window, and flew squeaking away.

Vilak looked up. "I think we'd better prepare for a long journey," he said. "Much longer than I expected. A month. Perhaps even two."

Vilak does not say why he thinks their quest will take so long. In the netx chapter the pursuing caravan gets under way on its jungle journey.

The waters in the Canadian national parks in Western Canada offer splendid inducements to the angler. Five varieties of game trout have their habitat in the waters of the parks, namely, cut-throat, lake, Dolly Varden, bull, and brook.

Love of the sea, born of his experience as a sailor in his youth, has prompted an eminent London medical specialist to give up his lucrative practice for a job as a ship's surgeon on one of the transatlantic liners.

BREAKS CAR GLASS AND RESCUES BABY

Woman Breaks Out of Sedan Lying at Bottom of Canal.

ST. CATHARINES, July 5.— With her six months old baby in her arms, Mrs. Cecil Woolner, of Port Dalhousie, with Arthur Green, of Geneva street, here, who was accompanying her, smashed the windows in a sedan car as it lay on the bottom of the Welland Canal, and rose through thirty feet of water to swim ashore.

Bystanders, who had seen the car catapulted into the canal as a steamer's chain, which it was crossing, suddenly rose, cheered them lustily as they returned safely from what seemed certain death

The babe was uninjured, but its mother was somewhat bruised and much unnerverd by her terrifying experience. Green was badly lacerated about the hands, wrists and neck.

The accident occurred about 100 yards north of Lock 8, at the foot of West Chester Avenue. The couple had been following a truck in which Mr. Woolner was delivering provisions to a docked boat.

Interviewed later, the couple stated theat Mrs. Woolner, clasying her baby, broke the glass in the front right door, while Green got through the right rear window.

BODY RECALLS FIGHT FOR FOOD

Believed That of Man Swept From Ship During Storm.

CROSSING TO GALLEY.

CALUMET, Mich., July 5. — The story of a steamer's crew which almost starved with food a few tantalizing feet from them is revived here with the finding of a body in Batchewanna Bay, believed to be that of Charles Smith, a seaman on the Cuyler Adams.

The body supposed to be the 25-year-old Cleveland man's was found by a lumber company's employee, and through the clothing partial identification was possible.

For two days last November Smith resisted an impulse to dash over the deck to the galley in the stern of the wave-swept vessel, which was pounded about in a terrifiv storm.

Then, maddened by hunger, he broke from the other members and started across the slippery hatchways. As he approached amidship, a giant wave inundated the deck, and when it passed away Smith was gone, carried overboard.

Others of the crew were saved after the storm subsided.

Two men charged with being intoxicated in a public place appeared before Justices of the Peace Vincent Eastwood and Frank Adams in police Court this morning. They both pleaded guilty and were fined $10 and costs or 30 days' imprisonment.

His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley has gone on a yachting trip through the Trent Valley Canal.

ST. JOHN'S.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave delivered an address suitable to the Diamond Jubilee at the evening service at St. John's church yesterday. Special prayers were offered at this service and suitable hymns sung.

"One does not go by an unknown road unless he has some reason to do it. The Fathers of Confederation went by an unknown road; they were doing something that had never been done before for they were building a nation within an Empire and building it better than they knew. Establishing something new requires courage and it took courage for them to bring about Confederation. They did not follow the United States' form of government, where the authority rests in the state but they drew up a form of government vesting the authority in the federal parliament.

"Oliver Goldsmith when speaking about Confederation, says, 'Confederation was a result of a break down government. There had been disputes between Upper and Lower Canada and the people were dissatisfied with the way the country was progressing."

The minister then gave two other causes that forced on Confederation. First a desire for Unity and Prosperity. The people knew that they never could become prosperous without unity. The Fathers of Confederation visioned a great country in the far west and a great nation within the Empire so they set about to find some method whereby they would unite for they were aware that only with unity could there be prosperity.

"The other reason was for security," said Dr. Blagrave, "although it was not specified as such. The American civil war was just over and Canadian statesmen felt that something must be done. Three courses were open to them. Annexation, Independence, Unity within the British Empire. But they chose the third.

"The Fathers of Confederation, to ensure a great future put away all prejudices. They built better than they knew and it is impossible to give them the full credit due them for they brought about one of the greatest achievements in Empire building. All people were protected in the British North American Act and the rights of all held sacred. It seems to me Divine Providence had something to do in guilding those statesmen.

Our Future.

"As to our future, our part is not hard to establish and define. First we ought to bear our responsibility as a part of the empire. We claim nationhood; thus we should maintain our responsibility in self defence as well as in self government, for it is only British justice and Christian fair play.

"We must continue to solidify the good feeling between Great Britain and the United States, for Canada is in a very peculiar position. Then she ought to do her duty as a member of the League of Nations.

"We should endeavor to emulate qualities of integrity, stability and honesty and fourthly we should be interested in the social conditions of the Canadian people."

In closing the minister made an appeal for the people and statesmen to seek divine guidance and ever put forward Christian principles and ideals and this country will progress in the future as it has done in the past.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL.

At the Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church yesterday morning the minister, Rev. W. S. Edgar, preached from a text in Exodus xii., 26: "What mean ye by this service?" He said that this text refers to the Passover, the greatest of the Jewish commemorative services.

"But some one will say what has that got to do with Canadian Confederation. Well, it has this to do with it. The Passover celebrated one of the greatest events in Jewish history, and this present Diamond Jubilee celebrates one of the greatest events in the history of the Dominion of Canada. Canada was known originally as the British North American Colonies, and Confederation was the act of making those separate provinces one vast country. This great event was consummated by the coming into effect of the British North America Act on July 1st, 1867. Some national memorials are simply a glorification of war and a celebration of military achievements, and all such memorials do is to keep alive animosities among men, but such is not the case in the present celebrations. This act of Confederation was a great triumph of peace and statesmanship, for peace hath her victories no less renowned than war. This day is one of Canada's sacred institutions, expressive of her national spirit, and sets forth that which is worth-while in her national life. What does this Confederation celebration stand for?

(1) It is a testimony to the supremacy of righteousness. Those Fathers of Confederation, when drawing up this charter of union, were actuated by a truly righteous motive. They had the good of the whole country in view. For the time being they forgot their own little petty schemes, and the particular interests of their own province, they took a wide and comprehensive view and acted for the good of the country as a whole.

(2) It is a testimony to the splendid spirit of unity which animated those early statesmen. They represented all classes and creeds, and every shade of political opinion, but for the sake of their great ideal they were willing to sink their political, racial and religious differences. Canadian statesmen were never so united before, and, sorry to say, they have never been so united since; and if Canadians could manifest a similar spirit of unity and stand together, why, nothing could be impossible.

(3) It is a testimony to the splendid vision of faith those national leaders had. They saw something of the greatess of Canada's future and they felt that Confederation was necessary to the realization of that splendid future. With Canada's vast resources properly developed, it will be able to support hundreds of millions of people. Those old-time seers and prophets saw something of that coming time of greatness and glory for this Dominion and they forged the instrument to make it possible.

(4) Finally this Diamond Jubilee celebration is a testimony of thanksgiving to Almighty God for inspiring those Fathers of Confederation with such wisdom, righteousness, unity and faith as to enable them to carry to completion this magnificent act of union. And for the Divine mercy and goodness to this Dominion during those sixty years of steady progress, not only in the material realm, but also in the realm of the spirit.

Therefore this nation ought to be vocal with praise and thanksgiving to God. We should say, not unto us, not even unto the Fathers of Confederation, but unto God be all the glory.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The combination of a patriotic sermon, in harmony with Canada's Diamond Jubilee Celebration, an announcement that Rev. Wm. Allan, the pastor, would state his decision in reference to the call he received recently from a church in New Jersey, and the presence of Arthur Blight, the noted soloist of Toronto, drew a large congregation to St. Paul's Presbyterian church Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Allan informed the congregation that he had received, during the past few weeks, two calls to the United States, one from a congregation in Philadelphia, which had offered him $1,300.00 a year more than he was receiving from St. Paul's congregation. In these days, when it is so commonly claimed that most ministers are looking for the churches paying the highest salaries, he stated it might interest some to know that he had not given serious consideration to the call from Philadelphia. He had thought more seriously of the call to New Jersey and had decided to inform the New Jersey congregation, also, that he was unable to accept their call.

The subject of the evening sermon was "Canada's Three Tenses." It was handled in an eloquent manner. It was pointed out that on Monday the American Republic would celebrate the 4th of July, the anniversary of its birth, and of the signing of the Treaty of Paris which established the thirteen coolnies of the United States as a nation, and gave them such control of the settled portion of the North American Continent at that time that there were many who believed that British rule had virtually ceased in North America. From this point Rev. Mr. Allan traced the development of the small population then located in Eastern Canada to the position the Dominion occupies to-day. Sixty years ago there was no Dominion of Canada. To-day, as a result of the splendid system of government that was devised at the time of Confederation and which has stood the test of time, Canada has become a nation that extends from coast to coast, and with a unity existing between the provinces that was utterly lacking sixty years ago. Confederation has srengthened the Imperial ties. This was proved in August, 1914, and by the events of the Great War. No country in the world, he claimed, has the natural advantages possessed by Canada. "What the Dominion needs more than anything else is sufficient population to develop the country's resources.

Presbyterians, Rev. Allan stated, have played an important part in the development of the Dominion. This is shown by the prominent part their representatives have taken in connection with the development of the Dominion. He trusted that in the future, as in the past, Presbyterians would continue to play their part in contributing all that was best to the welfare of the country. It would be impossible for them to do this unless they remained true to all the great fundamental principles for which Presbyterians have always stood, including the full inspiration of the Scriptures ,the Deity of Christ, the Death of Christ in atonement for the sins of the race, His resurrection and His second coming.

The solos of Mr. Blight with their sympathetic accompanment on the organ by Mr. Chenhall, the chimes and the harp effects being used to great advantage, were much enjoyed.

AT NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, July 5.—A large number of people from Norwood and vicinity assembled on the Town Hall lawn on Sunday afternoon to participate in the national thanksgiving service held there at 2.30 o'clock. The form of service issued by the National Committee for the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation was followed. Reeve W. H. Montgomery presided and Miss Barbara Foote acted as pianist for the occasion.

MEN DROWN IN SIGHT OF 1200

Guards Hold Convicts at Sing Sing From Rescuing Canoeists.

OBEY REGULATIONS.

OSSINING, N.Y., July 5. — The sense of duty of guards in Sing-Sing while three unidentified canoeists fought a fifteen-minute losing battle against drowning in the Hudson River off the grey walls of the Penitentiary yesterday.

The inmates were in the prison yard for early morning exercise when the frail craft and its passengers came uncertainly down the river, whipped to patches of whitecaps by a fresh wind. The canoe overturned, and with shouts the three men went into the water.

Instinctive Movement.

There was an instinctive movement in the grey-clad ranks of the convicts toward rescue, but the rifles of the keepers came up suggestively. Eager themselves to save the struggling men, the guards had learned from experience that even in the work of rescue some of the prisoners might break for liberty. They had been ordered never to relax vigilance, and orders were orders. Faced with the problem of choosing between the prisoners 'attempt to save the three men and holding them back of the twelve-foot iron fence, they elected to follow the latter course.

Major Lewis E. Lawes, Warden of the prison, expressed regret last night that word of the accident had not reached him promptly. He exonerated the armed sentries, pointing out that the law gave them no leeway even in an emergency, and said that he was the only official of the prison authorized by law to exercise discretion in such a situation.

Fifteen Feet From Pier's End.

He said one of the canoeists had gone down for the last time 15 feet from the end of the pier, where guards and convicts looked on. He said that had he known in time he would have permitted some of the stronger convicts to make an attempt at rescue.

The accident had a profound effect on the inmates of the prison, ranging from lifers to short-term men, and Warden Lawes said some of them wept. Many of them were unable to eat at dinner time, although the Fourth of July is one of the three days in the year when a chicken dinner is served.

SCIENTIST TRIES TO MEASURE HEAT

Spectra of Stars To Be Studied By Dr. C. G. Abbott, of Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Equipped with apparatus which he claims is delicate enough to measure a match's heat 5,000 miles away if no atmosphere intervened, Dr. Charles G. Abbott, acting secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, has left for Mount Wilson, in California, to continue measurements there on the heat of the spectra of the stars.

The first determinations of the heat spectrum of ten of the brighter stars, except the sun, in the history of astronomy, were made by Dr. Abbott in the summer of 1923. To accomplish this he used the great 100-inch reflector of the Mount Wilson Observatory of the Carnegie Institution, and a sensitive radiometer constructed by the late Prof. E. I. Nichols of Cleveland. This combination of instruments was so powerful, Dr. Abbott said, that "if the earth were flat, and the atmosphere perfectly transparent, it would have been possible to have measured with it in California the heat of a match struck on the Mississippi River."

CHILDREN PLAY ON C. N. TRACK

Dangerous Place Chosen By Little Ones of Downie Street District.

POLICE NOTIFIED.

It is difficult to imagine a more dangerous playground than that which has evidently been selected by a group of young children, too young to know better, at the intersection of Downie Street with the C. The police have been notified, and it is expected that some action will be taken to have the practice stopped

C. P. R. LINER CANADA'S BEST

Empress of Australia Greatest Vessel To Enter St. Lawrence.

TO CARRY PRINCES.

QUEBEC, July 5. — While not scheduled as part of Canada's Jubilee celebration, an event was observed here yesterday that certainly marks another milestone in the Dominion's glorious history. The greatest leviathan that ever rode the majestic St. Lawrence, was inaugurated into the regular Atlantic steamship service for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The Empress of Australia is it with a capital "I."

About 1200 newspapermen and C. P. R. steamship agents from many parts of Canada and the United States came and marvelled. Like a skyscraper she stood six full stories out of the water. A whole afternoon was spent exploring her decks, and that only scratched her surface.

"Cars" for Passengers.

Just as an instance:

There are "cars" to take the citizens from one city to another. It's a fact—only in skyscrapers they call them elevators.

The Prince of Wales and Premier Stanley Baldwin are going to honour this great Canadian institution with their patronage when they come to open the International Peace Bridge next month.

The inspecting party yesterday saw the suites that these distinguished gentlemen will occupy and felt constrained to congratulate them in advance upon their pleasant voyage, which is assured.

Even "Eddie" Beatty, blase as he must be about transportation matters, was enthused over the accommodations herein afforded. He said: "The luxurious equipment of the Empress of Australia is evidence of the quality of passenger for which this Canadian line has to cater to-day, an equipment which I think, compares favorably with that of any steamship on the Atlantic. The accommodation is for the tourist of every purse. There are the self-contained suites for the millionaire, and there is the tourist third for the thrifty minded student. That so-called "tourist third" is just about as good as the average first cabin accommodation of 20 years ago.

4 Leads Atlantic Lines.

"Some of you may be surprised that a Canadian line should offer a vessel of such equipment, yet there is less occasion for surprise if you consider the volume of passenger traffic which the Canadian Pacific Atlantic fleet now carries. During the period of Jan. 1 to May 31 of this year the Canadian Pacific carried more westbound passengers from Europe and Great Britain to North America than any other Atlantic line, those to New York included, namely 42,952 pasengers, as compared to its next best rival, with 42,500. During the same period the Canadian Pacific carried more passengers to Canada than all the competing lines put together.

"It must be remembered that our passenger steamers serve a great many ports—Liverpool, Belfast, Glasgow, Southampton, Cherbourg, Antwerp, Hamburg and Cobh (formerly Queenstown, in the south of Ireland."

And the president of the C.P.R. then forecast a bit of his expansion programme: "Our service moreover, is continually expanding," he added. "At this moment there are being built for the Atlantic service of the Canadian Pacific Railway no less than nine additional new steamers—four for pasenger and five for freight, representing a total of approximately 120,000 tons. The company's steamships's steamship interests are therefore steadily increasing, and with the completion of the new tonnage under construction its gross tonnage in ocean, lake and river service will approximate a half million tons."

Among the guests at the banquet at night were the Viscount Willingdon, Premier King, the Lieutenant-Governors of Ontario and Quebec and other notable men of Canada.

SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING HELD

Reports Presented To Well Babies' Clinic By Various Officers.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

At the recent half yearly meeting of the Board of Management of the Well Babies' Clinic held in their rooms at the Canadian Legion Hall, reports were presented by Dr. Jessie Birnie, Mrs. F C. Neal, treasurer, and Miss Mamie Foote, Clinic nurse.

The president Mrs. A. Mowat, was in the chair, and a fair number of the members were present.

Dr. Birnie was asked to outline plans for the float to be used in the First of July parade, and reported that Dr. J. J. Craig was paying for its erection, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie was loaning a truck. Dr. Birnie also gave a short review of the Clinic and its progress during the past six months.

The committee who had charge of cleaning the rooms and the curtains were congratulated on their labors.

The following reports were presented:

Nurse's Report.

Madam President and Ladies:

I hereby submit the report of the Well Babies' Clinic for the past six months:

Our attendance was 450, with an especially interested and grateful number of mothers, whom we have helped along the way in the care and feeding of their children, thus avoiding future handicaps, as the result of incorrect, unsuitable diet and general unhygienic conditions.

There were three marked cases of emaciation, but with corrected diet and intelligent co-operation of the mothers these are now in the class of the well baby.

The number of calls made were 274, which were registrations, Special Follow up and Food Preparations:

Registrations	169
Specials	10
Follow up	6
Food preparations	4

The calls for layetts were many and some were very needy ones.

We again thank the Thursday Club for their kindness in keeping us well supplied

We are also grateful to other interested ladies for funds to provide wool for infants' underwear and also to mothers for used layettes.

Dr. Craig's series of lectures during the months of January, February and March on the formation and preservation of teeth was very instructive, and to him we are much indebted.

We are glad to welcome more of the ladies from the various societies to our Thesday clinics and we hope these may bear good results towards the welfare of our Infant community.

MAMIE FOOTE,
Well Baby Clinic Nurse.

Selling For Profits Causes Wheat To Fall

CHICAGO, July 5 (Canadian Press).—Active selling, based on better weather north-west, made wheat prices average lower early to-day. The selling, largely to realize profits, acted as more than a counter-balance for higher Liverpool quotations than were looked for. Starting unchanged to 7-8c off, Chicago wheat rallied a little, then underwent a decided general setback. Corn and oats swayed with wheat, corn opening at ½c decline to ¼-4c advance, and later showing losses all around. Provisions held steady.

Opening prices were: Wheat, July 1.46 3-8; September 1.44 7-8; corn, July 97 5-8, September 1.06¾; corn, July 45 5-8, September 47 3-8.

New York Market Strong In Rather Quiet Session

NEW YORK, July 5 (Canadian Press).—Quiet strength characterized today's stock market, which moved upward under the leadership of General Motors and General Electric.

Credit conditions were again favorable, despite the fifth consecutive decrease reported in clearing house reserve. There were plenty of funds available at the renewal figure of 4½ per cent and loans in the "outside market" were reported as low as 4¼. Secretary Hoover was quoted in private Washington despatches as saying that he saw no unfavorable developments in the business situation.

Buying of the rails centered largely in Southern Pacific and Chicago and Illinois Preferred, both of which attained new 1927 peak prices, and in such high priced issues as Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware and Hudson, Louisville and Nashville, Norfolk and Western, and Atchison, all up two points or more.

General Motors was bid up to 202¾ by early aftertnoon, representing a gain of 8¾ points above Saturday's close and more than 11 points above last week's low. General Electric ran up over four points to 117¾, and was followed into new high ground by American Can., Collins and Aikman, Union Carbide, Simmons Company, Manhattan Electrical Supply, and several others.

Toronto Market Quiet After Early Activity

TORONTO, Ont., July 5 (Canadian Press). — Early strength and activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange today failed to last, and at noon a number of minor depressions had been recorded in an extremely quiet list. British American Oil, International Nickel, and Hiram Walkers were the only stocks showing more than commonplace dealings; Nickel lost ⅝ at 61½, while Walker held steady at 48½. Brazilian, after reaching 161¾, went down to 160, a net loss of a half, and Seagram was unchanged at 23. Abitibi, coming into demand, improved a point at 96. Industrial Alcohol at 31¾, B. A. Oil at 22¾, and Goodderham & Worts at 51 all were fractionally higher.

McIntyre's Strength Features Mine Market

TORONTO, Ont., July 5 (Canadian Press). — With no definite price trend and trading extremely light in volume, the strength of McIntyre was the only feature of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. McIntyre rose a dollar to 26.00, easing only five cents from this mark at the mid-day close. Keeley firmed two at 102 and the Teck Hughes one at 787, but elsewhere there was a tendency to ease slightly. Amulet lost eight cents at 242, and Area 2½ at 47, while Laval Quebec, fairly active, sold down nearly a point at 21.

FOHL RESIGNS TORONTO TEAM

Bill O'Hara Succeeds as Manager of Leafs For This Season.

TORONTO, July 5. — (Canadian Press.)— Lee Fohl, former major league manager, appointed at the beginning of the season to succeed Dan Howley as manager of the Toronto team of the International League, has resigned, and he is succeeded by William O'Hara, a former Toronto player, who for the past two seasons has been business manager and coach.

DOMINIONS MAKE TRADE TREATIES

Disposed To Conduct Own Negotiations With Foreign Powers.

CHICAGO, July 5 (Canadian Press).—The British Dominions probably will return to the wider Imperial basis in commercial treaty-making, Sir Cecil Hurst, British delegate to the Harris Memorial Institute, predicted in his final lecture at the University of Chicago to-day on the problems of the British Empire.

"The right of the Dominions to frame their own commercial treaties with foreign powers was recommended by Great Britain in 1884, and now the Dominions are disposed more and more to do so and not to rely on treaties negotiated by Great Britain. Whether they will go further in this direction one cannot tell. It depends on whether they find that the terms secured for their commerce by means of treaties restricted in operation to their own territory are better than those obtained through treaties operating on the British side over a wider area."

WRECK REPORTS AT NYACK, N.Y.

Several Killed in Train Collision, Say Stories Reaching Town.

AMBULANCES CALLED.

NYACK, N Y., July 5. Canadian Press. — Reports of several dead and seventy-five injured in a railroad wreck on the West Shore line at Jones' Point brought calls this afternoon for every available ambulance from Nyack, Newburgh and Sufferin, N.Y.

The report was that a New York, Ontario and Western Railroad train, with about eight passenger cars, moving at full speed southward, had crashed into a freight train at Joncs Point, south of Bear Mountain.

Advices were that the passenger train crashed through six of the freight cars, piling up beside the track. Scenes of great confusion prevented an early check of the dead and injured.

Electric steaming irons, with a water reservoir and tiny holes in the ironing surface for the emerience of steam are now being produced. It is said this device obviates the need of dampening cothes before ironing.

FASTING CURE KILLING WOMAN

Toronto Lady Dying in Hospital After 55 Days Without Food.

HAS LIVED ON WATER.

TORONTO, Ont., July 5 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Hope Leontough of this city is dying in the Western Hospital here after going without food for fifty-five days. During that period she has taken nothing but water. Her fast was undertaken in an attempt to rebuild her health. Physicians here say her hunger strike may be the longest on record.

The hospital staff is making a strenuous effort to save the woman's life. Orange juice is now being fed to her and gluches injected. Mrs. Leontough recovered consciousness to-day and declared she was sorry she started fasting. The doctors say there is still hope for her life.

INCINERATOR NOT PLEASANT

City's Rubbish Disposal Offends Noses During Hot Weather.

TOO MANY CANS.

The vicinity of the incinerator is far from being the most desirable place in the world or even in the city during these summer days.

At the north end of the ground some refuse has been smouldering for several days, and the odour of the burning of partially decomposed flesh fills the air and offends the olfactory organs.

The large heap of empty tins and rubbish has transgressed its bounds, and much of the debris is now lying in the creek, forming the headquarters of a colony of rats.

Only the other day a number of city boys were seen bathing in the creek, exercising what bystanders considered to be a very poor choice of an "old swimming hole."

TROOPS WITHDRAW.

British Government Orders One Brigade From China.

LONDON, July 5.—(United Press.)—The Daily Mail's political correspondent reported to-day that the British Government has ordered the immediate withdrawal from China of a brigade of British troops, sent there from India. They will leave as soon as a transport is available, returning to stations in India. The withdrawal of the troops is possible through the augmentation by the United States of its forces in China.

CONTRACTS LET FOR EXTENSION TO COLLEGIATE

Toronto Firm To Build Vocational Addition. Work To Start Soon.

OTHER CONTRACTS.

Reports of Officials Received at Regular Meeting of School Board.

John Mitchell and Son, a Toronto contracting firm, will build the vocational and academical extension to the Collegiate Institute at a price of $199,900. This tender was between nine and ten thousand dollars lower than the next, and, as the firm is highly recommended by the Toronto Board of Education, having handled large school contracts there, was accepted. There were altogether eleven tenders, the highest being $258,500.

Plumbing, heating and ventilating will be installed by Purdy, Mansell & Co. of Toronto. Their tender for plumbing was $12,955, and for heating and ventilating, $36,995, making a total of $49,990. They were the lowest in each group and their total was lower than that of either of the firms who tendered at a lump sum for both parts. There were ten tendering firms.

Miller, Powell & Co., of Peterborough will do the electric wiring at a price of $4,598. There were three tenders for this work, the highest being $6,800.

The Canadian General Electric Company's structural steel branch will install the steel sash. There was one tender slightly lower, but it was from an English firm and there was some doubt about ability to meet delivery dates.

Acceptanec of these tenders was finally decided on by the Board of Education at the regular monthly meeting and work on the main contracts will start in a few days, as soon as the contracts are signed.

Asked by Trustee J. A. McNab, Chairman E. B. Fowler said that all the contractors had assured the Board that all labor and material possible would be obtained in Peterborough

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre was appointed inspector on the work at a salary of $50.00. His appointment was made by ballot from four applicants, the others being James Bogue, W. H. Lytle and F. G. Tuggey.

Dr. J. C. Green, School Dental Officer, reported on the year's work. He has made 2520 examinations, filled 904 teeth, and pulled 315. His examination revealed 3064 cavities, and 174 pupils needing teeth extracted.

Eleven hundred and ninety-two pupils, or 43 per cent., had teeth O.K.

Fish Breaks Loose— But Is Caught Again

TRENT RIVER, July 6.—Luck was not with a big lunge which John Garneau landed in Mud Lake here yesterday. The fish, which weighed over 22 pounds, broke free from the hook, which was caught in its mouth, but one of the hooks of the spoon caught on the side of its body and Mr. Garneau succeeded in bringing the big fish safely into his canoe.

PARA-TYPHOID CASES IN CITY

Disease Resembling Typhoid Found. Three Admitted to Hospital.

NOT VIRULENT DISEASE.

Three cases of paratyphoid have been admitted to Nicholls Hospital.

This statement was given out yesterday by Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, when interviewed by The Examiner with regard to a rumor which had gained considerable currency in the city to the effect that a number of cases of typhoid had broken out.

"Paratyphoid," said Dr. Young, "is not real typhoid and is entirely different from the disease that has created such havoc in Montreal."

The first case came from outside the boundaries of the city and it was only after arrival here that it turned out to be one of typhoid.

All three cases have been under proper isolation in Nicholls Hospital from the time of appearance of the first symptoms. Dr. Young gives the assurance that there is no chance of the disease spreading. Although the symptoms of paratyphoid resemble, to a certain extent, those of the dreaded typhoid, the agglutinate tests showed the local cases to be of the less virulent type. The diseases are caused by two totally different organisms. Paratyphoid is marked by intestinal affections caused by organisms carried in water and milk.

TWO FATALITIES IN AUTOMOBILES

One Car Upsets on Hitting Rut. Truck Runs Into Ditch.

OTHER MEN INJURED.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., July 6.—Calvin McKay, the twenty-one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McKay, of Embro, was almost instantly killed early yesterday on the Governor's Road when a car he was driving turned turtle after hitting a rut. The accident occurred between the Beachville and Embro side roads as the car was returning with a load of six young men from Woodstock. The other occupants of the car, Jack Gun, of Windsor; Alex McCorquodale, Donald and Frank Howes and William Shouts, escaped without injury more serious than heavy bruises and shock.

The car, which was owned by James McCorquodale, of West Zorra, was being driven by McKay when it struck a rut and turned turtle into the ditch. The driver's head was struck with considerable force against the framework and he sustained a fracture of the skull which resulted in his death in a few minutes after the accident. The car was practically totally wrecked.

Killed Near Leamington.

LEAMINGTON, Ont., July 6.—Death came almost instantly to Frank Wolven, 55, of Leamington, a contractor, when the motor truck on which he was riding with his partner, William Andrews, got beyond control and plunged into a ditch near here late on Monday.

They were returning from Windsor when the accident occurred, Wolven was pinned beneath the heavy truck and it was sometime before his body could be released. Andrews was seriously injured, one arm being broken, and it is feared he suffered internally.

Ceremony Depicting Friendship With Whites Put On At Lindsay.

Joseph Whetung of Curve Lake attended the Confederation Celebration in Lindsay on July 1 and 2, taking part with other chiefs in ceremonials depicting the friendship of white men and Indians during Canada's history. The participants wore many medals recalling various agreements and proudly added jubilee medals in their decorations.

APPOINTMENT OF MINISTER LONG DEBATED

Britain Has Now No Official Communication With Dominion.

SEVERAL SUGGESTED.

Representatitve To Be Discussed By Premier Baldwin and King.

LONDON, July 6 (United Press).—The question of the appointment of a representative of the British Government at Ottawa has been under discussion for a long time, the British United Press learns authoritatively, and it is a fact that ever since the last Imperial conference, the future procedure governing communications between the various governments of the Empire and the British Government has been considered.

From the very first the Government here realized that it might be necessary to appoint the equivalent of a Minister or High Commissioner in Ottawa. Several names have been suggested for this post, but no decision has yet been made owing to the fact that Premier Baldwin will discuss the whole affair when he visits Canada at the end of the month.

At present there is no direct communication between the Canadian and British Governments, nor is the Governor-General of Canada any longer a channel of communication between Ottawa and London. In this connection it is obvious that a decision should be reached as to who will handle messages and so forth on behalf of the Mother Country in the Dominion. It is understood that some time ago assurance was given the Canadian Prime Minister that the question and all its aspects would be carefully reviewed by Great Britain.

Polar Expedition Sails For Northland

SYDNEY, N.S., July 6 (Canadian Press).—The Macmillan exploration schooner Radio, laden with oil, lumber and supplies, which has been for several days in her berth at Reeve wharf, was floated out at noon yesterday and sailed this morning for Battle Harbor, South Labrador, en route to Kowk, North Labrador, where houses will be built for fifteen scientists, who will stay there for a year.

Commander Macmillan's own ship, the Bowdoin, moved into the Radio's berth and is now taking on oil and final food supplies. She will await the arrival of the third unit of the expedition, the 35-foot motor boat Seeko, which left Halifax Monday. The two expect to sail in company Saturday morning.

WRECK FAULT OF ENGINEER

Railway Officals Say He Disregarded Signals Against Switch.

INJURED MAY DIE.

IONA, N. Y., July 6 (Canadian Press).—Failure of the engineer of the New York, Ontario and Western express to obey signals against an open switch was held by the railroad to-day as the cause of the rear-end crash with a freight which resulted in the death of four persons and the injury of 23 yesterday.

The hospital authorities said at least one and as many as four of the injured might die.

Usual Export Process Reversed This Time; Liquor Boxes Co ntain Very Dry Goods

We have been hearing much these days of shipments of liquor forwarded to the United States marked "fish" or other objects of legitimate export trade, but it has been left to the local branch of the Ontario Motor League to furnish an example of the reverse side of the medal. A large consignment of leaflets descriptive of the attractions of the Kawartha Lakes and the Trent Waterway has been sent to four strategic points in the United States packed in boxes used in carrying liquor and bearing the names of various well-known brands.

The boxes, which will be borne by the C.N.R. will be inspected at the border. Probably the sight of the contents in such boxes will help to revive in the U. S. Customs Inspectors their faith in human nature, which must have become vastly attenuated during recent years.

German Woman Flier Hopes to Cross Ocean

PARIS, July 6. Canadian Press—Fraulein Thea Rasche, Germany's only woman air pilot, arrived at Le Bourget last night from Essen, in the little red plane with which she does stunt flying.

Her ambition is to be the first woman to fly the Atlantic, and she expects to sail for the United States with Clarence Chamberlain on their return to their homeland. Fraulein Rasche believes that in America she will find wider opportunities to perfect herself in the art of long-distance flying.

STREET RAILWAY BARN IS EMPTY

Most of Street Cars Sold. One Demolished. Only a Memory.

The dispersal of Peterborough's street cars has been proceeding gradually and sternly since the day they were finally withdrawn from service, yielding to the buses and to the Hydro's surrender to the swelling opposition of district cities and towns which were paying indirectly the deficits the local transportation system annually produced. The two one-man cars that used to shuttle back and forth on Charlotte street still remain at the King street barn, but it is understood that they have been sold for delivery across the border. Only the trucks remain of the rest of the fleet. One of the old cars was completely dismantled, evidently unfit for any sort of reconditioning. Another was knocked down to the Exhibition Board for something like $25. It has been set up inside and east of the George street gates, and will provide an office for the exhibition ticket sellers and other employees. Another car will prolong its service at Braundport on the Otonabee River, and several others have been bought for similar purposes at other summer homes.

The trucks are stripped and bare of their missing superstructure, and the heaters, controllers, fenders and other metal parts are heaped up as a pile of scrap. Shades of J. H. Learmouth and W. H. Munroe, the managers of the old street railway company in the days when it was operated by a private corporation owning the power required to drive the cars.

The car barn is dreamily empty, during the day time, at any rate, and not only has the rolling stock taken wing, but the crews are just as widely scattered. Nearly all of them are reported working, and local industry absorbed the most of those who missed the bus positions. Here and there the tracks are being covered, and even short stretches of track have been torn up. The disintegration of the old system was more than the significant gesture of the discontinuance of the cars. The cars and the crews have disappeared and seemingly will soon be a memory.

PLANS RECEPTION.

Toronto To Give Official Recognition To Joe Wright on His Return.

TORONTO, July 6 (Canadian Press).—Civic reception as an official recognization of his gallant attempt to win the Diamond Sculls, emblematic of the world's amateur sculling championship at Henley-on-Thames last week, will be tendered to Joe Wright Jr., on his return to Toronto, the Board of Control decided today.

POLICE TO CHECK ALL MOTOR DRIVERS

Two Weeks Will Be Given All Motorists To Get Permits To Drive Cars.

Inspector Reid told The Examiner to-day that all motor drivers would be given two weeks to get their licenses, and then the police would make a systematic check up of all drivers in the city.

He also stated that the police department had nothing to do with the issuing of the licenses but that they were issued by the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and that anyone who wished information regarding these should call 1360.

HOUSE BURNED AT TRENT RIVER

Residence of James Carnrite Totally Destroyed— Spark on Roof Cause.

SOME INSURANCE.

TRENT RIVER, July 6.—James Carnrite's house was completely destroyed by fire yesterday evening. Mrs. Carnrite and family had been away from home and on returning lit the fire in the kitchen stove, to do some cooking for tea. A few minutes later, on going outdoors, Mrs. Carnrite saw a spark on the roof, and the wind fanned it to a blaze. Mrs. Carnrite tried to get on the roof but failed to do so.

Mr. Carnrite was away from home at the time.

Neighbors and cottagers were quickly on the scene but could do nothing to save the house because of lack of water and the fire spread rapidly throughout the entire building, causing a terrific heat.

Everything upstairs was destroyed but most of the contents downstairs was carried out. There was a high wind blowing towards the south, otherwise the outbuildings might have been destroyed. Some insurance was carried.

BUMPER CROPS ARE EXPECTED

Grain Fields In Western Canada Afford Promising Propects For Big Yield.

ACREAGE SMALLER.

WINNIPEG, July 6 (Canadian Press).—Grain fields in Western Canada afford most promising prospects of bumper yields, and despite the reduction in acreage seeded to wheat, a record crop is already being predicted by experts who have just returned from extensive field surveys.

Wheat is well advanced and is heading out in some districts. Coarse grains also are reported to have come along rapidly during the past week.

Rains Welcomed.

TORONTO, July 6 (Canadian Press).—The heavy rains, distributed fairly generally over Central and Western Ontario, were warmly welcomed by the farmers with wheat and other grain crops. While some hay has been cut, the necessity for more moisture for all growing crops was generally very pronounced. It was "a million dollar rain," following the dry periods in many districts for nearly two weeks.

Saves Crop.

CLARKSON, July 6 (Canadian Press).—Coming in the nick of time after ten days' drought, the plentiful rain will save and restore the fast shrivelling strawberry crops. The growers of small fruit and vegetables were especially grateful for the showers in this district.

KIWANIS CLUB IS ORGANIZED AT CORNWALL

Charter Presentation Marked by Many Gifts To New Branch.

GOOD WISHES.

Peterborough Club Sent Telegram of Congratulation. Big Crowd Out.

ALGONQUIN HOTEL, STANELY ISLAND, July 6 (Special to The Examiner)—Charter presentation to the recently formed Kiwanis Club of Cornwall brought more than two hundred Kiwanians and their ladies to the banquet hall here last night. With possibly one exception it was the most largely attended charter presentation in the history of the Ontario-Quebec District of Kiwanis. The clubs represented included Ottawa, Cornwall, Montreal St. Lawrence, St. Johns, Que., Hull, Belleville, Kingston, Toronto and Riverdale. Arthur Ames, President of the Ottawa Kiwanis Club, the sponsoring club, acted in the role of toastmaster. The welcome of the Cornwall club to be guests was extended by A. Caldwell, Vice-President of the Cornwall Club. Bert Fyon of Montreal, responding.

Couched in an inspirational address the presentation of the charter to P. A. Leclair, President of the Cornwall club, was made by District Governor W. R. Cockburn of Toronto. President Leclair then took charge of the meeting.

Going into housekeeping as a Kiwanis household, the Cornwall Club received the following presentations: Speaker's clock from the Ontario-Quebec District of Kiwanis by Lieut.-Governor F. S. Dobson; Union Jack from the Montreal club; gavel from the Ottawa club; collection bowl from the Kingston club. To these kindly remembrances, H. E. Campbell, district trustee of the Cornwall club, made a very fitting acknowledgment. The toast to "Our Sponsors, the Ottawa club," was appropriately made by Rev. Dr. Hugh Munroe of Cornwall and President Arthur Ames of Ottawa ably replied.

Good wishes and congratulations of Kiwanis International and the various clubs throughout the district were contained in a sheaf of telegrams and letters read by J. Smyth Carter, Hon. Sec.-Treasurer of the Ontario-Quebec district, and G. H. Cottrell, Secretary of the Cornwall club. Following so interesting a program was a further period of several hours of social intercourse when dancing and folksongs added to the merriment of the gathering.

The good wishes of the Peterborough Club were telegraphed by President Isaac P. McNabb.

BYRD HONORED WITH LEGION

Decoration Pinned On Him By Premier Poincare To-Day.

SHORT AUDIENCE.

PARIS, July 6. —(Canadian Press). —Premier Poincare pinned the decoration of the Legion of Honour on the breast of Commander Byrd today. The ceremony took place at the ministry of Finance in the presence of American Charge D'Affairs Whitehouse and several other prominent Americans. The visit of Commander Byrd and his three companions to the Premier was a brief one, for M. Poincare had to yield to the pressure of Parliamentary work and hurry away for the opening of the Chamber.

WATCH PRESENTED FOR LONG SERVICE

James Ball Receives Token for Loyalty From Turner Firm.

A pleasing ceremony was carried out at J. J. Turner and Sons last Thursday, when J J. Turner on behalf of the firm, presented a gold watch, suitably inscribed, to James Ball in recognition of his having completed 25 continuous years with the company.

Work in the factory ceased 15 minutes before the usual time and all the officials and employees of the company assembled on the ground floor, when the presentation was made. In making the presentation, Mr. Turner spoke on Confederation, which he said was not achieved without sacrifice and continuous effort. The progress which the firm had made was also achieved through faithful and efficient service he said, and such service had been given by Mr. Ball, whose loyalty and efficiency the firm had pleasure in recognising.

Mr. Ball to whom the presentation came as a complete surprise, suitably acknowledged the gift. He spoke of the many changes he had witnessed during his twenty five years' connection with the firm, and declared that he hoped to be in the service of J. J. Turner for 25 years more.

Heir to $1,000,000 Still Dishwashing

MONTICELLO, Ind., July 6. —(Associated Press).—Her heirship to $1,000,000 bequeathed by her brother, Harry Frederick, of Humboldt, Saskatchewan, has not interfered with the life in a cottage of Mrs. Edward Musio, forty-nine. Mrs. Musio was washing dishes when callers came to congratulate her. For the present her husband will continue at work in a butcher shop.

DRIVER'S CARDS BEING ISSUED

Many Applicants For Permits When Office Here Starts Sale.

THREE FORMS USED.

The issuing of automobile operators' licenses was commenced at the office of the local branch of the Ontario Motor League yesterday when a great many applications were granted.

Ordinarily licenses are granted to individuals who have driven 500 miles and are physically fit. In the case of those who cannot fulfill these requirements, instruction permits will be issued authorizing holders to operate a motor vehicle for 60 days only and subject all that time to the supervision of a licensed operator or chauffeur. At the end of 60 days a regular license will be granted, if deemed advisable. A third application form is available for applicants for motor cycle licenses.

Contrary to a prevailing belief, holders of existing chauffeurs' licenses are not called upon to procure another one under the changed regulations.

FLIERS RETURN TO U. S. SOON

Maitland, Heginbecker, and Grace Will Sail From Honolulu.

LEVINE SEEKS AVIATOR.

HONOLULU, July 6. United Press—Lt. Lester G. Maitland and Albert Heginberger, were booked to sail from here for San Francisco to-day on the steamer Maiaui. They leave behind their Fokker plane which carried them in 26 hours on the first flight from California to Hawaii.

It is up to the war department to decide what is to be done with the plane.

The young army fliers hoped at first that they would be permitted to fly back, but the war department refused.

They did have the pleasure, however, of giving a two hour exhibition flight over Honolulu yesterday. It was the first time the plane has been in the air since it landed on Wheeler field last Wednesday morning.

Grace to Return.

HONOLULU, July 6. United Press.—Richard Grace, whose plane was badly damaged after he returned to the Isaland of Kauai from an attempted flight towards California, has been ordered to return by a steamer to California, and abandon his present plans for the mainland flight, Grant Dolge of Los Angeles, Grace's backer, intends to build a new plane with which Grace may try for the Dole prize on a flight from California to Hawaii, it was said.

Levine would fly back.

PARIS, July 6. — Canadian Press. —Charles A. Levine, who accompanied Clarence Chamberlin in his flight to Germany, intends to fly back to New York as soon as he can find a French pilot to go with him. He made this declaration at a luncheon given to-day by American and British correspondents here.

SHANDALCE LAKE, N.Y., July 6 (United Press).—Firmly resolved to master the art of swimming, Henry Cohen, a clothing salesman of Brooklyn, plunged out of a rowboat into deep water here Saturday and was drowned.

Snowstorm Rages Over Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, July 6—(Canadian Press).— Violent snow and rainstorm has been lashing this city and a great part of the country for the past twenty four hours. In some sections the fall of snow has reached unusual proportions, presenting a sight seldom seen in this country. The steamer President Saavedra sank yesterday in harbour here as a consequence of the storm, but the crew was rescued. July is the coldest month of the year in Buenos Aires and its vicinity.

FIVE KILLED MANY INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Express Crashes Into Rear Of Freight Train Near Iona, N. Y.

RUSH MEDICAL AID.

Filled With Pasengers Returning From Fourth of July Holiday.

IONA, Island Station, N.Y., July 6 (Canadian Press).—Filled with passengers homeward bound from the Fourth of July holiday, an express train plunged into the rear of a freight train pulling on to a siding near here yesterday. Five persons are dead. A score or more of the less seriously injured were rushed to hospitals in the vicinity.

The wreck occurred when the freight train was getting out of the way of a southbound New York, Ontario and Western express, running from Kingston, N.Y., to Weehawken, N.J. Those killed were riding in the front passenger coach which was telescoped into the baggage car ahead.

Boy Scouts from a nearby camp, Marines from the United States Naval Munitions Deport and passing tourists rushed to the scene of the wreck. They had to chop away the wreckage to free some of the injured passengers.

An official report from railroad officials said that the wreck occurred at 11.35 Eastern Standard time when the express smashed into the freight which was pulling into a siding to allow the passenger train to go by.

The first passenger car presented a display of wooden splinters and crumpled wreckage where it telescoped into the car ahead while the remaining cars were not damaged.

Pinned Under Wreckage

Several of the injured were pinned so firmly in the wreckage that they had to be chopped out.

Commander J. S. Wood, in charge of the Marines at the munitions depot, despatched twenty of them to the scene to aid in the rescue work.

Doctors and ambulances were summoned from nearby towns and cooperated in giving first aid to the injured and rushing them to hospitals in the district.

Dr. Max A. Gitzer, of New York, one of the passengers on the train, said he was dozing when the wreck occurred.

"I awoke with the crash and found myself hurled from my seat," he continued. "I was riding in a pullman car to the rear of the demolished passenger car. Before me, from the passenger car, I heard pitiful groans and screams of the injured.

"The passengers who were not hurt grabbed axes and whatever implements they could find and started digging.

"Boy Scouts, who soon arrived on the scene, performed feats of sheer heroism."

CAR PLUNGES DOWN CLIFF

Two Young People Badly Hurt In Drop On Hamilton Mountain.

AUTOMOBILE SMASHED

HAMILTON, July 6. — Crashing down the mountain side at the head of Ottawa street, a distance of 150 feet, James Milner, 1523 Claremount Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss J. Forest, 421 Concession street, were painfully injured late yesterday. The coupe in which they were riding was smashed to atoms, and only debris rested at the bottom of the slope when the car completed its plunging and rolling.

That both occupants were not killed is nothing short of a miracle. They were rushed to Mount Hamilton Hospital, and last night it was stated that their condition was serious, but both will recover it is expected.

The patients are under observation and further examinations are to be made. Their injuries consist of a severe shaking up, bruises to the body and lacerations about the face, hands and arms.

While the exact cause of the accident is not known, it is thought the machine swerved too far over on the roadway at a dangerous turn. At the point where Concession street enters the mountain park at the extreme east end there is a sharp turn into the pleasure grounds. It is believed that Milner was intending to take this turn but not knowing of the sharp piece of road, came on to the bend at a rather fast clip and the right front wheel went over the edge.

There is a straight drop, and the machine toppled over and rolled on down to the bottom, taking shrubs, boulders, etc., with it. Those who heard the screams and the pounding of the machine as it descended thought that the occupants would never survive. The police from the East End answered the call for help and ropes had to be used to lower the officers to the spot and to bring the injured young people to the top.

The road is not used to any great extent now, but many narrow escapes have been reported at this point.

NEW REGULATIONS ON PENSIONS TO BE ANNOUNCED DURING WEEK

Many Of Legion's Requests Made at Winnipeg Will Be Meet.

LAST POST FUNDS.

Hospitalization Of Veterans Is Provided. Money for Dental Treatment.

OTTAWA, July 6. — Important changes in the pensions regulations and the treatment of ex-service men are to be announced in a day or so by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The necessary orders-in-council are in process of going through. It is stated that they will go a considerable distance towards meeting requests made at the Winnipeg convention of the Canadian Legion.

It will be recalled that in the concluding days of the sitting of parliament there were many demands that prorogation should not take place until these questions were attended to. What is now being done is by order-in-council in regard to matters which do not call for legislation.

Venereal Cases.

One change is in regard to venereal cases. Where advanced symptoms develop the Department will now attend to the hospitalization of those affected. The ex-service men have long been stressing the necessity of this.

Hospital Care.

Another provision is for indigents at soldiers' homes being cared for in hospitals when such treatment is required. Likewise, the basis of dental treatment is to be considerably extended. Money is provided for Last Post funds where the local funds become exhausted.

While these are the principal changes, many minor ones are made with the general purpose of extending the service to soldiers and covering various points which have been raised in the administration of the Act. An official summary of the new regulations will shortly be issued.

WOMAN BURNED BY EXPLOSION

Was Boiling Mixture For Waterproofing Tarpaulins for Farm.

HOUSE DESTROYED.

CHATHAM, Ont., July 6. — Mrs. Frank A. McKim, who resides near Tupperville, was admitted to the Public General Hospital here yesterday suffering from severe burns received in a fire, which destroyed her home. Her husband was also burned badly about the hands and face in endeavouring to smother the flames.

Inquiries at the hospital last night elicited the information that Mrs. McKim's condition was critical. She was burned practically over her entire body.

Mrs. McKim, it appears, was preparing a mixture for covering cloth which was to serve as a waterproof cover for a haystack. The mixture was in a container resting in a big pan on the kitchen stove and exploded, causing a fire, which soon gutted the dwelling. Mr. McKim, who was in the yard, rushed to his wife's assistance, and had great difficulty in smothering the flames, and carrying her to safety.

Farmers of the vicinity flocked to render aid, but aside from moving some of the furniture, they were powerless to control the fire.

DOURO ASSISTS JUBILEE PARADE

Old Clothing and Implements Used by Those Taking Part Here.

P. O. TOWNS IN CHARGE.

DOURO, July 6. — Douro's contribution to the Confederation parade in Peterborough, consisted of a float, an ancient carriage, and two decorated cars. In one of the decorated cars were young girls waving flags and carrying flowers, and the banner bore the words, "Greetings from Douro". The other decorated car bore a banner inscribed, '1825-Douro-1927". 1825 being the year when Douro was first settled. In this car were the members of the township council, Reeve Leahy driving and Councillors Thomas J. Fitzgerald, John D. O'Shea, Arthur Carveth and John A. Crowe.

Next came the float on a truck, bearing the banner, "Douro boys of 1867", and carrying eight old men, all over seventy years of age and two over 80, Mr. William Moher being 86 and Mr. John Cranley 82. The others were Edward Sullivan, Michael Garvey, Patrick Healey, M. D. Sullivan, John McMurray and Thomas E. Whibbs. The men were smoking clay pipes. Two forks on the back of the truck were made by Maurice Clancy, a local blacksmith, nearly 100 years ago. It also carried flails, brush-hooks, etc., such as were used in the early days.

The ancient carriage was owned by the late John P. Leahy and has carried many wedding parties in the past. The coats worn by the groom and groomsman were the cutaway style of 1867 and they and the hats are over sixty years old. The groom's hat was owned by the late George Clarks, Douro's first reeve. The bride and bridesmaid wore long white dresses with trains. The bride wore a wreath and veil and the bridesmaid a bonnet such as was worn in confederation days.

As usual the parade, or Douro's share of it, was organized and carried out by P. G. Towns, who is usually the only local person who takes the trouble to look after anything of a public nature. The vehicles and float were favorably commented on all along the route of march.

GOOD-WILL HOP ACROSS OCEAN

Lindbergh Tells of Plans For Squadron Flight Over Atlantic.

STARTS WORK ON BOOK.

OTTAWA, July 6.—Just prior to his return from Ottawa Monday to the United States, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh intimated to Group Captain J. S. Short, director of the Royal Canadian Air Force, that plans were under consideration for a flight across the Atlantic of a good-will squadron of twelve U. S. army planes. He said he hoped to take part in the flight himself along with Col. Lamphier, of Detroit. Col. Lindbergh gave no other details of the squadron personnel or of the machines to be used.

Starts Work On Book.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was here yesterday on business in connection with his forthcoming book, "We."

Lindbergh's representatives refused to reveal his whereabouts, explaining that the flier required seclusion during his literary work. It had been impossible at mid-day to reach the Colonel to inquire about reports from Ottawa, Canada, that 12 United States army planes would attempt a flight to Europe.

RECALLS DOMINION DAY 59 YEARS AGO

James Sutherland Looks Back To First Anniversary.

Looking back over 59 anniversaries of Confederation, Mr. James Sutherland, the Water street grocer, recalls that the first was his happiest.

"We were not here for Confederation itself," he told The Examiner, "and I remember when the announcement was made in 1868 that July 1st would be a public holiday I asked what the holiday was for. My wife and I and two children had come out from Aberdeen, Scotland. Robert was born in the Gulf of St Lawrence off Greer Island, and I was so taken with the Captain of the boat, who was very kind to myself and my wife, that we named the boy after him. And so he was named Robert Jamieson Gordon Sutherland.

When the first anniversary of Confederation came Robert was only a baby, and Johan, our eldest child, was just a little girl. My wife and I drove out into Smith township with the children where we spent the day. It was one of the happiest days of my life, and I remember it as if it were only last week.

ENGLISH CHURCH DISESTABLISHED

Is No Langer National Faith. Declares Bishop of Durham.

DANGER OF DISRUPTION.

LONDON, July 6. — A sensational charge that the Church of England is ceasing to be a national church and that it has, in effect, already been disestablished as such, is contained in an article published over the name of the Bishop of Durham, Dr. Hensley Hensen, who points out that the recent legislation affecting both the English and Scotdish churches renounced on the State's behalf all ecclesiastical responsibilities.

"The Church of England is in grave danger of total disintegration and disruption," writes His Lordship. "National churches have already shriveled into denominations within the nations."

Dr. Hensen goes on to say that the class war being preached by the extreme Socialists is a prize repudiation of Christianity and that the State which grows from it must be an anti-Christian state.

The State has now become completely democratized and citizenship completely secularized, he charged.

Discuss Prayer-Book.

LONDON, July 6 (Canadian Press). —The fate of the revised prayer-book of the Church of England yesterday lay before a meeting of the Church Assembly which opened at the Church House, Westminster, for deliberations which are expected to last most of the week.

A big crowd, including many women awaited admission, but only a small proportion was able to get into the public galleries.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who presided, moved that the proposed revision be finally approved. He said that if it were adopted by the Assembly and the two Houses of Parliament, it would be laid before two convocations for synodical sanction before being submitted for Royal assent.

VILLIERS TEACHER IS GIVEN BRACELET

Pupils Make Presentation on Closing Day to Miss C. Renwick.

WESTWOOD, July 6.—A pleasant surprise was given Miss Clair Renwick, teacher of Villiers Public School on Tuesday.

Shortly before the closing hour one of the pupils, Helen Clysdale, read the following address, while Lula Hewie presented Miss Renwick with a beautiful gold bracelet.

Dear Miss Renwick: As we are nearing the close of another school term, we regret that you, our teacher for the past six years, are leaving us. You have been anxious and willing to help us in all our play as well as work. Although several times during the years you have spent in our midst, we have caused you much worry and trouble, yet you have dealt patiently with us, seldom if ever, punishing us unjustly.

As a slight token of our esteem held for you we ask you to accept this gift. Our kindest regards are extended to you in your pleasures and sorrows, and we are sure that all those whom you have instructed will have pleasant memories of the days spent at school with you as teacher.

Signed on behalf of the school,
Helen Clysdale, Lula Hewie

Miss Renwick, although taken by surprise, made a suitable reply, thanking the pupils for their kind address and gift. A treat of home made candy, provided by the pupils, was enjoyed by all.

Ex-Kaiser's Wife Gets His Former Palace In Berlin For Her Vacation In Germany

BERLIN, July 6 — Princess Hermine will take up her residence in the Wilhelm, the great palace on Unter den Linden, on July 13th, according to the radical Welt am Abend.

The wife of the ex-Kaiser is coming to Germany for her annual vacation, as provided for in her marriage contract with the former monarch, and this time, instead of visiting a watering-place or her former Silesian home, will reside, at least for part of her holiday, in the erstwhile royal house awarded to the Hohenzollerns by the Prussian Government. Several months ago four large rooms of this building were renovated and fitted as living quarters.

For the first time since Wilhelm the Great relegated an unused tub to the attic, with the remark he would go to a watering-place when he wanted a bath, the palace has been fitted with a bathroom.

Hermine has fitted up as a salon the historic room with a large bay window from which the former Emperor daily viewed his bodyguard goose-stepping down Unter den Linden. There was fear that the presence of any of his family in the famous window would cause crowds to gather and endanger the public safety, as well as stir up political troubles.

The Prussian Government has already informed the wife of the ex-Kaiser that it could not guarantee her safety should she insist upon occupying this palace. Monarchistic circles refuse to state whether rumours are true or not that they are contenting themselves with the view that Hermine is a German citizen and as such should be allowed to live in the Reich where she chooses.

OBITUARY.

MRS. NORA NEVIN.

DOURO, July 6.—Friends here have received word of the death of Mrs. Nora Nevin of Detroit, a native of Douro, and a former resident of Peterborough. Her husband predeceased her some eight or nine years ago. She had reached the advanced age of seventy-seven. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Maurice Sullivan of Detroit, with whom deceased had resided, Mrs. Margaret Sullivn of Rochester, and a brother, William Cavanagh of Otonabee.

MRS. R. F. WEBSTER.

On June 27th, a native of Uxbridge, and former resident of Lakefield and Beaverton, daughter of the late Lytle and Mary Ann Duncan, of Uxbridge, and wife of Robert Frederick Webster, formerly of Omemee, county of Victoria, now resident at Transcona, Manitoba, passed away after a painful illness, in the presence of most of her family, and was interred in the Brookside cemetery on Thursday, June 30th.

Mrs. Webster had not only endeared herself among the English speaking citizens of the town of Transcona, but among the French, Polish, Ukranian and other races during her eleven years' residence amongst them. She had not only been an active member of the Ladies' Aid and Foreign Missionary Society of Knox United church, but an active social worker in the town, and her death is a serious loss to the community, as was testified by the large attendance at her funeral and by the floral contributions. Deep sympathy was expressed to the husband and family as the pastor of the church performed the final rites.

Mrs. Webster was born at Uxbridge, on April 21st, 1866, and was married there on April 30th, 1890, and leaves behind her six children, Rastus William, foreman of the Dominion Motors, Winnipeg, and two other sons employed in the Transcona C. N. E. shops. Mrs. J. M. Holmes, of Richam, Ont., and two other daughters, teachers in the Transcona schools. One son, Daniel Waldwin, preceded her, killed in action at Vimy Ridge in December, 1916.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Webster resided in Toronto eleven years, three in Lakefield, and eleven at Beaverton, from which place they came to Transcona, when he was engaged in Dominion construction work. Later he assisted in the construction of the C.N.R. shops, and is at present on the clerical staff of the Canadian National Railways.

The pall-bearers were Col. J. F. Mitchell, of Winnipeg, cousin of R. F. Webster, their grandfather being one of the pioneers of Omemee, owning the first lumber mill in the Co. of Victoria, Gordon Thornton, Oswald Graham, Joseph E. Blair, Whitney, and Hayward, prominent citizens of the Transcona.

Former friends will please accept this intimation, as it is impossible to notify them individually.

WEDDING BELLS

OVERLAND—PARKER.

HASTINGS, July 6.—A pretty June wedding took place on Thursday afternoon, June 30th, at four o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parker, Rosedeath, when their eldest daughter, Pearl H. W., of Detroit, Michigan, became the bride of Gordon L. Overland of Detroit, Michigan, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Overland of Erin, Ontario. Rev. D. A. Thomson performed the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father, and entered the living room, taking her place beneath a floral arch, to the strains of the wedding march played by her cousin, Miss Jennie Wright of Havelock, Ont.

The bride looked beautiful in a gown of white satin back crepe with platinum lace overdress and trimming, and wore a veil of silk net and platinum lace with head of lace and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, baby's breath and fern, and wore white shoes and hose.

The bridesmaid was Miss Jessie Wilcox of Hastings, Ont., who was gowned in yellow silk georgette and gold lace, wearing blonde shoes and hose, and carrying a bouquet of premier roses.

Little Miss Margaret Overland of Claremont, niece of the groom, made a dainty flower girl, dressed in rose georgette with satin ribbon trimmings and carried a basket of rose sweet peas, white flowers and fern.

Mr. Caldwell A. Overland of Claremont, brother of the groom, was the groomsman. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome chest of silver, to the bridesmaid a white gold bracelet set with white sapphires, to the flower girl a pearl and amber toilet set, to the pianist a rope of pearls, and to the groomsman a russet leather bill fold and key holder engraved in gold.

A sumptuous dinner was served to about forty guests.

The bride's travelling dress was sand georgette embroidered in green, and she wore a large picture hat of sand; with sand charmeuse coat with fur trimming and alligator shoes with hose to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Overland left by rail, enroute for Claremont, Toronto, Erin, Niagara Falls, and will reside in Detroit.

NEW PASTOR IS INDUCTED

Rev. D. R. Clare Takes Over Duties in Norham United Church.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

NORHAM, July 6.—On Thursday evening, June 30, Rev. D. R. Clare was formally inducted at the Norham United church, as pastor of Norham circuit. The church was well filled with members from the four appointments, Norham, St. Olivet, Bethany and Meyersburg. Rev. H. H. Clarke of Hilton acted as chairman. After the devotional period Rev. A. MacLaughlin of Grafton preached a very eloquent sermon, basing it upon Paul's letter to the Romans.

Then, Rev. W. W. Jones of Warkworth addressed the people and the pastor. In speaking to the people he enumerated several ways by which the people could make their pastor's life happy. In speaking to Mr. Clare, Mr. Jones outlined some of the duties of a pastor to his people. Then Rev. Mr. Clarke asked Mr. Clare several questions which were answered according to form, and the trustees welcomed their new pastor with handshaking.

Immediately after the close of his part of the service, the congregation retired to the church hall where refreshments were served to all. A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Rev. A. MacLaughlin to the ladies who had so kindly furnished the dainty lunch. The vote was seconded by Mr. Ewing of Warkworth and tendered to the ladies by the Rev. Mr. Clarke. After a few words by the Rev. Mr. Clare and a verse of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," the meeting was dismissed.

NEW EXAMINERS FOR EMIGRANTS

Physical Qualifications Stricter. Medical Examination Before Leaving For Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6. — A more careful medical examination is to be made in the British Isles and Continental Europe of intending emigrants to Canada, and a staff of 25 qualified doctors with different grades of salaries is being detailed for this duty overseas.

Heretofore, immigration inspectors aboard have given the emigrants the "once over," and have pretty generally accepted local physicians' certificates of physical fitness. The medical examinations have taken place at Quebec, St. John, and Halifax. This has not worked with entire satisfaction.

It has been found necessary to turn back very considerable numbers and, in consequence, officers of the Health Department will now make the examinations before the parties leave. Any rejections will be made in Europe and the inspection at the ports on this side will thus be modified.

Liver extract is the newest addition to the list of weapons which medical science has marshalled against cancer.

A new type of field-glass which can be attached to the spectacle frame has been invented.

Casford Concert Company Here at Chautauqua

A distinctive concert company will be an interesting attraction of the Dominion Chautauqua here this season. This notable organization, the Casford Concert Company, presents a program of rare charm and genuine musical excellence.

Violin, piano and harp form the instrumentation of the company. Many beautiful selections are given with varied combinations of these instruments. Instrumental solos form an important part of the program and are splendidly rendered.

Fern L. Casford, the pianist of the company, is well known to Chautauqua audiences, having spent several years in Lyceum and Chautauqua giving complete programs alone. She is one of the best readers and impersonators in the entire Chautauqua field, and the group of readings, many of them humorous, which she will present here, is a striking feature of the program.

Winifred Casford, a sister, is a violinist and soprano of unusual merit.

The third member of the company is Byrne Smith, well-known harpist. Miss Smith's solo numbers on this stately instrument have a never-to-be-forgotten loveliness.

TORONTO MAN SAYS "HUSKY" IS FINE

C. E. Jordan, 139 Howard Ave., Toronto, resident of that city for 65 years, whose picture appears above, tells as follows how his health was benefitted: "My kidneys were out of order and I suffered from severe pains in my back. I also had indigestion and gas formed after meals. I started the Husky treatment and have derived great benefit from it—my kidneys giving me no pains now and my stomach trouble and indigestion being relieved." Husky is provided by good drug stores everywhere.

Many Douro People See Aviators Travelling Toward Ottawa.

DOURO, July 6.—Great interest was taken locally in the flight of Lindbergh and his army escort en route to Ottawa. The noisy mowers were eclipsed for the time. About every mile of their flight the planes did some stunts.

Their Happiness brings good digestion

Children hail with glee the meal that starts with Puffed Rice. They love the nutlike flavour and the crunchy crispness. They "chew their food" when Puffed Rice is served.

Their very happiness aids digestion. The stomach greets Puffed Rice because Puffed Rice pleases the palate. More abundant nourishment is taken from other food eaten at the same time.

Good at any meal • • • or in between meals • • • after school, for instance, or before going to bed.

Serve with whole milk or cream. Then children won't need coaxing to take the amount of milk food they should have every day.

Puffed Wheat, too

Quaker Puffed Wheat is another cereal delight—grains of wheat exploded like the rice. Most mothers get a package each of the wheat and the rice, and thus supply variety to all the family.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1927.

RURAL CO-OPERATION.

A word of thanks is due to the citizens of the district surrounding Peterborough for the assistance they gave in making the local celebration of the Diamond Jubilee a success.

The presence in the parade of the children from a number of rural schools was a much appreciated feature, and the splendid contribution to the parade arranged by the people of Douro was outstanding.

The citizens of that township arranged a display that was a credit to themselves and a very welcome addition to the jubilee parade.

The "Greetings From Douro" as one banner expressed it will do much to bring the people of the city and county into closer relationships, and bring about that entente that is necessary to ensure progress.

Those responsible for the beautifully decorated vehicles from Douro should know that not only the Jubilee Celebration Committee but the citizens of Peterborough generally are deeply appreciative of the co-operation extended on this occasion.

DRIVERS' LICENSES.

The system of drivers' licenses announced some time ago by the Ontario Government is now being brought into effect.

If the legislation is effectively enforced, and if the applications of new drivers for licenses are followed by a proper test, the plan should have beneficial results.

There has been too much laxity in the past.

Almost anybody who had nerve enough to attempt to drive a car was at liberty to do so, and the conclusion cannot be avoided, if the actions of some motorists are scrutinized, that there are many people driving automobiles who are tempermentally unfit to be entrusted with such responsibility.

Under the license system the Government will have some control over the situation, and drivers who by their conduct show that they are not trustworthy may expect to find that the privilege of handling a motor car may be summarily taken away from them.

The success or failure of the new regulations depends upon the manner in which they are carried out.

In the meantime, all drivers should understand that they must apply for licenses, not merely one to a car, but one for every member of the family who drives.

SERVICE COUNTS.

An employee of the local Government store, informing a customer that they had everything in the Peterborough store that was to be found in Toronto, was told that there was something here that was not to be discovered in the Queen City stores.

"What is that, sir?" inquired the employee.

"Civility," replied the customer, tersely.

The incident is mentioned because it drives home the truth of what The Examiner has always maintained was essential to Peterborough securing a generous share of tourist traffic—that is, courteous and friendly treatment of our visitors.

That applies to all who come into contact with tourists—hotelmen, traffic officers, merchants, farmers and citizens generally.

Since the opening of the Government store here the members of the staff have won for themselves general thanks for their obliging, helpful and courteous treatment of customers.

Visitors particularly comment upon this condition, and it leads them not only to purchase liquid refreshments here but to buy other supplies in Peterborough, and it is the duty of the merchants of the city to confirm this good opinion.

Service counts heavily in this question of tourist traffic, and Peterborough should see that the city's general reputation in this respect stands high.

ANGLE PARKING.

There is a great deal of complaint from motorists as to the operation of the angle parking system now in force on George street, and the general opinion is that the street is too narrow for such a plan to be effectively employed.

It is doubtless a very serviceable system when used on a wide thoroughfare, but causes too much congestion on a street as narrow as George street, and the complaints of motorists in this regard seem to be well founded.

The parking problem is becoming a serious one, and it is apparent that it has not been solved by the angle method.

The most trouble at present is occasioned by drivers who park too long; if the time limit were definitely enforced and offenders fined, an immediate improvement might be expected.

Some business men, it is stated, are helping to add to the congestion by leaving their own cars on the street for hours, and with their example imitated by visitors, the result is far from satisfactory.

The establishment of a short parking period and its strict enforcement would do much to improve the situation, which undoubtedly needs immediate attention.

THE ACCIDENT TOLL.

Hardly a week-end passes without Monday morning papers chronicling a list of fatalities on city streets and Provincial highways. On holiday occasions these accidents seem to be augmented, due, no doubt, to the large increase in traffic everywhere. On the highways of the Province the toll of fatal accidents was six during the last week-end, while more deaths resulted from other causes, such as drowning. Only one fatal water accident marred the holiday in Toronto, which is gratifying, considering the hot weather and the numbers that must have been boating.

The saddest feature of all accidents, or nearly all, is that they could be prevented with reasonable care. The one drowning fatality, at the Island, furnishes an illustration. Two young women out in a rowboat attempted to change seats, with the result that the boat capsized and one of them was drowned before she could be rescued. The accident was the result of a direct violation of one of the fundamental rules of boating. The same principle applies to most other accidents. They do not arise from new or unforeseen causes, but from a source that has its root in carelessness and from a cause that is as old as creation.

In the final analysis the only cure that will ever be found for traffic accidents is care and caution on the part of every one either driving a vehicle or using the highways or the city streets for walking. Pedestrians have their rights, and the law recognizes them as having "the right of way," but the pedestrian who deliberately walks in front of a moving car because he is in the right is a fool. Eternal vigilance, the strictest care, and holding to strict accountability all who wilfully endanger human life are three factors that will go a long way toward making the streets and highways safe for all who use them.—The Globe.

TOURIST INCOME VS. HIGHWAY COST.

Counting the cars with American licenses has become a popular Fourth of July diversion for Canadian motorists. It is the day which sets the peak load of tourist travel from across the border. Every highway has its endless stream of motorists, and the rush of visiting cars far exceeds the local traffic. But it is difficult, with only a localized observation of this traffic, to get a correct impression or make an accurate estimate of the tourist volume for all Canada and for the whole year. This is exactly what is set forth in Circular No. 8, "The Highway, the Motor Vehicle and the Tourist in Canada," a booklet just issued by the Canada Highway Commission. In addition to figures on tourist traffic, the circular gives registration of motor cars in Canada, tabulated data on highways, improved and unimproved, and information on motor car laws and revenues.

Apart from its valuable information, Circular No. 8 is of particular interest to people of Western Ontario. Its material was prepared by the late Archibald W. Campbell, Commissioner of Highways for the Dominion, as almost his last official labor before death called him early in May of this year. "Good Roads Campbell" was a native of Ekfrid Township, and served the public as City Engineer of St. Thomas, Good Roads Commissioner for the Province, Deputy Minister of Public Works for Ontario, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa, and finally as Commissioner of Highways at Ottawa. In his long and useful career he came to be recognized as an international authority on highway construction and an ideal official to supervise the vast work of road improvement on which the Federal Government alone has spent $20,000,000 in the last decade. An unsigned introduction to Circular No. 8 tells how Mr. Campbell fulfilled his trust, and quotes at length from The London Advertiser of May 12, in which appeared a report of the Commissioner's funeral and a brief story of his life work, to which the fine system of highways through his native township stands as a permanent and fitting memorial.

Proceeding to figures on Canada's tourist travel, the booklet shows the traffic has more than doubled in three years. A total of 2,076,255 cars were admitted to Canada for tourist purposes in 1926. There were 4,168 admitted for a period not exceeding six months; 550,906 for a period not over one month, and 1,521,181 for not over 24 hours. It is estimated that each car brought four persons, and each person spent $5 daily, making a tourist outlay in 1926 of $203,197,820. When it is noted that Canada's wheat crop in 1926 was something less than $500,000,000, it is seen by comparison what the ever-increasing tourist trade means. The balance of tourist trade, too, is favorable. Canadians on tour in the United States in 1926 are estimated to have spent only $50,000,000.

Tourists are getting value for their money, in so far as good roads are concerned. There were 2,870 miles of improved earth roads built in Canada in 1926, 2,471 miles of gravel roads, 158 miles of water-bound macadam, 117 of bituminous macadam, 25 of sand-clay, 42 of asphaltic concrete, and 94 of cement concrete, a total of 5,788 miles of road. There were 46,829 miles of Canadian road under patrol or gang maintenance last year. The cost of improvements and maintenance in the year was $45,500,000. In other words, tourists have the satisfaction of knowing that for every $5 they spent more than $1 was spent on road improvement. At that rate it would appear that the traffic is on a sound basis, with years of development in view. Nor can it be considered that highway improvement is near an end. Tables show that Canada still has something over 400,000 miles of road, much of it as yet unopened, which at some time in the future will come under the improvement program. It looks as if the army of 26,071 men employed in improvement and maintenance of roads in 1926 would not be out of a job for some time to come.

Registration of passenger cars in 1926 totaled 728,905 in Canada, an increase of 14 per cent. over 1925; trucks numbered 87,182, an increase of 17 per cent. Ontario had the highest number, with 343,992 passenger cars and 39,012 trucks. Although Ontario had only about 45 per cent. of the total number of cars in the Dominion in 1926, the revenue collected by this Province for licenses and taxes was well over 50 per cent. of the total collected in the Dominion, which is worth notice in view of the recent driving license regulations promulgated from Queen's Park.

Circular No. 8 expresses the view that the roads so far built are substantial and easily capable of withstanding the speed of 35 miles now permitted in Ontario. The opinion is emphatically expressed, however, that traffic will gradually demand broader surfaces, particularly near cities where travel is already dense. Continued increase this year of tourist travel would seem to justify such a view.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Travelling over the ocean by means of a skyrocket is promised. But it is likely to be some time before the idea becomes popular.

Traffic conditions in Peterborough's business section call for careful driving. Unfortunately, there is still too much speeding over intersections.

An American flyer has broken the world's altitude record, although the Boston Red Sox have gone up in the air nearly as high.

Only the wonderful war record of her soldiers has given Canada so much advertising as the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Judging by the license plates seen on Peterborough streets just now, Canada is being conquered by peaceful penetration.

The American League seems to have developed into a home-run contest between Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

The Supreme Court decision puts the bootlegger in a privileged class. He is the only citizen who can be arrested for paying his income tax.—New Yorker.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 6.—Trade is still very slow in the cattle market and while prices so far have held steady for good quality butcher there is an easier tone to the market generally. About 1,000 cattle were held over from Monday's market, and it looks a cut in prices on the poorer quality grass cattle, if a clean up is to be effected before the end of the week.

The hold over includes a good proportion of western cattle of the unfinished butcher type, and if prices are made attractive enough, they may be taken for stocker purposes.

Choice grass butcher steers and a few very choice dry fed steers sold steady from $8.75 to $9.00. General run of good to choice butcher, grassers $8.25 to $8.775. Plain common, $6.50 to $6.75. Good stocker type, $5.50 to $7.00.

Choice fat cows, steady, $6.25 to $6.50.

Calves steady from $10.50 to $11.00.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 6 (Canadian Press).—A slight improvement in the demand for grain was indicated here yesterday with a consequent active trade for export account. Some loads of Canadian Spring wheat, oats and American oats were sold to the United Kingdom, while business was moderate in the trade for coarse grain. Nothing of note featured the market for Spring wheat grades of flour, the demand being somewhat disappointing. The Winter wheat flour trade was firm, with some business passing.

There continues to be a good demand for all lines of millfeed, but due to limited supplies available trading was somewhat checked. The market for baled hay is steady.

The butter trade is not brisk and the volume of business is small. The domestic demand is particularly disappointing.

There was some demand yesterday by English importers for cheese, but little business was done due to the high prices asked and the market generally was quiet.

The egg trade is firm with supplies ample to meet all wants. The demand for small lots continues fair and a good amount of business was done yesterday.

There was no change in the potato market, prices holding steady. Offerings of new crop American potatoes are not now excessive.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 6 (Canadian Press).—Fine weather for the Winter wheat harvest and for spring wheat growth did much to bring about lower prices on wheat yesterday. Closing quotations for wheat were heavy at 1¾ to 2⅛c net decline, with corn ¼c off to 1⅛c up; oats ⅛ to ⅝c down and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 17 cents.

Fading away of apprehension as to black rust in wheat was an outstanding feature owing to cool weather northwest. Crop experts sent advices that were decidedly more optimistic in regard to spring wheat prospects than have been the rule of late. One leading authority on field conditions wired that after a 500-mile drive through Southern Dakota he was convinced there would be no serious visitation of black rust this year. He added, however, that the pest can developed fast and if the weather turns hot and sultry, it is possible that general infection may ensue.

Rains in Argentina and Australia added to the downward impetus of the wheat market.

Corn rallied in the late trading, talk being current that cool nights have been against corn growth and that it would take ideal weather to produce 2,000,000,000 bushels this season. No urgent call for oats was noted.

Provisions were mostly firmer, influenced by strength of the hog market.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Dear Sir:

During the last session of the Dominion Government a bill was passed offering the old needy people over seventy years of age, a yearly pension of half two hundred and forty-five dollars, providing that each Provincial Government gave the remaining half. The question which astounds me is, why the Ontario Government has refused to take advantage of that generous offer.

I asked a member of parliament the reason why the bill was ignored by the Toronto House. He answered by asking why none of the other Provincial Governments had passed the bill. That should be no excuse. Ontario should lead rather than follow the other provinces in passing relief measures.

Old age pension is in force in Australia, England and Ireland. Why not in Canada?

The older generation has put the present generation on its feet and well away to prosperity.

Who has cleared the land, built roads, bridges, cities and towns, and lastly but not least, reared large families and good citizens, who are not too selfish to offer their mite to help the old people.

We all know there are poor, old, needy people in this province who deservedly require help, financially. In answer you might say, "Why don't they go to the House of Refuge?" All old people would say that they prefere their own homes no matter how humble. At any rate what differenee does it make to the Government they must be maintained in either place.

I believe that all that is required is a capable pilot at the helm to sail the ship to its destination.

D. CONROY.

A Thought For To-day

WHY SO MANY MEN FAIL

There are many, many reasons for the failure of men, but here is one real reason for men hitting a low spot and remaining there.

Success is the answer to that everlasting effort to succeed, and to succeed today man must use every ounce of energy, every bit of brains, all his ambition, all his time, and then some.

Modern man does not seem to want to pay this high price of hard work and overtime.

OTONABEE SCHOOLS HOLD JOINT PICNIC

Pupils of Sections 8 and 12 Are Guests of the Teachers.

A happy event was the closing of S. S. Nos. 8 and 12, Otonabee, which took the form of a picnic on Wednesday afternoon, June 29th, at Cedar Hedge Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Petrie. Over seventy in all, pupils, parents and friends, spent the afternoon in games in the shady lane, swings in the barn, and sports on the lawn.

Prior to the races the pupils taking part in the Diamond Jubilee parade in Peterborough, delighted the spectators with a grand rehearsal of their march to the accompaniment of mouth organ music, Gerald Lowes carrying the banner.

A pleasing feature of the occasion was the celebration of birthday anniversaries of little Miss Marguerite Heffernan of S. S. No. 12 and Master Lloyd Webster of S. S. No. 8. Their teachers, the Misses Ivy and Mae Petrie, presented each of them with a beautiful cake with greetings in pink and white icing and decked with seven and eight candles respectively. The teachers also provided an abundance of ice cream and lemonade for all. These, with cake, sandwiches and candy completed the supper on the lawn.

Following is the list of sports and winners of prizes:.

Senior girls, 9 years and over, —1 Mary Mackenzie, 2 Olive Garrett.

Girls, 5 to 9—1 Helen Lowes, 2 Marguerite Heffernan.

"I have valued this farm $1,000 less than I would if clean of this weed"

The actual evidence of loss in value of weed-infested farm land is shown in the extract from the report of an inspector valuing a certain farm for loaning purposes. Here is the evidence:

"It is badly infested with sow thistle—as are all the farms in the neighborhood. I have valued $1,000 less than I would if clean of this weed."

This $1,000 represented 12% of the value of the farm. Many inspectors would discount the value to an even greater extent. What is your weed crop costing you? Fight weeds as you would fight fire. Help your neighbor—help yourself.

Every occupant of land and every owner of unoccupied land is required to destroy all noxious weeds before their seeds ripen. Municipal councils are required to destroy all noxious weeds growing upon the highways.

INVENTOR SENDS BOATS TO SEARCH

Two Small Craft Combing Labrador Coast For Fliers

NEW YORK, July — Believing firmly that the bodies of Nungesser and Coli, France's missing trans-Atlantic aviators, will be found, Stanley Yale Beach, inventor, writer and aviation enthusiast, has started two small boats on a search of waters adjacent to Northeast Newfoundland and Labrador.

The first boat set out on June 24 and the second on June 29, both from Flower Cove, forty miles from Cape Norman. They have cruised through the Strait of Belle Isle and in and out of the many bays along the Labrador coast as far as Battle Harbor. Rev. J. T. Richards, of the Grenfell Association, Battle Harbor, sent the following message to Mr. Beach:

"Second boat started on June 29, myself in charge. Investigated waters of coast and bays to Battle Harbor. Have not seen first boat, but know they are combing the coast. Temple Bay must be very carefully investigated, as inhabitants of Chateau Bay report hearing plane passing northwesterly first part of May."

Chateau Bay is on the Labrador coast, south of Battle Harbor.

What value a human being!

"Men are like figures; they acquire their value from their position."
—Napoleon

The value of your life runs up into tens of thousands of dollars and depends altogether on your position. It equals the sum of what you expect to earn throughout your life.

This intangible fortune can be made real by means of life insurance. You should make it real because Death bankrupts a life not adequately insured, and your family will suffer.

To protect your family the London Life grants insurance on three popular 'reduced premium' plans—the Jubilee, the Earning Power, the Duplex.

For example, the rates are such that simply the interest on $10,000 Victory Bonds would purchase from $30,000 to $44,000 life insurance at age 30, according to the plan selected to meet your needs.

Men appreciate low-initial-cost participating plans because they furnish full protection without hampering one's finances.

SAINT and SINNER

Everything seemed to go wrong that Saturday morning following Cherry's impromptu bridge party. Mrs. Lundy was not on hand at half past seven as usual to prepare breakfast. Faith, taking her place, found that the cream was sour and that there was no fruit in the ice box. Bob, drinking black coffee, was obviously brooking over the rejection of his plans for the new public library.

Joy appeared at breakfast with reddened eyes and nose, that advertised one of her frequent colds. Poor old Jim Lane, sensing the general unhappiness of the family, seamed to try to shrink into nothingness inside his rumpled, grease-spotted "everyday" suit. But he "dunked" his toast in his coffee, and Faith, flushed and miserable over the inadequacies of the breakfast, flinched as she saw her husband's quick, frowning glance at her father.

When Bob and her father had left, Faith prepared as tempting a tray as possible for Cherry, who no longer made any effort at all to leave her bed before noon.

When Faith carried the tray into Cherry's room, she found her sister sitting up in bed, with a huge scrapbook opened across her hunched knees. It was the book into which she had pasted hundreds of columns of news and feature stories about herself and the trial in which she had played the leading role, as defendant on the charge of murder.

"Hello, darling!" she called to Faith. "I was just looking over this scrapbook on the trial. Itall seems like a dream doesn't it? It's hard to realize that just a few months before I was the most famous girl in America—my name on everyone's tongue. And now—buried out here on Serenity Boulevard, with scarcely a friend to my name! Page Dad to say for me, 'Such is life!'" Her musical voice had a bitter edge to it.

Faith adjusted the wicker trya rack across the small body, and poured the coffee, murmuring apologies for the absence of cream and orange juice.

After Cherry had eaten a piece of French toast with strawberry jam and had listlessly sampled the coddled egg which Faith had been at such pains to prepare for her, Faith clenched her hands over her traitorous courage and broached the subject which had given her no peace since Fay's visit the day before, and especially since she had learned from Bob that not only Cherry's Father and brother had been giving her money but that Bob himself had been "shelling out" without telling his wife about it.

Cherry listened to her halting approach with widening eyes and rising color which spread in mottled patches over her puffed little face. Faith's heart almost failed her, but she ploughed steadily in through what she had to say, softening it, while her eyes beseeched Cherry to understand and to help her.

"You see, darling," she concluded, her voice trembling despite her efforts at calm, "we all want you to be as comfortable and happy as possible, but Junior and Bob have other responsibilities, and poor Dad has so very, very little for his old age—"

"Shut up!" Cherry screamed suddenly, her arms threshing about wildly. "I won't listen. I won't be humiliated like this, I tell you. I won't! I won't! Oh-oh-h!" Her small body heaved beneath the covers; the wicker tray was dislodged, and went shithering to the floor, but not before the coffee pot had overturned on the pale blue satin coverlet.

Then the shriek of anger turned to a scream of pain. A great fear dawned in Cherry's golden eyes as her hands clenched in a spasm of agony. It was with a vision of Cherry's body writhing across the bed that Faith ran blindly to the telephone, to call the doctor and her husband.

NORWOOD HAS CELEBRATION

Diamond Jubilee of Confederation is Suitably Honored.

PAGEANT AND PARADE.

NORWOOD, July 6.—The Diamond Jubilee of Confederation was royally celebrated by Asphodel, Drummer and Norwood municipalities at Norwood on Friday, July 1. The town was gaily decorated. The decorating committee was busily engaged on Thursday putting up banners, streamers and flags. The banks and stores presented a very bright appearance and many of the homes were ablaze with flags and bunting.

The big event opened at twelve o'clock, when the bells were rung and the whistles blown.

The proceedings commenced at one o'clock with the raising of the flag, at the Armouries. This was followed by a grand patriotic procession which left the exhibition grounds headed by the Alderville Brass Band. The parade was along Alma to King, to Cedar, to Queen, to Colborne, to the Memorial Plot on Ridge street, where the band played several patriotic selections and the returned men placed a wreath on the War Memorial. After this O' Canada was played by the band and the Last Post sounded. The parade then proceeded along Ridge street to Pine street, to Peterboro street, to Colborne street and back to the exhibition grounds. The following is the order of the parade:

Reeves and members of the council of Asphodel and Dummer, Village Reeve and council, school trustees, Alderville Brass Band, primary department Norwood Public School. The little tots were dressed in white and the boys had white trousers on. They all had scarfs of red, white and blue and were in charge of Miss Gertie Greenbank, teacher.

Next came a float representing Manitoba. On the wagon was a wigwam and several Indians and squaws. Following this float were the other members of the first and second book classes with their teachers, Miss Lila Engisch and Miss Bessie Peoples. The pupils marching were dressed in white adorned with green maple leaves and wore crowns of the same.

Next came the girl pupils of Elgin school on a float gaily decoroated. These pupils were dressed as farmers and farmerettes, the girls with white sun bonnets and the boys walking beside the float, carrying rakes, hoes, etc., and wearing large straw hats. A pretty little pony and cart decorated in red, white and blue was at the rear of the float. Miss Irene Richardson is the teacher in this school.

The next in line was a float representing the nine provinces. John Bull was the driver and Miss Eva McNeely made a beautiful Miss Canada. Each province was represented by two pupils holding some products of the province they represented. The float was covered with white draped with red bunting caught up with blue tasels. The teacher in this school is Miss Ruby Gardner.

The next in line was a float representing British Columbia. Horses hitched to two long poles with a seat attached to them, the first driven by Hamilton Humphry and the last by Karl Thompson, caused a great deal of laughter. Then came a wagon on which canvas stretched over a pole on either side of which was a drawing to represent Rocky Mountains. On one side were the words "The Great Divide," on the other "Alexander McKenzie crossed Canada by land 1793." Mr. Scott Wildman, teacher in the Donegal school was responsible for this float. Next in line were pupils of the third and fourth rooms of Norwood Public chool, of which Mr. W. Wendt and Miss Ina Doxsee are teachers. At the head of this group were two boys carrying a banner on which was printed "We want John Barleycorn to be buried. Next came six of the boy pupils carrying a black casket and followed by the other pupils.

The High School had a sedan covered with large Union Jacks and two huge fish fastened to the front. This represented Nova Scotia.

Gaily decorated automobiles followed with some of Norwood's pioneer residents and others.

At the exhibition grounds the judging was done. The first prize for float went to the North School, Miss Ruby Gardener, teacher; 2nd prize, 1st and 2nd book classes, Misses Engisch and Peoples, teachers; 3rd prize Elgin School, Miss Irene Richardson, teacher; 4th Donegal, Mr. Scott Wildman, teacher.

First prize for parade, Donegal School; 2nd, Primary Norwood School; 3rd, Third Class, Norwood School; 4th prize, 1st and 2nd Classes, Norwood School.

The oratorical and singing contests took place in the Armories. Miss Georgina Beavis, Master Earl Bongard and Miss Rosie Beavis, pupils of the Norwood Public School, winning the prizes for the former and for the latter Miss Ariel Wilton won first, Helen Dickson second, and Margaret McGee third.

The first and second prizes for singing for the High School pupils was divided equally between Miss Elizabeth Thomson and Miss Blanche Stillman. A girl's soft ball match between teams from Warsaw and Norwood resulted in a victory for the former. A booth on the grounds where ice cream, soft drinks, fruits, candy, cigars and hot dogs were sold did a flourishing business.

Pageant Put On

In the evening a grant pageant "The Romance of Canada," put on in the town hall, under the auspices of the I.O.D.E., was all that could be desired. Miss Ruth Harper as "The Goddess" was especially good. All characters took their parts well.

Norwood will not soon forget Canada's Diamond Jubilee Celebration.

The several committees deserve great credit for the way everything was carried out.

Characters taking part in the pageant were:—Goddess, Miss Ruth Harper; Pages—Masters Trevor Robb and Garfield Hutchinson; Guardian Spirits—Miss Lila Kirk, Miss Lila Engisch; Fathers of Confederation—John A. At this juncture Miss Una Duffield sang a song written especially for the Diamond Jubilee. Quebec, Mrs. W. Wendt; Generals Wolfe and Montcalm, Perrin Rord and Emilyn Edwards.

Charlie Copen rendered a violin solo during the performance. Miss Barbara Foote was pianist for the evening.

The entertainment closed with the National Anthem.

It is Serious When The Kidneys Go Wrong

These letters tell of two cases in which Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills afforded the desired relief.

For about half a century Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been known to the public as an effective treatment for the relief of kidney ills. Before that they had been for years proven in private practice. Surely they have stood the test of time. And to-day they are more popular than ever before. Why? Simply because they produce the desired results. You know when you use them that you are not experimenting with an untried medicine.

Mrs. Fred Martin, Box 61, Bradford, Ont., writes:—

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's K. & L. Pills, as I used to suffer agonies with gravel in the kidneys and tried several medicines with no results, until one day I decided to try Dr. Chase's K. & L. Pills and obtained so much benefit from them that I am now never without a box in use and one in reserve. I certainly wish Dr. Chase's Medicines every success."

Miss Mary Pettipas, 158, Upper Water St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—

"I suffered for two years with kidney trouble and tried a great deal of medicines, which did not help me at all. I was so nervous I could not rest at night. A neighbour advised me to try your K. & L. Pills and since taking them I feel like a new person and now sleep soundly at nights, thanks to Dr. Chase."

ROSENEATH NEWS

ROSENEATH, July 6. — Dr. and Mrs. Hershey spent a week-end in Toronto lately.

Fire broke out in Mr. Robin's house near Rice Lake. Mr. Clarence Thackeray, who occupies the house, was fortunate in having help to extinguish the blaze. The building was insured.

Rev. Lovelace preached his farewell sermon on June 26th. Best wishes weer extended to him as he goes to his new pastorate at Ivanhoe.

Rev. R. Brown is moving from Cordova to Roseneath, and will take up his new work in the United Church here.

Miss Bertha A. Clark, who has been teacher in the Junior Room for the past four and a half years, has resigned her position.

At the annual C.G.I.T. picnic held at Rev. Mr. Lovelace's cottage, Cherry Bank, the King's Daughters' C.G.I.T. Group, made a presentation to Miss Bertha Clark. The leader, Mrs. Andrew Brown, in a few words, expressed the dgep sorrow of the group in hearing of Miss Clark's intention to leave Roseneath. She spoke of Miss Clark as a willing worker in whatever she did during the four and a half years here, not only in the C.G.I.T. Group, but in many other ways had proved to be a great help in the community and in the church.

Miss Gladys Blodgett, the president, presented Miss Clark with a beautiful black satin-finish jardiniere. The Group extended their best wishes for future success for Miss Clark.

Miss Clark thanked the Group for the gift, and hoped that the members would continue in doing good work for all time.

Canadian Department-Stores Limited

The Growth of the Department Store

WHEN Confederation was a new idea, nobody had ever heard of the Department Store. The shopping centre was the general store, containing a little of everything, and nothing very good. In the sixty years that have made Canada a world nation, the Department Store has come to be the great distributing centre of modern commerce.

Now comes a further development—the linking together of the more progressive stores into one chain system, no longer competing against themselves, but serving collectively the needs of the country. It is another advance in Canadian prosperity.

MADOC PASTOR SAYS FAREWELL

Many Presentations Made To Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Foster.

I. O. O. F. SERVICE.

MADOC, July 6. — Sunday last marked the closing of Rev. A. H. Foster's ministry in the United Church. At Sunday School in the morning Mr. Foster presented the Young Worshippers' League with a record of members from the time of its inception. To those who had attended church from thirty-five to forty-five Sundays during the year, books were presented. The Young Men's Bible Class took this opportunity to present Mr. Foster with a pair of gold cuff links as a token of their regard, and the Young People's League gave him a gold watch chain.

Mrs. Foster, who had been a faithful and devoted teacher in the Sunday School, was the recipient of a silver tray from her class, while the League had presented her with a basket of marigolds at their last meeting.

At the morning service the Holy Sacrament was administered. Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services, at both of which Mr. Foster preached earnest, helpful addresses, referring to the work that had been accomplished during the five years of his stay here, and his regret at leaving. Pleasing anthems were rendered by full choirs, Mrs. Foster taking the solo parts. A duet was sung by Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Ashley.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster left on Monday for Lindsay, where they will stay for a few days en route to their new home in Parkhill. Their many friends wish them success and happiness in their new field of endeavor.

Lodges Attend Service

Madoc Lodge,I.O.O.F., No. 179, and Oakdale Rebekah Lodge, No. 134, attended divine service in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on Sunday last. Rev. Mr. Marshall gave an inspiring and appropriate address, taking as his subject, "The Great Friend." The regular order of service was followed, with a solo sung by Miss Lenore Vandervoort.

Following the hour of worship both lodges, accompanied by the I.O.O.F. band, marked to the cemetery, where the ceremony of decoration day was carried out and many beautiful flowers laid on the graves of those members who have passed to the Great Beyond.

School Closed

Madoc Public School closed on Wednesday, the High School having finished on the 17th. There will be two changes on the High School staff; Miss Wilson has left to take another position, and Mr. Curtin goes to Port Hope for the ensuing year.

Fifty-eight candidates wrote the examinations for entrance to High School last week. The students found the sudden heat on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday very trying.

Rev. C. D. Daniel Preaches Sermon on Precept of Order.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, July 6. —On Sunday morning ,at 11 o'clock, the members of L.O.L. No. 2322, and L.O.B.A., No. 129 ,attended divine service at Zion Church ,with a good attendance of both lodge members and visitors. Rev. C. D .Daniel, pastor of the congregation, addressed his fellow lodge members, taking his text from 1 Cor.. 16, 13 and 1 Peter 2, 17: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit ye like men, be strong, honour all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, honour the king."

The speaker first reviewed the wonderful history of the founding of Orangeism and the events of the rising tide of Protestantism in the days of William of Orange.

The second part of the text applied more closely to the observance of the truths of the Orange belief. The four commands were a challenge to Orange members to adhere to their great code of things spiritual. Orangemen would do well to follow these. At times they were not as faithful to their fellows as they might be. The fear of God should lead them to be examples of Christian living both to their own families and to the community. They should also be patriotic, and Mr. Daniel reminded the audience that many of the things which constituted Orangeism were only possible under the British flag.

His whole discourse was filled with the plea for a greater love and fellowship between men, a fine ideal for all humans as well as for lodge members. In closing he especially reminded his hearers that Orangeism stood for equality between races, and allowed for no race preference.

The choir for the occasion was composed of men, all members of the Order. They rendered the patriotic hymn, "Guard the Flag."

Seymour Circuit League picnic at Crow River on Friday promises a good time for everyone.

Sunday School Social.

The annual social evening of the Zion Sunday School was held at the home of Mr. Fred Barnum on Friday evening, July 1st, with a good crowd present. The proceeds were over $56.00. Rev. Mr. Daniel and Fred Barnum gave a display of fireworks in honour of Dominion Day. The balloon ascension was a failure, as a tree was in the way.

A whole evening's entertainment was provided by three ball games. The main attraction was the return game between Rylstone and Petherick's. While Rylstone put up a good game on their first apeparance, they failed to live up to advance notices on Friday evening, and the local team won by 34 to 5 in six innings. The Rylstone team scored in only one inning, the fourth, while the locals batted steadily. Gerald Petherick was the leading scorer, with six counters, while G. Kerr and R. Fry each had a homer to deep centre.

The teams:

Rylstone—M. Finch, cf; R. McKeown, c; E. Anderson, 2b; Lorne Anderson, lf; D .Barnum, 1b; G. Meiklejohn, ss; Earl Fairman, rf.

Petherick's—G. Petherick, lf; G. Meiklejohn, p; J. Lain, 3b; Grant Kerr, p and cf; T. Owens, c; R. Fry, 2b; Rev. Daniel, 1b; L. Anderson, p and cf; Roy Barnum, ss; Thomas Fry, 3b; Don. Kerr, rf.

Umpires—Lorne Barnum and B. Scriver.

Score by innings:

Petherick's .. .. 2 12 4586—34
Rylstone .. .. 0 0 0500—5

The married men still have a secret ambition to beat the bachelors, but in a short, snappy encounter following the main game, they were defeated 9 to 4.

Married Men—L. Barnum, G. Anderson, F. Bonnycastle, Fred Barnum, V. Irwin, L. Watson, R. Meiklejohn, Thomas Fry, and Rev. Mr. Daniel.

Bachelors — R. Barnum, G. Kerr, B. Scriver, R. Fry, L. Anderson, D. Barnum, C. Owens, G. Meiklejohn, and T. Owens.

A game which provided plenty of excitement was played in another part of the field, when the boys of Mr. Barnum's class defeated a girls' team by 27 to 16. The boys played with one hand only ,and many stunts were pulled off.

Girls—Beatrice Lain, Gladys Simpson, Evelyn Barnum, Reta Lain, Nellie Bennett, Gladys McKenzie, Alma Simpson, Elsie Forde, Jennie Fry, and Evelyn Bonnycastle.

Boys—Art. Petherick, Alf. Simpson, Gerald Barnum, Frank Naish, Fred Fry, Aylmer Peterick, George Brunton, Don. Watson, and Don. Barnum.

A number from this district are planning to take in the Bay of Quinte young people's excursion to Rochester on July 13th.

Rylstone Sunday School social will be held at S. G. Meiklejohn's on Thursday evening.

FOSSIL PRINTS OF GREAT AGE

Footmarks Believed Those of Animals Living Before Dinosaurs.

NO SKELETONS FOUND.

WASHINGTON, July 5 (Canadian Press). — Fossil foot prints of prehistoric animals impressed in rock slabs have been brought from the Grand Canyon of Colorado to the National Museum by Charles Gilmour, curator of Vertebrate Paleontology. The prints were made twenty-five to thirty million years ago, he said.

The animals weer probably reptiles or amphibians seven or eight feet long ,living before the dinosaur, according to Mr. Gilmour, although the canyon failed to reveal any skeleton to which the prints would conform.

AMERICANS LEAD AT RIDEAU COURTS

White and Thalheumer Win Respective Matches in

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6 (Canadian Press). — Quite the most successful day witnessed in an Ontario championship was the unanimous opinion of the large gallery on hand to view the many wonderful matches which were on the calendar at the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club here yesterday. It is a long time since the early stages of a provincial championship has produced such a high-class assortment of matches, in all events.

Lewis N. White, ranking American star, and his partner, Louis Thalheimer, both of Austin, Texas, continued to be the bright stars of the assembly, and quite dazzled everyone by their brilliant display. White won his match in the singles event against A. J. Belliveau, of Ottawa, as also did Thalheimer from J. N. Phillips, Cornwall, Ont., star, and former inter-collegiate player.

H. F. Wright, of Ottawa, won two events, and Redmond Quain, also of Ottawa, won from Brian Doherty, of Toronto, and later lost to P. Fontaine, of Montreal. A. Noble and D. H. Martin, of Newton, Mass., continued to win, their opponents being McAusland and Clegg respectively, each of Montreal. Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, was successful against his doubles partner, Angus Casails, also of Montreal. Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto, won after a battle, from J. M. Woods, of Ottawa. Another Toronto boy to come through was M. Margesson. Leroy Rennie, Toronto, won from V. Tupling, Ontario junior champion in 1926, in straight sets. Hilts, of Toronto, was another winner.

In the ladies' events, Miss E. Billings, from Montreal, defeated Mrs. G. R. Brown, of Toronto, and Miss G. Gallery, Montreal, defeated Miss Devine, of Ottawa. Mrs. H. R. W. Smith, Toronto, was a winner over Miss M. Parker, Montreal.

There were some very fine matches in the doubles event, in particular the win of Sam Hardy, New York, and H. F. Wright, of Ottawa, over M. W. Duthie and T. H. Sears, of Toronto. This match was very hard-fought, despite the short score. Bulmer-Clegg, of Montreal, had a hard battle to win from Noble-Martin, of Newton, Mass.

NEW CHAMPIONS AT WIMBLEDON

Fifty-First Wimbledon Tennis Tournament Brought To Close.

WIMBLEDON, July 6.—(Canadian Press).—The fifty first Wimbledon tennis tournament closed yesterday and the new champions are:

Men's singles—Henri Cochet.

Men's doubles—William T. Tilden and Francis Hunter.

Women's singles—Miss Helen Wills.

Women's doubles—Miss Helen Wills and Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

Mixed doubles—Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Francis T. Hunter.

The United States thus carried off four fifths of the final glory, but suffered a severe and significant defeat in the men's singles where Big Bill Tilden, the temperamental veteran champion lost out and where the crown now rests on the deserving brow of the little Henri Cochet of France.

The tournament indicated a decided rise in British tennis stock particularly among the women, the most astonishing upset of the whole season being the defeat of Mrs. Molla Mallory, champion of the United States, by Miss Betty Nuthall, the English school girl. The tennis of Miss Joan Fry, another youngster of the English courts, and of Miss Bobbie Heinie of South Africa was also a matter of comment among the wise ones of the Wimbledon stands.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California was the star of the final day's play. She won the women's doubles paired with Miss Wills against Miss Heine and Mrs. J. Peacock of South Africa. Then after a few minutes rest she returned to the court and with Francis Hunter raced through the semi-finals in the mixed double against Louis Raymond of South Africa and Miss Heine. Later she appeared to win the mixed doubles final against L. A. Godfree and Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree of England.

MAINTAIN LEAD IN LEAGUE RACE

Pirates Overwhelm Cards 14-2 While Chicago Defeat Cincinnati.

PHILLIES WIN.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh maintained its half game lead in the National League race by overwhelming the visiting St. Louis team yesterday, 14 to 2, while the Chicago Cubs were defeating Cincinnati. The Pirates' triumph gave them a clean sweep of the three game series and marked St. Louis' sixth consecutive defeat. Aldridge allowed the champions but five hits and fanned six.

Chicago closed its stand on the home grounds yesterday by registering its seventh victory in a row in downing Cincinnati 8 to 5. The Cubs concentrated their attack in two innings, driving Luque off the hill in the eighth. Osborn also was driven off the mound in the fifth inning when the Reds scored four runs.

A two run rally in the ninth at Philadelphia enabled the Phillies to break their six game losing streak and defeat the Boston Braves 5 to 4. The triumph also gave Lester Sweetland, rookie southpaw of the home team, victory in his big league debut. Fred Leach and Doc Farrell hit home runs, the latter driving Mann home ahead of him in the eighth.

EXAMINER LOSE TO LOCK WORKS

Lock Company Team Takes Second Game of Post Season Series.

SCORE 16 TO 6.

The Lock Works were too much for the Examiner boys in the second game of the post season series held in Confederation Square last night. A blow up in the third gave the Lock Company team five runs, and they won the game 16 to 6. The three pitchers used delivered good ball, but on the part of the Examiner costly errors meant runs for the winners.

Waddell struck out nine and walked seven, allowing eight hits. H. Dormer, who replaced Simmons in the seventh, got the only strike-out for the newsboys. Simmons walked four and allowed eleven hits. Dormer, who relieved him, walked one man and allowed one hit, but two runs were scored in the ninth by errors at third base.

The heavy hitters on the Examiner team were unable to connect, and the team was somewhat weakened by the absence of Bradshaw on third base, but on the night's play the winners got enough earned runs to win the game.

"Scotty" Galbraith was robbed of a nice home run in the fourth when he failed to touch second base in making the circuit run.

To-night the Belmonts and C.G.E. meet in the first game of the Taylor Cup finals, and all fans are assured of a real game. Both these teams were given strenuous contests to win their group.

The line-up:

Lock Works—Weese, ss; Crary, 2b; Nichols, lf; Galbraith, rf; Dobson, c; Holland, mf; Westbrook, 3b; Smith, 1b; Waddell, p; with Jones, Ramsden and Powell relieving in the outfield.

ELAINE DELANEY IN RECORD SWIM

Young Girl Sets Mark in 200-Meter Back-Stroke.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Miss Elaine Delaney, sixteen-year-old naiad of the Women's S.A., rose to the ranks of the world's record holders at a swimming meet in the lagoon of Briarcliff Lodge at Briarcliff Manor Monday.

Miss Delaney won from scratch a 200-meter backstroke handicap over a 50-meter course and returned 3:16 3-5, shattering the world's long course standard of 3:26, listed to the credit of Miss Sybil Bauer.

In a 1,000-meter free style invitation handicap Miss Ethel McGary defeated by nearly 50 yards her only opponent, Miss Betty Burgess, of Cleveland, all-around champion of Ohio, who had a 40-second start on her, in the striking time of 16:00 2-5. As no international standard for this classic distance is registered at present, bracket will be asked for the performance.

UZCUDUN REINSTATED.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(Canadian Press).—Paulino Uzcudun was reinstated today by the State Athletic Commission which simultaneously approved a 15-round match between the Spanish heavyweight and Harry Wills at Ebbetts Field July 13.

YANKEES WIN FROM SENATORS

Lazzeri Breaks Deadlock In Ninth By Slamming Circuit Blow.

BREAK EARLY LEAD.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(Canadian Press).—The New York Yankees tripped up the Senators for the third straight time yesterday by 7 to 6, Tony Lazzeri bringing the game to a dramatic close by slamming for the circuit after two were out in the ninth, snapping a deadlock. The Hugmen waged an uphill battle as Washington got off to a five run lead in the first inning. Goslin hit a home run in the first inning with two aboard and Ruel banged a homer with none on in the third.

The Browns landed on three Detroit Tiger pitchers for twenty hits, many for extra bases and won at St. Louis, 17 to 8. Gaston not only went the route for the Browns but got three hits including a home run with one man on. He was almost invincible except in the eighth when Gehringer hit for the circuit with the bases loaded.

Regan's double with two out after singles with Shaner and Todt knocked in the run which enabled Boston to defeat Philadelphia 6 to 5 in the last of the ninth inning at Boston. In the first of the ninth Welzer was knocked out of the box by the Athletics, who scored two runs and tied the game with none out. Harriss went in as relief pitcher and retired the side without further damage. The Red Sox made 16 hits, Todt leading with a home run and three singles.

MENIE DEFEATS MOUNT PLEASANT

Gets Back In Running By Surprise Win Away From Home.

BURNBRAE, July 6.— The Menie softball team came to life with a bang on Monday evening when they defeated Mount Pleasant on the latter's diamond by a score of 24 to 4. While Pierce, the Mount Pleasant pitching ace was below form, the Menie victory was due to their good fielding than to any other cause. In some games of late the Menie fileders have not been up to form but in this encounter they redeemed themselves. Every fly ball seemed to feel the magnetism of the Menie hands, and grounders received the strictest attention.

This win puts Menie on a .500 basis again and with two games to play, the team has a fighting chance to get into the play-offs.

On Friday evening, they visit Glen Ross and will bend every effort to defeat that strong aggregation. On Monday next, Mount Pleasant is here for the final game of the season and may upset the dope by putting Menie out of the charmed circle.

Batters Partners In Training Grind

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Saratoga Lake, N.Y., July 6.—(Canadian Press).—Yesterday was "socking day" in the training camp of Jack Dempsey where the former challenger of heavyweights is drilling for his drive back to the title throne.

Speed had its place too in yesterday's six rounds of boxing but the fire slowly returning to Dempsey's attack could not be held in restraint. In twenty seconds of one round Jack sent Eddie McMullin, rugged New York middleweight flying through the ropes and into the laps of newspapermen with a terrific left hook to the chin. The punch travelled less than a foot yet Eddie had to be carried to the dressing room where he dozed until the day's work was done.

Dave Shade is weaving style, emulating the type of attack Jack Sharkey is expected to employ in the Yankee stadium July 21, kept Dempsey bobbing in and out, ripping punches from all angles, but it was only in the final minute that Jack really caught up with the coast boy. Then he nailed Dave in a corner, and drove three six-inch left hooks to the chin that left the flashy middleweight feeling his way from the ring.

Members of the congregations of several English churches are permitted to ask the pastor questions during the sermon.

A Merciless Test!
20,000 miles in five weeks

Proves Stamina of NEW STAR CAR

Your Dealer has full particulars of this test. Ask him for them.

TWENTY thousand miles of day and night driving have again proven the stamina of the New Star Car. Almost continuously, in fair weather and foul, over roads that were good and roads that were bad, through mud-bogs and wet, sticky clay—this gruelling test was maintained and no mercy was shown.

Running at high speed or making its way slowly through the mire, this stock Sedan was subjected to infinitely greater strain than would ever be experienced in ordinary driving.

Thus, once more is demonstrated the fact that there is no automobile of any make, size or price that offers greater value per dollar, than the New Star Car.

A Tribute

It is a Satisfaction

and a credit to the people of the Dominion of Canada on the Sixtieth Anniversary of Confederation to know that the memory of the Fathers of Confederation has been kept in the minds of the public by splendid public monuments as well as private ones. The names of those patriotic and farseeing statesmen will go down in the history of their country and will be gratefully remembered by all citizens of Canada.

It would seem timely to remind all, what a place in every country monuments hold, so that our deceased relatives have their last resting place marked.

We invite anyone interested to call and see our stock of monuments. Our prices are low and we have the latest designs and guarantee our workmanship.

UNION REFUSES ACTION ON BILL

Condemns Trades Union Act But Will Follow Constitutional Methods.

RAILWAYMEN MEET.

CARLISLE, Eng., July 6 (Canadian Press).—While whole-heartedly condemning the Government's Trades Union Bill, designed to curb illegal strikes and lockouts, the National Union of Railwaymen in conference here has decided by a large vote to accept the advice of J. H. Thomas, general secretary of the union, to follow a strictly constitutional course and ignore those members of the Union who were urging industrial action to upset the Baldwin Government.

Mr. Thomas said he had not met any large employer of labor who was in favor of the bill.

"LET ME DIE THE DEATH OF THE RIGHTEOUS."

let me die—
The death of the righteous, dear Lord,
Like His, let my last moments be,
Welcome and sweet, is the Seraphim's song;
The summons, that sets my soul free.

When the end of life's troublesome journey is reached,
And the dark swelling Jordan is nigh,
Oh! then! Be thou near, and Thy voice, let me hear;
Whispering, be not afraid, it is I.

I come, from earth's sorrow, and sadness, and sin,
To set Thee, forever, free;
And take thee to dwell, with the ransomed above,
In mansions of glory, with one.

The life of the righteous, God grant me to live—
Loving, seeking, and serving, Thee, now—
Else, how may I hope to be like him at last,
When death's dews are damp on my brow.

I must work in Thy vineyard, while life's transient span,
In mercy Thou deignest to spare,
And faithfully, follow Christ's footsteps below,
Bear the cross, if the crown, I would wear.

Assist me to grow, both in knowledge and grace,
Until, pure, as He, is pure. So shall I,
Find death, but the radiant pathway, that leads To Thy blissful abode in the sky.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

FOUR STORES ARE BURNED

Entire Business District Of Schumacher Threatened By Fire.

RESIDENTS ESCAPE.

TIMMINS, Ont., July 6. — Four stores in the heart of the Schumacher business district were gutted early yesterday when fire broke out in the rear of Sun Lee's Laundry, and rapidly spread to Arnott's outfitting store, Wong's Restaurant, the Taylor Pipe Store, and the Post Office. Three families, residing in the upper stories of these buildings lost all their houshold goods and personal possessions, and but for the barking of dogs which woke up some of the neighbors, it is possible that loss of life would have resulted.

The buildings which were of wooden construction, were quickly transformed into a blazing mass, throwing out sparks and heat which at one time threatened to destroy the whole business area. Unable to cope with the conflagration the local volunteer brigade sought the assistance of the South Porcupine and Timmins brigades who arrived at the fire forty five minutes after the blaze started.

Seven lines of hose were played in the burning mass, but not untill the four stores were razed and the rear of the Post Office seriously damaged, did the fire fighters get complete control of the situation. Sun Lee and his assistant were compelled to jump from their second story bedroom to the sidewalk in order to effect their escape, and Mr. and Mrs. Wong and their six children were got out of the burning building in their night atttire, Mr. and Mrs. Garthwaite, and their young child, who occupied the apartment over the empty Taylor store also were compelled to escape before the flames in their night clothes.

The heavy plate glass windows of the ElDorado Hotel on the opposite side of the street were shattered by the heat, while residents two blocks away were compelled to play on their homes with garden hose to put out the flying sparks that dropped on their roofs. Late in the afternoon fire men were still playing one line of hise on the smouldering wood work.

It is presumed that the conflagration started in the drying room of the Chinese laundry. A garage containing a roadster, which stood about twenty feet to the rear of the Post Office was also destroyed, and a blackened mass of tangled metal is all that is left of the car. This is the fourth serious fire in the Porcupine camp this year. Estimated damage is believed to be in the nieghbourhood of $25,000, half of which is covered by insurance.

Postmaster Kerr rescued a large number of letters that were in the rear of his premises, when the flames were eating their way through the rear door and walls. Throwing the mail into bags he rushed them over to the town hall. Damage to the Post Office is confined to the rear room and the rear portion of the upper floors.

IN POLICE COURT.

This morning a local boy, 17 years old, pleaded guilty before Justices of the Peace Eastwood and Adams, to being intoxicated in a public place, and was fined ten dollars and costs, or 30 days' imprisonment. The costs amounted to $10.75.

The boy told a story of getting his liquor from a man named James Mahone who has a permit. The police will seek to find Mahone and hail him for selling liquor to minors.

Post Toasties, served with raspberries, make a delightful dish. Try it!

Double Good and Double Crisp Are These Delicious Corn Flakes

"THEY'RE Double-Good and Double-Crisp" sums up, in one sentence, the reasons why millions prefer Post Toasties, the Double-Crisp Corn Flakes which stay crisp in milk or cream.

Get a package of Post Toasties from your grocer, or write for free test package and make the milk-or-cream test for crispness and flavor. Note the crispness of the golden flakes when you dip your spoon into the bowl. See how their delicious flavor lingers, how their crispness lasts, even when swimming in milk or cream. J. J. DUFFUS LTD. ACHIEVES THE ONE HUNDRETH MARK

Record Of Phenominal Sales In Two Months. Of Three New Popular Cars.

What is considered phenomenal automobile sales has just been accomplished by J. J. Duffus Limited since taking over the Willys-Knight, Whippet, and Falcon-Knight Motor Cars in reaching the one hundred mark in exactly two months.

This is concrete evidence of the growing popularity of these fine motor cars, the activity of and the confidence placed in the firm of J. J. DUFFUS LIMITED, which has established a record beyond the expectations of both the manufacturers and the new local sales organization.

During the past two months the buying public have been well informed that this year's reduction in the price of Knight engine cars placed them at their disposal at a figure even less than most other makes of cars of similar size and type which has been made possible by the enormous increase in production of 111% over last year.

THE KNIGHT.

Mr. Duffus states that: "To-day experienced motorists are turning to the Knight engine for efficiency, power, permanent quietness, and freedom from carbon annoyance and mechanical trouble, and a smoothness in performance attained in no other car. It is a smoothness which continues throughout the entire life of the car and increases with its use. Primarily this is due to the elimination of complicated noisy valve parts, simplicity of the Knight sleeve-valve principle, and the additional factor of a seven-bearing crank shaft.

"Two sleeves working smoothly, silently, up and down, one within the other in a protective film of oil, make the Knight engine the quietest type of power plant ever developed. The silent Knight engine has 125 less moving parts to wear out and cause trouble. To those who have never experienced the satisfaction of riding in a car free from distasteful noise and damaging vibration, the silence of the Willys- and Falcon-Knight will prove an entirely new motoring sensation.

THE WHIPPET

"Just as the new Whippet satisfied 111,000 purchasers in one year, so too has this most popular car assisted in accomplishing the one hundred mark for J. J. DUFFUS LIMITED in the past two months. The Whippet has met with greater public approval than any car that was ever produced to the motoring public since it was first placed on the market. Easy riding, greater pick-up, phenomenal speed and power for steep grades and straightways, four wheel brakes and complete equipment, together with holding the world's record for economy in gasoline consumption, has completely turned the minds of those desiring a low priced car.

"5,205 owners in a nation-wide economy test averaged 46.3 miles per gallon under normal driving conditions.

"Its stamina was proved when it climbed from Death's Valley, 284 feet below sea level, to the crest of the White Mountain, 13,150 feet above sea level, the highest spot ever reached by an automobile on the Pacific Coast."

DISTRICT CHURCHES

LAKEFIELD, July 6. — Religious thanksgiving services for the blessings of God on the Dominion of Canada during the past and intercession for a continuance of the same in the future were held in all the churches of Lakefield on Sunday. The plan to have one big open-air service in the afternoon was not deemed feasible, and each church held its own service.

St. John's Church.

In St. John's Church, the special service in the prayer book for Dominion Day and great national occasions was used, with the special psalms, prayers, lessons, collect, epistle and gospel. Rev. W. J. Creighton preached at both services on the patriotic theme, pointing out the goodness of God in giving us our great heritage, and urging that the Christian ideals of the British Empire be maintained.

Regent Street Church.

The church was decorated with flags, flowers, and bunting, and presented an inspiring appearance. The adult choir rendered a beautiful and appropriate anthem, and the juvenile choir, gowned in white surplices, each with a garland of maple leaves over the shoulder and carrying a flag, sang "Follow the Gleam." The pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, took as his morning theme, "The Pyramid of Empire," illustrating his points by a chalk talk, and building a pyramid on the blackboard within a map outline of the British Isles, which pyramid was built from blocks of national ideals gathered from various sources, or carved out of the deeper experiences, and finally capped by Canada's achievement as a partner and companion in Empire building. At the evening service the subject was: "Then and Now," in which conditions of Canadian life at the time of Confederation were reviewed briefly, and compared with the life of to-day, showing how Canada has advanced from the humble position of a British colony until she has to-day become a great nation with the approval and admiration of a proud Motherland. A special feature of the service was a patriotic quartette sung by Messrs. Kelsey and Burrows, Miss Frances Fairbairn and Mrs. McMillan. The attendance was good at both services.

Knox Church.

The church was decorated with flags and patriotic emblems, and the service used was the form issued for the great national festival of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. Rev. T. M. Wesley gave appropriate sermons at both services.

GILMOUR CHURCH HELD FESTIVAL

Speeches, Readings, Solos and Band Selections Comprised Programme.

The annual strawberry festival of the Gilmour Memorial Church attracted a good crowd to the church grounds last night. After supper the assembly gathered in front of the church steps and listened to a fine programme.

Short speeches suitable to the occasion were delivered by Rev. W. S. Edgar, pastor of the church, Rev. J. L. Harton, pastor of Park Street Baptist Church and Adjutant Ham, of the Salvation Army Temple.

Miss McGee sang two solos very acceptably. Bert French and Gerald Haig gave readings, and several fine recitations were given by Miss Wright. The Junior Band of the Salvation Army was in attendance, and played a large number of selections. An instrumental duet given by Bandmaster Al Craigen and his son formed an interesting item of the programme.

Returning Home From Jubilee Service Mrs. Allin Fell on Sidewalk.

ON HUNTER STREET.

While returning home from the concert in Victoria Park on Sunday night, Mrs. Allin, Murray Street, fell and broke her hip, in front of the Roy Studio on Hunter Street.

Mrs. Allin had been looking at the photographs of the floats taken on Friday, and on turning away from the window, ran into another person. She, being a very elderly lady, fell and broke her leg near the hip.

WEDDING BELLS.

GOOD—SUCEE.

Holy Trinity Church, lovely with orange blossoms, roses and palms, was the scene of a pretty wedding ceremony on Wednesday afternoon, June twenty-ninth, at two-thirty o'clock, when Gladys Viola, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sucee, formerly of Peterborough became the bride of Newton A. Good of Kingston, son of the late Nelson H Good and Mrs. Good of Kitchener, Rev. A. C. Calder, rector, officiating.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Effie Killop wore her bridal gown of white satin with a tight sleeveless bodice, and bouffant skirt and overskirt of Chantilly; the long tulle veil fell from a close fitting cap of Chantilly caught up with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Mary Ridley was the pretty attendant gowned in a French model of peach georgette, with cream lace and large picture hat of mauve mohair and carried Ophelia roses. Mr. Stewart Good of Kitchener, cousin of the groom, officiated as best man. The ushers were Mr. George Kennedy and Mr. Arthur Edward.

During the signing of the register, Miss Veva Orr in peach taffeta and organdy, sang "At Dawning."

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Forest street, where the bride and groom received with Mrs. Sucee gowned in rose beige georgette black hat, and wearing a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley, and also with the groom's mother, Mrs. Good, wearing a black georgette gown, black and white hat, and a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley. The assistants at the reception were four girl friends of the bride, Misses Hazel Rice Elsie Carder, Veva Orr and Thelma Good of Kitchener.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beaded handbag, to the maid of honor a fancy vanity case, and the organist silver salt and pepper shakers; to the soloist a brooch, to best man a tuxedo set, and to the ushers white gold cuff links.

The out of town guests included Dr. and Mrs. Milton Good, Miss Thelma Good, Matser Ross Good, Mr. Stewart Good of Kitchener; Mr and Mrs. William Baxter of London.

For travelling the bride donned a black embroidered taffeta model and large pink silk mohair hat, black slippers and grey hose. The young couple left on the 5.50 C.N.R. amid showers of confetti and good wishes of their friends, and will make their home in Kingston.—Chatham Daily News.

WALKER—SCOTT.

The marriage was solemnized at half-past one o'clock to-day, by Rev. J. D. Richardson, at St. James United Church, of Alice Scott of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Scott of England, and Reginald Edward Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker, 262 Dalhousie Street.

The bride wore a gown of rosewood crepe with a white hat, and carried a bouquet of carnations. Attendants were a sister and brother of the bridegroom, Miss Marie Walker and Mr Herbert Walker, the former wearing a white dress with white hat and carrying a bouquet of carnations.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon to a large number of friends was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, where the bride's table was centered by the wedding cake sprinkled with silver petals. Later, Mr. and Mrs Walker left for a trip to Toronto, to reside in the city on their return. The bride, who received a large number of useful gifts, wore a green travelling coat, trimmed with white fur.

WATER CIRCUS IS MIDWAY FEATURE

Dive Into Flaming Tank. One of Startling Feats.

WATER CIRCUS ... ...

Miller Bros. Exposition Shows which are to exhibit at Exhibition Park all next week, will bring to this city the greatest exposition of novelties, freaks, wild animals, curiosities, and congress of fat folks ever to exhibit here.

The feature attraction on the Midway will be the Water Circus, with a galaxy of diving and swimming champions, clowns, funmakers, mermaids, and bathing beauties. One of the features in this attraction is a thrilling and sensational high dive from an elevated platform suspended one hundred and five feet in mid air into a shallow tank of water while entirely aflame with burning gasoline by Captain Earl McDonald. Another thrilling feature is a double-back somersault from the elevated platform into the shallow tank.

Other attractions are the Monkey Speedway, Circus Side Show, Athletic Stadium, Follies' Review, Georgia Minstrels, Auto Speedway, Freak Animal Show, Magic City, Pirates' Den, Illusion Show, Filipino Midgets, the smallest living people in the world, standing twenty-two and twenty-four inches in height respectively, "Happy Jack" Eckert, the fattest man in the world, weighing seven hundred and fifty-eight pounds.

These are only a very few of the shows and exhibitions offered. Among the riding devices are the Hey-Dey, Dodgem, Tilt-a-Whirl, Magic Carpet, Rocky Road to Dublin, Whirligig and Dangler all new and recent foreign importations. Other devices are the Caterpillar, the ride with a lasting thrill, Merry Mix-up, Ferris Wheel, and Merry-Go-Round.

At 3.20 yesterday afternoon, the Fire Brigade responded to 93 Stewart Street where sparks from a chimney had caused the roof to catch fire. Slight damage resulted.

Two minutes after the former alarm was sent in, an explosion in the laboratory at the Canadian General caused a small blaze which necessitated the help of the firemen.

At noon today, two cars, a Ford touring and a McLaughlin-Buick sedan, collided at the corner of Charlotte and Rubidge Streets. The left front axle and fender of the Ford were broken. Constable Puffer was called to the scene of the accident.

DEATH.

COOMBS.—On Sunday morning, July 3rd, 1927, at the residence of her parents, "Glen Stewart," Kingston Road, Toronto, Ethel Marguerite, beloved wife of Frederick J. Coombs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ames, and grand-daughter of the late Senator George A. Cox.

CANNOT COME TO AGREEMENT WITH UNITED STATES UNTIL DEFINITE PROPOSITION MADE

John W. Defoe Gives Address at Chicago Concerning St. Lawrence Waterways.

HAVE SAME ORIGIN.

Understanding of American Mentality Arose From More Than Geographical Relations.

CHICAGO, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Canada cannot come to an agreement with the United States concerning the St. Lawrence waterways until a definite proposition is made by Washington, according to John W. Dafoe, editor of The Manitoba Free Press, who spoke at the Norman Wait Harris Foundation Institute at the University of Chicago yesterday afternoon.

"When such a proposition is made, Canadian opinion in favor of the project would manifest itself with sufficient force to ensure the necessary reciprocal action by Canada upon terms mutually satisfactory," said Mr. Dafoe.

Canada's position as an interpreter between the United States and Great Britain is due to the fact that both countries are the children of the old British Empire, the speaker said. 'Canada's understanding of American mentality arose from something more than her geographical relation to the United States," Mr. Dafoe confined. "We are largely derived as to blood and mentality from the British American which was destroyed by the revolution. Before Confederation gave us the name we now prize, we called ourselves British-American. That is what we are, and this explains many things: why our social and business customs bear the strong resemblance that they do; why we get along so well in our personal relations even though in our corporate capacity as nations we have at times our differences. It is the explanation too, of what is to many a mystery: why with these multiplying contacts in social and business relationships we Canadians remain nevertheless a distinct and different people, particularly in matter of national and political thinking. The explanation of that difference goes back nearly 150 years when forty thousand Americans turned their faces northward, accepting exile in the forest wilderness of Canada for an ideal, a conviction, a faith that for them and their descendants and for the new country they planned to build there must remain unbroken British citizenship and devotion to the British Crown."

Canada as Interpreter

Canada as an interpreter between the United States and Britain has done on incalculable service, Mr. Dafoe said. He pointed to the success of Canada in the Imperial conference of 1921 in preventing the renewal of the understanding with Japan, favored by Britain and Australia.

FUNERAL HELD OF U.S. AVIATOR

Small Town in Michigan Mourns Death of Adopted Son.

KILLED AT OTTAWA.

FENTON, Mich, July 7 (Canadian Press).—An aviator's town paid its last honors to an adopted son, when the funeral of Lieutenant J. Thad Johnson, Selfridge Field flier, killed in Ottawa while acting as an escort to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was held here, the home of his widow.

This little town of 2,500 population has perhaps paid the highest toll to aviation of any town its size in the country, citizens recalled, as Fenton yesterday mourned for the seventh time within fourteen years the tragic end of a man who gave his life in pursuing the business of aviation.

Church Filled

Only a part of the public was able to find seats yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church, where the funeral was held. The seating capacity is 350, and half the auditorium was reserved for members of the Masonic Order. Selfridge Field men, intimate friends and the family.

Pall bearers were selected from a group of Selfridge Field men and Fenton Masons, all close friends of the dead flier. A group of planes from Selfridge Field flew over the village during the rites. Rev. John Kitching officiated at the funeral and Monsignor Patrick R. Dunnigan, pastor of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Flint, a world war chaplain, represented the army at the services.

Bremerton, Wash., with a population of about 12,000 is said to be the largest city in the United States not served directly by a railroad.

Colored motion pictures are being taken by means of a 30,000-watt incandescent bulb, the largest ever made.

Two Couples Wed In Soaring Plane

BERLIN, July 7.—(Circling one thousand feet above the Kaiser Wilhelm Church to-day two couples were married in an airplane while a phonograph played the wedding march.

The bridegrooms were Herman Rahskopf, advertising chief, and Eduard Vogt, chief engineer, of Lufthansa, a German commercial airplane company.

SNEAK THIEVES ENTER GEORGE STREET HOUSE

$117 Mysteriously Abstracted From Home of Mrs. E. M. Vickers Sunday Evening.

ATTENDING CHURCH.

Other Residents Have Expressed Belief Undesirables Were in Vicinity.

One hundred and seventeen dollars were mysteriously abstracted from the home of Mrs. E. M .Vickers, 708 George Street, on Sunday evening.

Along with her daughter, Florence, Mrs. Vickers attended church on Sunday and later went to Victoria Park for the combined services. Returning about 9.30 they found everything apparently in the same condition as when they had left, but around twelve o'clock, Mrs. Vickers, on examining her purse, discovered that nine dollars had been taken from it. Searching further the discovery was made that a box containing $108 for rent and taxes had been rifled.

No Traces of Ransacking

There were no traces of any ransacking and some loose silver which was in the house was untouched. Several other residents in the neighborhood have expressed the belief that undesirable characters were in the vicinity on Sunday, one family being awakened during the night by the unaccountable falling of a stick which had lain all day against a window looking on to George Street. Others report hearing whispering among the bushes on the evening of the robbery.

The affair has been reported to the police and the matter is being investigated.

JAPAN OPPOSES PROPOSALS FOR MORE CRUISERS

Conference Called For Limitation, Not Increase, Says Spokesman.

TAKES STRONG STAND.

Tension at Geneva Relieved and New Angle Taken For Discussion.

TOKIO, July 7.—(Canadian Press.)—Admiral Saito, chief Japanese delegate at the Geneva Naval Conference, was instructed to oppose vigorously British proposals for an increase in cruiser tonnage, it was explained to-day by a spokesman for the navy department, because the object of the conference is to decrease and not increase armaments. The spokesman declared also that Japan would continue to insist that the 5-5-3 ratio for warships was not acceptable.

Japan's Stand Discussed.

GENEVA, July 7. — (Canadian Press.)—Japan's flat-footed declaration that she is for all possible limitation of tonnage on the cruiser class of warships, thereby taking an even stronger stand than United States, who had offered to raise the maximum tonnage to four hundred thousand tons in order to appease Great Britain, was the dominant topic of discussion of the three power naval limitation conference to-day.

The fact that the technical experts, who yesterday agreed to disagree and did not meet, were called for discussion to-day, was taken as indicating that the Japanese announcement, while staggering British hopes, had cleared the atmosphere enough to permit re-approaching the cruiser problem from another angle.

Calm To-day.

GENEVA, July 7.— (Canadian Press.)—Calm came to-day to the tripartite naval conference after yesterday's hours of storm with British, United States and Japanese delegations armed with pencils, trying to devise some solution for the cruiser problem which will prevent the break-up of the conference.

The British spokesman said to-day that both the United States and Japanese experts appear to have misunderstood the British figures and that agreement could be reached if everyone would realize that Great Britain does not intend to include projected building programmes in her cruiser figures but only ships actually appropriated for.

Indications now exist that the British have been impressed with the Japanese advocacy of the United States' move for low cruiser limitation.

Pessimism at Geneva.

Failure to surmount difficulties at the tri-partite naval conference has engineered a pessimistic atmosphere here and the feeling is gaining ground that the negotiations will result in considerable increase in naval construction.

The greatest secrecy is being observed by the delegates from three countries regarding prolonged private conversations by the heads of the delegations on the cruiser problem, but apparently difficulties are not conferring privately with American naval experts, though no formal meeting of the technical committee has yet been fixed.

FIRE AT ROCKAWAY.

Five Hundred People Driven From Tent Colony at Resort.

ROCKAWAY BEACH N. Y., July 7 —Canadian Press—Five hundred residents of the tent and bungalow colonies were routed from their homes by a fire that swept a three block area on the water front here to-day. No one was injured. The loss was estimated at two hundred thousand dollars.

French War Ace, Paralyzed Since 1918, Walks When Byrd Visits Invalides

PARIS, July 7.—(Canadian Press).—There was almost a touch of the miraculous in the visit today of Commander Byrd and the crew of the transatlantic plane America, to the Hotel Des Invalides, the home of France's war wounded.

For the first time since he was brought down at Verdun in 1918, Captain Charles Legendre, paralysed French aviator, stood straight on his feet and walked.

"Your courage, despite overwhelming odds, and your splendid exploits have given me renewed courage," Captain Legendre told Commander Byrd, his emotion plainly visible. "I will accompany you."

He arose hesitatingly, groped for a moment for support, and then with the plainest effort of will took a faltering step forward. Another followed, and the war hero, his arm resting lightly on the shoulder of the trans Atlantic flyer, walked slowly but surely toward the entrance of Napoleon's tomb. Tears glistened in many eyes as the little party, with Lieut. Noville, Bert Acosta, and Bernt Balchen hovering anxiously about the faltering French Ace, visited the tomb and then returned to the grounds of invalides, where anxious hands pushed a wheel chair forward for Legendre.

The Americans went to the Invalides at the invitation of the Alles Brises—"broken wings"—the organization of war wounded birdmen.

American Bride For Prince of Wales Suggested In New Zealand Legislature

WELLINGTON, N.Z., July 7 (United Press).—Proceedings in the Legislative Council Chamber here today were somewhat enlivened by Sir Thomas Mackenzie, former High Commissioner, who during a discussion of the Prince of Wales' matrimonial prospects, suggested that the Prince seek an American bride. Such an alliance, Sir Thomas declared, would be a great step toward cementing Anglo-American friendship and would also serve to shift the centre of the British Empire in the direction of the United States.

Why, he asked, should the heir to the British throne confine his search for a bride to the Continent, where there were as good families available in America as in Europe?

ROTARY CAMP BOYS SETTLED

Quietness of First Night in Camp Surprises Director.

WORK RESPONSIBLE.

Camp has opened a "little chilly around the edges" perhaps, but for all that the weather has lacked the jolly good times that the campers have been having has in some measure made up. The boys enjoyed the ride to the camp much more than the did the drivers of the busses. One driver rather ruefully confessed that it was a little rougher than he had anticipated.

Monday morning was spent in getting settled and—for some—in getting acquainted with the camp grounds. Some had to have a dip and all are deeply engrossed in the hunt for the hidden treasure. To date about ten of the fifteen treasure clues have been located.

On Monday afternoon a hike was made to a nearby farm where the straw mattresses were filled, ready to be drawn by a team to the camp in the evening.

After supper the "Old Timers" took on the new campers in a baseball game, and won by a very comfortable score.

Due possibly to the various combinations which went to make up a busy day the first night of the 1927 camp goes on record as being the most quiet ever encountered by the camp director. Sleepy boys just somehow could not make fun and so the whole camp retired early and overslept an hour in the morning. It was too windy for a camp fire on the shore so the great fire place in the dining hall was stoked high and around it the boys gathered to hear the story of "The Yellow Streak."

Tuesday finds ball teams chosen, and the routine of camp well under way. In the afternoon the new power boat towed one of the freighters to Young's Point, taking all campers.

PLAYGROUNDS OPEN MONDAY

Conducted Under General Supervision of Attendance Officer James Abraham.

SOFTBALL LEAGUES.

Commencing next Monday, the school playgrounds of the city will be opened for six weeks under the general supervision of the Attendance Officer James Abraham.

Along with Miss Rowe, Mr. Abraham will exercise personal supervision at Central grounds. Ken Goheen and Miss MacDonald will be in charge at King Edward school grounds, and Ralph Knox and Miss Batten at Queen Alexandra.

Facilities of almost every description are provided—softball, merry-go-rounds, swings, sand pits, basketball, volley ball, and twice a week, Mr. Abraham will give instructions in swimming.

As in former years, two softball leagues, a senior and a junior, will be formed. King Edward school is at present the holder of the senior leadership and Central of the junior.

Arrangements will be made for the holding of picnics and the session will be wound up with a great field day.

All these facilities for juvenile amusement and development are entirely the provision of the Board of Education.

ENGAGEMENT RUMORED.

Italian Duke To Marry Belgian Princess, Court Circles Hear.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 7. Canadian Press. — Court circles had a report to-day that the engagement of the Italian Duke of Apulia, son of the Duke of Aosta, and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, is to be announced soon. The royal family and the government have neither denied nor confirmed the report.

500 TAKE OUT DRIVERS' CARDS

Good Showing Made in First Two Days of the Issue Here.

FEW FOR INSTRUCTION.

Over five hundred permits for automobile drivers under the new law have been issued in the first two days of sale, which the secretary states is a fairly good percentage, as it is not necessary to obtain a license until the 19th of this month, and the permits were not obtainable until the Fourth.

The departmental regulation stating that each applicant must sign his or her individual permit has saved a great deal of confusion and the extra help employed makes it quite easy for the public to obtain their permits immediately after the form is made out.

There is still some confusion in the minds of drivers of automobiles as to the difference between a chauffeur's permit and a driver's permit. The chauffeur's license is covered by Part 3 of the Highway Traffic Act, whereas an operator's license is covered by Part 12 of the same Act. A chauffeur's license does not require an operator's license in addition.

Very few sixty day instruction permits have been issued. Those to whom instruction permits are issued should be examined for efficiency, and apply to Toronto for a further sixty day permit for which no further fee is required.

Practically all of the persons who have obtained the new licenses approve of them as a means of reducing accidents.

CABINET HAVE DECISION NOW

Must Instruct Delegates To Geneva Conference on Next Step.

MEETINGS FAIL.

GENEVA, July 7. — (Canadian Press).—Tri partite naval conference with Great Britain, United States and Japan participating, is at a standstill as far as Geneva is concerned. The next word lies with the governments in Washington, London ,and Tokyo. It is they who must help or even direct the solution of the cruiser problem which, if not settled, means collapse of the conference.

Apparently Washington must tell London that the new maximum cruiser figures submitted by Hugh Gibson embody the last upward concession of United States, if Wahington really means this, and Tokyo must let Downing Street know how Japan regards cruiser limitations.

The situation today is that the United States delegation has told the British that limitation can only be achieved by keeping the cruiser strength within four hundred thousand tons, which is some fifty thousand tons higher than the present U.S. cruiser strength.

Private meetings yesterday between Hugh S. Gibson, United States delegate, and Viscount Ishii, of Japan, and later between Mr. Gibson and W. C. Bridgeman, the British delegate, failed to improve the extending critical situation confronting the tripartite naval conferende.

Driver Looks Back; Car Runs Into Pole

Driving on the Lakefield Road on Sunday last, a Lindsay man who allowed his attention to be distracted for a moment, turned his head to look backwards, and immediately found himself in the ditch with his car, which in its progress struck a telephone pole.

There were five other occupants of the car. Fortunately the vehicle was travelling slowly—about 8 miles an hour, and the entire party escaped serious injury, the driver suffering some slight bruises.

Beyond some damage to the bumper, the car was free from wreckage.

TO MAKE FILM AT CONVENTION OF EGG CIRCLE

Proceedings of English Line Association Will Be in Movies.

PROGRESS IN DISTRICT.

Many Flourishing Poultry Farms Found in This Part of Ontario.

As an evidence of the intense interest with which Provincial and Federal Government are studying agricultural development in Peterborough and neighboring counties, two Government representatives, one from the Ontario administration, and another from Ottawa, will journey to Campbellford for the purpose of taking films of the proceedings of the English Line Egg Association. This statement was given out in an interview accorded today to The Examiner by F. H. Buker, the Dominion Government poultry expert, who has been in the city for the past two days.

Good Location for Poultry

"Eastern Ontario is the best location in the Dominion for the raising and marketing of eggs and poultry," said Mr. Buker. "Farmers here are within easy access of the two great markets, Montreal and Toronto, and have thus a tremendous advantage over their western competitors Transportation rates are lower and the difference between those on western produce and those on the products in this neighborhood is pocketed by the farmer. The local farmer can ship his eggs or poultry at night and next morning they are delivered in the Montreal market. This relieves the farmer here of the fear of deterioration which always haunts the mind of his western competitor.

"Possibly no place in Eastern Ontario has made the same progress as has Tweed," said Mr. Buker. "If there is, I don't know of it. Strange to say, the entire progress hinges round the operations of one man, D. L. Courneya. He started in a very small way and has built up a large business which has gone on increasing to such an extent that last year he kept 2,500 White Leghorn layers.

"He has increased his incubator capacity to 16,700 eggs, and this spring he distributed over 30,000 baby chicks. As a result of his operations, there are at least six other poultry farms, ranging from 600 to 1,200 layers, in business at present around Tweed. In the distribution of the 30,000 chicks, Mr. Courneya simply fulfilled repeat orders. He was unable to take any new business, a fact which more than anything else goes to show the class of stock which he keeps and the extent to which he has inspired confidence in those with whom he deals.

Many Circles Flourishing.

At Campbellford, the English Line Circle has been for several years the outstanding egg circle in Eastern Ontario. It has a higher percentage of extras than any other, the volume of business is greater than that of any other association, and the quality is of a higher standard.

"The English Line Circle has increased to such an extent that its operations become a nuisance," said Mr. Buker humorously. "It blocks the traffic and the whole police force

Real Profit Made On Very Old Clock

WOODSTOCK, July 7.—Twenty-five years ago Angus Morrison, Wellington Street South, bought an old clock on the market for forty cents. D. C. Tier, of Detroit, who came home for the reunion, happened to visit Mr. Morrison, and saw the clock. He liked the look of it from an antique standpoint, and on examination found that it had been made in the United Sattes when there were only thirteen stars on the Stars and Stripes, showing it to be about 150 years old. He immediately offered Mr. Morrison $100 for the clock. The offer was promptly accepted.

BREAK BETWEEN FLIERS WIDENS; CAUSED BY CHALLENGE TO BYRD TO RETURN FLIGHT TO NEW YORK

Chamberlin Will Return By Ship, While Levine Flies Home.

WITH FRENCH AVIATOR.

Byrd Returns on Leviathan—Planning More Air Exploration.

PARIS, July 7 (United Press).—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who risked their lives together when they flew from New York to Germany, have quietly but surely broken off their relations, it became known today.

The reason dates back to a telegram sent to Commander Richard E Byrd, virtually challenging him to a race back from Paris to New York. That is why Chamberlin has refused to pilot the Bellanca plane back to the United States, and Levine has announced he will make the trip with a French pilot.

Chamberlin and Levine still live at the same hotel and speak cooly, but their cordial relationship has ended. Chamberlin openly criticizes Levine for sending the challenge to Byrd.

Flier Coaches Successor

PARIS, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Clarence Chamberlin will fly the Bellanca monoplane Columbia to London tomorrow with the as yet unnamed French pilot who will attempt the return flight across the Atlantic with Charles Levine, he told the Associated Press today.

He will show the new pilot the controls and everything he needs to know about the peculiarities of the plane, as well as give him the full benefit of the experience gained on the trans-Atlantic flight.

It is believed the pilot who will take the Columbia back to America will be either Captain Georges Pelletier Doisy of Paris to Tokyo fame, or Lieut. Paul Tarascon, who originally planned a trip across with the ill-fated Captain Coli and who since the failure of the Nungesser-Coli flight has been working on plans for one of his own.

Byrd Returns by Ship

PARIS, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Passage for Commander Byrd and his trans-Atlantic flight companions has been tentatively booked on the steamer Leviathan, sailing from Cherbourg next Tuesday. Clarence Chamberlin has also announced that he has arranged to sail on the Leviathan; but Charles Levine, his passenger on the trans-Atlantic flight from New York to Germany, will remain in France to prepare for a return flight with a French pilot.

Plans More Trips

PARIS, July 7 (United Press).—Commander Richard E. Byrd today expressed a desire to explore four of the most remote regions of the earth. Only the speed of an airplane could enable man to visit the spots indicated by Byrd and scientifically to explore them within the space of the next seven or eight years, which Byrd has detailed to the task. In order of their their proposed visitation. Byrd said he would seek permission from the Navy Department to go to the South Pole, the interior of Brazil, to Arabia, and finally to Mount Everest, sentinel of the Himalayas, from whose top no man has returned alive.

NOW AWAITS RATIFICATION OF PARLIAMENT

Debate Marked By Considerable Acerbity on Part of "Diehards."

LARGE MAJORITY.

Much of Discussion Centred on the Marriage Service.

LONDON, July 7. — (Canadian Press.)—After two days of strenuous debate in which many women took an active part, the Church Assembly, by an overwhelming majority, yesterday accepted the Revised Book of Common Prayer of the Church of England, which has deeply stirred church circles. The vote was 517 for revision and 133 against.

In the House of Bishops, the voting was 34 for and 4 against; the House of Clergy 253 for and 31 against, and House of Laity 23 for and 92 against. The four bishops voting against the revised book of prayer were the Bishops of Birmingham, Norwich, Worcester and Exeter.

The debate in the Church Assembly yesterday was marked by considerable acerbity on the part of the "diehard" section, which though in the minority fought stubbornly for the retention of the time-honored formulae and "no surrender to Anglo-Catholicism."

So vehement were the objectors that it was found necessary to impose a five minute limit on speeches. Much of the discussion centred on the marriage service, from which the passage referring to God appointing that "out of man woman should take her beginning" is now deleted.

"Could anything be more unsuitable for a young married couple to be told what nobody believes—that woman was created out of man?" asked Canon Wilson of Cheltenham.

Rejection Means Chaos.

Lord Hugh Cecil a distinguished lay revisionist, emphasized that rejection would mean chaos in the government of the church. The "diehards" argued that revision would legalize erroneous doctrine, promote schism and drive people from the church.

The new prayer book now goes for the last sanction to parliament, which cannot amend it, but must either accept or reject it.

Dog-Bite Victim Dies of Laughter

GALESBURG, Ill., July 7. — Ecstatic condition, developing from a poisonous dog bite, caused the death to-day of Mrs. Reuben Hoyt, thirty-six, of London Mills, near here.

She literally laughed herself to Death. Instead of hydrophobia, Mrs. Hoyt was the victim of long laughing spells, which doctors at Macomb Hospital were unable to stop.

She was bitten five weeks ago.

Invents Rudderless Torpedo Speed Boat Is Built On Same Lines as Hydroplane

PARIS, July 7. — Tests conducted with a model yesterday in the Seine by Adrien Remy, a Cherbourg inventor, of what has been christened the "hydroglider" torpedo boat, are declared as successful with a crew of five. Remy says he will make a transatlantic trip in a full model craft, leaving Paris about August 15.

The hydroglider is essentially a war engine, constructed of armour plate, presenting only a small surface above the water, and carrying two torpedoes, a small cannon and two machine guns.

Its chief peculiarity is that it has no rudder, but its movements are controlled through changes in the position of three groups of engines which are built in movable towers and can be controlled from the navigator's quarters.

The craft is built on two hulls bridged across with armour-plated cabins, which are continued in far-reaching sides like wings, upon which the entire ship is raised almost to the surface of the water like a hydroplane.

The engineer asserts that a speed of forty knots an hour can be maintained. The craft, which is still to be completed, will make a trip from Paris to New York, later going to Canada up the St. Lawrence River.

ALLIGATOR BOAT SENT UP LIGHTS

Responsible For Reports That Fliers Crashed in Quebec.

HOPE DYING OUT.

QUEBEC, July 7.—Hope for the French airmen, Nungesser and Coli, just about petered out yesterday when the origin of the mysterious lights which have been sighted at intervals in Northern Quebec since June 13 was traced down to the flare-lighting activities of an "alligator boat" on Lake Onatchway.

The Provincial Government, which has taken all necessary steps to investigate the theory that the intrepid aviators might have survived the perils of the Atlantic to "crash" in some remote fastness of Quebec, has received definite word that the "sunset lights" used by the Onatchway craft could easily be mistaken for flares or distress signals, and actually are responsible for raising the hopes of the whole world.

Since the weird "signals" were first observed there has been a rush of relief forces to Chicoutimi from all parts of the continent, and the Department of Lands and Forests has spared no co-operation with these expeditions to establish whether Nungesser and Coli were alive. The "alligator boat" disclosure, while quashing the theory that they "crashed" in Quebec, does not, however, entirely eliminate the possibility of their having landed in some more north-easterly part of the continent.

Police believe the women were killed to "cover up" the kidnapping of another person who may have been slain in continuance of a gang feud.

REFORM BILL MAY NOW BE DROPPED

Announced By Baldwin as Merely "Basis For Discussion and Criticism."

LONDON, July 7. Canadian Press.—The announcement in the House of Commons yesterday by Premier Baldwin that the Government's scheme for the reform of the House of Lords, which has created something of a political furore, was merely a 'basis for discussion and criticism," is taken by political observers to indicate that the reform of the Lords may be dropped completely for the time being.

During the debate, which aroused parliamentary interest only as a discussion of the fate of Great Britain's Upper Chamber can arouse it, there was no affirmation of Lord Birkenhead's recent assertion in the House of Lords that the reform would be rushed through in the life of the present Parliament.

Vote Defeated.

Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor opposition, moved a vote of censure on the government on the question of the reform of the Lords, basing his motion on the charge that the government had received no mandate from the people for the proposed changes. The motion was defeated 362 to 167.

The Prime Minister had to listen to criticism from Laborites Liberals and Conservatives. John Buchan newly elected to the House voiced in his maiden speech the views of the dissenting Conservatives.

Mr. Lloyd George the Liberal leader declared that in the past the Liberal government in considering reform of the House of Lords had decided to leave "the ramshackle thing were it was."

Discussing the hereditary aspects of the reform proposals Mr. Lloyd George questioned whether there were 200 peers who by training, experience or mental qualities had the necessary qualifications for revising British legislation He thought that there might be fifty such peers at the most.

LIGHTNING IGNITES CAVAN MAN'S BARN

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 7.—Edward Wilson of the ninth line, Cavan, suffered a heavy loss from fire last night, when during the electric storm his barn became ignited from a bolt of lighting. Most of the contents of the building were destroyed, including between four and five hundred bushels of grain and the farm implements that were left in the barn for the time being. The live stock was saved.

The structure was practically a new one, having been rebuilt after being partially destroyed by fire five years ago. The damage is estimated at several hundred dollars and the loss is partially covered by insurance.

GOLDEN WEDDING

CAMPBELLFORD, July 7. — Two of Campbellford's most highly esteemed residents, in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Long, are today celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on James Street.

Mr. Long, who is now in his 67th year, came to Canada from Warsaw, Germany, with an uncle, Joseph Long, when in his fourteenth year. Fifty years ago he married Charlotte Rosenplott, three months his senior, of Campbellford, whose father was a cooper here. After their marriage, which took place in what was then the Bible Christian Church, with the late Rev. Mr. Archer as pastor, they took up their residence at Trenton, where they resided for thirteen years before moving to Campbellford. Nine children came to bless this union, eight of whom, five girls and three boys, are living. One boy died many years ago. There are 19 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.

Among the sons and daughters and near relatives present at the birthday party to-day are: Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Long of Rochester, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Long, of Mapleville, Rhode Island, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Sweet, of Detroit, August Rosenplott, of Trenton (best man at the wedding fifty years ago), Mr. and Mrs. Archie Rosenplott and child of Denbigh, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rosenplott and boy of Belleville, Mr. John Long, of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Lewis and child, of Shannonville, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Ibey of town, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Malhiot and son of town, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Long and children.

The home on James Street is beautifully decorated for the occasion, golden yellow streamers are artistically strung in the parlour, living-room, and hall, and sunburst roses are the table decoration.

The wedding cake is a large white three-decker, with ornamental white roses.

The gift from the family was a well-filled purse of gold.

Among the one hundred invited banquet guests are Rev. Ernest Harston, LL.B., Rev. Charles Daniel, and Lieut. Hallam.

Mr. and Mrs. Long have the heartiest congratulations of hundreds of Campbellford citizens who trust that the best day they have seen may be the worst that is to come.

Supervise Arrangements For Poultry Congress

OTTAWA, Ont., July 7 (Canadian Press). — Edward Brown, F.L.S., London, England, president of the third world poultry congress to be held here July 27 to August 4, arrived in Ottawa yesterday to supervise the final arrangements for the congress. Mr. Brown will work with the executive committee and will occupy an office within a few days in the Ontario Government Building at Lansdowne Park. He spent yesterday inspecting the preparations being made at the Park and expressed the opinion that the work indicated "the wider view being taken by those responsible and the great readiness of the Canadian and Provincial Governments to put forward what is really a representative feature of Canada, namely, the poultry industry."

Telephone Girl Braves Bullets to Foil Break of Convicts in Maryland Prison

BALTIMORE, July 7. — Caught almost in the line of fire between a guard and two convicts attempting to escape from the Maryland State Prison here yesterday, Miss Mary Sullivan, the prison telephone operator, ran to a window and called a taxi driver to notify the warden in his home adjoining the prison. She also sent out an alarm to Police Headquarters, and in a few minutes scores of policemen were at the prison.

The convicts were Charles P. Carey, serving a life sentence for the part he played in the killing of William Norris, a contractor, and Benjamin F. Spragins, serving a ten-year sentence for larceny.

Alfred Walker, a guard, was on duty in the prison lobby when the two convicts asked for admittance. Walker carried the key to the street door. Fifteen or twenty visitors were waiting in the lobby to see prisoners. Saying they had come for packages left for them by friends, Carey and Spragins were admitted.

No sooner were they inside than Spragins opened fire on Walker. One of the several bullets fired entered near his heart, fatally wounding him. He fell and Carey seized hs revolver and the key to the street door.

While Miss Sullivan was shouting her warning from the window Charles Stortz, a guard in an adjoining room, heard the shots. Leaping to a table and peering over a glass partition, he saw Walker fall. Spragins saw him looking, and cried:

"Go get him, Carey."

Carey started to dash around the partition, and Stortz opened fire. Spragins fell first. Carey continued shooting after he was down.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Dear Mac:

In these days, the visitor to the Somme battlefields is apt to "scamp" that part upon which our line rested, to the south of the Albert-Bapaume road, towards the close o fthe fighting in 1916.

There is so much to engage the attention of the visitor at the western end of the battlefields, around Mametz and Montauban, so much to fascinate him about the river Ancre and at Thiepval, and Courcellette, that he finds himself with little time to spare for those places which lie between Bapaume and Peronne.

Forseeing this danger, I made certain of visiting this oft-neglected part, by taking it somewhat out of its turn. I should have been sorry to miss such places as Combles and Les Boeufs, and the other villages in that area.

Stern as was the fighting on other parts of the front, it was an attack between the Somme and Martinpuich which Ludendorf described in his reminiscences as "the heaviest of the many heavy engagements."

One appreciates the truth of Ludendorf'se observation when one visits the British cemetery at Les Boeufs, for this considerable burying ground is the resting place of so many men of the Guards' Division that its official designation is "Guards Les Boeufs." It completes the story, partly told in Guillemont Road Cemetery, of how the Guards paid in the attack they launched on Les Boeufs, from Ginchy, in September 1916. Limited to a narrow frontage, the attacking Guardsmen were enfiladed on both flanks, but with that superb courage which always distinguished them in action, the Guards paid the price of tactical error, and gave the enemy no quarter.

Standing near this cemetery, one understands why the enemy clung so desperately to Les Boeufs, Gueudecourt and Morval. From the ridge, the eye commands the Bapaume-Peronne road, the best means of communication running parallel to the old German front. Along this road are many places familiar to men who served in the Somme area in the winter of 1916-17, during the enemy retirement, and during the battles of 1918. Sailly-Saillisel which was shaved to the ground level, has been restored to the map, the trees of St. Pierre Vast Wood are again green and upstanding, while at Rancourt has been erected a memorial church in which the relatives of men who fought hereabouts, French and British alike, have co-operated in perpetuating their memories.

At this point, French and British mingled their blood freely, for here was the junction between the Allied forces. Combles, behind this plateau, fell as the result of their joint efforts. Lying in a hollow, this village which is nearly a town, was cut off by the British troops operating to the north, and the French operating to the south. There is, today, little to give a clue to the Combles which the French discovered when they entered the place in 1916 and found its cellars choked with enemy dead and its shattered houses filled with stores. Of Combles, more was left than of most Somme villages, but the destruction it missed in 1916, it received in 1918.

Today, the spire and bright clock-face of the new church at Combles peeps above the surrounding hills, and, down in the market place, at the Hotel de la Renninsance, men talk of sugar beet and corn prices as though the War had never been.

After the Somme offensive closed, Combles became a considerable military railway centre, but today it is served only by the quaint little narrow-gauge railway that winds its way tortuously from Albert to Peronne. It is so elsewhere on these battlefields. In 1917 and 1918 you might see sturdy British railway engines, which once ran up and down the main lines of Britain, drawing lengthy trains of ammunition and stores, or shunting in extensive sidings at Combles, Maricourt and other places.

But even the course of those railways cannot be traced today. It may seen short-sighted on the part of the French authorities to remove such an asset as a broad guage railway, laid with British thoroughness, but important as were many of these villages in the war years, today they are just sleep pastoral centres, and to maintain for them a broad-guage railway, would only add to the cost of the produce and give no counterbalancing result.

The roads we made, however, cannot be removed, and here and there you travel along a broad highway which is obviously an extravagance, having regard to the places it serves. Even the main roads, the routes nationale which lead from Albert to Bapaume, and from Arras, through Bapaume to Peronne are strangely silent to the ears of those who knew them in the war years. The old dead trees, split and boughless, which lined the roads, have been replaced with young poplars. The Napoleonic plan of thus lining the roads to screen marching troops is still being observed though aerial reconnaissance has rendered such devices useless.

Here on the edge of the 1916 battlefield, one is tempted to turn in many directions. It would be good to continue eastwards, to travel over the country from which the enemy retired early in 1917, and to see once again such places as Ytres and Hermes, Villers-au-Flos and Beaumetz. But those are no part of the present story.

Rather one would turn backwards, to Fiers, to tell the story of the debut of the Tanks, and of the valiant New Zealanders who lell thereabouts; or to strike right across the battlefields to Hebuterne and Gommecourt, where, in actions often kept out of the limelight, troops of English and Scottish regiments purchased odd lengths of trench at great price.

This letter, however, is no attempt to tell the story of the great battle, but rather to give glimpses of places grimly familiar to a million men throughout the British Empire, places linked with the thoughts of a hundred thousand women whose sons lie in "some corner of a foreign field, that is for ever England," and especially of places we ourselves knew.

It is futile in such a survey, to attempt carefully to allocate the credit for the capture of specific points to the regiments to which that credit belongs, and I shall not excuse myself for mentioning only a few units. To do more would be unwise. Indeed, even the well-intentioned efforts of various Divisions and Governments to perpetuate, in battlefield memorials, the exploits of their men, is apt to convey a wrong impression to the vistor unacquainted with the story of the fighting.

It is better, I think, reviewing the Somme battles, to pay little regard to regimental dividing lines, but rather to think of the unified force which, drawn from every quarter of the Empire, knit together in one great unit, in which each section was equal in honor.

To take farewell of these scenes is not easy to any man who served here, and, as the visitor burdened with recollections, moves westward down the Bapaume road, it is but natural that he should see visions and dream dreams. To see again the endless stream of men and horses and guns, the rumbling lorries and rattling wagons, the patient "walking wounded", and the tired working parties; to catch, in the red flash of a gun, a glimpse of a wooden cross; to hear again a cheery greeting from a comrade passing in the traffic; and then, above all, the ceaseless boom of the guns, and the sinister buzzing of aircraft high in the skies—these are sights and sounds that one can recapture only in these surroundings, and they stir feelings of pride, they give a sense of kinship with the bravest and best of this age, with those who purchased the victory and who are secure from the galling pettiness and lack of patriotism which now afflict us.

"They shall not grow old as we that are left grow old", but we who knew them, though we grow old, will renew our youth in our remembrance of them, and particularly in our recollection of the scene in which we were privileged to have their company and comradeship. That is the secret of the fascination of these old battlefields for anyone who knew them ten years or so ago.

DEPOT AND NO TRAINS

LARRABEE, Wis., July 7.—A depot waits here for the railroad that never came. The station was built in the late 60's and it was two and a half miles from the nearest railway. COAL MINING UNDER THE SEA IN CANADA.

The Sydney coal field in Cape Breton island, Nova Scotia, has a total area of about 200 square miles and supplies from 65 to 78 per cent. of the total coal production of the province. The largest mines are all producing from submarine areas, some of the workings running for more than two miles under the sea. About 130,000,000 tons have been won from this field and there is an estimated reserve of 2,500,000,000 tonse within economical mining distance.

GIVES ADVICE TO MARRIED MEN, THOSE WITH FAMILIES TOO.

If you must take your wife with you, says the sage, take her to some place where she can have a good time without tagging behind you all the day. Bon Echo is a good suggestion because if you do get tired of one another there is always the lake and a canoe to jump into. On one side of the Camp there is a "babies" beach, where the kiddies can walk out a hundred yards without wetting their tummies. On the other side, the real water babies play. There is riding and tennis and hiking, every facility for acquatic sport, good meals and bungalow or "house" accommodation. An outdoor theatre helps cater to the aesthetic.

CHAMPION SCOUT MAY MAKE FLIGHT

Byrd Considers Asking Him To Fly Across South Pole.

PARIS, July 7.—(United Press).—America's best boy scout may be invited to accompany Commander Richard E. Byrd on his forthcoming flight across the south pole.

Byrd said today he would confer upon his return to the United States with scout leaders regarding inviting the champion scout to join his party.

The suggestion arose from a letter Byrd sent to Capt. L. Hopital, aide to Marshal Foch and leader of the French boy scouts.

In it Bryd said, "I am tremendously interested in the movement. I want to send French boy scouts the greetings of American scouts. Boy scouts get the kind of training that makes good aviators and great fellows for expeditions. I should not hesitate to take with me on my Antarctic expedition a boy who had made good as a scout."

WEDDING BELLS.

CUMMINGS—TERRILL.

The twenty-ninth of June was marked at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wesley Terrill, of Lindsay, by the giving in marriage of their daughter, Helen Jane, to Mr. Robert Charles Cummings, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings of Toronto. The Rev. A. J. Terrill, B.A., a cousin of the bride, officiated, and was assisted by Rev. H. Mutton. The bridal party entered the drawing room, which was tastefully decorated with seasonable flowers and plants, to the strains of the wedding march, rendered by Miss Mildred Terrill, sister of the bride, accompanied by Stanley Clarke on violin. The bride wore a dainty French gown of soft pink silk crepe romaine. In place of the conventional veil, the bride and bridesmaid had silver bandeaux caught with becoming flowers. The bridal bouquet was of Ophelia roses, Miss Margaret Cole of Toronto, who was the bridesmaid, wore a rose pink georgetter gown edged with taffeta ruffles and also carried a bouquet of roses. Little Margaret Loudon, daughter of Dr. T. G. Loudon, of Peterborough, dressed in georgette, carried the ring in a basket of daisies. Dr. Herbert N. Couch, of Baltimore, a university classmate of the groom, acted as groomsman. After the service, Mr. and Mrs. Terrill gave a reception on the lawn at which Mr. E. L. Lytle, of Lindsay, very ably acted as toast master. The bridal party motored to Toronto in the evening, continuing their trip the next day by boat to Duluth and thence to Virginia, Minnesota, and Winnipeg. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

DISTRICT JUBILEE SERVICES.

IN BETHANY CHURCHES.

BETHANY, July 7.—On Sunday, July 3rd, patriotic thanksgiving services were held in various places in the village.

In the morning in the United Sunday school a patriotic service, "The Message of the Bells" commemorating Canada's Diamond Jubilee was held, led by the superintendent, Mr. A. H. Monk.

Hymns, prayers, and Scripture readings were all of patriotic nature. The four Scripture lessons were read in unison. First, "A Message of Unity"; second, "A Message of Loyalty"; third, "A Message of Peace", and fourth, "A Message of Brotherhood."

A recitation entitled "Dominion Day" was given by Margaret Jackson, and a second recitation entitled, "One in Christ", was given by Evelyn Bigelow.

The Misses Ada and Elsie Richardson sang a very appropriate duet, "A Canadian Song". The school was dismissed with the Benediction pronounced by the superintendent.

On Sunday afternoon a township thanksgiving service was held in the Town Hall. So great was the crowd the hall was not large enough to hold all the people but the windows and doors being opened those standing outside were able to hear at least part of the service.

The children from the various school sections met at the public school at two o'clock and marched from there to the Town Hall, accompanied by their teachers and led by the village band.

On the platform in the Town Hall were the resident clergy, Rev. Mr. Fierheller, Rev. Mr. Walker of Janetville, and Rev. Mr. Poulter, and the Reeve of Manvers, Mr. Fred Gray, who opened the program with a short address explaining why they had met and why the service was thought to be necessary.

Rev. Mr. Fierheller of St. Paul's Anglican church, made a short address commemorative of the pioneers and settlers who laid the country's foundations, also asking his listeners to read for themselves the 8th chapter of Deuteronomy, which he thought appropriate for the occasion.

Rev. Mr. Walker of Janetville Presbyterian church was the next speaker, who spoke briefly and interestingly on the Fathers of Confederation.

Rev. Mr. Poulter of the United church was the last speaker, who spoke very reverently of those whose lives have been given in the country's service. The last post was sounded by Alfred Driver.

Passages of Scripture and prayers were read in unison and hymns prayerful in nature and patriotic were sung, led by the band.

Each school child present at this service was given a bronze medal from the Government as a souvenir of Canada's Diamond Jubilee.

In the evening the people gathered in the churches where again the services were of thanksgiving.

Many of the villagers decorated their homes with flags during the three days of celebration.

KNOX CHURCH, HAVELOCK

HAVELOCK, July 7.—A patriotic service was held in Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening in commemoration of the founders of the nation who, in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles, brought about the confederation of the provinces which has resulted in a united and contented Dominion of Canada and also for the blessings which have come to the Canadian people during the three score years which have elapsed.

The church was prettily decorated with flowers and flags, and the Order of Service as published by the Board of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Societies of the Presbyterian Church in Canada for the occasion was followed. The hymns were all appropriate to a patriotic day and an anthem, "O Canada for Christ" was rendered by the choir.

As an introduction to his address, which was entitled "The Winning of Canada," Rev. G. E. Lougheed told the story of the naming of the nation. Sir Leonard Tilley, one of the Fathers of Confederation, who was a strong Christian man, a man who never forgot his Bible, a man who never forgot prayer, as he read about God having dominion from sea to sea, thought that he had found a name for the nation. The name was thus given to us through prayer and the reading of the Scriptures.

We have the newest and yet oldest country in the world, Mr. Lougheed continued. Here in the darkness of prehistoric night there arose the oldest land about Hudson Bay. To this land came explorers from France and Great Britain, and the French outstripped the British in helping themselves. The history of how we got Canada was here given, how it was taken and re-taken; until in the time of Pitt, Wolfe was chosen for the task and the battle of the Plains of Abraham settled the fate of Canada for centuries.

Mr. Lougheed gave three reasons for Confederation: First, the call of the Western land; second, civil war in the United States and Canada ill-prepared; third, Crimean War made demand for Canadian products.

John A. Macdonald and George Brown were two central figures of the Confederation past. These two men had been bad friends for years and yet they joined hands in this matter.

The greatest conquest is yet to be, the speaker said, Canada for Christ. Are we ready to make the conquest? he asked. With love as a motive and service as a standard, we can make this conquest.

In social life let us be clean, and stand for the purest things. In the business and political life, let us live out the Christ idea.

As an illustration of what the attitude of Canadians to God should be, Mr. Lougheed told the story of a woman who drove four miles in the cold in Manitoba to attend church, and she said: "In Ontario we had a hundred bushels of wheat; in Manitoba we had three thousand bushels and it is because we are so successful and have made our lives so prosperous that I feel I must live close to God."

In closing, Mr. Lougheed gave a quotation from Abraham Lincoln as being applicable to Canadians today. On the field of Gettysburg, Lincoln said: "We cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men who struggled here have consecrated it far above our power to add or to detract. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us that from these honored dead we taken increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their best full measure of devotion." Let us dedicate ourselves, he concluded, and in the spirit of devotion make things better for the years to come.

At the morning service the Sacrament of The Lord's Supper was observed and five new members were added to the church roll.

Warkworth Churches

WARKWORTH, July 7.—The suggested order of service for the Diamond Jubilee of the Confederation of Canada was carried out in St. Paul's church, Sunday morning. The congregation was large, as a number were present from the neighboring churches, Normam and Dartford and also from the Free Methodist Church.

Following the prayer of invocation was the singing of hymn "O' God Our Help in Ages Past" and the reading of the scripture lesson, Psalm 96, then the prayer of the national confession.

Misses Frances Jones, Ina Bowen, Beatrice Jones and Flossie Everson sang a quartette which was greatly appreciated.

The pastor read for scripture lesson Daniel 2:20-22, Psalm 127:1, Ecclesiasticus 44:1-16, Hebrews, chapter 11, verses 13, 32, 33, 34, 39, 40. Prayer of National Thanksgiving; Hymn "O' God of Bethel." Hymn "O' Canada."

Three excellent addresses were given by Mr. Orval Kelly, Mrs. A. M. Smale and Mr. P. S. Ewing. Mr. Kelly's talk was based on Canada's advancement since confederation, socially, morally, intellectually and religiously and from these bringing out many points of interest.

Mrs. A. M. Smale's address which was very interesting was along the lines of Women's part in Canada's progress. Women today are capable of taking almost any position and also playing a part in the government of our country. The Red Cross Society was mentioned as one of the greatest women's organizations in Canada. Women too are taking their stand as artists, actresses, literary writers both in poetry and fiction. The work of the W.M.S was counted as perhaps the greatest organization, as through its efforts many were christianized, thus making good citizens.

The address given by P. S. Ewing was interesting also and it followed along the lines from the coming of Champlain to Ottawa and the progress in Canada's welfare since that time. The speaker explained how it happened that Ottawa was named as the Capitol of Canada. It was also explained how Dominion happened to be connected with Canada as a name for our great country.

The colors of the Union Jack were painted out as the red because of the blood shed for liberty; blue, because of the azure of the sky where God reigns; white, because of the purity of purposes. These are the ideals to be the dictator of the world's greatest wealth. Canada is ten times greater in every way than any other country.

The hard times in earlier days testify to the impress of their character in the greatness of Canada and may Canada still grow in greatness.

A quartette by Warren Atkinson, Dartford, Rev. W. W. Jones, F. H. Huycke and R. T. Knight, Norham, was very creditably sang.

The service closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Anglican Church.

Service was held at three p.m. Sunday in the Anglican Church. Rev. J. F. B. Belford preached. The members of the local Orange Lodge were present.

Mr. Beyford in his address very emphatically pointed out to those present their duties as Orangemen and their duties as citizens.

Marmora Churches

MARMORA, July 7.—Special Confederation Thanksgiving services were held in the Anglican and United Churches on Sunday while under the auspices of the municipal councils of Marmora village, Deloro village and Marmora and Lake townships, a united service was held on the grounds of Marmora Continuation School in the afternoon. St. Paul's church was profusely decorated for the occasion with roses, peonies, orange blossom and fern. Instead of the usual Sunday School session, a children's service was conducted by the Rector, in course of which he addressed the children on the uppermost thought of the day.

At the morning service which followed, most appropriate hymns were sung. Preaching from the text "Beware lest thou forget the Lord thy God" Rev. Caldwell showed the danger that man in prosperity is in of forgetting God. Though eulogising the progress of the Dominion through the exercising of her resources, he declared that the change on the material side had not been all gain. There had been many a case of reckless waste of resources and many a case of undeveloped power. Still on the whole Canada has gone forward. We are welded into one, not by coercion but because we are a people united and free. After the Great War, we find Canada represented as a nation of the League of Nations. We should not be carried away with modern things. While looking back over the past with thankfulness for its Divine blessings we should remember that the future lies before us and carries with it responsibilities for us such as the Fathers of Confederation had vision of. In their discharge let us not forget the Lord our God.

United Church

At the United Church Sunday School and service were combined as one. Special songs and recitations were rendered by the scholars including "The Story of the Flag" told in three five minute addresses. The Pastor, Rev. C. J. Beckley, gave a special address on Confederation. Choice floral decorations added to the beauty of the service.

Outdoor Service.

A splendid gathering assembled on the school grounds for the United service. After the Doxology, Reeve J. B. Airhart gave a short address and reading commemorative of the pioneers and settlers who laid our country's foundation. He expressed the thanks of the three councils represented for the excellent services rendered by Marmoro Community Band. He also expressed the thought that as those present were at that moment remembering their pioneer forefathers, the hymns sung might acquire a new significance as they were sung to tunes with which their forefathers were quite familiar. Those present having sung "Fight the Good Fight," Mr. Airhart led in the reciting of the 100th Psalm. Acting for Reeve S. B. Wright, of Deloro, who was unavoidably absent, Mr. F. A. Bapty, of that village, gave a short speech and reading commemorative of the Fathers of Confederation, expressing in the former the belief that "from now onwards, Dominion Day will have a stronger hold on the community at large, even though celebrations will not be on the scale of this year."

The hymn "Lord While for all Mankind we Pray" was next sung, after which Rev. C. J. Beckley led in the reading of selected portions of Scripture.

To Mr. R. E. Bouter, Reeve of Marmora Township, was assigned the reading commemorative of those whose lives were given in the country's service. Then came the "Last Post" souhded on the trumpet by Bandsman J. Laird and succeeded by a minute of complete silence and the singing of "O Valiant Hearts." Mr. J. Collins, principal of Marmora Continuation School, gave a short address on the widespread and long lived custom of invoking the aid of the Deity, concluding with reference to the opening of parliaments with prayer. Rev. A. B. Caldwell then led in the prayer for Divine guidance in the government of our land, followed by the recitation by all of the 67th Psalm. A verse of the Maple Leaf with two verses of the National Anthem concluded this thanksgiving service. The band in their first accompaniment at a religious service showed it was equally at home to the sacred as to the secular music it is the oftener called upon to play. The air was deliciously cool and the service was greatly appreciated by the many present.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, July 7.—The community patriotic service held in Saint Thomas' Church on Sunday afternoon was inspiritional in character, all the churches of the district participating, and seating capacity being fully occupied when the hour of opening arrived.

The programme issued by the Federal Government was used, the topic emphasized being that of national thanksgiving. Rev. P. C. Howard, who is in charge of the parish during Rev. Canon Allen's absence abroad, had the opening remarks, immediately following the singing of "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," detailing special subjects for the nation's gratitude from pioneer days to the present time. Rev. F. H. Howard, pastor of the United Church, led in the reading in unison of the prayers and responsive Scripture passages. Rev. John Riddell, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, took the Bible lesson from Psalm 72, from verse 8, of which, at the suggestion of Sir Leonard Tilley, then Premier of New Brunswick, the confederated Provinces received their name: "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

In welcoming the large congregation to the Anglican Church Rev. Mr. Howard referred especially to "the inspiring sight of so large a number of worshippers from all denominations gathered together for the definite purpose of returning thanks to Almighty God, acknowledging His goodness and His continued and many mercies, particularly throughout these sixty years since Canada as a nation was born."

Rev. Joseph Wilks, who is held in high esteem and affection by the entire community, delivered the formal address, basing his remarks upon two texts: I. Timothy 2:1, "I exhort therefore that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions and giving of thanks be made for all men, for kings and for all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty"; Judges 3:9, "And when the Children of Israel cried unto the Lord, the Lord raised up a deliverer."

In an inspiring discourse the speaker emphasized especially the absolute need of prayer in order that national prosperity may be established, and that Canada may fulfill her high destiny.

"Many things contribute to the welfare of our Dominion, but prayer is a force not so frequently mentioned as material things, yet it is a vital factor in the upbuilding of our nation, and is the channel of God's blessing for mankind.

"When God wants a man to further His plans, He chooses a man who prays, and it is the man who prays whose heart is tuned to hear God's voice. God can trust such a one as that to carry out His will.

"Fathers and mothers, are you teaching your boys and girls to pray? If not, you are robbing them of their rightful inheritance; Canada needs such citizens as children trained in prayerful habits will develop into, and when God wants some important position filled in future days who knows but He may lay His hand upon the head of your boy and say, 'I have need of this man.'

"The history of the Chosen People shows repeatedly the efficacy of prayer. In times of trouble, famine, wandering, war and prosperity they 'cried and the Lord heard and raised up a deliverer.' The history of the late war can repeat instances of answered prayer, and in the centuries of the growth and development of the British Empire we have a long list of men who believed in and practiced prayer whom God used to build up our nation.

"How then shall we get good men as leaders for the future? Train them. It's your responsibility, parents, 'what manner of child shall this be'; what foundations are you laying? It is our responsibility, too, as Canadians to care for the strange peoples who come to our shores, at our invitation. Train their children lest we have a streak of Bolshevism gaining a strong foothold in our Canada. 'God, send us men with vision clear and mind equipped, His will to learn, His work to do.'"

The "Last Post" was sounded by G. E. Burnham, followed by one minute of complete silence, then prayer in unison for those in high position in the land, the reading of Psalm 77 and the singing of the National Anthem. After the recessional hymn, Rev. P. C. Howard pronounced the benediction.

SAFE PLAYGROUNDS.

The announcement that Peterborough's supervised playgrounds are to be opened on Monday and will remain open for six weeks will be gladly received by many local parents.

Each year sees more need of these recreation areas where, under careful supervision, children can enjoy themselves in safety and at the same time undergo physical development and learn to be fair and sportsmanlike.

The street served the last generation as a playground, but it is no longer feasible for such purposes.

Only an occasional horse-drawn vehicle interrupted the neighborhood ball game twenty-five years ago; today a multitude of motor cars threatens the safety of the child who ventures upon the roadway.

The supervised playground offers a safe substitute, and while Peterborough could do with more such grounds, and while the equipment is not as extensive as might be desired, the city is lucky in having available capable and conscientious supervisors, and parents can safely entrust their children to the care of those assuming charge of the three playgrounds.

The little ones should be encouraged to make daily use of the supervised areas this summer.

BUILDING UP CHILDREN.

It is gratifying to note that the Peterborough Health Association is in a position to carry on its usual summer camp at Jackson Park, and that there was an attendance of 69 youngsters on the first day.

The summer camp is one of the most commendable and successful activities to the credit of the Health Association, and it would have been a misfortune indeed had scarcity of funds made it necessary to abandon the operation of the camp.

To children whose health is somewhat below normal and who are deprived through circumstances beyond their control from spending the summer on river or lake, the Jackson Park institution is a God-send.

In that beautiful park they play under the fragrant pines or paddle in the stream, they are provided with the sort of nourishing food their condition calls for, and they are also required to take a certain amount of rest each day.

This treatment has had splendid results.

Most of the children are found in a short time to have increased in weight, and their general condition shows sufficient improvement to justify the camp as a developer of stronger and healthier young Canadians.

RECOGNIZING MERIT.

The Toronto Board of Control has decided that a civic reception will be tendered to Joe Wright on his return to Toronto from his unsuccessful but altogether creditable attempt to win the diamond sculls.

The news is pleasing not only because Canadians from one end of the Dominion to the other are convinced that the young oarsman was defeated merely through ill-luck, but also because too often the emphasis is placed upon victory and the man who strives valiantly and fails goes unacclaimed.

It is refreshing to find that in this case anyway due credit is being given, and an oarsman who just missed bringing home coveted honours is to be honoured for the gallant attempt he made, treatment quite different to that accorded other athletes who failed by a narrow margin to accomplish what they had set out to do.

Victory can be rated too highly, and generally is, while on the other hand, genuine merit often goes unrecognized because everybody is so blinded by the glamour that accompanies a win that all else is lost sight of completely.

Joe Wright deserves the thanks of his fellow-Canadians for his fine effort, and it is a source of satisfaction to learn that a worth-while reception is being prepared for him.

"RED TAPE" IS NECESSARY.

"More red tape" is the comment most frequently heard at present among motorists who have read the list of questions that must be answered by those who are applying under the new regulations for drivers' licenses.

At first blush the queries do seem unnecessarily profuse, but the majority of them are pertinent, and the information required is of importance in deciding the fitness of applicants.

At any rate the questions are simple and no difficulty should be experienced in answering them, while it is not anticipated that motorists who have been driving long enough to qualify for a license without undergoing an examination will have any trouble in securing the necessary authority.

The former Deputy Minister of Highways at a banquet here some time ago, speaking of the likelihood of a license system being introduced, explained that the Government intended to make it easy to secure licenses, but easy also to lose them, and that prediction seems to be verified by the present system.

There will be no particular difficulty in obtaining a license, but the motorist who is careless or reckless may find to his sorrow that there is no particular difficulty in losing a license.

Local motorists are given two weeks to obtain their driving permits; after that time the police will commence a drive.

A WORLD POLICY.

Signs are not lacking that a definite world-wide move is being made to take the tariff out of politics. This was evident at the recent Geneva economic conference, when delegates were present from practically all corners of the earth. At that time the delegates acted on certain definite proposals of leading speakers for a systematic drive to lower the world's trade barriers.

Now the International Chamber of Commerce, meeting at Stockholm, Sweden, has voted unanimously for a similar resolution. The delegates are going home with exhortations in their ears to see that their demands are carried out. The passage of the resolution is the more notable in the fact that more than one hundred delegates voted for it from the United States, which is the most highly protected country in the world. To say that these men are all Democrats, or that they had political reasons for voting as they did, would be absurd. They attended the Stockholm conference with a definite aim in view, to facilitate world trade between nations. Trade barriers include other things, of course, but the tariff is the main target for such arguments. Influential men in the Stockholm and Geneva conferences have freely predicted an economic crisis unless something is done to make international business easier and less expensive.

Whatever be one's political beliefs in this country, Liberal or Conservative or something else, he cannot fail to see sinificance in such an attitude. Perhaps the ultimate result will not be to lower tariffs so much as to stabilize them throughout the country. As they stand now, what with favored nations agreements and special tariff arrangements, they must keep thousands of men employed on nothing else but customs computations.

The attitude of the trade delegates seems pretty well divorced from partisanship. They come from all parties in all countries and their political views on the tariff question, if any, seem to be that the tariff, essentially a business proposition, has been exploited for political reasons in various countries of the world.

Great Britain is a good example of such a study, where Liberals vision a come-back to political power on a platform of free trade, and Conservatives are prepared to stake their political life on at least a limited protection. Yet it is hardly credible that all the men of one political party should unanimously condemn a tariff while all those of another should uphold it, regardless of their own commercial or industrial interests. Views, if divergent at all, would naturally differ on the economic phase, if politics were left out.

Through this somewhat tangled reasoning, world trade conferences have probed to the real causes and effects of tariffs and decided that since hardly any nation is self-containing, therefore barriers against the exchange of non-native products can only act as hindrances to importer and exporter alike.—Border Cities

NEIGHBORLY GREETINGS.

Sixty years ago today the Dominion of Canada came into existence through the agency of the British North American Act. All Canada is celebrating the Diamond Jubilee. All the world sends her birthday greetings.

To the people of the United States, in particular, this Canadian observance is significant. Not only has there been a century and more of uninterrupted peace between these two peoples, in its origin antedating the Dominion itself by more than fifty years, but the development of Canada has been along industrial and social lines so similar to those in the States that a bond of quite unusual sympathy has long existed between us.

One could readily picture unpleasant possibilities that might have occurred had the course of political history north of this international boundary been different. Orderly government and a programme of progressive development of the country have made a good neighbor of what might easily have been a troublesome one. The years have seen disappear practically every misunderstanding that formerly caused suspicion or fear. Serious talk of annexation was silenced long ago. Intelligent opinion on both sides of the line accords with the truth that the Republic's only ambition toward the Dominion is to be a friendly, helpful and understanding sister.

During a century when international jealousies in other parts of the world have led to numerous desperate clashes, culminating finally in the greatest war of history, this North American example of two peoples living in peace across an unguarded boundary has constituted a vibrant prophecy of a better day. Lindbergh's flight from St. Louis to Ottawa, while wholly unofficial, will signify one nation's good-will to another; a birthday pledge of amity.

The United States has been a Republic more than twice as long as Canada has been a Dominion, but the friendly relations between the two peoples has had little to do with forms or duration of Governments. Quebec and Jamestown came into existence only one year apart. Whatever unfriendly rivalry grew out of competing enterprise in bringing a virgin continent into development came to an end many years ago. It would be as impossible now to picture the two nation at physical odds as it would be to imagine the Atlantic dry.

By the alchemy of representative government, Canada has worked out a problem of friendly home relations whose counterpart would be hard to find. Upper Canada and Lower Canada as they were called previous to 1867—one English-speaking with English law and customs; the other French in thought and original loyalty—have been welded into a democracy working together in the furtherance of a single purpose, expanding from time to time to take in vast territories to the west and northwest, growing into increased stature as a member of the British sisterhood of independent commonwealths; a nation now represented by her own diplomatic agents at Washington and elsewhere.

And with it all has come a material development, a building up of great cities, of vast transportation lines, a sane exploitation of natural resources that remind one of the course of economic events on this side of the boundary. One reason why a citizen of the States so well understands the Canadian is that in many particulars the latter is now experiencing what the former has already passed through.

In continued peace between these peoples lies vast possibilities for the future. There are joint problems still to face; joint possibilities still to bear. Our birthday wish to a grown-up neighbor is that the policy which has guided us both for a century shall stand forever.—The Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 7.—Market yesterday showed a more active trade for the good to choice finished grass cattle, and for this class, prices are holding steady to firm at the week's opening quotations. Receipts for the week, however, have been overloaded with plain quality and unfinished grassers, resulting in a heavy carry over from Tuesday night of about 1,000 stale cattle. There is little chance of these being cleaned up even at the price shading. Probabilities are that many of these left overs will be shipped back for further finishing, to take their chances in a better market a few weeks later.

Calves are in better demand, and about 50c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 7 (Canadian Press).—There was no change in the market for millfeed and rolled oats. The movement of baled hay continues steady for export account, but due to a depression in the English market the quantities are not as large as hoped for.

No improvement was noted in the butter trade. Cables yesterday quoted finest New Zealand butter at 162 shillings per cwt. and Siberian butter at 144 to 146s per cwt. Prices locally were nominal.

Some business has been done this week with English houses in the export of cheese, while the demand on spot also shows indications of improvement. Receipts are larger than for the same day last week.

In a wholesale way car lots of eggs were offered from Manitoba yesterday at 32½ per dozen for extras and 30½ for firsts f.o.b. point of shipment, while Edmonton quoted firsts at 29½ and seconds 25½ f.o.b. Local buyers considered these prices ½ cent too high and no business resulted. The trade in a jobbing way was firm, but the demand was chiefly for small lots.

The potato trade was without feature, American new crop being offered at $6.00 to $6.25 per barrel and No. 2 grades at $3.75 to $4.00. The trade in old crop Canadian tubers was quiet, with prices nominal. Quebec White B grade was offered at $1.50 to $1.60, and Reds at $1.30 to $1.40 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Surprising absence of pressure to sell newly harvested winter wheat in the southwest did much to bring about a late rally in wheat prices yesterday. In some sections, farmers were said to be storing two bushels for every one sold. As a result, the wheat market here closed irregular, ⅜c net lower to ¼c advance; corn 1c to 1½c off; oats ¼c to ½c down, and provisions showing 2c to 10c decline.

Numerous reports of smaller yields of winter wheat than expected were in circulation yesterday as dealings drew near to the finish.

In contrast with the late strength shown by wheat was a downward trend earlier owing to favorable weather both in winter crop and spring crop territory.

Higher temperatures in the corn belt gave something of a setback to corn values. Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions reflected scattered selling due largely to corn weakness.

A Thought For To-day

AFRAID TO BE AFRAID.

Personally, I am afraid to be afraid and always fear fear.

It is said that necessity makes the coward brave, so, you see, I am coward enough to be brave.

I would not dare dwell too long on failure, for the failure thoughts would make me fail.

When my mind is hopeful, business improves. When my mind droops, my business drops, therefore, I always try to keep my mind cheerful and hopeful.

Let me get blue and discouraged and I might as well advertise to the world that my business is on the down grade.

But you say: When business is bad, how can you look cheerful and appear hopeful?

Reverse this thought: Should I continue to look and act like a failure, would this improve my business?

Every business has its ups and downs, problems and perplexities, and the only way to solve these troubles is to stop worrying and go to work.

Integrity, Intelligence, and Industry will win, provided you have the Pluck to stick.

Without courage and grit, pluck and perseverance your honesty, ability, and ambition will fall far short.

In the final analysis, it is more often a lack of Courage than the real need of cleverness.

The point is, expect to win and then you will work to win. But how, on earth can you "expect" to be successful with your grit gone, your courage collapsed, your pluck punctured?

Perseverance is the power that holds men on the map.

Pluck, spunk, grit, fortitude, firmness—these are all your own, and without these resolute resources, man is but a creature of circumstances.

My personal task is to keep my pluck up to the boiling point and my courage recharged.

Your job is to keep your gizzard full of grit.

When your courage begins to go, your business will go with it.

Perhaps I can help you by asking a question: Just what would you do, what could you do in some other line, if you now lack the courage to carry on in your present line?

If you lack persistency where you are, you will lack grit where you go.

I am afraid to think of anything but the idea of keeping on and keeping on.

You dare not drop your courage or throw away your pluck, for then the results would be—flat failure.

So I say: Talk courage, think courage, act courageously, for the opposite court will surely cause you to have more mental burdens than you can carry.

We attract what we are—mentally.

NEW PASTOR IS INDUCTED

Rev. F. T. Everson Enters New Charge at Dunsford.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

DUNSFORD, July 7.—The induction service for the Rev. J. F. Everson, the new pastor in the United Church here, was conducted by Rev. R. P. Stillman, of Norwood, chairman of Lindsay Presbytery, on Tuesday evening in the presence of a large congregation representing the Dunsford charge. Several folk were present from Bobcaygeon, including Rev. M. L. and Mrs. Hinton. Rev. E. W. Rowland of Omemee preached the sermon from Romans, 8 and 32: "He that spared not his own son." The speaker presented Jesus as a sacrifice of love greatly to be prized and stated that there are elements in human nature that incline men to receive as common-place things which are sacred and of great value, because we have become in the habit of enjoying them. Jesus fed the multitude because His heart yearned after the people. He saw good in every life. His life is a challenge to the Church to discover men and work upon the good in them; it is therefore a challenge to service. Jesus was humble and loving and yet with lion-like courage He went out to face and right great wrongs. Christians cannot afford to make compromises with evil. We should serve Christ because we love Him, although there may be things we cannot understand. We engage in a labor of love because of what Jesus did for us. In all our service we will do well to remember that men are reading our lives and many are doing this who do not read their Bibles.

Rev. Stillman A. Kemp of Lakefield gave the charge to the congregation and briefly referred to some of the things that weaken and ultimately destroy the work of God in a community. He said, Don't criticize the church or the minister. Don't criticize one another. Keep divisions out of the congregation. Make an effort to be at church. Every minister misses his people when they are absent. The church should never be called a beggar simply because it asks for money to carry on its work. Lend your help and co-operation for the minister cannot do all that ought to be done. The minister should be regarded as the leader of a great co-operative institution. Be optimistic and willing to undertake thinks for God and humanity. This will give added strength through infusing the help of others. Encourage and cheer the minister, for there is a constant drain on his sunshine. He is expected to keep smiling under all circumstances. Help him do it.

Rev. T. M. Wesley, B.A., of Lakefield, gave the charge to the minister and emphasized the necessity of keeping physically fit as this affected all the rest of the minister's work. Recreation would be necessary. Save yourself from excesses and becoming lopsided by mental and social equilibrium in carrying on your work. Remember too the devotional side of your nature. This need well met will give strength and power to your work. What you say and do will be effective only as they are backed up by your work. What you say and do will be effective only as they are back ed up by your life. Be a good pastor but don't forget you are to be a preacher first of all.

Mr. Wesley also read the Scripture from Isaiah 53. The hymns used were: "Jesus calls us o'er the tumult," No. 337; "Jesus, I my cross have taken," No. 339; "There is a green hill far away," No. 61.

A delicate lunch was served by the ladies of the congregation at the close of the service.

Smoking, according to one expert, is tending to make women's voices harsh and gutteral, enlarging the vocal chords and creating a general catarrhal condition.

SICK DOLLARS STRENGTHENED TO HEALTH IN THIS GREAT SALE

WARKWORTH NEWS

WARKWORTH, July 7.—The induction service held at the United church, Norham, on Thursday evening, June 30, was successfully and impressively carried out.

Rev. W. H. Clarke of Hilton, moderator for the Cobourg Presbytery, had charge of the service.

The service opened by singing the hymn "The Lord is my Shepherd." Mr. Clarke made a few remarks explaining that the induction service was according to the plans of the church.

Rev. Andrew McLaughlin of Grafton preached. Previous to the sermon he read the first chapter of Romans, choosing for his text the sixteenth verse, "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

Mr. McLaughlin's address was very interesting, pointing out reasons for not being ashamed of the Gospel. This teaching of Paul was from God, and it is a bulwark between all passions of human hearts. Paul was of robust faith, preaching the Gospel to every creature. It is no longer taken for granted that Christianity is bound to do this and we cannot take anything for granted but that christianity will conquer.

The church today is not facing the system of organization or financial campaigns but there is more demand for spiritual power to face a new day, new tasks and new relations.

No man need be ashamed of the gospel or should be for it gave one courage and strength to enlarge and attempt great things for Christ. There is none to whom there is no message.

Following this address was prayer and the singing of the hymn, "I Love Thy Kingdom Lord."

Rev. Mr. Clarke then inducted Rev. D. R. Clare into the pastorate of Norham church by asking several questions of him and also the people and the ministers and members of the board extended their hand of fellowship.

Rev. W. W. Jones, B.A., B.D., of Warkworth then gave an address to the people and the minister.

The speaker pointed out carefully and clearly their duties to their minister as to salary, rest, to let him be himself, and to be loyal, and to avoid unnnecessary comparisons.

Mr. Clare, with Mrs. Clare and family, was spoken of in highest terms of praise. In addressing the minister Mr. Jones stated that it was a wonderful thing to have the call of God upon one which did not come from a Bishop, gowns, or church but from God.

Being a minister is the greatest vocation to which human beings are appointed. The work of a minister gets monotonous but in the service of God there is always a joy in doing the things which help in the building up of Christianitly.

Mr. Jones advised the new pastor to keep seven lamps burning brightly, the lamp of faith, the lamp of sympathy, a sympathetic heart can do wonders in helping one along the way, the lamp of meditation, keep the deeper things of life always in mind; the lamp of friendliness; the lamp of industry, and the lamp of cheerfulness. Why not be cheerful? Ministers are ambassadors of the king and that was worth living for.

The service was closed by singing O Canada and the National Anthem, after which the ladies invited all to the church hall where a dainty lunch was served.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

It was eleven o'clock when Dr. Atkins arrived. Faith, her whole body quivering with the torture of Cherry's screams, cowered at the foot of her sister's bed, while the young doctor made his examination.

"I'm afraid there's no help for it," Dr. Atkins told Faith finally, shaking his head with more than professional regret and anxiety. "All indications are that the baby will be born today or tomorrow—"

"But it's not time yet," Faith gasped.

"I know, but that is not uncommon, and this young lady has not been taking the best care of herself. I've given her a hypodermic, which should make her easier until we get her to the hospital—"

"I don't want to go to a hospital," Cherry cried. "Don't let them take me away, Faith. I won't go!"

"I suppose you want to make it as hard for your sister as possible," Dr. Atkins told her sternly. "I'm going to order the ambulance now, and I want you to pack her bag, Faith. Layette all ready?"

"No," Faith confessed, choking back her sobs. "Only about half of it is ready. But I'll get the most necessary things today."

She rose. Her knees were trembling, but there was a smile of encouragement and utter love on her face as she bent over her sister.

"Don't worry, darling. You'll just have two months less of pain and discomfort and by this time tomorrow you'll be holding your baby in your arms. Maybe before! Won't it be wonderful, Cherry honey?"

"I don't want it," Cherry moaned. "I'll just be tied down to a crying baby for the rest of my life—"

"Oh, babies have a way of growing up," Dr. Atkins interrupted briskly. "Now, no more tears from either of you. I want you to be ready by the time the ambulance gets here."

Mrs. Lundy sat by Cherry, holding the twisting little hands in hers, while Faith packed two suitcases, one with Cherry's lovely, filmy nightgowns, negligees, boudoir caps, slippers and toilet articles, another with the delicate, dainty little garments which she had made for Cherry's baby. Faith had hardly finished her job before Bob arrived, just a minute before the ambulance came.

He came striding into the room, panting as if he had been running, his face drawn and gray with anxiety. Faith wavered toward him, almost fainting with relief that he had come, but it was toward Cherry that he turned. He dropped down beside the bed, gathered the tortured little body into his arms, and pressed the tousled, copper-and-gold curls against his neck.

"Don't be afraid, Cherry, honey," he crooned, his voice breaking. "Remember we all love you and are praying for you to come through it quickly and safely. You're going to be all right, all right, all right," he repeated soothingly, his long, brown hands stroking her cheeks and throat.

Faith halted at the foot of the bed, her trembling hands reaching out to clasp the footboard to keep herself from falling. She had the queer feeling that she was the interloper there, that she was looking on at a scene which should have been granted the boon of perfect privacy. For a terrible moment it seemed to her that Cherry was Bob's wife, that it was Bob's and Cherry's child that was coming, and that she—Bob's wife—was just Cherry's sister, relegated to the background, as she had always been.

"The ambulance is here," Dr. Atkins announced from the doorway. "Everything ready, Faith?"

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TOOTH BRUSH

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

One day, when there was no school because the long, summer vacation had started, and the Lady Mouse Teacher had gone on a trip to England, Mrs. Longears took all her little bunny boys and girls on a walk in the woods.

"Isn't Unkie Wig comin' wif us?" asked Baby Bunty, talking in the childish way she often used.

"Uncle Wiggily may join us later," said Nurse Jane, who was busy helping Mrs. Longears count pink noses so none of the forty 'leven little ones (or forty twelve if you include Baby Bunty) so none of the children would get lost.

"Come on to the woods, now!" called the rabbit lady and soon she was leading the bunnies off to a picnic. Such jolly fun as they had running through the fields, skipping over the brooks and some of the little rabbit girls getting stuck in the mud. But their brothers pulled them out.

Meanwhile Uncle Wiggily had left the hollow stump bungalow to go look for an adventure. He had arisen early to get his breakfast, for he knew with every one being in a hurry to go on a picnic, he might have nothing to eat unless he found it himself. So he had his breakfast early and started out before Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears left with the children.

But Uncle Wiggily had not hopped far from his bungalow on his way after an adventure before, all of a sudden, he stopped short near a sour apple tree and said:

"My goodness! I forgot all about them!"

"Did you forget about bringing some of your bunny boys and girls with you?" asked a little red ant lady, who was crawling along to go shopping at the quarter and half-penny store.

"Oh, no," answered Uncle Wiggily with a smile. "I forgot to clean my teeth. Coming out in such a hurry this morning I quite forgot to clean my teeth. I must hop back and do it right away."

Uncle Wiggily's good health depended a great deal on keeping his teeth clean and sharp for gnawing. So he lost no time in hopping back to his bungalow. It was very quiet around it now, for everyone was away except the rabbit gentleman himself. He got his tooth brush from the bath room, and, with a tube of paste and a glass of water, went down in the yard, there to scrub to his heart's content.

"I can splash as much as I want to now in cleaning my teeth!" chuckled the bunny gentleman. "Nurse Jane and my wife won't let me splash in the bath room but I can out here."

Uncle Wiggily had no sooner dipped his brush in the water and was just putting some of the perfumed, soapy paste on the bristles when, all of a sudden, he heard a noise in the bungalow.

"One of my forty-'leven little rabbits must have been left behind," thought Mr. Longears. "That is too bad. But after I clean my teeth I will take him to the woods to join the others."

He dipped his brush in the water to wet the paste and then, all of a quickness, a voice came out of the back kitchen door saying:

"Here he is! Come on!"

A moment later the Bob Cat and the Bob Cat's wife sprang down off the steps to where Uncle Wiggily stood with his tooth brush.

"Well, what is it?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"I have caught you!" snarled the Bob Cat. "My wife always makes fun of me because I never catch you. But I have you now and I am glad she is along to see it. She will also help me nibble your ears."

"Oh, will she?" asked Uncle Wiggily, sarcastic like.

"Indeed I will!" snarled Mrs. Bob Cat. "Watch me!"

But before either of the bad creatures could nab him, Uncle Wiggily threw the glass of water in the face of Mrs. Bob Cat and into the eyes, from the bristles of his tooth brush, Mr. Longears flicked the soapy tooth paste.

"Take that!" cried the bunny.

"Oh, mercy me! I'm all wet!" cried Mrs. Bob Cat.

"And my eyes are full of soap!" yowled Mr. Bob Cat.

"Ha! Ha! Ta!" chuckled Mr. Longears as he hopped into the bungalow and locked the door. Then he cleaned his teeth in the bath room and the Bob Cat was led away by his wife to wash the soap from his eyes in the brook. "I told you that you'd never catch smart Uncle Wiggily!" yowled the Bob Cat lady. And so it happened, all for the best, as usual.

SANDWICH FILLING.

Equal parts of cream cheese and apricot pulp made by passing stewed apricots through a sieve, put together with Mayonnaise dressing, makes a delicious sandwich filling. If you add a few chopped nuts it is richer and more festiev.

One of the latest fashion fancies in Paris is for women to tint their finger nails with colored varnish to match their frock.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This sleeveless frock worn by one of the best-dressed of tennis enthusiasts is of white pique with large pearl buttons.

The fancy work season is on again. Only the very modern young girl can quite suppress the natural urge of feminine fingers to be at work. And so although you start off on your summer holidays determined to pass your idle hours without some sort of finger work, once you are established at your summer hotel you will probably need only the sight of some other young woman sitting in the shade of the wide veranda contentedly knitting, to make you forget your resolve and hurry off post-haste to the nearest fancy-work shop. And without a doubt you will find examples enough of the busy-fingered women.

Fortunately for the woman who likes to knit, the hand-made sweater has returned to fashion—if indeed it was ever quite out. A new impetus has been given to the knitted sweater, however, by some decidedly modern and most attractive sweaters that have recently been sent to this country from one of the houses in Paris where a variety of so-called sports clothes are to be had. Women here as well as abroad have been willing to pay high prices for these new knitted wool sweaters and jackets—and yet there is nothing about them that could not be copied by the nimble-fingered woman on her holiday.

The sweater with horizontal stripes is still worn, but it has no air of newness about it. The new sweaters show a combination of colors by means of horizontal stripes and various geometrical arrangements. You may choose a sharp contrast in colors, but many of the smartest of these French hand-made sweaters show a combination of two—usually three—shades of the same color. Three shades of gray may be used or orange with two shades of yellow or a deep rose with a pink and a shade in between. Three shades of blue are also well thought of. There are numerous sweaters of the pull-on sort, the opening at the neck being square, high, round or of the V variety.

Usually these pull-on sweaters are made with long straight sleeves, though when they are designed to be worn under a jacket they are better made with short sleeves. There are hand-knitted jackets or cardigans that are designed to be worn outside with one or two-piece sleeveless sports jacket and these are usually made with deep V opening at front, with a single button fastening at the waist.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Friday, July 8, 1927.
(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Morning should be rather a favorable time for most activities, according to astrologers who find the planetary influences promising.

Women should make the most of the early hours which are supposed to be stimulating to their public interests.

Many dissensions and schisms in women's organizations are foreshadowed, owing to political and foreign problems.

New leaders are to arise among young women who will achieve much in service to their country, the seers prophesy.

Agriculture again is subject to rather unfavorable planetary influences. Storms and other forces of nature may cause losses.

Financial problems are subject to many sorts of interpretation under this rule and may cause much domestic trouble as well as national.

London astrologers have found in the aspects attending the appearance of the new Mooh for this month presage of war for England.

Again night life and crimes in which men and women who are infatuated with each other figure will develop terrible crimes, it is foretold.

Europe is to offer a revival of gayeties for tourists who will seek amusement feverishly, owing to the influence of stars supposed to be forcing the world into another frightful conflict, astrologers forecast.

Fires may be more numerous and more destructive than usual in the coming months. Forests will be in special danger.

All the stronger forces of character will be needed for those who meet the tasks of world adjustment in the next few years, the seers warn.

Progress is to make rapid strides in which many victims will be trodden down, it is prognosticated.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of success where the heart is involved.

Children born on this day probably will be cheerful of disposition and clever of mind.

July Specialties—Made Appetising with Keen's

Here are five uncommon recipes for dishes to please lagging appetites during hot weather.

Their daintiness, as well as their food values, makes them very desirable at this season, and you will find them particularly enjoyable because of the savoury tang of Keen's Mustard. Clip these recipes for future reference.

APRICOT SALAD AND DRESSING

4 egg yolks beaten; 4 tablespoons vinegar; 1 teaspoon butter; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon Keen's Mustard; 1 tablespoon sugar; 1 little red pepper:

Mix together in double boiler, and cook five minutes. After it begins to thicken, stir constantly. When cool add 1 cup whipped cream, twelve marshmallows cut fine, and ½ cup cut pecans. Drain 1 can of apricots, arrange halves on lettuce leaves and serve with above dressing. This recipe serves eight people.

DEVILLED EGG SALAD

6 hard boiled eggs; 1½ teaspoons butter; 1 teaspoon cream; 2 tablespoons vinegar; scant teaspoon Keen's Mustard; pinch cayenne; ¾ teaspoon salt:

Split the eggs lengthwise, remove the yolks. To the yolks add the other ingredients and mix to form a paste. Refill the whites and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise.

This may be varied by adding ½ cup minced ripe olives or 2 tablespoons tomato sauce and 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.

DEVILLED CHEESE CRACKERS

1½ cups diced moist cheese; 1 teaspoon Keen's Mustard; 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce; 2 tablespoons butter; 1 tablespoon vinegar; ¼ teaspoon salt; ⅛ teaspoon cayenne:

Beat the cheese with the seasonings and flavorings until light and creamy. Spread on toasted crackers and serve with salads. This will spread about fifty crackers.

SPINACH SALAD

1 pint boiled spinach; 2 tablespoons oil; 1 tablespoon vinegar; ½ teaspoon Keen's Mustard; salt; pepper:

Add seasoning to oil and vinegar and mix with spinach. Pack lightly in six moulds to cool. Place a slice of cold ham on young lettuce leaves and on each slice turn a mould of spinach. Garnish with slices of cold boiled egg. Serve with French or mayonnaise dressing.

PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH

½ cup peanut butter; ½ cup chopped pickle; 1 teaspoon Keen's Mustard; 3 tablespoons hot water; ¼ teaspoon salt:

Beat all ingredients together until light. Spread between slices of either white or whole wheat bread.

1-8 teaspoon salt, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 cup Carnation, 1-3 cup butter, 4 eggs, 1-2 cup water, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 5 tablespoons boiling water, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 ozs. unsweetened chocolate.

Dissolve chocolate in boiling water. Cool. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, creaming constantly. Add the chocolate. Beat yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add them to the creamed sugar and butter; then add the liquid and the sifted dry ingredients, alternately. Add vanilla. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and cut carefully and lightly into the mixture. Turn into two greased layer cake pans and bake in a moderate oven thirty to thirty-five minutes.

SUNSHINE CAKE

9 egg yolks, 1 cup sugar, 7 egg whites, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup flour, 1-3 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon orange or lemon extract.

The Story of Carnation Milk

THE WORLD'S LARGEST SELLING BRAND OF EVAPORATED MILK

Every housewife is interested and should read this important message.

Milk is Nature's most nearly perfect food. It contains in well balanced proportions, virtually all the elements essential to the sustaining of human life and the promotion of growth from infancy to old age.

In milk there is protein for muscle-building, carbohydrates and fat for the production of energy and heat, the mineral salts that play such an important par. in the digestive and other functions of the body, and about eighty-five per cent. of water.

Milk—besides serving as a most necessary item in our daily diet—plays a very important part in modern cookery. A large number of recipes nowadays call for milk as an important ingredient. Every experienced cook knows, however, that there is a big difference in milks. Quality and richness vary greatly.

If you have experienced the disappointment of having one of your recipes go wrong for no apparent reason whatever, you may be reasonably sure, assuming you followed directions carefully, that the milk used was not up to standard.

Thousands of expert cooks use nothing but Carnation Milk in their kitchens because they have found that Carnation is always uniform. It never varies in quality and richness and therefore is always dependable.

Carnation is just pure, fresh milk brought to double richness by the evaporation of approximately sixty per cent. of its natural water content and kept safe by sterilization in hermetically sealed containers. It contains no sugar or other preservatives. It stays fresh and sweet in the can indefinitely until opened—and for several days after the can is opened if kept in a cool, clean place.

The contents of a tall size can of Carnation when diluted with a little more than an equal part of water gives milk of about the proper consistency for use in all recipes that call for milk. For "creaming" coffee and desserts, use Carnation just as it comes from the container. For cereals, fruits, etc., use Carnation in its full richness or dilute it if you prefer.

Carnation Condenseries are located in the richest and most productive dairying centres. From the surrounding countrysides, the farmers bring the milk, delivering it in sterilized cans which are kept cool to the proper temperature the year round.

When received at the plant, the milk is tested and retested. If the quality is up to standard it is then poured into clean, glass-lined receiving tanks, afterwards passing to the copper preheating kettles. After heating to a certain temperature, the milk goes to large vacuum pans where approximately sixty per cent. of the natural water content is evaporated.

The milk then passes on to the homogenizing machines, where the butter-fat globules are broken up into minute particles to keep the rich butter-fat from separating and rising to the top of the can as it does in milk in its ordinary form.

After testing, the filled cans are placed in the sterilizer, where the sterilizing heat is applied. Finally the cans are again tested, this time individually by hand. They are then passed on to the labeling department and packed—forty-eight tall (sixteen-ounce) cans, or ninety-six baby (six-ounce) cans to the case.

Throughout the entire process extreme sanitary precautions are taken. The shining equipment of every Carnation Condensery gives evidence of constant care and cleanliness.

Your grocer is the modern milk man. He sells Carnation Milk. Get in the habit of using Carnation in all your cooking. You will find it economical, convenient, dependable, and a real aid to the culinary art.

For a Perfect Cup of Coffee

USE Carnation Milk. Flavor, aroma, color—absolutely perfect. It really makes the coffee. And yet it costs only one-third as much as cream.

It is because of the wonderful flavor and golden brown color it gives to coffee that many women have come to use Carnation in all kinds of cooking.

Carnation is double-rich—and there's cream in every drop. There's no "top milk" or "bottom milk" to Carnation. The Carnation process of "homogenization" distributes the double-helping of cream evenly throughout the tin. That is why Carnation adds so much smoothness and rich flavor wherever it is used. Order several tins or a case of 48 tins from your grocer.

COCOA MADE WITH CARNATION

Three tablespoons cocoa (or 2 tablespoons for children), 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup hot water, few grains salt, 1½ cups Carnation Milk diluted with 1½ cups water, ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Scald diluted milk in double boiler. Mix cocoa, sugar and salt and add the ½ cup hot water. Cook over low flame 10 to 15 minutes stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Add to cocoa the scalded milk; return to double boiler and continue cooking for 10 minutes. Whisk with Dover egg beater just before serving. Place a marshmallow in cup and pour hot cocoa over. This serves four. Chilled, then iced, this makes a delightful, hot weather drink.

W.M.S. HEARS FINE ADDRESSES

Gifted Young Ladies Give Talks Suitable To Jubilee Season.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 7. — Mrs. Allan Watson threw her spacious and beautiful home, on the Hastings road, open for the July meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon. Over 100 members of the society and their friends greatly enjoyed the afternoon in such pleasant surroundings as were theirs, and were delighted with the programme arranged for the afternoon.

Mrs. William Hume, the president, occupied the chair, and in a brief address welcomed the members of the society and their friends and announced the exceptionally rich programme in store for them.

The programme was a seasonable one, being chiefly made up of addresses touching on Confederation, together with patriotic songs.

Miss Margery Ackerman was listened to with great interest as she gave her address, "Canada's Diamond Jubilee; Her Achievements Since Confederation," and which brought Miss Ackerman numberless compliments when it was published in a Toronto competition.

Miss Ackerman did not deal with statistics, but gave a series of word pictures, describing the progress of Canada from the beginning, tracing the efforts of the pioneer and ending with the late war.

Out natural resources, the C.P.R., the pioneer in the Canadian west, the part Canada's representatives had taken in the League of Nations, and the contribution made by each of the Father of Confederation, were dealt with by this gifted young lady whose diction might be described as being very, very fine.

Miss Edith Sitllman, an Arts student of Queen's University, Kingston, followed Miss Ackerman with an address on, "Canada's Present Achievements, 1867-27." Miss Stillman told of the changes that have taken place since 1867.

Among the many points touched upon were the increase in population, the development in transportation, railway and motor, the electrical development, trade, education facilities, manufacturing, national status, agriculture, new inventions and methods, social legislation, development of parliament, creation and growth of cites and towns, the Rockies, ranching, mines and minerals and forestry.

Regarding the latter Miss Stillman, who held the rapt attention of the gathering to her nicely prepared address said that Canada is the Empire's greatest forest storehouse. The most dramatic change has come in the pulp and paper industry, in which Canada now leads the world in news print production.

The musical part of the program consisted of a solo by Miss Helen McDonald "The Land of the Glad To-morrow," and two solos by Miss Hilda Bonnycastle "Greater Canada," and "This Canada of Ours," the words and music of "Greater Canada" being composed by Miss Bonnycastle's mother, who is so well and favorably known in musical circles. Mrs. John Storie was the accompanist.

Rev. Mr. Grier took for his subject "Woman's Influence on the Nation," and stated that such influence was undoubted, but his endeavor would be to show how best it might be exercised. Dealing with women in politics he referred to Lady Astor and Miss McPhail, and stated that the results of their effort were very meagre for the time they put in at it. He thought there were not enough women to back them up.

In a reference to business life he quoted from Acts, which is also quoted by Hutchison in "This Freedom." "With a great price obtained I this freedom." He said that therein was to be found the truth underlying the whole situation—one might make a mess of the home by attending to other lines.

The speaker thought that women could exert a great and commendable influence in society and social life. He thought that a woman who takes some interest in outside activities made the better mothers. Professional life for women, such as lawyers, doctors, etc. he said, could be taken advantage of by by few. He thought that the church opened up for women the most promising work—in the Sunday school and missionary societies woman found scope for her powers The Presbyterian church, said the speaker, had the biggest national woman's programme it ever had. In that way women can exercise a very great and good influence on the nation.

In dealing with woman in the home, the speaker reminded his audience that the progress of his thought was tending to an anti-climax but a climax that women in the home have an opportunity of reaching the climax of all their endeavors.

At the conclusion of the programme a tasty lunch was served on the lawn.

CANADA'S FISH CULTURE SERVICE.

During 1926 the Department of Marine and Fisheries, Canada, through the Fish Culture Service, operated 39 hatcheries, 4 salmon retaining ponds, and several smaller stations, and distributed over 724,246,000 eggs and fish in different stages of development.

IN 1867, the Confederation of Canada marked the harmonious blending together of different Provinces. Each contributed of their best only. And from out of the melting-pot emerged The Dominion of Canada—a land of prosperity freedom and tolerance.

In 1864—three years before Confederation—CHASE & SANBORN blended together the best qualities of the best coffees—superior strength, alluring flavour, and rich fragrance.

And, like Confederation, the result was a finished product, acceptable to every Canadian.

And, because "the whole is greater than its part," CHASE & SANBORN'S SEAL BRAND COFFEE is a household word in most Canadian homes to-day—"The King of Coffees."

Of equal goodness is SEAL BRAND TEA—which fully maintains in every respect, the reputation created by Seal Brand Coffee.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, July 7.—A very large number of local people attended the open air concert in Peterboro on Sunday evening last and in spite of the chilly atmosphere the music was greatly appreciated and the local verdict is that it was an outstanding musical festival and well worth the trip down.

The total amount collected for the Armenian Relief Association of Canada in the recent campaign was $79.72, which has been forwarded to the secretary, Rev. Ira W. Pierce, Toronto.

A Correction

In the report of the local celebration on Dominion Day, the fact that Mr. Wallace Anderson, of Warsaw, mounted on a handsome horse and wearing the uniform of the 3rd Prince of Wales' Dragoons acted as marshal for the parade, was inadvertantly omitted and also the fact that Mr. Braden Blewett gave an exhibition of canoe stunts at the close of the regatta which were greatly enjoyed. Mr. Blewett is thoroughly at home on the water and his exhibition was worth seeing, beginning with upsetting the canoe and flipping it and ending with standing on his head on the thwart of the canoe.

OLD APE'S SKULL

LONDON, July 7.—A skull that is a million years old is the latest claim before scienfists who are forever wrestling with the problem of "the missing link." The skull, excavated at Bilaspur, in the foothills of the Himalayas of India, was the discovery of Guy Pilgrim, superintendent of the Geological Survey of India. The skull was that of a fossil ape.

4 Simple nourishing Puddings made with EAGLE BRAND

RICE PUDDING

½ cup rice
½ cup Eagle Brand Condensed Milk
2½ cups water
Rind of one-half lemon thinly sliced
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup seeded raisins

Wash rice thoroughly, cover with cold water, soak one hour, drain. Dilute milk with cold water, stirring well to blend. Add rice, salt and lemon rind, cook in a double boiler until rice is tender and milk nearly absorbed. Remove lemon rind, stir in eggs and butter. Cook slowly five minutes longer. Add raisins, pour into a buttered pudding dish, bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes.

TAPIOCA CREAM PUDDING

½ cup Eagle Brand Condensed Milk
2½ cups hot water
4 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten separately
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla or any preferred flavoring

Dilute milk with hot water, blending well. Bring to scalding point in a double boiler. Stir in tapioca and cook about one-half hour. Add butter and salt to egg yolks. Pour over them gradually the hot tapioca, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and cook three minutes longer. Pour slowly over the beaten egg whites, folding in gently; flavor and chill. Serve plain or with cream or fresh fruit sauce.

Vary cream tapioca pudding by arranging fresh or canned peaches, apricots, or sliced oranges in bottom of serving dish, pouring over the chilled tapioca cream.

ORANGE BREAD PUDDING

½ cup Eagle Brand Condensed Milk
2 cups hot water
1 cup sifted soft bread crumbs
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon melted butter
Juice of three oranges
Grated rind of one orange
½ teaspoon salt

Add hot water to condensed milk, blend thoroughly, and bring to scalding point. Pour over bread crumbs; let stand until cool. Add egg yolks, salt, melted butter, orange juice and rind. Pour into a buttered pudding dish, set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven about forty-five minutes. Cover with meringue of stiffly beaten egg whites and one-fourth cup sugar. Brown slightly in a moderate oven. Serve cold. If desired, the whole eggs may be added to pudding, the meringue omitted and the pudding served cold with cream.

CARAMEL PUDDING

Place unopened can of Eagle Brand Condensed Milk in a kettle of boiling water and simmer for two and a half hours, being careful not to let the kettle boil dry. Remove can, cool, and chill. Remove top of can, cutting along the side of the can—not the top—so that the contents may be removed whole; place on a serving dish, garnish with broken nut meats and whipped cream. To serve individually, cut in slices, garnish with nut meats and whipped cream—or use plain unsweetened cream, with or without garnish.

Work On Waite-Montgomery Being Started Shortly

Distribution of 380,000 shares of Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery Mines, Limited, will be made within about ten days to the minority interests. The balance of the capital of 2,000,000 shares of no par value will go into the Noranda treasury. Waite-Montgomery units advanced last week to $610 bid, and there was a remarkable scarcity. At the same time the stock was bid up to $3.10 a share, if, as, and when issued. This means that traders are given an opportunity to speculate against the delivery of the stock. Each unit that is outstanding will be exchanged for 100 shares of stock. It will be recalled that the units sold as high as $875 several months ago, and as low as $550 in June prior to the present move.

A gang of men has been sent to the property to do exploration work. A high-grade find was made on the Waite-Montgomery some little distance from the original spectacular discovery. The significance of this latest showing has not yet been determined, but it will doubtless be outlined when the current season of exploration work proceeds further.

A strong point in connection with the Waite-Montgomery situation is that only 19 per cent. of the total capital will be in the hands of the public. The Waite-Montgomery mine ranks second to the Horne in magnitude, in the North-western Quebec field. Its ore reserves are estimated as being in excess of $10,000,000 on a conservative basis of calculation. The incorporation of the company has already been effected, and stock will be available for distribution within about two weeks.

New York Market Firm But Trading Is Dull

NEW YORK, July 7.— (Canadian Press.)—Lower money rates and good investment demand provided the ground work for another advance in prices in to-day's stock market, but trading was rather dull on the rally.

Baldwin Locomotive, which is operating at 10 per cent. of capacity, crossed 239 to a new peak and the preferred reached the callable price of 125 the first time.

The heaviness of Famous Players, which ran up three points at the expense of an overcrowded short interest yesterday, probably was based on selling inspired by reports that 700 actors and actresses had banded together, presumably to resist proposed cuts and obtain better working conditions. General Motors, Hudson, Dupont, and International Harvester also had spells of heaviness. Merger issues continued to feature the rail group, with Kansas City, Southern and Chicago and Eastern Illinois common and preferred reaching new high ground.

Wheat Moves Upward On Reports Of Damage

CHICAGO, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Wheat turned decidedly upgrade today after a hesitating start. Although black rust conditions in the Spring crop territory remained indicative of little harm, widespread appoiningyieldsin the Winter wheat districts were ascribed largely to the pest. Opening unchanged to ⅛ cent off, wheat sagged a little more, and then scored material gains. Corn, oats and provisions also developed strength, corn starting at ½c decline to ¼ cent gain and subsequently rising all around.

Opening prices were: Wheat, July 1.44¼, September 1.43⅜. Corn, July 96¼, September 1.05⅛. Oats, July 43, September 46½.

Brazilian Features Quiet Session To-day

TORONTO, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Brazilian Traction featured a somewhat quiet but strong market on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. It advanced 1⅜ points in small lot trading to 166¾. The Preferred moved up four points to 138. Walker was the most active issue on the board, being trade in to the extent of 2,550 shares. It was also a strong spot, gaining 2½ points to 51, previously selling as high as 51¾. G. and W. was quite active and this stock recorded the widest gain of the day at 54¾, up 3¾. International Nickel was in demand at 63¾ and 63, the latter a gain og ¼. Dominion Stores advanced 1½ points to 77, Davies "A" ¼ to 38½, while Massey Harris was unchanged at 36½, as was Industrial Alcohol at 32.

Amulet Leads Mines; Market Generally Firm

TORONTO, July 7. Canadian Press. — Amulet dominated the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, with 49,900 shares changing hands at prices ranging from 249 to 255, the latter figure representing a gain of 7 cents.

Area was active and stronger at 48 a gain of 1½c; Barry Hollinger firmed 1¼ to 29. Hollinger sold up 10c to 1810, while Teck Hughes again featured the market with an advance of 14c, with trading in over ten thousand shares. McIntyre dropped 20c to 2625, Lake Shore 5 to 1860, and Nipissing 15c to 560. Kirkland Lake was active and firm at 142, a gain of 2c.

The man's name or where he came from in the United States, was not made known.

FINE CRUISER VISITS CITY

George Bryan, of Toronto, Passes Through Peterborough in "Cherie."

FIRST TIME HERE.

Mr. George Bryan of A. D. Gorrie Motors, Toronto, passed through the city yesterday on his way from Collingwood to Toronto, in his auxiliary cruiser Cherie, which was at the government wharf all last night.

The overall length of the vessel is thirty-eight feet, with an eleven foot beam There are four bunks in the cabin, which is noteworthy for its large amount of head room, permitting the average man to stand upright. The boat is driven by both sail and motor, but the use of the former cannot be exercised on the upper lakes or on the canal. Only on Lake Ontario does Mr. Bryan spread the sails of his vessel. The whole ship appears comfortable and seaworthy.

Yesterday was Mr. Bryan's first visit to Peterborough and he is very favorably impressed with the location, the factories and the scenic beauties of Peterborough.

Mr. Bryan left for Trenton this morning.

PICTURES PLACED IN CHAMBER OFFICE

F. L. Roy Lends Airplane Views of City to Chamber of Commerce.

The executive offices of the Chamber of Commerce have been considerably brightened up by the addition of six large airplane pictures, the property of the Roy Studio. Mr. Roy, a member of the Chamber, has loaned the views for the use of tourists and visitors of the city. The pictures consist of four views of the Stoney Lake District and two of the City of Peterborough. These will be of great value to the tourists, in assisting them in finding places in the Kawartha Lakes, and also an interesting and useful addition to the information Bureau at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The photos are very distinct and places such as the James Stevenson Park and the Lift Locks can be discerned quite easily.

JAPAN HOLDS UP TROOP MOVEMENT

Re-assuring News Received From Shantung—No Marines Landed.

LONDON, July 7 (Canadian Press). —Owing to the reassuring news from Shantung, says a Reuter message from Tokio, the Japanese War Office has decided to postpone the despatch of troops from Dairen, Manchuria, to Tsingtao.

AGREEMENT ON LANDING.

SHANGHAI, July 7 (Canadian Press). — Advices from Tokio state that the despatches received at the Japanese Foreign Office to-day told of an agreement reached at Tsingtao last night by which the United States will land one thousand bluejackets there and Great Britain will send a contingent from Shanghai. The advices said that the agreement was reached at a conference of the British, Japanese, German, and American consuls at Tsingtao.

THREE HOME RUNS

C.G.E. Outhit Winners, But Fall Down in Pinches.

The Belmonts last night defeated the C.G.E. in the first game of the softball play-offs for the Taylor Cup the final score being 14 to 7.

The C.G.E. outhit the Belmont team but Carruthers kept the hits well scattered, never allowing more than two men to cross the plate in one innings.

Green, Holyman and Frick all got home runs for the winners.

Richmond failed to pitch as steady ball as Carruthers, walking seven men to the two passes issued by Carruthers. Each pitcher struck out one man.

The ground was wet, which did not help the players in fielding the balls. Holyman was the hitting star of the game getting a home run, two doubles and a single in five times to bat and was only robbed of another hit by a perfectly fielded ball on the part of Ross. "Doc" Green for the Belmonts was the run-getter of the team getting four runs, three hits, two sacrifices, and a walk in six times at the bat. Corbett and Carruthers each crossed the plate three times.

Wilson scored three runs off the C.G.E.s 7. Jones got two and Heard and Ross one each. Heard got two triples and a single in five times at bat, with Jones getting three singles and a walk in five times at bat.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, July 7. A few of our local boys went over to Springbook Monday evening to assist the Rylstone team in a softball encounter with the Springbrook aggregation. The Rylstone team lined up as follows:—Ted Owens c, Grant Kerr p, Doug. Barnum 1b, R. McKeown 2b, J. Lain 3b, Grant Meiklejohn ss, Grenville Meiklejohn lf, E. Anderson cf, Roy Barnum rf.

On Thursday evening the Springbrook team will meet Rylstone again at the S.S. social at Mr. S. G. Meiklejohn's. The Rylstone team will be strengthened for the occasion and a good game is promised.

EVEN SERIES WITH BROWNS

Detroit Tigers Outslug St. Louis to Win 9 to 8 Victory.

BRAVES LOSE DOUBLE

NEW YORK, July 7.— (Canadian Press.)—The Athletics were in hitting mood at Boston yesterday and won both ends of the double header, 5 to 1, and 7 to 6. In the first game Simmons and Dykes drove in home runs, and Cobb had three hits, one a triple, in three times at bat. The Georgian also figured on the scoring end of a brilliant triple steal that won tumultous applause from the stands.

The Detroit Tigers outslugged the Browns at St. Louis and evened the series by winning yesterday, 9 to 8. Nevers weakened in the eighth, forcing in a run which tied the score. This was just after Fred Schulte, the Browns' $100,000 centre fielder, was injured when he ran into a concrete bleacher wall while chasing a fly. He was taken to a hospital where it was found he was suffering from a fractured left wrist and a fractured rib, but there was no skull fracture as had been feared. He will be out of the game indefinitely.

TENNIS RESULTS AT OTTAWA COURTS

Contestants Enter Semi-Final Round of Ladies' Singles Championship.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 7 (Canadian Press). — Miss M. Bremner, of Ottawa, and Miss Phoebe Grierson, also of Ottawa, and who lately won the Quebec provincial ladies' title, entered the semi-final round of the Ontario ladies' singles tennis championship yesterday afternoon. Miss Bremner won from Mrs. G. S. McFarlane, an Ottawa lady, and Miss Grierson defeated Mrs. H. M. B. Smith, of Toronto. A third semi-finalist is Miss P. S. Rykert, of Ottawa. Miss Rykert won from Mrs. A. G. Dexter, of Ottawa. The remaining place is taken by Mrs. G. Gallery, Montreal. Miss Gallery defeated her clubmate, Miss Effie Billings.

Rain halted the proceedings before the day's programme was completed, but the tournament is so well advanced that a slight check will not be felt seriously. Probabilities for to-day are for warm weather. Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, advanced in the men's singles event, as also did Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto. H. Martin, Newton, Mass., L. Hilts, Toronto, Lewis N. White, and Louis Thalheimer, both of Austin, Texas, and probable finalists, and H. F. Wright, of Ottawa. Wright is the only Ottawa entry left in the running.

A. D. Noble, a young player, of Newton, Mass., gave Thalheimer a great battle before going down to defeat. Their match was by far the most exciting of the tournament up to date. Only two matches were played in the junior singles event, which were won by G. H. Stoddard, of Montreal, who defeated J. H. Brown, of the same city, and P. R. Hurcomb, an Ottawa boy, who won from H. Holmes, of Toronto.

Doherty and Nunns, of Toronto, had little difficulty n disposing of Woods and Condon, of Ottawa, who had been expected to give them a hard fight, in the men's doubles event. Mrs. G. C. Graupner and V. Tupling, Toronto, put up a stiff opposition in the mixed doubles to Mrs. M. Bremner and H. F. Wright, of Ottawa, but lost out in straight sets. Wright played about the best tennis of his career in Ottawa.

In the same event two Montreal pairs came through, Miss M. Parker and A. S. Cassils, and Miss R. Gallery, of Montreal, with D. M. Martin, of Newton, Mass., as a partner. Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Brown, of Toronto, were losers to the first pair.

The results of matches, including out-of-town players, played yesterday, are as follows:

Men's Singles—

L. Thalheimer, Austin, Texas, defeated A. D. Noble, Newton, Mass., 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

M. Rainville, Montreal, defeated M. Margesson, Toronto, 6-2, 6-3.

L. Hilts, Toronto, defeated P. R. Hurcomb, Ottawa, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

Women's Singles—

Miss G. Gallery, Montreal, defeated Miss E. Billings, Montreal, 6-4, 7-5.

Miss P. Grierson, Ottawa, defeated Mrs. H. M. B. Smith, Toronto, 6-2, 6-0.

Junior Singles—

G. H. Stoddard, Montreal, defeated J. H. Brown, Montreal, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5.

T. Hurcomb, Ottawa, defeated H. Hope, Toronto, 6-4, 6-1.

Men's Doubles—

Lewis N. White and L. Thalheimer, Austin, Texas, defeated G. H. Raper and G. H. Stodadrd, Montreal, 6-1, 6-4.

A. S. Cassils and M. Rainville, Montreal, defeated E. A. Purkis and V. Tupling, Toronto, 6-2, 6-3.

W. L. Rennie and C. G. Spanner, Toronto, defeated H. J. Bulmer and L. Clegg, Montreal, 7-5, 6-0.

P. Wickham and E. Durand, Montreal, defeated H. Holmes and L. Hilts, Toronto, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

R. Quain and P. R. Hurcomb, Ottawa, defeated M. Margesson and P. R. Hamilton, Toronto, 6-4, 6-2.

Sam Hardy, New York, and H. F. Wright, Ottawa, defeated B. Mitchell and J. Paradis, Ottawa, 6-2, 6-3.

B. Doherty and G. Nunns, Toronto, defeated E. G. Condon and J. W. Woods, Ottawa, 6-0, 6-2.

PLAY-OFF FOR TAYLOR CUP

Belmonts and C.G.E. To Battle in Second Game of Finals.

FRIDAY NIGHT.

The C.G.E. and Belmonts will resume their fight for the Taylor Cup on Friday night at Confederation Square. The Belmonts won out last night 14-7, but were exceedingly lucky to win by that margin, as the Electricians outhit them. Last night's performance was by no means the brand of ball these two teams are capable of showing. The wet ground seriously handicapped the teams and it went particularly hard with Richmond, who found trouble in handling the wet ball, walking seven men.

Tomorrow night's battle should be a different story. The C.G.E. are capable of playing better ball than they turned in last night, and should make Friday's night battle a more interesting game than Wednesday's exhibition.

The teams will get away at 6.15 sharp and the large crowd of Wednesday night should be equalled, if not surpassed.

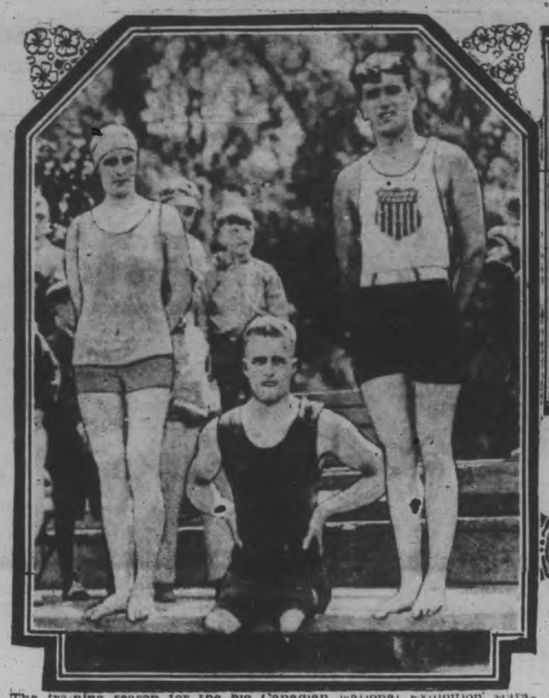
TRAINING SEASON OPENS FOR C.N.E. MARATHON SWIM



The training season for the big Canadian National Exhibition Marathon swim across Toronto Bay was officially opened last week. Shown above before their plunge from the wharf at Centre Island are, from left to right: Mrs. Kathleen Norgate Barnes, Toronto; George Coombs, Toronto, the swimmer without legs; and Daniel B. J. Simon, Jr., of Upton, Massachusetts. Upper right shows officials rubbing the chilled stumps of Coombs after he was taken from the water and wrapped in blankets. Despite his great physical handicap he completed half the distance. Simon, shown below, took a cramp in the middle of the bay in a particularly cold current, but showed good physical form. Mrs. Barnes also made a good showing. Swimmers from all parts of the United States and Canada and from overseas will be competing the last of July.

PHILLIES WIN DOUBLE-HEADER

Advance to Sixth Place in National League Race.

RUN WINNING STREAK

NEW YORK, July 7.— (Canadian Press.)— The Phillies advanced to sixth place in the National League race at Philadelphia by twice trimming the Boston Braves, 6 to 4 and 5 to 3, to run their winning streak to three straight.

The relief pitching of Dutch Ulrich, who permitted three hits and held the visitors scoreless after succeeding Tony Kaufman in the first inning, was the highlight of the opening struggle. A five run rally off Hugh McQuillan in the third, settled the contest.

Jack Scott kept the Braves in check in the final game. He yielded 11 hits, one a home run by Jacques Fournier with Farrell on base in the eighth.

Brooklyn at New York, rain.

Only games scheduled.

GAME CALLED OFF.

The Lockworks-Examiner game, scheduled for tonight, has been called off. This is due to a decision of the Executive Committee who through a misunderstanding, thought that the local league had to declare a winner for the Ontario finals by July 15th. A winner is not necessary until August 15, so the Committee decided they would not rush the teams. As the Lockworks and Examiner have played one game this week it was decided not to send the teams right back, hence the game being called off.

Miss Spitfire V, tore over the water at a clip of 62.88 miles an hour, another record performance. The craft is in the 151 class for hydroplanes. The other records were for small power outboard motors.

Three of Four Third-Round Matches Today be International.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 7.—(Canadian Press.)—As a result of yesterday's second round matches in the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship at the Hamilton Club, three of the four matches to-day will be international affairs, the field having been reduced to three Americans, one of them being Frank Thompson, a Canadian playing from the Knollwood Club of Chicago, and five Canadians. Three of the survivors of yesterday's play are former winners of the title, Frank Thompson, 1921 and 1924 champion, Don Carrick winner in 1925, and Sandy Somerville, the defending champion.

The Thompson Brothers, Stanley and Frank, were principals in the closest matches of the day, Stanley being carried to the home hole before he eliminated W. Henderson of the London Hunt, 2 up, while Frank was carried to the thirty-fifth by J. C. Mackie, before winning 2 and 1.

Don Carrick and Somerville, both of whom are in the lower half of the draw, showed strong form in yesterday's matches. Somerville was especially strong against Paul H. Hyde of the Buffalo Country Club although the latter kept on his tail until the sixth hole in the afternoon. Somerville drew away with successive birdies at the sixth and seventh and made the turn for home three up. He lost little time after that, winning three of the next four holes and halving the other.

OSHAWA WILL BE HERE SATURDAY TO MEET PETES

Billy Benson's Motorists Billed for Battle at Riverside Park.

A REAL FIGHT

Petes Will Scrap Former Umpire for Every Point Saturday.

Local ball fans who have been waiting for many weeks to see a senior clash will get their inning on Saturday when the Oshawa club of the Lakeshore League, with whom the Petes will likely have to clash in the finals for the Lakeshore title, will be here to try conclusions with the Peterborough seniors.

The battle will be a scrappy one.

The Oshawa club is under the Management of Billy Benson, former Central Ontario League umpire, with whom the Petes had many a clash in years gone by, and Manager Swanston's crew will battle with Benson for every point Saturday.

The Petes' manager is going to send Al. Heckman in to curb the Motorists, and the strongest line-up of the season will be behind "Heck." A new outfielder with a reputation as a hitter will be in action, and altogether the Petes hope to show a winning combination, ready for the play-offs and the right to go into the O.B.A.A. series.

Saturday's game is called for three o'clock at James Stevenson Park.

MARIE PREVOST IN "ALMOST A LADY"

The feature picture at the Regent Theatre has the pretty brunette, Marie Prevost, as a heroine. She is a dress model in a fashionable establishment whose owner, Henri, has a penchant for pretty women. But Marcia Blake evades him and become involved in an adventure with a fictitious Duke and a rich lady aspiring to a stellar role in society. This lady, Mrs. Riley, gives a party and invites Vonna Vola, an eminent authoress, and the Duke, as her guests. Both fail to appear, but a young man who arrives unexpectedly is taken for the latter and the pretty modiste's assistant, Marcia Blake, essays the role of the former, on the plea of her frenzied hostess. She has a hectic evening with the young man, who persists in talking to her as do the gentlemen in her books, while she endeavors to hold together a gown of her hostess, basted for the occasion. Complications ensue when her young brother, fired with a mania for saving his sister from pursuing males, has the bright idea that she has been the object of unmannerly attentions. The young man saves his sister on several occasions, much to her embarrassment, but the affair winds up eventually to a satisfactory conclusion.

The programme also includes one of the very entertaining Buster Brown and Tige bits, in "Buster's Picnic," a Grantland Rice Spotlight, and a travelogue, Trip to the Yukon. —Jeanette.

LINDSAY TOURNEY.

LINDSAY, July 7. — Lawn bowlers do not like wet weather any more than curlers like soft ice. Bowlers in this district out for a holiday, and attending the first tournament of the season at Lindsay yesterday, were keenly disappointed when Jupiter Pluvius interfered. It did not rain hard enough to put a dead stop to the tournament, and yet it was wet bowling, and not very satisfactory.

Lindsay Community Bowling Club had arranged for a big tournament. The greens were in very good shape, having been changed from south and north to east and west. The new club quarters added to the accommodation of the visitors. But the rain interfered.

Bowlers from Cobourg and Peterboro on the East from Whitby, Oshawa and Port Perry on the South, and from Sunderland and Cannington on the west and north, gathered for the tournament.

Despite the head it was decided to go ahead, the visitors being quite content to play in a misty rain rather than go home without playing.

Play in the Carew Cup, the main event, started, with seven greens in use, and there were a number of close games, and considerable good bowling, despite the disagreeable circumstances.

At noon hour it was decided to call a halt until two o'clock hoping that the weather would break bright and clear.

In the final draw the Peterboro rink, composed of G. F. Cairns (skip), W. J. Oke, W. R. Fox, J. M. Bacon, won against Rev. M. Scott (skip) of Cannington Ont.

This is a great honor for the Peterboro Bowling Club this rink having won the Carew Cup three years in succession.

Thirty rinks competed in the tournament.

PRESIDENT GIVEN LIFE MEMBERSHIP

Mrs. Gordon Mann Honored By Gilmour Church Mission Circle.

At the meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Gilmour Memorial Church, held this week in the home of Mrs. T. H. Graham, Aylmer street, Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, the president of the Circle, was made the recipient of a surprise gift, a certificate and pin indicating admission to life membership in the Women's Missionary Society.

The following address was read by Mrs. J. A. Young:

Mrs. Gordon Mann,
Smith Township.

Dear Mrs. Mann,—The members of Gilmour Memorial Mission Circle met here with much pleasure to greet you and to congratulate you on your fifteen years of faithful service as president of our Circle.

We realize that throughout the years your constant attendance at our meetings has not been attained without sacrifice on some occasions.

We are pleased to honor you with this certificate and pin for life membership in the Women's Missionary Society, as a token of our esteem and our appreciation of your unfailing sympathy and interest in the aims and undertakings of our Circle.

We rejoice with you that though small in numbers there is a genuine missionary spirit exhibited among our members and we pray that we may be permitted to continue working together for the glory of God and the advancement of His kingdom.

Signed on behalf of the Circle—Mrs. T. H. Graham, vice-president, Mrs. S. Blewett, secretary, Miss Mabel Paul.

Smith Township, July 4th, 1927.

Miss Mabel Paul made the presentation. Mrs. Gordon Mann, much surprised, thanked the Circle for the gift.

During her long connection with the Circle, Mrs. Mann was absent on only two occasions, one during a time of sickness and the other while attending a funeral.

The Rev. W. S. Edgar gave an address, surveying world-wide missionary activities. Mrs. Blewett read the minutes of the last meeting.

Papers on leper work were read by Mrs. Metcalfe, Mrs. Hammond and Miss Jean Paul. Mrs. Scott led in prayer. Mrs. Archer read the scriptures. Mrs. J. A. Young and Mrs. Joseph Mann sang a duet. The offering for lepers amounted to $8.35.

At the close of the devotional period a social hour was held. A motion of thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Graham, terminated the proceedings.

of Campbellford (you know how many that is) is required to manipulate the traffic jam. It is a fact, however, that the prosperity of this association has come to the attention of the Government and a representative of the Ontario Government will be at Campbellford on Saturday first to take moving picture films of the proceedings. I will be there myself to give whatever assistance I can. All sections and classes in the town are behind the Circle, for they realize that its prosperity is good for the whole community situated in the heart of as fine an agricultural section as we have in this province.

"Another place which has made great strides is Millbrook, which has a candling station, where all eggs are delivered, candled, and graded. The farmers are paid according to the grade delivered, and the goods are sold on the same grades for which the farmer has been credited. Millbrook was the highest selling association we had last year. This association was organized by a joint meeting of producers and merchants and handles the produce under a definite agreement. It has been able to pay leading market figures, and has stabilized prices all through the county. Further, it has already a considerable reserve fund which now stands to its credit at the bank.

Growth at Peterborough.

"Port Hope, like some other localities, has developed into an outstanding poultry centre," said Mr. Buker, "and Peterborough, although it has not made the progress recorded by some other communities, will without doubt be the next in line, as is evidenced by the fine plant just outside the city on the Port Hope road. It may be recalled that an effort was made to place Peterborough on the poultry map in the same way as Napanee, for example, so far as dressed fowl were concerned. Possibly due to a lack of education, the first attempt was not as successful as it might have been and as a future attempt might be.

"Some of the finest turkeys in the Eastern Ontario market are raised in this county. As a result of educational work done in this county, the stock sent to the market is now much better finished than was formerly the case. The possibilities in the business are so great that one wonders why more people do not undertake it," concluded Mr. Buker.

Writ Must Come Soon For South Huron Vote

OTTAWA, July 7.— Writs for the by-election in South Huron, required by the death of John W. King, Progressive member of Parliament, will have to be issued within a fortnight. Mr. King died last January, but none of the parties was seemingly in a hurry to have a by-election.

The law, however, requires the issue of writs within six months after the official notification of the vacancy is received, and the last day is July 18. The election will be held in August.

It is reported here that things political are badly mixed up in the constituency, with three or four prospective candidates and faction fights, so it appears that a contest is inevitable.

BIG CARNIVAL COMING SUNDAY

Miller Bros. Will Be at Exhibition Grounds All Next Week.

NO FRAUD OR FAKE.

If present indications are any criterion, next week promises to be an unusual event in the annals of outdoor amusements, with the coming of the Miller Bros' Exposition Shows, the largest outdoor amusement of its kind ever to exhibit here.

Coming from the metropolitan cities of the United States, these shows made an invasion of the first-class Canadian fairs last season and so popular has become this attraction, that as soon as the advance advertising is seen, the amusement-loving public anxiously awaits the coming of the shows. The Midway will be conspicuous for its entire absence of fraud and fake shows and objectionable features, which is a radical departure from the ordinary tented amusement enterprise of its kind.

There are over five hundred people with the aggregation, traveling on a solid steel train of thirty-five double length railroad cars and the shows will arrive here Sunday afternoon over the Canadian National lines in two sections.

There are twenty-five big shows and exhibitions, twelve mammoth rides and a conglomerate assortment of curiosities, novelties and surprises. Among the various shows are the auto speedway with a group of daredevil riders of both sexes in thrilling and death-defying feats and racing within the narrow confines of a perpendicular and straight-wall enclosure. The Follies Review is a galaxy of sixteen sensuous, seductive sirens in a potpourri of songs and dances together with tableaux and living curtains similar to that seen in the current edition of the Ziegfield Follies.

Admission to the Fair Grounds will be free and a gala week is in store for those seeking amusement and high-class entertainment.

WESTERN JUNIOR TEAM IS COMING

Touring Baseball Team Secured For July 18.

What promises to be a good exhibition baseball game has been arranged by the Kiwanis Club for Monday, July 18th between Argos Juniors of Regina, who are on their jubilee tour of western and eastern Canada, and the local Kiwanis junior team.

These western boys form a strong team and the best junior team will have to be lined up here to give them a good battle.

Peterborough is fortunate in getting a visit of this crack team, as their original schedule called for them to play only in the larger cities. However, the Kiwanians are confident that good opposition will be supplied and that baseball fans here will be treated to a good game.

SEWARD, Alaska, July 7 (Canadian Press).—Two distinct earthquakes were felt here last night. Belief was expressed that the shocks were probably the result of a minor eruption of Bogoslof volcano, on the island of the same name, eight hundred miles from here.

Mrs. T. J. Horkins, Dr. Harold Horkins, Queen street hospital staff, Mr. T. B. Horkins and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Horkins, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clark and son, Fred, all of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. George Horkins and sons, Billy and Earl, of Detroit were visitors here Saturday afternoon.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, VILAK, who masquerades as her attorney under the name of DAVIS. Vilak, a curious mixture of American and Oriental blood, is a student of criminology. He tries to persuade Elise to leave the country, letting him stay with his friend, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery.

After her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped, to be found again by the alert Vilak, and another attempt is made on their lives, Elise agrees.

Her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers ride through the countryside, warning the natives. Vilak decides to go to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a recluse and a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of a knowledge of the conspiracy against her. Nevertheless, she agrees it is their duty to warn him.

Vilak learns that the flood warning was a ruse to get Prentiss out of his house and so informs him. The party is besieged in a small stone tower next to Prentiss' house by armed attackers. Vilak finally disperses them by dynamiting a dam and causing a real flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss has gone.

The next day, TINKY, Elise's little nephew, is stolen again. The trail leads into the jungle. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with a baby. Vilak makes preparations for a long journey in pursuit. With natives, trackers, they take up the trail.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV.

For two more days they traveled without seeing a sign of either humanity or human habitation except the sharp machete cuts in the branches and the crushed vegetation underfoot which showed them their course.

Then on the morning of the fifth day out from Porto Verde, on a low mound rising slightly above the level of the forest, they came to what appeared to be a secondary trail coming from a slightly different direction and joining their own.

Here Vilak examined the ground carefully. Between clumps of tall grass he found a number of cigaret stubs. They were filled with a cheap, coarse tobacco, rolled by hand. Evidently the smoker had exhausted his supply of papers, for most of the cigarets were rolled in bits of newspaper, torn envelopes, and other odds and ends a man ordinarily carries in his pocket.

Quickly Vilak picked these up and deftly unrolling them, spread them out upon a log. He concentrated his attention upon the bits of envelope. A moment later he grunted; then extended two of the scraps to Elise. "Look at that," he flashed.

The fragments bore part of an English postmark and the full name of Elise's English foreman who had escaped from the Porto Verde jail after the murder of Tony Barbetta.

When they halted at noon for the midday meal, Vilak distributed rifles to half of the natives who had hitherto been permitted to carry only spears. "We're being watched all the time now," he said to Elise and Nunnally, who had glanced at him inquisitively. "No use worrying about it, but I'm certain it's so. I've heard rustles in the tress three or four times this morning. They weren't caused by monkeys or we'd have known it by being screamed at, or having sticks and fruit rained down upon us."

That night the guard was doubled. The hidden watchers, however, gave no sign of their presence.

It was almost a week later when the sun was high in the sky that they came within sight of their first Indian village, twenty or thirty reed huts built in the shape of low cones so that in the distance they appeared like great gray anthills. As they approached, the Tartar-like guide suddenly gave three loud cries and began a long noisy rhapsody in a high-pitched, wailing dialect.

Four warriors of the village came hurrying out from the rush shelters, holding drawn bows. They planted themselves squarely in the path of the newcomers. Completely naked except for a breech clout and undecorated except for a little striped tattooing around the elbows and knees, they stood rigid, shining bronze statues barring the way.

"Marvellous bodies," Vilak murmured to Nunnally as the guide continued his shrill oration. "Pronounced Oriental strain in them, too, undoubtedly. Look at the shape of their heads and the slant of their eyes. That tattooing also is absolutely the same as I could show you in a hundred places in the islands off East Asia. Judging by the way they're looking at us, we're the first white men they've seen."

The guide's declamation at length ceased. The headsman of the village, a grizzled, withered shell, who appeared as though three centuries had passed over his long gray head, stalked gravely out from the largest hut. Behind him toddled two enormously fat old women.

He grunted to the rigid warriors. Their bows relaxed, they moved off to the wall of the structure from which the headman had come. The chief engaged the guide in a short parley, then convinced that the newcomers' intentions were not hostile, greeted them cordially. Food was brought, swamp-deer, roasted tapir, berries, and set on grass mats. Vilak responded to the courtesy by presenting his host with a necklace of atrociously colored beads, of which he had been careful to bring a liberal supply.

The headman barked an order; all the women in the village, who had been curiously peeping at the newcomers through the cracks in their houses, ran forward. They began a dance.

They were in a long, compact semi-circle, violently hopping up and down, darting forward and leaping back, all to the accompaniment of a skin drum which a purple-feathered Indian was beating frantically, when Vilak happened to strike a match to light a cigaret.

The flare of the tiny flame was as though lightning had struck the assembly. The women ran screaming back to their houses; the soldiers threw themselves flat on the ground, beating their heads at Vilak's feet; the withered chief darted behind a tree.

Seeing the panic, and instantly comprehending its cause, Vilak blew out the flaming match. The chief saw and slowly began coming from behind the tree; the bowmen scrambled to their feet; the women one by one drifted back.

"Lord, what an effect!" chuckled Vilak to Nunnally, as the chief advanced with some hesitancy to them. "Silly of me, though. Should have known that practically all the tribes we'll meet are fire worshippers. Commonest thing in all savage life. Undoubtedly never saw a match before. They'll be turning us into gods, and making us eat rancid butter the way they do in Tibet if we're not careful.

The chief warily sat down beside him. Vilak let him feel the box, examine the match itself, then painstakingly demonstrated how the fire was created by striking the one against the other.

The old man grinned, then eagerly followed his example. His delight was unbounded when Vilak presented him with the marvel. The broken line of dancers reformed; the dance proceeded to a furious climax and ended. More tapir and berries were brought.

Vilak now tried talking to his host in the Guarany dialect, which extends like a mother-tongue through most of the savage tribes of South America. Finding himself understood, he inquired whether the Indians had seen any other travelers lately pass that way with a child.

The chief shook his head. His village was a hunting village; regularly all the men went off to the jungle, leaving none but the women and children behind. At these times the women dared not venture far from their houses, and consequently knew nothing of what passed in the nearby forests. The men had just returned from a week's hunt the day before; therefore he could tell them nothing.

The chief asked Vilak his destination. Vilak pointed vaguely off into the direction the trail had been constantly leading. The chief shook his withered head again and grunted. "No go there. Listen me, Bagarundi. Spirits there. No go. Devils there. In valley. Green valley. On mountain. Red mountain. Devil mountain. Kill you. Kill girl. Quick. Too quick. Listen Bagarundi." Bagarundi wise."

At the chief's urgent invitation, they pitched their camp in the village for the night. Then a smudge fire was kindled to drive away the swarming mosquitoes; the old man began droning out the ancient legends of his people to all his visitors who could understand.

Shortly before midnight the Americans entered the hut which had been reserved for their reception. Vilak poked a suspicious-looking corner with a stick to rout out any tarantulas that might be hiding within, then hung his hammock.

"I'd be convinced now that these South American Indians were Asiatic in their origin even if I hadn't been before," he said to Nunnally as he disentangled a hook which had caught in the mesh.

"Those legends the old man related tonight can be reproduced in half a dozen places in Eastern Asia and the Asiatic islands. That story about the man who walked through the fire and thereby became a god, particularly. It's almost like being in the Malay archipelago to hear it again. They still walk through fire, for that matter, in some of the outlying Japanese islands and Fiji and Guinea. A trick, of course. Know exactly how it's done. It's the way the shamans and priests keep their power.

"World's a pretty small place. Interesting chap, this old man. Doesn't seem very encouraging about our prospects ahead."

RATS TELL HOW FAST CITY GROWS

BALTIMORE, July 7.—If you'd know what the population of New York will be in 2000 A.D., go ask the rats.

The studies of a rat's growth in Johns Hopkins University here have resulted in the demonstration that the increase in population in a given region can be foretold with almost unbelievable accuracy.

The cycle of expansion found in plants also applies to human life and its progress, the scientists hold.

A drop of water may contain as many as 100 forms of life, visible under a microscope.

Death Causes Two Many Miles Away

CHICAGO, July 7. — Canadian Press. — Two deaths in Chicago have been caused directly by another death five hundred miles away. A telegram from Omaha, Neb., telling Mrs. E. Buckley of the death there of her sister-in-law, brought on a heart attack. Her daughter, Eleanor, aged 24, ran from the house for a doctor, and was run down and killed by an automobile. Neighbors who went to notify Mrs. Buckley of the daughter's death found the mother's lifeless form on the bedroom floor.

A Tribute
It is a Satisfaction

and a credit to the people of the Dominion of Canada on the Sixtieth Anniversary of Confederation to know that the memory of the Fathers of Confederation has been kept in the minds of the public by splendid public monuments as well as private ones. The names of those patriotic and farseeing statesmen will go down in the history of their country and will be gratefully remembered by all citizens of Canada.
It would seem timely to remind all, what a place in every country monuments hold, so that our deceased relatives have their last resting place marked.
We invite anyone interested to call and see our stock of monuments. Our prices are low and we have the latest designs and guarantee our workmanship.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE PEOPLE'S HOUR.

There may be other wars that mean
Bright braid, and silvered sword and gun,
But men recall no gorgeous scene,
No glittering pageantry, in one.
Its uniforms at home were spun,
Its flintlock muskets rudely made,
For they who followed Washington
Knew all trades but the soldier's trade.

They marched together through the mire,
Tinner, and clerk, and clergyman,
The farmer, and his son and sire,
The artist, and the artisan.
A motley mob that war began,
But poorly clad and poorly shod,
Without much hope, without much plan,
Without much faith, except in God.

But, as I read the tales of war,
Where are the splendid Caesars now?—
The men who shining helmets bore
And scorned the farmer at his plough?
It always seems the Caesars bow
At last before a mightier pow'r
A time they triumph. Then, somehow,
They perish in the people's hour.

The marriage was solemnized at two o'clock on July 2nd, by Rev. J. L. Harton, B.Th., at Park Street Baptist Church, of Elsie Mary, only daughter of Mr. E. Ray and the late Mrs. Ray, 190 Charlotte Street, to Alfred G. Thompson, of Arthur, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Thompson, 102 Stewart Street.

The bride wore a gown of blue georgette, with hat and shoes to match, and carried a shower bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ivy R. Yearron, was in green silk, with hat to match. The bridegroom was supported by G. Panter.

After the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served at the home of the bride's father, and at four o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left by motor for Rice Lake, to spend a week's honeymoon. They will return to town for a week, then leave to reside in Arthur.

OBITUARY.

NINA AUDREY FLETCHER

The funeral of the late Nina Audrey Fletcher, who died as a result of an accident, was held on Monday in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church with the Rev. William Allan officiating.

It was one of the largest child's funerals that has ever been held in this city, for the church was almost filled to capacity. As the funeral cortege entered the church the organ pealed forth that familiar hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

Four members of the Junior Female Voice Choir were the pallbearers, and the remainder of the choir followed the remains up the aisle of the church. The pallbearers were Winnifred Francis, Doris Sharman, Rosemary Rumary, and Margaret Reid.

After the short funeral service companions of the deceased in the little choir gathered around and sang "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam," a song so often sung in public by the little girl.

Over 100 wreaths and floral tributes were contributed, showing how well the citizens of this city knew the little one. Interment took place in Little Lake Cemetery.

Drastic Action Is Taken on Sewage Question

JAPANESE DEMAND INCREASED TOTAL TONNAGE OF SUBMARINES

Necessary Because of Long Stretches of Japan's Island Empire.

ASK 70,000 TONS.

Seek Higher Proportion Than 5-5-3 Ratio Established For Capital Ships.

GENEVA, July 8. — (Canadian Press.)—Having lost her battle for the right to build an unlimited number of small submarines—"the wasps that sting"—Japan now has put forward a demand for a considerably increased total tonnage of submarines for the construction of which she asks authorization under the projected tripartite naval treaty.

The United States' delegation proposed to the conference that the submarine tonnage for the United States and Great Britain be fixed at 60,000 to 90,000 and that of Japan from 36,000 to 54,000.

Admiral Saito says he wants 70,000 tons of submarines for the Nippon because of the long stretches of Japan's Island empire and the necessity of defending the coast against invading warships. Japan therefore asks 34,000 more tons than contained in the United States' minimum proposal, and is clearly seeking a higher proportion of submarines than the 5-5-3 ratio established at Washington for capital ships.

Taken As Basis.

This demand will be taken as a basis in the discussion of the submarine question and presumably Japan will be given some satisfaction in this direction.

In giving a new angle to the naval discussions Japan has reverted to the declarations she made on the opening day of the conference that the status quo should be the basis of any arrangement at Geneva and that none of the powers should adopt new building programmes or acquire ships for the purpose of increasing their naval strength.

On this basis Japan estimates the British naval strength in cruisers and destroyers at 475,000 tons. She suggests that 450,000 tons be recognized as a limit for Great Britain and the United States for cruisers and destroyers taken together, and that 300,000 tons be Japan's portion. As the United States originally recommended as a minimum 150,000 tons in cruisers for Japan and 120,000 tons in destroyers, Japan is only asking for 30,000 more tons for both classes than suggested in the United States' proposal.

Difficulty will be found perhaps in inducing Japan to specify in the treaty what proportion of auxiliary surface warships would be classed under the heading of cruisers, and what under destroyers. But experts seem in accord that under the Japanese plan Japanese cruisers would not exceed the United States' minimum figures for Japan.

May Prove Troublesome.

The submarine problem, which Japan has added to an already difficult situation, may prove troublesome, but indications are that Admiral Saito will stick tenaciously to his demands, as Japan tentatively possesses seventy-eight sums of a total tonnage of 79,000, these figures including twelve in the process of construction and seven for which appropriations have been made.

Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States' delegation, and W. C. Bridgeman, first Lord of the British Admiralty, had another private talk this evening in an endeavor to see eye to eye and save the situation. This continues critical because of the failure of the British and United States delegations to get near to each other on total cruiser tonnage.

"We are going to get somewhere," Ambasador Gibson remarked smilingly before the meeting. "I think we can find a compromise and we will be glad if anybody can help us get there. We are both making a very honest effort to see each other's viewpoint. We are trying to get our tonnage, they their number of cruisers."

It has been tentatively planned to convoke conference of th executive committee for to-day.

SPEAKER GIVES WOMEN CREDIT

M. N. Clark Tells of Their Influence in the Affairs of Men.

AT KIWANIS LUNCHEON.

"The Influence of Woman in the Affairs of Man" was the subject of an address delivered by M. N. Clark, principal of Queen Mary School, at the Kiwanis luncheon to-day.

Mr. Clark, in commencing his address, congratulated the club on the great community service that it is rendering this city and district, and he assured the members that they would be all the better men for it.

"Dickens says that the world of a man lies always in the love of a woman. There never was a great work accomplished by a man unless a woman, directly or indirectly, influenced it," said the speaker. "All that is pure and good in the world comes from woman and many of us look back to our mothers as being the symbol of pureness, righteousness, and truth.

"Bishop Thompson says that the recollections of his childhood centre around his mother, and in his rest hours he sits and reflects about her, for in childhood there is no velvet so soft as a mother's lap and no rose so beautiful as her smile. Washington Irvin says that when financial losses come upon a man he is likely to retrieve his losses more readily if he is married than if he is single. Why? Because women have shown themselves to be courageous."

The speaker then gave much of the credit of the success of statesmen and business men to the co-operation due to the sympathetic care of woman.

"Their influence starts in infancy where the foundation is laid and is continued in youth where the character is moulded. Their influence is seen in the customs and manners of men, for they love all that is beautiful and good. It follows then that man should be very careful and considerate of the opposite sex, for we only have to reflect to see what they have meant in the life of men. Florence Nightingale risked dangers of disease and battle to save men. Grace Darling rescued men from drowning, concluded Mr. Clark.

Miss Doris Donley, a pupil of Dorothy Allan Park, sang two solos in a very able manner. She was accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Gwen Donley.

J. R. Marshall moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Clark for his able address and to the Misses Donley for their musical selections.

The guests at the luncheon were W. H. Richardson and Fred S. Hall of Cagahoga Falls, Ohio, M. S. Richardson of Cleveland, and Dr. J. E. Middleton, M. N. Clark, and Misses Doris and Gwen Donley of this city.

Kiwanian Hall made a short address in which he congratulated Canada on her past Jubilee celebrations and he said he thought it was a good thing that the First of July and the Fourth came near together, for it seemed, to link the two countries more together.

Reichstag Adopts War Materials Bill

BERLIN, July 8 (Canadian Press)—The Reischstag by a vote of 309 to 44 yesterday adopted a war materials bill which forbids the export of certain categories of goods which might be used as instruments of war, a problem which has long been a thorny one in Germany's negotiations concerning the allied control of her armaments.

Under the bill, searchlights, special binoculars and other goods which might be used as instruments of war are forbidden exportation.

Various speakers before the Reichstag declared that inasmuch as the bill was imposed upon Germany by the Allied Powers, it was a violation of German sovereignty, but admitted that it was a political necessity. By its adoption they contended, Germany has fulfilled all her disarament obligations and there was now no further excuse for the continued occupation of German soil.

BRITISH FIRM PUTS MILLIONS IN EXPANSION

Is Spending Great Sums on the Development of New Fertilizers.

SEEKS EMPIRE TRADE.

Will Endeavor to Capture Canadian Market From States.

LONDON, July 8th (United Press). —A sensational development in the British chemical industry, at a time when the trade is generally suffering, is indicated in the disclosure that the Imperial Chemical Industries Company is planning a further expenditure of 25,000,000 pounds sterling in order to develop new fertilizers which are expected enormously to benefit Empire agriculture.

The present plant is situated at Billingham, on Teeside, and already represents an expenditure of 7,000,000 pounds. It is controlled by the Brunner-Mond Company, which was in the limelight recently owing to its close relations with the German chemical industry. The nature of of these relations suggested a comoine.

Among the newest patents acquired by the Imperial Chemical Industries are fertilizers known as "stimulant fertilizers," in other words, fertilizers which enable farmers to apply both nitrogen and lime simultaneously, thus greatly lowering costs. New methods of treating arable and pasture lands are being developed, it is understood, and when the company increases its output sufficiently by the construction of the new plant, a sales organization will be created throughout the British Empire with a view to placing British fertilizers on the market.

In this connection it is expected that Canada will become one of the most important markets because at present exports of British fertilizers to the Dominion are insignificant in comparison to what Canada imports from the United States.

OHIO VISITOR DIES TO SAVE SISTER-IN-LAW

Ralph Murray, 49, of Niles, Drowns in Trent River.

WOMAN RESCUED.

Man Holds Her Up Until Boat Arrives — Death Unnoticed.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 8.— A sad drowning accident took place at Healey Falls at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Ralph Murray, aged 49, a commercial traveller, of Niles, Ohio, lost his life in the waters of the Trent river.

In company with his sister-in-law and other American tourists, the unfortunate gentleman went to the bridge to fish. His sister-in-law got over the railing of the bridge and was fishing from a pier in the centre of the long bridge spanning the river at this point. In some unknown manner she fell into the water. Mr. Murray immediately jumped in and held her up until two boats came upon the scene. Placing the woman in one of the boats Mr. Murray is reported to have told the boatmen to take her to shore, and that he would look after himself. Although there were a number on the bridge at the time, this is the last anyone appears to be able to recall seeing the unfortunate man.

It would appear that as soon as the boat started for the shore part of those who were on the bridge made at once for the place the boat would land, and those who remained allowed their attention to be drawn from the man in the water to the boat making for shore.

Local parties began at once to drag the river and a quantity of dynamite was used in an effort to raise the body, but a fierce wind, accompanied by a cold rain, made work along this line extremely difficult. Divers went out from here when notified of the accident, but their best efforts were futile.

Ralph Murray, his wife and sister-in-law arrived here on Monday with a number of other American tourists from Cleveland, Ohio., and had intended camping here for some time.

In her fall off the pier the lady sustained a broken arm and other minor injuries which are being attended to by a local doctor.

On the bridge, right at that part of it where the accident occurred, is a sign with the word "danger" in a four inch letter, and near it a large life-buoy. The life-buoy was never used, those on the bridge when the woman fell in, and when Murray dived in after her apparently lost their heads or did not know that the buoy was hanging there. The body has not yet been recovered.

New Word Added To Mississauga Dialect; "Guilty" Means "I Had Not Any Liquor"

A new word was added to the Mississauga dialect this morning in Police Court. Madden Taylor, a resident of the Curve Lake reserve, was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley with having liquor without a permit. After the charge was read the prisoner was asked how he wished to plead, and in the absence of his solicitor, he said, "Guilty." Joseph Wearing, who was appearing for the accused, as his lawyer, J. A. O'Brien, could not be present, was talking to Chief Constable Newhall at the time. When he heard the plea of the Indian he rushed in and suggested that in all probability the word used was an Indian one and likely meant, "I had not any liquor." Magistrate Langley granted a remand until tomorrow, when he accused will be charged again.

Two Youths Hiking Through This District

When vacation time comes around for the boys and girls, their minds, especially the boys', turn to travel. Two young men, Carl E. Double and David T. Sabine, both of Cleveland, Ohio, are on a hike thruogh the central part of Ontario, covering the Kawartha Lakes district.

These boys left Cleveland on Tuesday and reached this city by hiking or obtaining "lifts" from motorists who are in sympathy with the boys' ambition to see "Ontario by road." The boys are planning to buy a canoe in Peterborough, and then cruise through the Kawarthas and the Trent river. When asked by The Examiner this morning their opinion of Ontario, their enthusiasm showed that they thought it a splendid vacation Province.

LUMBER MILL IS VERY BUSY

Peterborough Lumber Running Day and Night—Drive Nearly Over.

THROUGH NEXT WEEK

The large drive of the Peterborough Lumber Company which has been on the river for sometime past will all be taken into the pond of the company at Burnham's Point by Monday at the latest. The logs which are hemlock, pine and basswood of fair size, will then be sorted, cut and piled to dry.

It is many years since a Peterborough saw mill was kept going night and day as is the mill of the Peterborough Lumber Company at present. The nocturnal sound of the mill in operation is something new to residents in the neighborhood and the mill lighted up at nights is a fine sight when seen from across the river.

Dog Catcher Considers Them Too Good To Be Killed.

NAVAL CRISIS IS NOT HEALED; IS MORE ACUTE

British Delegate Says Maintenance of Big Warships is Aggressive.

DELEGATES SMILE.

Idea Given Spectators That Peace is Restored Among Representatives.

GENEVA, July 8. — (Canadian Press.)—That the crisis in the tripartite naval conference is far from healed and not only continues, but has become more acute, was indicated by a statement issued to the press this afternoon by the Rt. Hon. W. C. Bridegman, First Lord of the British Admiralty. Without naming the United States, Mr. Bridgeman hinted broadly that the maintenance of large sized warships might be construed as aggressive rather than defensive.

All the delegates wore smiles as they emerged from the private session of the Executive committee of the naval conference to-day, and later there were expressions by both participants and observers that things were going very much better. This produced a distinct impression that the tension of the past two days had lessened measurably and that the plenipotentiaries were attacking the problem with genuine determination to reach an agreement.

The cruiser problem, which is the danger point of the conference, was discussed in general terms. It is understood that no advance was made in solving the difficulty which has arisen from the divergent figures presented by Great Britain on one hand and the United States and Japan on the other.

Admiral Saito, president of the Japanese delegation, explained the new Japanese proposal, which follows the line of the United States' minimum proposals for cruisers and destroyers but requests a higher proportion of submarines.

Vive Canada! My Canada!

BY GEORGE WARREN GILMAN, PETERBOROUGH.

"Vive Canada! My Canada!" we hear the north wind sing;
"Vive Canada! My Canada!" the joyful echoes ring.
From valleys deep to mountains steep, o'er prairies rich with grain,
From eastern sea to western lea, we catch the glad refrain:
"Vive Canada! My Canada Thou noblest of the free:
We pledge our love, we pledge our lives, we pledge our all to thee."

In Empire's Fold we've forged a link that may not broken be;
Our own dear land is fashioned broad to stretch from sea to sea;
No fortress marks our boundaries to keep them safe and sure;
Restraint and brotherhood serve best to make our rights secure.
"Vive Canada! My Canada Thou noblest of the free:
We pledge our love, we pledge our lives, we pledge our all to thee."

Our hallowed past is built on deeds of mighty men and strong;
Our present is a valiant fight to help the world along;
Our future is so clear and bright, it lights the northern sky.
Ring out, ye chimes of nationhood, in tones that never die;
"Vive Canada! My Canada Thou noblest of the free:
We pledge our love, we pledge our lives, we pledge our all to thee."

Rural Councils to Ask An Injunction Against City of Peterborough

Strong Criticism is Voiced of City's Alleged Slackness by Irritated Residents in Near Neighbourhood of Sewage Disposal Plant.

NO ALDERMEN PRESENT ALTHOUGH INVITED TO ATTEND BY REEVE OF NORTH MONAGHAN

Speakers Urge Civic Authorities to Apply to Provincial Board of Health for Permission to Run Sewerage Into Otonabee River.

At a meeting of the ratepayers of North Monaghan and Otonabee held last night in Rye's Pavilion, a resolution was carried by acclamation authorizing the Councils and the Boards of Health of the two townships to apply for an interim injunction against the City of Peterborough as the most expeditious means of forcing the city to end what the residents of the rural municipalities describe as an unmitgated nuisance arising from the present method of disposing of the city sewage at the plant across the Otonabee from the south end of Park Street.

R. T. Lillico, Reeve of North Monaghan, was elected to the chair and, after the meeting had been well advanced, Bruce Johnston, Clerk of North Monaghan, was appointed secretary.

There was considerable criticism of the alleged slowness of the city in tackling the problem. One of the speakers suggested that the members of the City Council should be asked to live for some time in the neighborhood of the plant. This was followed by an offer from a lady in the meeting to provide accommodation for the Alderman in the vicinity of the plant. Only a very short residence, she was convinced, would be necessary to make the Aldermen hustle up in the effort to rectify the mess.

Reeve Lillico, in his introductory remarks, stated that when he sent the notice to The Examiner concerning the meeting, he also notified the Peterborough City Council and the members of the Boards of Health of North Monaghan and Otonabee. None of the city aldermen was present, but the Clerk had received a letter from Mayor W. T. Holloway. Bruce Johnston then read the following communication from the Mayor of Peterborough.

Peterborough, Ont.,
July 6, 1927

Bruce Johnston, Esq.,
Clerk of North Monaghan,
R. R. No. 5.
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir: Your letter of July 5 saying that a meeting will be held in Rye's Pavilion on the evening of July 7th in regard to the sewage disposal plant has been received.

I will not be able to attend the meeting, as I will be in Cobourg in attendance at an important Hydro-Electric meeting called by the Central Ontario Power Association some days ago.

I wish, however, to say that the Peterborough Council has taken action in the matter. The Provincial Health authorities have been consulted and also other experts, and action will follow as speedily as possible.

May I add that the disposal plant, following an order procured from the Provincial Board of Health, was constructed on a system ordered by that Board and in accordance with plans approved by the Board.

Action will be taken as soon as possible, in accordance with such expert advice as can be obtained. In the meantime it may be advisable to turn the sewage into the river, and I will be obliged if you will ascertain whether the residents south of the city will not object to this being done.

Yours very truly,
W. T. Holloway
Mayor.

Deputy Reeve McIntyre of Otonabee expressed the opinion that an order from the Board of Health would be necessary before sewage could be returned into the river.

Dr. Wallace.

Dr. Wallace, Medical Officer of Health of Otonabee Township, said he had not yet visited the sewage plant. At a meeting of the Board of Health of the Township of Otonabee, he had been appointed to see the proper authorities in connection with the sewage nuisance. He thought the best thing to do at present was to turn the sewage into the river. He believed that this method had been adopted before and he thought that it should be done again. The type of plant that was in use in Peterboro was theoretically ideal, and ought to work satisfactorily.

Ex-Reeve H. B. Rye raised a laugh by volunteering to take Dr. Wallace out in the river on a boat for the purpose of inspecting the workings of the plant at first hand.

In the opinion of Reeve Lillico the city had been very very slow. It was two months since the township council went to the city council with a complaint. One of the aldermen

GEORGE BENTON IS FOUND DEAD

Aged Resident Dies in Garden at Early Hour This Morning.

HAD HEART TROUBLE.

George Benton, 87 years of age, was found dead this morning shortly after six o'clock at his garden, on the corner of Dalhousie and Bethune streets.

Mr. Benton went out to his garden early this morning for the purpose of doing some work. At 6.10 a neighbor 'phoned the police saying that Mr. Benton was lying inert in his garden. Sergeant W. E. Wigg hurried to the spot and discovered that life was extinct. The body was removed to Comstock's funeral parlor.

Dr. T. W. H. Young who was communicated with, stated that Mr. Benton had been suffering for some time from a weak heart.

Mr. Benton was a familiar figure on the Market Square, where he had a stand for over 51 years. Indeed, he was engaged in picking radishes for to-morrow's market when he expired.

Mr. Benton was born at Warwick, England, and came to this country as a young married man, with his wife and one child. He was a continuous resident of Peterborough from pre-Confederation days.

Mrs. Benton died six years ago.

Surviving relatives are four sons, George of Peterborough, Thomas of Sault Ste. Marie, Albert of Detroit, and Fred of Los Angeles, and one daughter, Mrs. W. Patterson, of Pasadena, California.

The funeral will take place on Monday.

FOUR CHIDREN ARE DROWNED

Lose Their Lives in Niagara River When Car Runs Over Bank.

FATHERS NEARBY.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 8.—(Canadian Press.)—Four children, ranging in age from two to eleven years, were drowned in the Niagara river here to-day, when the automobile in which they had been playing, slid over the bank, apparently after the children had released the brakes.

The children were from two different families, and their fathers, Walter Baranowski and Anthony Ziolonaka, were fishing a short distance away. The accident occurred a few hundred feet north of the Buffalo-Fort Erie ferry landing, from which several bystanders saw the tragedy.

Baldheaded men are brainer than those with luxuriant locks, according to Prof. H. J. Fleure, noted scientist. He believes the growth of hair absorbs a large amount of energy of the dead kings and queens.

TO MAKE FILM AT CONVENTION OF EGG CIRCLE

Proceedings of English Line Association Will Be in Movies.

PROGRESS IN DISTRICT.

Many Flourishing Poultry Farms Found in This Part of Ontario.

As an evidence of the intense interest with which Provincial and Federal Government are studying agricultural development in Peterborough and neighboring counties, two Government representatives, one from the Ontario administration, and another from Ottawa, will journey to Campbellford for the purpose of taking films of the proceedings of the English Line Egg Association. This statement was given out in an interview accorded today to The Examiner by F. H. Buker, the Dominion Government poultry expert, who has been in the city for the past two days.

Good Location for Poultry

"Eastern Ontario is the best location in the Dominion for the raising and marketing of eggs and poultry," said Mr. Buker. "Farmers here are within easy access of the two great markets, Montreal and Toronto, and have thus a tremendous advantage over their western competitors. Transportation rates are lower and the difference between those on western produce and those on the products in this neighborhood is pocketed by the farmer. The local farmer can ship his eggs or poultry at night and next morning they are delivered in the Montreal market. This relieves the farmer here of the fear of deterioration which always haunts the mind of his western competitor.

"Possibly no place in Eastern Ontario has made the same progress as has Tweed," said Mr. Buker. "If there is, I don't know of it. Strange to say, the entire progress hinges round the operations of one man, D. L. Courneya. He started in a very small way and has built up a large business which has gone on increasing to such an extent that last year he kept 2,500 White Leghorn layers.

"He has increased his incubator capacity to 16,700 eggs, and this spring he distributed over 30,000 baby chicks. As a result of his operations, there are at least six other poultry farms, ranging from 600 to 1,200 layers, in business at present around Tweed. In the distribution of the 30,000 chicks, Mr. Courneya simply fulfilled repeat orders. He was unable to take any new business, a fact which more than anything else goes to show the class of stock which he keeps and the extent to which he has inspired confidence in those with whom he deals.

Many Circles Flourishing.

At Campbellford, the English Line Circle has been for several years the outstanding egg circle in Eastern Ontario. It has a higher percentage of extras than any other, the volume of business is greater than that of any other association, and the quality is of a higher standard.

"The English Line Circle has increased to such an extent that its operations become a nuisance," said Mr. Buker humorously. "It blocks the traffic and the whole police force

SEEK MAN WHO KILLED FARMER

Police Searching Countryside in Neighborhood of Renson, Man.

VICTIM BADLY BEATEN.

RESTON Man., July 8 (Canadian Press).—Town and provincial police officers are searching the countryside for a "mysterious stranger," following the death here of Rudolph Stebler, 25, a farmer, with his jaw broken in several places and a fracture at the base of the skull. Stebler was found unconscious on a road near here. No trace of the stranger has been found. Stebler had accosted a young man on the road and asked for assistance in freeing his car, which had mired.

WORLD FINANCIERS HOLD CONFERENCE

Expected Will Reach Agreement Regarding Gold Movement Among Capitals.

NEW YORK, July 8 (Canadian Press). — Despite the thick veil of secrecy which surrounds the conferences being held here by the executives of four of the largest central banks in the world, Wall Street bankers are of the belief that two important conclusions will be reached: First, an agreement or understanding of some kind regarding the flow of gold among financial capitals of the world, and second, a credit of $20,000,000 to the Bank of Poland to be participated in by the New York Federal Reserve Bank and the European banks if issue.

Seldom in recent Wall Street history has such secrecy and mystery surrounded an important gathering. Officials of the New York Federal Reserve Bank state that the conferences represent merely the annual "exchange of views" by bank heads, which formerly took place in London or Paris, but which has been transferred here this year because of the inability of Benjamin Strong, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, to make the trip to Europe because of his recent illness.

SURROUNDED WITH SECRECY.

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 8 (Canadian Press). — Representatives of financial institutions of Britain, France, and Germany conferred with Federal Reserve Board officials on international fiscal problems yesterday, but none would reveal details of the meeting before their departure last night for New York. There Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of that city, it is said, would issue an explanatory statement to-day.

The visitors, Montagu C. Norman, governor of the Bank of England, Charles Rist, deputy-governor of the Bank of France, and Hjilmar Schact, president of the German Reichsbank, were accompanied to New York by Governor D. R. Cressinger, of the Reserve Board.

Stabilization of foreign exchanges with the view of preventing adverse economic conditions, the world gold movement and workings of the Dawes plan were understood to have figured in the conversations. Acting Secretary Mills said the subjects discussed were surrounded with secrecy to prevent premature publication and added only that they were "not directly treasury matters."

SEEK FLIER'S BODY.

U. S. Forces in Hawaii Engaged in Search For Lieut. Williams.

HONOLULU, July 8.—(Canadian Press).—Search for the body of Lieut. Charles Williams, army aviator who lost his life while participating in the aerial farewell demonstration here for Lieuts. A. Hagenberger and Lester Maitland, Pacific fliers, occupied the army and navy forces here to-day.

Williams, said by a Star bulletin to have been the fiance of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, recently divorced, wife of the son of the wealthy automobile manufacturer, was drowned in deep waters off Fort De Russy when the plane, one of the many used in the "Aloh" flight to the heroes, failed to recover from a diving position and plunged into the sea.

The Rev. W. A. Nisbet, who is due to preach in St Paul's Church on Sunday first, is the minister of St. John's Presbyterian church, Toronto, which figured so much in the press some time ago, when a lady organist who appeared to preside at the church organ at a meeting conducted by Dr. Leon Tucker, left the building in high dudgeon on being reprimanded by an elder for wearing a sleeveless gown.

Mr. Nisbet has been described as the greatest spiritual force in Toronto.

CROP PROSPECTS BRIGHT IN WEST

Little More Sunshine Needed in Central and Northern Alberta.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 8 (Canadian Press).—Crop prospects for Central and Northern Alberta continue to be excellent although a little more sunshine is needed, according to The Edmonton Journal's second monthly report for 1927, compiled from reports received from approximately 100 districts.

Moisture conditions on the average are splendid although a few districts report too much rain with a small amount of late sown grain washed out. On the other hand rain was needed in one or two areas but the general rains through the past few days have supplied these need.

Outlook Promising

The general outlook is one of promise and crops are as far ahead as last year and well advanced, more particularly in sections north of Edmonton, where there is much grain well over 20 inches. Wheat would appear to be averaging from 14 to 20 inches and stooling well. Some early sown wheat is headed out.

Coarse grains are almost without exception reported in good condition and rye is headed out. All grains are reported in better shape than last year at this time, and some areas are very much in advance. Owing to excessive moisture there is some danger from lodging in districts where growth is exceptionally heavy

Crop damage is not serious in any of the few districts where this is reported. In East Central Alberta wire worms have slightly cut into the crops in a small area, but cutworm reports are very infrequent.

Hail fell, doing slight damage in occasion spots. Frost and grasshoppers reports are entirely absent.

OBITUARY.

CLARENCE WILLIAMSON

OMEMEE, July 8.—Death removed an old and very well known citizen from our midst, early Sunday morning in the person of Clarence Williamson, who passed away at the home of his brother, Mr. O. G. Williamson, following a brief illness.

Deceased had reached the age of sixty-six years and for the past year has been in failing health.

The funeral service was held on Monday afternoon. Rev. E. W. Rowland of the United Church conducted the service, after which the remains were laid to rest beside those of his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, in the family plot in the Emily cemetery.

A strange coincidence in connection with the funeral which was held on July 4, 1927, is the fact that the funeral of both his father and mother were held on the same date in 1923 and 1924, respectively.

JOHN McCARREL

EAST EMILY, July 8.—The death occurred on Thursday morning of John McCarrell at his residence on the fourth line of Emily township. The deceased was in his 77th year.

Mr. McCarrell was stricken with paralysis just one week previous to his death from which he had never regained consciousness.

The late Mr. McCarrell has lived in Emily all his life and was much loved by all who came in contact with him.

He was a faithful member of Bethel church and a member of L.O.L. No. 294. He leave to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father his wife and two sons, Bert, of Peterboro, and Marwood at home.

The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon at his late residence, the Rev. Mr. Rowland, of Omemee, conducting the service. Interment was made in Emily cemetery.

The many and beautiful floral tributes showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends.

MRS. CHARLES FORDE.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 7. — Mrs. Mary Susan Forde, widow of Charles Forde, passed away to-day in her eightieth year, at the home of her son, William J. Forde, Lot 25, Con. 9, in the Township of Seymour.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Zion Church. Interment in Zion Cemetery.

GILBERT D. TURNER.

TRENT RIVER, July 8.—The sudden death occurred Monday, June 27, at 15 Woodfield Road, Toronto, of Gilbert D. Turner. Deceased had not been feeling well the previous night, but was able to rise in the morning, and shortly afterwards dropped dead from heart failure. Mr. Turner was twice married. Of the first marriage two children survive, Mrs. A. L. Connor, Toronto, and Mrs. Claud Insley, Healey Falls. Of the second marriage, a widow, one daughter, and three sons survive, also a sister, Mrs. A. G. Jones, Ottawa, and one brother, Walter Turner, Hastings.

The funeral took place from the residence the following Wednesday. Interment was at Norway Cemetery. Many beautiful flowers and wreaths from friends and relatives covered the casket.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Insley and Mrs. Frank Pollock (granddaughter of the deceased) attended the funeral.

PEKING ENVOY RESIGNS SEAT

Chu Chao Hsin Will Return To China and Become Free Lance.

CREATES STIR.

GENEVA, July 8 (Associated Press). —Chu Chao Hsin, who has been representing the Peking Government on the Council of the League of Nations, yesterday informed Sir Eric Drummond, the Secretary-General, that he intended to return to China and to become a free lance.

Inasmuch as the League deals officially only with the Peking Government, the Council will be obliged to accept whomever the Peking Government should appoint in Chu's stead.

Leaves Seat Vacant.

Chu's abandonment of his post has created a considerable stir in League circles since his action leaves China without a representative on the Council to which it was given a seat at the last session of the League assembly.

It is presumed that Chu will enter the service of the Nanking Nationalist Government. He is a personal friend of Dr. C. CC. Wu, the Nanking Foreign Minister, and General Chiang Kai Shek, the Nanking military leader. Only recently he issued a communique in the name of the Nationalists stating that China would not accept any decisions that might be taken at the Geneva tripartite naval conference as regards the situation in the peace unless she were consulted.

As far as recognizing the Nationalists is concerned, the League has taken the position that it cannot concern itself with the internal political situation in China.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL MEETING

Closing Hours of Amusement Halls Discussed by Councillors.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 8. — The Township Council met in regular session Monday afternoon with the following members present: Reeve Grills, Deputy Reeve Peake and Councillors Allan and Innes.

The minutes of the last regular meeting, together with the minutes of a special meeting, were read and approved.

George Adams presented the school report showing marked progress. This report was filed.

Township Constable H. Seaborn addressed the council re the closing hours of dance halls, drawing their attention to the fact that there was no by-law regarding same. The clerk was instructed to prepare an amendment to clause 7 of by-law No. 1037, so that it will read "and all other places of amusement shall close at the hour of 11.45 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and remain closed from 11.45 on Saturday night until seven o'clock on Monday morning." The clerk was also instructed to issue licenses for $30 to extend until July 31, and no longer.

Walter H. Smith addressed the Council re hog show to be held in Campbellford in October. Council was favorably impressed with the argument advanced by Mr. Smith for a grant from the township and his request was granted.

Alex Milne asked permission to move his gas tank a few inches closer to the roadway with the provision that he assume all responsibility in cases of accident. The request was granted.

C. W. Smith asked permission to build a boat house at the terminal of the road leading to Bradley Bay, opposite gore 10 and 11.

Accounts amounting to $3228.10 were passed and the treasurer instructed to issue cheques for same.

PROPERTY DAMAGED.

CHICAGO, July 8.—(Canadian Press).—A storm, tornadic in Henry County, Iowa, and accompanied in Illinois by high winds, hail, and heavy downpours, cost two lives, injured eight persons, and caused heavy property damage in the two States last night. The storm hit suddenly, routing a new heat wave which had descended upon the two States during the day. THREE DROWNED WHEN BOAT BURNS

Chicago Man and Two of Crew Lose Lives Near Little Current.

SUDBURY, July 8. — (Canadian Press).—When his speedboat caught fire Wednesday, W. L. Hodgins, prominent manufacturer of Chicago, and two members of his crew were drowned near Little Current. Four others who were in the craft saved themselves by swimming to shore with the aid of floating cushions. The dead are Hodgins, James Rush, Little Current, a mechanic, and Thomas Fleshman, Chicago, a deckhand. Rush was said to have been an excellent swimmer and it is thought that he lost his life in an effort to rescue his companions.

Miss Nancy Smith and Miss Emma Ottis, Chicago, and Ed Brolent, Little Current, and Edgar Crashaw, Chicago, reached safety on the shore of Laiclocpe Island.

With his speed boat, Playboy, Hodgins left Little Current for MacGregor Bay. The engine backfired and the vessel was instantly enveloped in flames. It is thought that a leaky gasoline tank was responsible for the rapid spread of fire. The Playboy was a fifty foot boat, one of the fastest going crafts in local waters.

NATIVE OF CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 7.—(Canadian Press).—Williams Lewis Hodgins, reported drowned in Georgian Bay, was a native of Chicago and 52 years old. He had been connected with the Brownell Improvement Co., of which he was president, for 30 years, going to it directly upon his graduation from Purdue University in 1897.

COMMISSION ENDS CUSTOMS HEARINGS

Will Meet in Ottawa to Complete Work at End of August.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., July 8. —(Canadian Press).—The Royal Commission investigating the customs concluded its Prince Edward Island sittings here today. Not only were the Prince Edward Island sittings finished, but today marked the lose of the Commission's tour in Canada. Since last November it has visited every province in the Dominion, and has made an exhaustive inquiry into the customs administration, has looked into smuggling in various forms, and has investigated breweries and distilleries in all parts of the country. It will now suspend operations until the end of August, when it will meet in Ottawa to complete a number of matters about which a certain amount of evidence was taken on the road.

Urges Restoration Of Peace In China

TOKYO, July 8 (Canadian Press).—After a conference on the Chinese situation yesterday, attended by Kenkichi Yo-Shizawa, Minister to Peking, and other functionaries Premier Tanako said:

"The basic principle of Japan's policy toward China consists in the maintenance of peace in the Far East and realization of the common prosperity of Japan and China."

Urging the importance of the restoration of peace in China, the Premier emphasized that only the Chinese themselves could undertake this task and that outside interference was worse than useless.

In the present circumstances, he said, Japan's only alternative was to keep in touch with the moderate elements, but she must protect her nationals if Chinese were unable to do so.

HOUSE IS BURNED AT DOWNEYVILLE

Dennis Fitzpatrick Suffers a Heavy Loss—Furniture Saved.

DOWNEYVILLE, July 8.—Joseph O'Neill raised his barn Wednesday, and a large crowd was present. They got it completed and a lunch was served by the ladies in the evening. Mr. Joseph Gooslin is the carpenter.

On Friday afternoon Dennis Fitzpatrick, Jr., who resides two miles east of the village, had the misfortune to have his house burned. The fire caught upstairs from the pipes, and as there were no men at home in the neighborhood (every one was away in Lindsay at the Jubilee celebration), there was no chance to save the house. Nearly all the contents were saved, and the loss is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Fitzpatrick and family are living in McManus' house. Mr. Fitzpatrick will build as soon as possible.

Campbellford School Board Names Toronto Lady For Vacancy.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 8.—Friday, July 15th, is the date set for St. Andrew's Sunday school picnic.

At a meeting of the school board on Tuesday evening there were 35 applications read from kindergarten teachers seeking the position made vacant by the granting of Miss Weston an indefinite leave of absence. Miss Griel of Toronto received the appointment.

At the same meeting it was decided to take legal steps to remove a squatter from the school property. It was also decided to have the property committee complete the fixing up of the high school grounds.

A communication was received from Township Council asking for an equalization of the assessment of Section 8. Attorney Lynch was appointed to look into the matter.

Rev. Ernest Harston, L.L.B., returned from Rochester, N.Y., yesterday after making arrangements for an excursion under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Professor Picard of Toronto Conservatory of Music was at the Convent today for examinations in music. It will be remembered that last year a pupil of Sister Emeria got the medal for the highest marks, in the elementary examinations in Canada.

Miss Evelyn Irwin is in Toronto taking up studies that will fit her for kindergarten teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Dunn of Toronto spent the week end with the latter's mother, Mrs. Charles Dunk.

Dr. Joseph T. Irwin and family, of Toronto, spent the holiday with the doctor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Irwin.

Owing to the Masonic picnic at Presqu'ile yesterday, the Keene vs Warkworth baseball game was called off.

The Campbellford-Hastings baseball game has been postponed till Saturday.

Miss Katherine Gallagher of Belleville is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Holmes.

Owing to rain the Madoc tennis players did not come to town yesterday.

Frank Sarginson, of Flint, Mich., is renewing old acquaintances in town.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders (nee Myrtle Ford) have returned from a visit to Picton and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Diamond and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Vanderwater of Toronto were at Ottawa for the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

The churches under the care of Rev. Daniel are to picnic at Crow Bay, formerly Chard's Bridge, on Friday.

We are informed from another source that Mr. Stevens' car which figured in an auto accident at Warkworth in which a young boy was badly cut about face and hands, had just parked and was not moving as the article recently published might be construed.

There is a great difference in Iced Tea. Some people have tried it when it has been made from poor tea and not prepared in the correct way, so they now are using summer drinks that are not nearly as satisfying or refreshing. STRAWBERRY SOCIAL VERY SUCCESSFUL

Many Attend Annual Festival at Bailieboro—Close Baseball Game.

BAILIEBORO, July 8.—The Strawberry festival held in Bailieboro on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the United Church Sunday School, proved a most successful event.

Owing to the fine evening and the reputation of former festivals, a large crowd took advantage of the first strawberry festival in the district. Supper was served on the church grounds from five until eight o'clock.

Following the supper a play, entitled "Eyes of Love" was staged in the church by Garden Hill United Church. Long before the concert commenced the church was filled to capacity. The play was well given and much enjoyed by all. Music between acts was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Findlay, of Kansas City, who gave several instrumental and vocal numbers. The proceeds for the evening amounted to $170.00.

A ball game was played on Tuesday evening in Bailieboro between the Port Hope "Beavers" and Bailieboro. The game was a close one, but ended in a victory for the Beavers. Wakely, of the Beavers, pitched nice ball and had good support, especially in the outfield. W. Johnston and M. Woods did the twirling for Bailieboro and threw nice ball. Fielding errors were more than usual among the Bailieboro team. A large crowd of fans were present to support the teams.

The line up:—

Beavers—J. Pethick c, L. Wakely p, G. Highfield 1b, C. McElroy 2b, E. Wade 3b, J. Leuty ss, S. Greenaway rf, S. Snell cf, C. Trew lf.

Bailieboro:—H. Dean c, W. Johnston p, 2b, F. Barnard 1b, M. Woods 2b, p, K. Barnard 3b, G. Dean ss, C. Barnard rf, A. Dawson cf, C. Ballantyne lf.

Score by innings:—

Beavers	11231—8

The umpires were:—Finnigan Hills and Stan Fry.

After the usual cheers the boys adjourned to the strawberry supper at the church. A return game will be played in Port Hope next week.

RURAL COUNCILS

said that the city had paid a lot of money for the disposal plant, which he thought was operating all right. None of the other aldermen supported him however in this contention. The city council had been slow, and something should be done to spur it up.

Dr. Morgan.

Dr. Morgan, Medical Officer of Health for the Township of North Monaghan, said he had been around the sewage disposal plant, and had got the full benefit of the smell. He had spoken personally to members of the city council, who just seemed to pass the matter along. He saw Dr. Bell, the Deputy Minister of Health in Toronto, who had declared that the proper person to approach concerning the matter was Dr. N. H. Sutton, the District Medical Officer of Health. Dr. Sutton, on being approached said that an engineer would be called in on the matter. The engineer did come down, but nothing else was done. Then he had spoken to the chairman of the City Board of Health, who had said that they would get a new man to operate the plant. They were always going to do something. He believed that there were yesterday two men from the city in Toronto seeking expert advice on the matter. The thing was vile and the situation would not be improved until a new or larger plant was installed. There was no use in one person going. The meeting had been called for the purpose of taking some action. If the city was informed that there was likely to be some damages to be paid for, the council would hurry up and get something done. He had said all he could say, but had been driven from pillar to post. The city should give the Reeve or the Board of Health power to take action to show the city that dilly-dallying was something that would not be tolerated.

Case of Scarlet Fever.

Reeve Lillico said that the Sanitary Inspector had stated there was a case of scarlet fever just across from the plant If scarlet fever got started it was difficult to say where it would end. He felt that something would have to be done.

H. B. Rye.

H. B. Rye said the city had monkeyed with the question, for thirty years. He recalled that in previous years an injunction had been obtained restraining the city from putting sewage in the river. On application tion to a judge a five year limit was set, and there was continual jangling to get something done. When the city was ordered to take out the sewer the only answer was to put another one in. There was a valve on the Park street sewer for emergencies like that of to-day. If the meeting concurred with the suggestion of Dr. Morgan he thought a resolution could be put through which would would strengthen the hands of the city in making application to the Provincial Board of Health for permision to run the sewage into the river. They would have to get an order from the Provincial Board of Health otherwise the city would leave itself open to action as Oshawa had done three weeks ago

Discharge in River.

The engineer had struggled against the type of plant which was put in here Mr. Rye thought the engineer was right. The plant was only in its experimental stage. The question was however: Was the plant being operated as efficiently as it might be operated? Mr. Rye considered that the plant was very inefficiently operated. It had sometimes been shut down entirely, and the sewers had often been discharged into the river without permission from anyone. It had been impossible to rent boats on the river because of the nuisance of the disposal plant.

An interim injunction should be taken out against the city. If this were accomplished something definite would be done. People could not live in the neighborhood. Always some body was getting it. It was a shame that such a thing should be allowed to go on. Action should be taken at once and right from the shoulder. (Applause.)

The question of getting the opinion of the township solicitor E. A. Peck, was raised, but it was considered too late in the evening to try to get in touch with Mr. Peck. S. H. Mitchell, called on by the chairman, submitted the following letter from R. R. Hall:

Letter Read.

S. H. Mitchell, Esq.,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Mr. Mitchell: The Corporation of the City of Peterborough have no right whatever to pollute the Otonabee River with sewage, and more particularly where it creates an offensive odor, and notwithstanding the fact that such sewage may escape from the city's disposal plant. Any person or municipal corporation that is aggrieved by such a nuisance has an undoubted right to have it abated and in my opinion an injunction would be granted restraining the the corporation of the City of Peterboro there from.

If the City of Peterborough is not properly operating the sewage disposal plant or if it is defective then that would furnish no excuse for polluting the river and creating offensive odors.

The Public Health Act on this point is very strict. Yours faithfully,
R. R. HALL.

Further discussion ensued, during which the opinion was expressed that the township councils should take no action, so far as making application to the Provincial Baord of Health was concerned. This, it was urged, ought to be done by the city.

Bruce Johnston believed that the city ought to act in good faith in the effort to remedy the situation. It had taken 30 years to get results and things were now worse than they were before. He was of the opinion that the only sane course was that recommended by Mr. Hall and Dr. Morgan.

Mr. Lillico, while agreeing that the raw sewage might be allowed to run into the river, did not think that the entire plant should be emptied in this way.

Ernest Deyell thought that it should not be necessary for the townships to fight the matter. No reasonable body of men would expect that such a thing would be tolerated.

Veteran Speaks.

Mr. Humphries, a white haired veteran, made a rousing speech. He said that the one party was afraid and the other did not dare to do anything. Declaring that the fish in the river tasted of the sewage, he advised the farmers not to allow their cows to drink the river water if the sewers were permitted to run into the Otonabee; otherwise tuberculosis would surely follow. He moved that the two councils and the Board of Health of the townships, backed by the ratepayers, should apply for an injunction against the continuance of the present system of sewage disposal. The motion was seconded by Mr. Anderson, and carried by standing vote. An attempt was made to secure the passing of a motion forbidding the letting of any of the sewage discharge into the river but on the advice of Dr. Morgan and the Reeve this was not pressed. Dr. Morgan explained that he did not think that the city could take any steps to fix up the plant if prevented from sending the sewage into the river for the time being. The Reeve gave the assurance that the Peterborough council would not be permitted to put sewage into the river one hour longer than was absolutely necessary.

On the motion of Mr. Milby, seconded by Mr. Rye, the meeting adjourned.

THANKS, WE RATHER LIKED IT OURSELVES.

(From The Belleville Ontario)

Peterborough Examiner carries off the palm, in our humble opinion, as the best Diamond Jubilee Confederation number to reach our exchange table. Others may have had more pages, but The Examiner had more real interesting local old-time stuff than any of the others we have seen. National history is all right, interesting and education, but not half as easy to read as the old-time stories of the scenes we are all intimately acquainted with right here "to hum."

THROWING AWAY THE BENEFITS.

The disagreement that has arisen between Charles Levine and Bert Chamberlin, who in the plane "Columbia" surpassed Lindbergh's non-stop record, has resulted in the refusal of the latter to fly back to the United States, and in the decision of Levine to secure the services of a French pilot for the return air voyage.

Just as the quarrel between George Young and Bill Hastings, who had been his companion before the Catalina swim, caused most of the glory of Young's feat to be lost, the Chamberlin-Levine dispute will destroy the prestige won by the pair in their record-breaking flight.

These incidents throw a sidelight upon the popularity of "Lucky" Lindbergh, who remains a world hero not only because of his gallantry in attacking a trans-Atlantic flight lone-handed, but because he has not been spoiled by his triumph.

Lindbergh remains a popular figure because he has been modest throughout it all.

Levine and Chamberlin are in a fair way to lose the benefits of their exploit through their failure to keep their heads afterward.

LIQUOR ADVERTISING.

Several newspapers have been discussing the question of whether or not liquor advertising should be permitted in Ontario.

Such advertising is prohibited under the Liquor Control Act, and The Examiner, which advocated legislation to this effect during the recent campaign, believes that the prohibition is wise and beneficial.

If the object of Ontario's present system of handling the liquor problem was merely to sell liquor, then, of course, advertising would be justified.

Good advertising would increase the sale of liquor, as it will increase the sale of any other commodity.

But we have been given to understand that the Liquor Control Act is not intended so much to sell liquor as to control its sale, and in that case it is surely self-evident that it would be inexpedient to allow brewers and distillers to keep dangling their products before the public and appealing to their appetites by cleverly worded advertising.

There is no demand for such advertising, and the Government has been well advised to prohibit publicity of this nature.

THE STEWART RE-UNION.

The re-union being held here of the descendants of Hon. T. A. and Mrs. Stewart, two of the pioneer settlers in Peterborough County, has brought members of the Stewart clan here from many distant points, and The Examiner hopes that their re-union will be full of enjoyment.

The Stewarts came to the Peterborough district in 1823, two years after Adam Scott had landed here and two years before the Peter Robinson immigration gave the settlement its first real impetus toward the flourishing city we all love so much today.

Mrs. Stewart it was who suggested that the town be named "Peterborough" in honour of Peter Robinson, and she and her husband played a prominent part in the early development of this district.

It is a splendid thing, particularly in this year of the Diamond Jubilee when the thoughts of all Canadians should go back in loving gratitude to those pioneers whose spirit of adventure, self-sacrifice and tenacity of purpose made the present prosperity possible, to find the descendants of one of Peterborough County's earliest residents travelling long distances to do honour to the memory of their ancestors.

We could do with much more of that kind of spirit in Canada.

THE OSHAWA TIMES NOW.

The Oshawa Daily Reformer, after publishing a remarkable 92-page special Diamond Jubilee edition on Thursday of last week, appeared on Monday under a new name.

It will henceforth be known as The Oshawa Daily Times.

There are several reasons for the change, but the most important is that the ambiguity in the use of the name "Reformer" by a paper now independent in politics will be avoided.

The Reformer was first launched in the days of the party organs, and its name was quite appropriate as a consistent supporter of the Reform party.

The passing years have seen the disappearance of the majority of the old-time partisan journals, and for the past decade the Oshawa paper has been independent in its attitude toward political parties, the new name being therefore much more suitable.

Incidentally, the last number under the old name was a fitting farewell.

The Reformer's jubilee number, comprising twelve sections and 92 pages in all, was one of the most ambitious attempted by any Canadian newspaper, and contained a wealth of interesting articles and many splendid pictures.

It was a credit to both the editorial and mechanical staffs of the Oshawa paper.

FUTURE DOMINION DAYS.

The manner in which the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation was celebrated from coast to coast, in the smallest hamlet as well as in the most populous and prosperous city, shows that when the people are fully seized of the significance of Dominion Day and when they put their hearts into paying tribute to the men who have made possible our undoubtedly great progress, they can celebrate as royally and as enthusiastically as any other people on the face of the globe. The national observance of the Diamond Jubilee was a remarkable demonstration of the powers of organization, as it was also a remarkable demonstration of the love which Canadians bears for their country and of the respect in which they hold its great figures.

If the Diamond Jubilee fails to secure for future Dominion Days appropriate recognition on the part of Canadians everywhere, it will have lost much of its purpose and value. Dominion Day is that one day in the year which is dedicated to Canada. It has been set aside as a public holiday for the specific purpose that Canadians may join in celebration of their country's birthday and acknowledge their gratitude for the manifold blessings that it has received. Yet the very fact that it was found necessary to set in motion nation-wide machinery to gain for it the recognition which is its due shows how much its celebration has fallen into neglect.

It may be neither feasible nor advisable to celebrate coming Dominion Days as that of 1927 was celebrated. But the day might well receive greater attention on the part of the citizens of this country than has been the case during recent years. Too often has July the First been regarded simply as a holiday and nothing more. The Diamond Jubilee was a movement carried to a successful termination through the co-operation of all sections of the national community. It will be a great pity if its effect is lost in non-observance of future Dominion Days in the same spirit.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

FISHING ON THE WRONG SIDE OF THE BOAT.

(By Jack Miner)

It has been proven that if a man writes an article stating what he knows about crows, he will get lots of people interested. I believe the same could be said if one wrote his experience in raising calves or growing tobacco. My father (the best man who ever lived) compelled me to split rails to make a recreation ground for our pigs. But now, let us banish all such insignificant side issues from our minds for a while and think of earth's future hope—our young manhood; those whom God created in His own image, after His own likeness, and gave them dominion over all these lower creatures.

Not so very long ago I noticed an article in the press stating "that all ditches must be railed or filled in to protect the motorist." This I am strongly in favor of, but what about our country children on their way to and from the little red schoolhouse? Have they been considered at all? I am compelled to say "No." I don't believe they have.

Just recently my boy drove me to Windsor, a distance of twenty-six miles, and I counted eighty-five school children dodging their way to school along our cement highway, and to me it looked pitifully wicked. One little fellow actually fell into the ditch in his effort to escape these dodging gas burners that came upon him from east and west. To our people of Canada, let me frankly say, I would sooner see a bunch of our children using the railroad track for a school path than to see them on our automobile highways where their rights have never been considered. And, if we were fishing on the right side of the boat, I am sure they would have first consideration, for what will Canada profit if we gain the whole world and lose the rising generation of our boyhood and girlhood? Yes, you may be riding in your big limousine with your own darling boy at the wheel when you meet or pass this self-neglected, long-haired, bashful little fellow with his dinted little dinner pail in his hand and a bunch of handed-down books under his arm. Yet, you have no proof that your boy will be a greater asset to Canada than he will be. Remember, the biggest men this world ever knew were born barefooted.

In speaking of Queen Victoria, my father once said to me, "Jack, if you had known her you are a man that would have dearly loved her. God bless her." He said: "I well remember the day she was crowned," and then he went on to say that one day she was passing a bunch of under-privileged children. She stopped and spoke to them, and some of the royalty chastised her for doing so, but father said the dear soul wrung her hands as she replied, "I like to speak to them ALL, for we don't know who the coming men are."

Now, please, don't understand me to say that all country school children are underprivileged. No, no, no! But I do say that in building our get-me-there-quick highways that the safety of our school children has not been considered, and the paths they did have, in the majority of cases, have been destroyed and no proviso made for them whatever. Personally I don't like to hear a man complain unless he has a carefully thought out plan of improvement, and, first of all, let us stop and consider the amount of material it takes to build a highway from sixteen to twenty feet wide and eight inches thick. Then let us consider the insignificant amount of practically the same material it will take to build a school children's path two feet wide and four inches thick six feet or more from the rolling traffic, with a nice piece of green sode separating the two. Please, figure it all out and ask yourself if this really is an extravagant suggestion when five per cent. of the material used for the twenty-foot road will build our little loved ones a path in the safety zone. Again let me ask, have we become so penny-wise and pound-foolish as to allow our hearts to be completely crowded out and silly speedy recreation scare the foundation of our future hope into the gutter?

In closing, I have this request of the readers. If through personal observance or experience you have reasons to believe that what I have outlined above is true and we are fishing on the wrong side of the boat, will you please help us cast our nets to the right by having a close-up heart to heart talk with your Government representative? If possible, take him for a drive where he can see for himself. At the same time, let each of us do our bit, for "how can I go up to my Father if the lad be not with me?"

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 8 (Canadian Press).—An increase of ½ cent per bushel in Canadian Western oats was the only feature to note in the Montreal grain market yesterday, No. 2 grade selling at 74 cents. Business generally was dull. The flour trade for Spring wheat grades was unimproved, while Winter wheat flour had also a limited demand.

A fair amount of business continues to be done in most lines of millfeed and rolled oats in spite of the good condition of pastures throughout the country and supplies are none too large to meet the demand.

Prospects for a good crop of hay in Quebec are bright, but it is estimated that carryover of the old crop will be small and little change in prices is expected.

Limited supplies of high grade eggs have tended to a general firmness in the trade and although prices have not changed, the general undertone of the market is good. Receipts, however, are somewhat increased over last week.

The trade in new crop United States potatoes is fair, but supplies on spot are ample for all wants at present. The demand for Canadian old crop is limited.

The butter trade is unchanged with little interest manifested by outside buyers, while the cheese trade is equally dull.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 8 (Canadian Press).—Substantial buying advanced wheat prices yesterday largely owing to reports of black rust damage in winter wheat. Word was also at hand of traces of black rust in North Dakota spring wheat, the earliest appearance in ten years, considering the growth stage of the plant. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1⅛ to 1¼c net higher, with corn 2½ to 2c up; oats unchanged to ¼c advances and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 17 to 20 cents.

News of extremely hot weather south gave impetus to the upward swing of the corn market. Need of rain in the southwest also reported. Oats were neglected, although considered firmer relative to other grain. Provisions registered higher.

Now Enjoys a Good Meal

Renzyme has taken care of his digestive troubles.

Like most people who have suffered from indigestion, the writer of the letter quoted below had tried many remedies. Renzyme is so different in effect to any previous treatment used that he is now enthusiastic in its use.

No matter what the cause, or of how long standing, Renzyme is bound to afford relief because it actually supplies the digestive ferments which set up the process of digestion.

Mr. A. R. Robertson, Hamilton, Ont., writes:

"Your statement that the 'RENZYME' is a rejuvenating fluid is correct."

"I have been troubled with indigestion for years and have tried all kinds of remedies but secured no relief until I was persuaded by a friend to try 'RENZYME'. Almost immediately I had relief and now I am a constant user of same. I most whole-heartedly recommend to anyone who is troubled with stomach disorders to try 'RENZYME' because I know that he will find it to be effective."

You can obtain Renzyme from your druggist at $1.50 a bottle or it will be sent to you, postpaid, on receipt of price, if you mention this paper. The Renzyme Laboratories, Toronto, 2, Canada.

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, July 8.—(Canadian Press).—Having picked up S.O.S. call of the motorship Charles Brower, the N.S. coast guard cutter Algonquin today was rushing to the aid of the stranded vessel, which reported she had gone off St. Lawrence Island in Behring Sea and was being pounded severely by a heavy sea. The schooner Northern Light is also speeding to the motorship's assistance. The Charles Brower left Dutch Harbor on Sunday for the Arctic.

STEWART FAMILY IS HOLDING RE-UNION IN PETERBOROUGH

Memorial to Their Ancestor, Founder of This City, to be Unveiled.

SIXTY PRESENT

Many Cousins Meet for First Time in Many Years.

The unveiling of a memorial to the Hon. T. A. Stewart, founder of the city of Peterborough, and his wife, Frances, on Sunday next, will be the outstanding feature of the Stewart family re-union which is being held this week.

Sixty descendants of Mr. Stewart, many of them natives of Peterborough, who have been absent from the city for many years, have come from various parts of Canada and the United States. Twenty of those present were born in or near Goodwood, where one of the re-union picnics will take place on Saturday.

One of those present is Stewart Brown, who is still living on the farm east of Nassau, where he was born 75 years ago.

Two of the party, K. R. Stewart, of San Bernardino, California, and E. natives of Peterborough, and cousins, met at the re-union for the first time in forty-nine years.

Another member of the clan is W. Stewart, who spent many years in the North-West, and later became one of the pioneers of Cobalt. Mr. Stewart enlisted for service in the North-West Rebellion, and took part in the fighting at Batoche, where his relative, Captain E. T. Brown (whose memorial is on Confederation Square) was killed. Captain Brown's mother was a Stewart.

The ladies of St. John's Church have invited all the members of the Stewart Clan to a tea on Sunday afternoon in the Parish Hall.

The following excerpts are taken from "Our Forest Home," by Miss Dunlop, of Peterborough, the oldest living descendant of T. A. Stewart:

Page 46—1823: "Mr. Stewart at this time planned to have a church erected . . . and was fully sympathized with by friends at home, who aided materially, one gentleman who was visiting our house at this time left a packet when he was leaving, which, on being opened, was found to contain £25—'to be devoted to any public work in the Stewart settlement.' This was placed in the Bank at Cobourg till such time as it could be used, and was afterwards given with other money towards building St. John's Church."

Page 56—April 5th, 1824: "Thank all the friends for their active exertions about our Church, which I do hope and trust we will have soon. We also hope that a clergyman will be sent to us. I have written again to Mrs. Mountain mentioning the very bad state of religion in our neighbouring townships, and urging the necessity there is for a clergyman where our children are growing up, and requesting her to influence the Bishop (Bishop Mountain of Quebec) for us."

Page 57—May, 1824: "Thank all our kind and dear friends for their zealous activity in collecting subscriptions. Mr. Stewart has fixed on a 'very pretty situation for the church, near the river where there is a sloping bank which can soon be cleared. I received such a kind and very affectionate letter from Mrs. Mountain, in which she expressed strongly the interest she and the Bishop felt for us, and promised to provide a clergyman for us as soon as possible."

Page 75—"Early in the year 1818 a reserve was made in the North-east part of the Township of North Monaghan for the site of a town, but no name was given at the time. In 1825 the town plot was surveyed and laid out by Mr. Birdsall, under the direction of Mr. Z. Burnham (afterwards the Hon. Z. Burnham)."

The site of the town was called "The Plains."

Page 78—"This year (1825) brought hopes of an immigration from Ireland. Up to this date there was but one inhabitant of the future town of Peterborough. Mr. Peter Robinson (whose brother was afterwards Sir John Beverly Robinson, Chief Justice of Upper Canada), who had visited the colony and seen the great need, went to Cork, Ireland, and gathered five hundred emigrants to start with."

Page 83—"On those plains where they (the immigrants) encamped, a few months ago there was only one farm house and a miserable mill. Now we have a flourishing village, containing stores of all kinds . . . two saw-mills, smith's shops, bake houses, doctors' shops, and dwelling-houses. . . . We have laid out lots for the church, school-house, Jail, etc., on many of which building will begin next spring."

Page 88—1826: "On Saturday last the Governor (Sir Peregrine Maitland) and his suite arrived."

This was in the winter of 1825-6. A banquet was held, at which Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were present.

P. 91—1826: "At this famous dinner-party the name of the new village was decided upon. Mrs. Stewart suggested Peterborough in honor of Mr. Peter Robinson, and it was at once chosen as most suitable. In a short time orders were given to have the site laid out in park lots to be valued at one dollar per acre."

P. 100.—1826: "A log school-house had been built in 1826. . . . An interesting event took place in the village about three weeks ago. Thirty-five Indians, men, women and children, came to the church which is our log school-house, it being used for the Church of England service by Rev. Mr. Armour."

P. 104.—1826: "You will have learned before this that we have a very excellent pious clergyman (Mr. Armour). He keeps the Government school also the Sunday School, which is well attended. Each Sunday his congregation increases. At the last service there were seventy-four present."

P. 108.—January, 1828: "We all walked to church together. . . . . there was a large congregation, over one hundred being present. . . . This was an unexpected and delightful sight; for when Mr. Armour first came, many violently opposed the Church, and prevented Mr. Stewart building one long ago when we were first collecting subscriptions."

P. 139.—Dec. 27th, 1834: "We went to Church immediately after breakfast. . . . . There had been some rumors of the service being held in the new church on that day, but it was thought better to wait till milder weather, as it would be impossible to heat it sufficiently, in its present unfinished state. It is a most respectable looking building and a beautiful object, standing on a hill prettily wooded with oak and Weymouth pine. . . . I wish now to mention, for the satisfaction of all our friends who subscribed eleven years ago for our church in the woods, that the money they sent has been used on this one."

P. 151—March 31st, 1836: "Our new church will be ready for service in May or June; I fear the funds are not sufficient to finish it all properly at present. I believe the managers have some intention of applying at home for help, as we have seen in the papers some accounts of subscriptions towards churches in Canada, and I think as several years ago there was £75 collected for us by our near family and friends, there might be some addition made for the same purpose by the public.

P. 152.—"I have to close this year 1836 without being able to find the letters giving an account of the opening of St. John's Church, which event of such deep interest to us at that time, took place sometime during the summer of 1836." (These letters having been lost in a fire when Goodwood House was burned).

PP. 160, 161, 162.—In the early part of this year (1838) great efforts were made to complete St. John's Church, and clear off the debt remaining on the building. The following circular was sent to England, and distributed there, will best explain the situation of the building committee:

'In the year 1832 the back parts of the district of Newcastle in Upper Canada, were little better than a wilderness. But in 1836 the town of Peterborough in that district, began to assume an importance considerably beyond the anticipations of its founders, and some efforts were made to supply the spiritual wants of its increasing population.

A schoolhouse was built in which Divine Worship was regularly performed, but it could contain only about one hundred and fifty persons. In a few years the anxiety expressed by many families, forcibly appealed to the respectable part of the settlers, and convinced them of the necessity of making some efforts to raise a church. A meeting was held and it was resolved to erect a stone church, and if possible to add galleries, so that it might contain about 800 persons, out of a Protestant population of about 2,000 souls. A subscription was immediately commenced, which by the blessing of God, amounted to nearly £700. Early in 1835 the building was commenced, and in 1836 the Church was opened for Divine worship. The Building Committee having taken on themselves the responsibility of finishing the work which they had begun, are not able, through want of funds to erect the proposed galleries, the debt on the building amounting to nearly £500. But they trust the Lord will raise up friends who will extricate them from their difficulties. They are very anxious to complete the building, as the church at present is not large enough for the increasing congregation, part of whom are the proprietors of the soil. The gentleman who laid the first stone of this sacred edifice is now in England. Prior to his leaving Canada, he was urged by the Building Committee to lay these facts before the Christian public in England, feeling assured that if the case were only made known, that in a district of 500 miles from Quebec, the population were looking to them for assistance to complete the building of the Lord's Sanctuary where Jehovah might be worshipped by Indian, Irish and English Episcopalians, the appeal would not be made in vain.

The gentleman whose address is given will be happy to receive subscriptions, or give any information relative to Upper Canada, on personal application or by letter (post-paid). Address to Charles Rubidge, Esq., 32 Arundel Street, Strand'."

Memo, P. 109, 110.—"I shall pay two shillings and seven pense for this letter, please tell me what you pay when you get it."

The K. R. Stewart mentioned in the following list is a high official on the Santa Fe coast lines of California. E. H. Brown of Montreal was secretary-treasurer of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association for 11 years, and president for two years. He has also held the office of secretary of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada.

MASONS HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

Great Gathering From Three Districts Held at Presqu'ile Park.

GRAND MASTER PRESENT.

MILLBROOK, July 8.—The monster Masonic picnic, held under the auspices of the three districts, Peterborough, Ontario, and Prince Edward Island, at the Presq'ile Provincial Park, on Wednesday, July 6, was attended by over six thousand people in spite of the rain which was an unfavorable feature throughout most of the day.

Throuhg the courtesy of the Park Committee, which has a membership of five, three of whom are Masons, the grounds were available for the big gathering which was entertained by two bands, the Kilties from Cobourg, and one from Frankford, a Punch and Judy show in a big tent for the kiddies, and for the latter's benefit especially some large balloons were also sent up in the late afternoon; and there was a ball tournament arranged between the three districts but this it was impossible to carry through to a finish because of the intervening showers.

Worshipful Brother A. Willoughby, Past Master o fthe Colborne Masonic Lodge, was the originator of the idea of the picnic on a monster scale, and much of the success of the outing was due to his initiative and labor; assisting Mr. Willoughy were Worshipful Brother B. C. H. Becker, of the United Lodge, Brighton, who acted as secretary of the committee, and Worshipful Brother O. L. Morrow, also of Brighton, who filled the position of treasurer.

The affair was financed by contribution from each of the thirty-nine Lodges in the three districts, and by the receipts from the several booths on the grounds. Girls sold tags readily throughout the afternoon, the proceeds from which went to the fund for the support of widows and orphans.

Grand Master Speaks.

The speaking began about 3.30 p.m the chief guest of honor, Most Worshipful Brother J. A. Rowland, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the Dominion of Canada in the Province of Ontario, being called upon for the first address, Worshipful Brother A. Willoughby acting as chairman.

The Grand Master suggested it would be a good idea to "put the weather under government control", after expressing his pleasure in being present, and extending congratulations to the committee in charge on the success attained.

His address was eulogistic of Masonry, the claim bemg that this Order has now 115,000 members in Ontario, over a quarter of a million in the Dominion, and taking in the United States, the British Isles, and the English-speaking countries of the world the fraternity may boast of over 4,000,000 adherents.

Referring to the benevolent work done by Masonry, the Grand Master said that $100,000 was taken from the Grand Lodge treasury last year for this purpose, this amount being auxiliary to large sums distributed by private Lodges, and by individual members. "Masonry does not give any publicity to its benevolences, and it would be impossible to estimate the total amount expended in this way; the recipient may receive the help without any sense of humiliation, or any feelihg of hesitation in accepting the aid given quietly but with true fraternity."

Some specific instances of the nelp which brethren of the Masonic Order had been abe to give in cases in real need were cited, the statement being emphatically made that "our great purpose is to make better men and better conditions, and to created a feeling of confidence between man and which I am sure we see exemplified in this great gathering today. We are doing a work worthy of the highest commendation."

"Barriers which formerly existed between natons are now largely broken down, and men who were strangers before are neighbors; the safety and security of the world depends uopn men and nations having a better understandng of each other. Masonry is doing its bit in making men better, in bringing them closer together and helping them to realize as a prificiple of action, the brotherhood of man, and the Fatherhood of God."

In concluding his remarks, the Grand Master made feeling reference, as did the chairman and other speakers, to the fact that the picnic was being held on historic ground, hallowed by the labors and the memory of the United Empire Loyalist forefathers who were intimately connected with the entire district of which this park section forms a part."

Other Speakers.

Others who spoke briefly were Right Worshipful Brother W. S. Herrington, of Napanee, P.D.D.G.M. for Frontenac district; Rt. Worshipful Brother F. E. Brown, of Madoc, D.D.G.M. for Prince Edward district; and Right Worshipful Brother G. M. Carscallen, of Enterprise, D.D.G.M. for Frontenac district.

Telegrams extending best wishes, and regrets at being unable to attend were read from: Right Worshipful Brother W. M. Logan, of Hamilton, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ontario; Honorable W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario; Honorable J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the Dominion of Canada in Ontario; and I. A. Humphries, of the Ontario District, Past Z of the Royal Arch Masons.

Besides the speakers others among the guests of honor were: Right Worshipful Brother Heron, of Toronto, Junior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Ontario; P.D.D.G.M. Right Worshipful Brother G. C. Bonnycastle, of Bowmanville; Major Belford, ex-M.P.P., of Campbellford; F. W. Bowen, M.P., of Orono; E. Maybee, M.P., of Trenton; M. J. Elliott, of Bowmanville Warden of Northumberland and Durnam; Worshipful Brother E. H. Spencer, of Trenton, Past Grand Z of the Royal Arch Masons of Canada; Right Worshipful Brother F. H. Brown, of Port Hope, D.D.G.M. for Ontario County; and Right Worshipful Brother B. Buchanan, D.D.G.M. for Peterborough District.

At the invitation of the chairman, a goodly number of the 1,000 cars which had conveyed the picnickers to the grounds, when on their homeward way drove through the park, which has an area of about 1,000 acres, the good gravel road, government made, making this feature of the outing one of the enjoyable events of the day.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR BAD STOMACH GIVES SWIFT RELIEF

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet. Safe and Simple Home Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition.

If you are a victim of Stomach Trouble — Gas, Sourness, Pain, or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system with starvation diets. For within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with three or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless, inexpensive, and handy tablet form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia tablets, which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that 90 percent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Be sure to get Bisurated Magnesia Tablets.

DOCTOR CLAIMS CURE OF TETANY

Minnesota Man Says Extract From Oxen Will Cure Disease.

RESEMBLES TETANUS.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Tetany, a disease in which spasms predominate, may soon be eradicated as the result of research accomplishments announced by Dr. Adolph M. Hanson, of Fairbault, Minn.

The disease is due to a subnormal condition of the parathlyroid gland. Dr. Hanson has been working for years on an active principle obtained from the glands of oxen which will be a cure for tetany and he now states success has crowned his efforts. Dr. John B. Collip, chemist of the University of Alberta, Canada, has joined in the work. Dr. Collip was associated with Dr. Banting in his discovery of insulin.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said:

"The preparation of an effective parathyroid product seems about to be fulfilled in various places. The studies of Collip in Canada have attracted widespread attention in accord with their merits. They should not cause us to lose sight of the early attempts of Hanson in this country to prepare an active extract of the parathyroid glands of animals.

"Collip himself has designated Hanson's work as "worthy of great commendation" and his clinical results as 'indeed highly suggestive.' Hanson has prepared an acid extract of bovine parathyroid yielding his 'hydrochloric X' which contains the agent that induces a raising of the calcium content of the blood in hypocalcia and thereby can relieve tetany."

Tetany receives its name from the fact that its symtoms resemble those of tetanus, or lockjaw. Tetany frequently follows operations for removal of goitre.

DRIFT ALL NIGHT IN LAKE ONTARIO

Two Toronto Young Men Tossed By Waves When Engine Fails.

TORONTO July 8. — Canadian Press. — Blown about eight miles into the lake off Pickering, Ont. last night, John Odell, aged about 25, and Alex. Blenkarn, aged 25, drifted about for six hours at the mercy of the wind and waves until rescued by Supt. Lang and Engineer Kerr of the Toronto Life Saving Service, and Brought to Whitby, Ont.

The two young men were little the worse for their experience.

The two men left Pickering Beach shortly after supper last night in a skiff operated by a small engine. There was a strong off shore wind blowing and a heavy sea rolling at the time. When about four miles out the engine developed trouble, and the two men being unable to fix it, the light craft was gradually blown farther away from the shore with each passing hour.

The boat was seen by persons on the shore drifting about at the will of the waves. Sensing that something was amiss and being unable to reach the stranded boat and its crew themselves, the watchers notified the Toronto life-saving station, and asked that help be sent. Supt. Lang and Engineer Kerr immediately put out in No. 2 boat. This is a gasoline launch 38 feet long, and equipped with a rowboat, containing drags, hot water bottles, blankets, and other paraphernalia. The call came in at eight o'clock and it was not until an early hour this morning that the boat and crew returned to the city.

While the life savers were making their run of 20 miles to Pickering the watchers ashore lit the way and kept up the spirits of the drifting men by means of a large bonfire built on the shore. Immediately on arriving at the spot Lang and Kerr made their way to the scene of the near-tragedy. Having taken the two men aboard a tow rope then was made fast to the skiff and the whole was taken to Whitby.

Green vegetables keep their color better if they are cooked in an uncovered dish. Strongly flavored vegetables such as onions and cabbage are better cooked uncovered, and their odor is less objectionable if allowed to pass off continually in steam.

GRACE CHURCH HOLDS SOCIAL

Annual Strawberry Festival at Millbrook is Well Attended.

GOOD PROGRAM GIVEN

MILLBROOK, July 8.—The annual strawberry festival, under the auspices of the Women's League of Grace Presbyterian church, was held on the church grounds on Tuesday, July 5, the attendance being good considering other similar attractions in the neighborhood, and an enjoyable time being spent.

Four long tables, tastefully decorated with flowers, and well laden with good things to eat, were laid at the east side of the church, while on the front lawns were seats invitingly arranged where those who had been early served enjoyed the opportunity of social intercourse. An arc of evergreens, flag-trimmed, and gaily colored streamers fluttering over the greensward, with plenty of good music furnished through the courtesy of Mr. H. R. Armstrong, who had his orthophonic victrola on hand for the occasion, were all attractive features of the happy gathering.

The programme was given in the church, the pastor, Rev. J. Riddell, acting as chairman, and in a few well chosen words welcoming the audience and emphasizing the value of the social side of such community meetings. The items on the programme included:

Recitation, "The Choice," by Miss Agnes Brown. Encore "A Chunk of Raisin Pie."

Duet"Life's Dream is O'er" by Miss Kathleen Lancashire and W. H. Combe.

Address, Mr. R . J. Paterson, ex-M.P.P. of Lindsay.

Solo, "A Heap of Rose Leaves," by Miss Lancashire.

Recitation, "Be the Best," by Master Allen Brown. Encore, "The Spank-Me Plant."

Solo, "I Send Thee Roses," by Miss Aileen Hunter. Encore, "My Mary."

Address, A. J. Fallis, ex-M.P.P.

Duet, "'Tis Love That Makes the World Go Round," by Miss Hunter and Mr. V. R. Hunter. Encore "Down by the River Side."

Recitation, "Leetle Bateese," by Miss A. Brown. Encore "Pat's Drive."

Solo, "What's in the Air Today?" by Miss Lancashire. Encore "Ask Me."

Among those assisting with the tea, either as waitresses, or at the service tables, were: Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. T. Ingram, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, Mrs. (Rev.) J. Riddell, Mrs. N. Gilmour, Mrs. J. Kidd, Mrs. W. E. Russell, Mrs. Seaton, Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell, Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. L. C. Russell, Mrs. J. Kennedy, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. E. Armstrong, Misses Phyllis Brown, Aileen Franklin, Phyllis Kidd, May Hales, Lillian Syer, Isabelle and Jean Syer, Ethel McKnight, Miriam Lord, E. Eagleson, Messrs. E. Armstrong and J. R. Eakins sold tickets at the gate, and J. Kennedy looked after collecting these at the tables.

INSTITUTE FIXES PRIZES FOR FAIR

Will Give Ten Dollars for Competitions Among Cavan Schools.

CAVAN, July 8.—On Tuesday evening a committee of the Cavan Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. F. M. Staples to decide what prizes should be offered by the Institute to the school children at Ida school fair. The following were the prizes decided upon, and also the grading. Prizes to be given by Cavan W.I. to schools, including Whitfield's, who hold their Rural Fair at Ida:—

Ten dollars to be divided among four divisions in the schools, each division to receive two dollars and fifty cents in three prizes: First prize one dollar; Second, eighty-five cents; Third, sixty-five cents. Fourth class, the best poster made in water colors to illustrate some good health rule or rules. Third class, the most wholesome, healthy breakfast for a school boy or girl, demonstrated in the same manner as the school lunch. Second class, a composition of twenty lines on "What I would like to do when I finish school." Classes below the second, 1, six lines of the copy "Nothing can need a lie." 2, six lines of the figures 1234567890. 3, the small letters of the alphabet, each letter witten twice.

The regular meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, on Thursday afternoon, July 14th.

Haying is general in Cavan. Some farmers have some in, others having only gotten it cut and coiled.

Grain is doing well. Barley is shot out, and the fall wheat filling out nicely.

Some good patches of early potatoes are seen, but the bulk of the potatoes were planted late. There is a great deal of buckwheat and buckwheat and barley sown as a late crop owing to the wet weather at the end of the seeding time. There has been a good growth and all grain looks healthy and in good growing condition.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Afterwards, Faith Hathaway could never quite account for all he hours of that terrible Saturday. She knew that after Cherry had been taken to the hospital in the ambulance, accompanied by both Bob and the young doctor, she had gone, without lunch, to the shopping district to purchase an emergency layette for Cherry's baby. She knew that she wandered, dazed, in the largest department store. Then she had fainted. Miraculously, she had walked in the rest room of the store to find Bob bending over her, his dear face haggard with anxiety for her—for her! Not for Cherry! For her!

"I didn't mean to faint," she whispered. "I've got everything. How—is she?" She was struggling to rise, but Bob's hands pressed her back gently upon the couch.

"Doing fine," Bob assured her. "Baby expected by midnight, if all goes well—and Dr. Atkins thinks it will. Now you lie still until you feel like moving. The car is outside the store. The clerk telephoned me at the hospital as soon as you fainted—and here I am!"

He made her rest for half an hour, his hands holding hers in their warm clasp, his love filled blue eyes never leaving hers, until her whole body felt bathed in a warm flood of love.

"I want to go to the hospital and wait. She'll want me," Faith insisted at last. "I'm all right now. I can't imagine what made me faint."

"Maybe," Bob's blue eyes filled with sudden hope as they searched hers, "maybe you, too—? Oh, darling, wish—"

"No," she shook her head, closing her eyes upon the disappointment that blotted out the hope in his suddenly eager face. "I'm sorry, Bob. Not—yet."

As they journeyed to the hospital to await the birth of Cherry's baby, Faith's heart grew hot with rebellion. Everything came to Cherry! Everything! She herself would give anything in the world to have a baby, while Cherry—who did not want a baby—was even now in the tortured throes of birth-giving.

"Don't torture yourself, darling," Bob said softly, his hand leaving the steering wheel to close upon hers, as if he had sensed her thoughts. "We'll have our baby soon enough."

When they arrived at the hospital they learned that Cherry's condition had not yet warranted her removal to the operating room. Faith went up alone, while Bob hurried to a florists to order enough flowers to make a scented bower of Cherry's room.

Bob had directed that his sister-in-law be given the best room in the hospital, and Faith found her in a big corner chamber, brilliantly lighted with four windows, through which the strong June sunshine poured on a strong breeze. The walls were a soft, cheerful tan, the high, narrow bed and dresser of Circassian walnut. There was a two-toned brown velvet rug on the brown painted cement floor, fresh pongee silk curtains fluttered at the windows. A nurse wrote busily at a little table drawn close to the smoothly made-up bed. And on the bed Cherry lay, quiescent for the moment, her small white hands folded across her breast, the filmy lace yoke of a white crepe de chine nightgown showing above the turned-back white coverlet, her bright curls pushed damply back from her forehead, her face as pale as if death had already claimed it.

"Is that you, Faith?" Cherry's voice came faintly. "I thought you were never coming. I wanted to see you—before—I—die, Faith. I wanted to tell you I'm sorry—for everything—I've ever done to make you unhappy—"

INJECTING GLUCOSE IN WOMAN'S VEINS

Doctors Trying To Save Victim of Self-Imposed Starvation.

TORONTO, July 8. — (Canadian Press).—Little change is reported in the condition of Mrs. Hope Leontough of this city, who has been in hospital for some days in a critical condition, following fifty-five days' fasting. Yesterday the woman relapsed and feeding of glucose intravenously was resorted to by the physicoans attending her, and she immediately showed improvement. Today, however, hospital authorities report that her condition remains the same and they will continue to feed glucose directly into her blood.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Saturday, July 9, 1927.
(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as an unfortunate day, for after the morning hours sinister stars dominate.

Women should bestir themselves early, if they would accomplish anything and the aspects are likely to make them ambitious.

There is a sign of promise for all who seek work to-day, providing they emulate the legendary worm; otherwise, they will find only serious disappointment.

Much work is foretold for those who use their hands. Labor is to benefit greatly in the world's turmoil which is to increase with the advance of summer, it is forecast.

Under this planetary government there may be a tendency on the part of men who have attained success to be exceedingly domineering, especially in their attitude toward women.

If the stars are read aright women are soon to demonstrate their ability to perform great service to the nation.

While this sway prevails there may be an inclination toward deception and double dealing. Secret diplomacy will be prevalent.

It is well not to make any sort of venture under this direction of the stars which may be most misleading.

There is again a prophecy that many more American millionaires will be made within a short time, owing to extraordinary conditions in foreign lands.

An appalling disaster in which the French suffer is foretold by a London astrologer.

Reformers are to work diligently to protect the lands of the United States from future floods, but disasters from earthquakes are prognosticated.

Warning is given that selfishness must be overcome in the administration of the people's business. Political corruption is to be exposed in many places, if the stars are rightly read.

Persons whose birthdate it is should conserve their money in the coming year. Speculation should be avoided.

Children born on this day probably will be thrifty and industrious. They should be trained to avoid bad investments.

The Answers

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The horizontally striped sweater that still remains a favorite with many well-dressed women offers no difficulties to the amateur knitter. This was developed in beige and brown—tones that are assuming considerable importance in summer sports wear.

Pique is one of the old-time cotton fabrics that has been revived for the summer. There is an interesting rivalry at present between the old materials that are brought forth in new guise and materials which to all intents are really new. Especially with cottons, there seems to be a charm in the old words—dimity, organdie, calico, gingham, etc.—that recommends them to our attention.

And so although the new version may be such an improvement on the old as really to merit a new name it is still called by the old word that has really taken a definite place in our language. Ten or fifteen years ago there was a new crop of cotton materials with new names—ponge, ratine, etc.—but though these fabrics are still seen it is to the older fabrics that fashion looks with most favor.

This season pique first appeared in the form of cuffs, collars, vestees, and even for the button-hole flower to be worn on the tailored suit or sports frock. Encouraged by the favor with which this material was received in this small way, dressmakers essayed the all-pique frock. At present there is no smarter type of frock seen on the tennis courts than the sleeveless, one-piece white frock of good quality pique. And remember this—that the cheaper sort of pique are hardly worth using. The cord must be firm and finely woven or else the charm of the material is lost.

Cherry red is used to trim a number of black evening frocks. A light-weight black taffeta frock with slightly bouffant skirt has a closely molded sleeveless bodice with shoulder strap of the material at one side and strap of cherry red velvet over the other. The velvet ribbon extends down in loops at the front and is used for little ornamental loops on one side of the skirt.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The horizontally striped sweater that still remains a favorite with many well-dressed women offers no difficulties to the amateur knitter. This was developed in beige and brown—tones that are assuming considerable importance in summer sports wear.

Pique is one of the old-time cotton fabrics that has been revived for the summer. There is an interesting rivalry at present between the old materials that are brought forth in new guise and materials which to all intents are really new. Especially with cottons, there seems to be a charm in the old words—dimity, organdie, calico, gingham, etc.—that recommends them to our attention.

And so although the new version may be such an improvement on the old as really to merit a new name it is still called by the old word that has really taken a definite place in our language. Ten or fifteen years ago there was a new crop of cotton materials with new names—ponge, ratine, etc.—but though these fabrics are still seen it is to the older fabrics that fashion looks with most favor.

This season pique first appeared in the form of cuffs, collars, vestees, and even for the button-hole flower to be worn on the tailored suit or sports frock. Encouraged by the favor with which this material was received in this small way, dressmakers essayed the all-pique frock. At present there is no smarter type of frock seen on the tennis courts than the sleeveless, one-piece white frock of good quality pique. And remember this—that the cheaper sort of pique are hardly worth using. The cord must be firm and finely woven or else the charm of the material is lost.

Cherry red is used to trim a number of black evening frocks. A light-weight black taffeta frock with slightly bouffant skirt has a closely molded sleeveless bodice with shoulder strap of the material at one side and strap of cherry red velvet over the other. The velvet ribbon extends down in loops at the front and is used for little o-nam-n-s loops on one side of the skirt.

Sandy Somerville Reaches Golf Semi-Finals

FAVORITES EMERGE VICTORIOUS IN 3RD ROUND OF TOURNAMENT

Thompson and Somerville Take Early Leads for Easy Wins.

PLAY BETTER GOLF

Carrick Makes Strenuous Uphill Struggle to Dispose of Scott.

HAMILTON, July 8 (Canadian Press).—Three previous winners of the Canadian amateur golf champions reached the semi-final yesterday when in the third round matches they emerged victorious. Two of them, Frank Thompson and Sandy Somerville, had comparatively easy wins, securing big leads in the morning which were too much for their respective opponents. F. G. Hoblitzel of Lambton and W. H. Gardner of Buffalo, to overcome in the afternoon although the two losers played the better golf in the afternoon.

Don Carrick of Scarboro had a strenuous struggle to dispose of Norman Scott, finally winning 2 and 1. He had a one-hole lead going out in the afternoon, but was one in arrears at the ninth, and he did not square the match until the fifteenth. Here Scott cracked and Carrick won three in a row. Carrick will meet Somerville to-day, while Thompson tackles Maurice J. McCarthy of Brooklyn, who eliminated Stanley Thompson of Mississauga 3 and 2. Thompson was one up at noon, but on each nine in the afternoon he had losing streaks of three holes each and this caused his downfall.

Thompson's Play.

Frank Thompson of Knollwood, Chicago, was the first player to enter the semi-finals, his match against F. G. Hoblitzel of Lambton ending on the twenty-ninth green, with the 1921 and 1924 champion winning 8 and 7. Starting out in the afternoon with a lead of seven holes, Thompson was very comfortably situated, but Hoblitzel was not disheartened and took the first two holes, fours against fives. Thompson took the third and the next two were halved in fours, the first a birdie. Hoblitzel won the sixth but Thompson took the seventh, and after the eighth had been halved, Thompson regained his lead of seven holes by winning the ninth. The tenth was halved in fours, and the match ended when Thompson dropped his second putt for a birdie four on the eleventh. The cards:

Increases Margin.

Starting the afternoon with a lead of one hole, Stanley Thompson increased his margin over Maurice McCarthy of Brooklyn to two by winning the first hole, but after the second was halved in birdie fours, Thompson slipped and lost three in a row, all due to his poor shots. He had good chances to win both the third and fourth but tossed them away. The sixth and seventh were halved, but a 45-foot putt on the eighth gave McCarthy the hole, although Thompson nearly holed his 35-footer. On the ninth, McCarthy saved a loss by dropping a brisk fifteen-footer when Thompson was dead in three. McCarthy made the turn 2 up. The tenth was halved and Thompson squared the match when McCarthy ran into trouble on the eleventh and took three putts on the twelfth. The thirteenth was halved but then McCarthy started his second winning streak of three consecutive holes which gave him the victory at the sixteenth. A long putt gave him the lead at the fourteenth, Thompson ran into trouble on the fifteenth and a stymie aided the American to win the sixteenth, although his putt hung on the lip for a moment before dropping for the hole and the match.

Gardner—Somerville.

Ham Gardner of Buffalo was another player who found his morning round his downfall. He started the afternoon five down to "Sandy" Somerville, and while he played the sixteen holes in the afternoon in even fours, he lost 4 and 2. Somerville lost the second but won the third, but at the fourth put two out of bounds and then dropped the fifth. The next two were halved and they shared the eighth and ninth, Somerville winning the former, and Gardner the latter. They turned for home with Somerville three in front. On the 345-yard tenth, Somerville drove the green and his first putt hung on the lip of the cup but he won the hole. The eleventh was halved and then Gardner reduced his deficit by taking the 12th. The 13th was halved in par threes, and Somerville became dormie by winning the 14th. Gardner kept the match alive at the fifteenth but it ended on the short 16th which Somerville won. The cards:

Held Carrick.

Starting the afternoon round one down, Norman Scott held Don Carrick for three holes, all being halved in fours, and squared the match at the fourth when Carrick was short with both his second and a chip. Scott went into the lead at the fifth when Carrick was short with two approach shots and he missed a great chance to increase his lead at the sixth when he missed a short putt. He won the seventh with a ten-foot putt and then lost another chance by missing a short putt on the eighth. Another missed putt on the ninth allowed Carrick to reduce the margin to one. After making the turn the first two holes were halved but the match was squared at the twelfth when Scott placed his drive in the rough but recovered nicely, only to be left a stymie. The next two holes were halved in fours. On the fifteenth Scott was in a trap to the left of the green with his third, while Carrick was away to the left in two, but played across the trap and dead with his third. Scott took two to get out of the bunker and Carrick took the lead. At the short sixteenth Scott was less than two feet from the pin, while Carrick was twelve away. Carrick's approach putt just shaved the lip, and then Scott missed another short putt for a win to square the match.

On the seventeenth, Scott was in a trap with his drive, short with a great iron shot and over the green with his approach, getting on in four. Carrick was on in two and each took two putts, Carrick winning the hole 4-6 and the match 2 and 1. The cards were:

TIGERS WIN FINAL GAME

Pound Wingard for 14 Hits to Defeat Browns 9-6.

SLUGGING MATCH

NEW YORK, July 8 (Canadian Press). — The Detroit Tigers pounded Wingard for 14 hits yesterday and took the final game of the St. Louis series from the Browns 9 to 6. Both teams batted around in the first inning. The Tigers getting five runs and the Browns three. The Browns' ninth inning rally was cut short with one run when, with two men on base and no outs, Holloway relieved Collins. Rice lined out and E. Miller hit it to a double play.

Only one game scheduled in the American League yesterday.

UNKNOWN MAY WIN MARATHON

Dark Horse Apt to Upset Calculations of Great Swimmers.

MANY IN TRAINING

Will an unknown athlete from some little village or town, or perhaps a lad from the farm with no previous records to his credit, carry off the $30,000 first prize, the title of world's long distance champion and the host of honors that go with it in the Canadian National Exhibition's $50,000 marathon swim on August 31st in Toronto?

In the opinion of sporting experts, this is more than a vague conjecture. The conditions of the race, the physique necessary to make an aquatic star and a few selections from the entries already in, have made this possibility a point to be carefully considered.

Almost every Ontario municipality has a dark-horse entrant training quietly. Though many of these may never actually start on the day of the race, a considerable number are certain competitors.

Important as proper coaching may be, natural ability and endurance powers are perhaps the most important factors which will decide the world's greatest water marathon. In this case, too, the odds favor the unknown, depending on his strength and stamina. In swimming the English Channel, experience and skill in battling tides, knowledge of the conditions the swimmer had to face and proper management and coaching could make the difference between success and failure.

In the Toronto event, the weather conditions are likely to be nearly ideal. There are no tides to contend with, no currents and none of the other adverse conditions which have marked other marathons. The one thing the swimmer must keep in mind is the fact that it will be necessary for him to be accustomed to the temperature. Lake Ontario is apt to be more chilly than the water in shallower lakes or in the average body of fresh water.

The race goes to the swimmer whose earlier life has resulted in building up a sound physique and this is a big point in favor of the young unknown from the small town or from the country who, through living and working largely in the outdoors, is gifted with a natural strength which no amount of expert training colld give him.

Training is, of course, almost a necessity, but there are a host of expert coaches available and all of them are on the lookout for likely marathon prospects.

Should a dark horse win the laurels, he would also win world renown and a large fortune. To win, he would have to defeat a score of the world's greatest living swimming stars. There are half a dozen European champions already entered including Georges Michel, who holds the world's record for crossing the English Channel; Mme. Jane Sion, the European woman champion; Thoresen and Farstead, two powerful Norwegians; Ernst Vierkotter, the German baker who swam the Channel last year; possibly Ishak Helmy the Egyptian; as well as Otto Kemmerich of Hamburg; Mrs. Hepworth of England; Grecian, Italian, Scotch, Hawaiian, and Russian stars.

George Young, the young Canadian conqueror of Catalina, is a strong favorite in the race, despite the impressive opposition he must meet. At least fifty outstanding Americans will be pitted against him, and a whole host of Canadians.

But it is the very fact that he must defeat all these international favorites to win first place that makes the Exhibition marathon so attractive to the young unknown, working out without any notice from the sporting world at large in some little Canadian lake. If he can win, he wins world fame and fortune in one swoop.

No Matches Played At Ottawa Courts

OTTAWA, Ont., July 8 (Canadian Press). — Rain halted the proceedings entirely in the Ontario lawn tennis championships here yesterday, and no matches were played. As a result, the programme for to-day is very heavy, and many players will be called on to play at least three times, and in some cases four. The programme for yesterday, which was cancelled, will be completed this morning, and further rounds played in the afternoon.

The semi-finals in the women's singles, men's singles, junior singles, and men's open doubles will be concluded. Three Ottawa ladies will play in the women's event, with Miss G. Gallery, of Montreal, the only competitor from an outside point. In the men's singles quarter-finals, to be played in the morning, there are three Toronto players, Gilbert Nunns, Leroy Rennie, and Leo Hilts, two Texas stars, Lewis N. White and L. Thalheimer, Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, and H. F. Wright, of Ottawa. D. H. Martin, of Newton, Mass., is the remaining contestant in this event.

Matches are called to commence at 10 a.m., and play will continue right through the entire day, as long as the light holds out, and players are able to continue.

American League Club Owners Call Meeting

NEW YORK, July 8 (Canadian Press). — American League club owners will meet with Prest. Ban Johnson at ten o'clock this morning at the Belmont Hotel here, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, said last night.

The letter convoking the owners was signed by Prest. Johnson, Col. Ruppert said, and gave as reasons for the meeting possible amendment of the constitution and other business.

While Col. Ruppert professed ignorance as to what may develop at the meeting, he vouchsafed the opinion any amending of the constitution would be but a routine matter and the "other business," whatever it might be, would occupy the owners' closest attention.

Col. Ruppert said he had not seen Prest. Johnson in three months and had no information as to whether he might retire or be asked to do so.

CUBS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

Oust Pirates by 2-1 Victory in First Game of Series.

PITCHERS' BATTLE

NEW YORK, July 8 (Canadian Press). — The Chicago Cubs ousted Pittsburgh from the National League lead yesterday by defeating the Pirates 2 to 1 in the first game of the three-game series at Pittsburgh. The buccaneers now trail by a single percentage a point.

The game, a pitchers' battle between Hal Carlson of the Cubs and Joe Dawson, was halted by rain in the ninth, the score reverting to the eighth inning. The Cubs had scored two runs off Hill, who relieved Dawson in the ninth, but Pittsburgh had pushed over one run and had a man on third with only one out when the game was called. Dawson gave the Cubs only three hits in eight innings. Paul Waner's wild throw in the fifth permitted Grimm to score the deciding tally. Carlson was touched for only four safeties, all singles. It was the Cubs' eighth straight triumph.

Boston Overwhelmed.

After losing six games straight, the world champion St. Louis Cardinals overwhelmed Boston 12 to 1, in the first game of the series at Boston. Sherdel held the home club to five hits, and its only run was made after a freak triple by Welsh in the ninth inning. The ball took a big hop over Southworth's head. The runner later scored on an infield out.

Cincinnati took the opening game of the series from Philadelphia by a score of 11 to 4. The defeat put an end to the latest winning streak of the Phillies. Lucas had the home team blanked with two out in the ninth. Then he weakened, and four runs crossed the plate before the third man could be retired.

Dazzy Vance hung up his fourth straight victory of the season over the Giants as Brooklyn clipped short a four-game winning streak of New York by defeating the Giants, 3 to 2. The Robins totalled only four hits against eight for New York. Partridge's homer followed Reese's fumble on Statz in the second, while Vance scored in the fifth on his base on balls, Statz' sacrifice, and Carey's single.

PLAY TO-NIGHT.

Belmonts and C. G. E. in Final Clash For City Championship.

Tonight at Confederation Square the Belmonts and C.G.E. will play the second game for the Taylor Trophy, emblematic of the City Softball championship. On Wednesday night the Belmonts defeated the C.G.E. by a 14 to 7 score in a good game. The Belmonts were lucky to win by seven runs as they were outhit by the Electricians, the C.G.E. getting sixteen hits of Carruthers' delivery. The wet grounds seriously handicapped both teams but seemed to hamper Richmond's work more than Carruthers, the former finding it hard to control the ball.

Two of the Belmonts' homers were lucky hits, Jones slipping twice on the wet ground in fielding the ball. Jones is a reliable outfielder and on better grounds these two hits would have been sure outs. The C.G.E. are out to win tonight's game and will be fighting all the way, so that the fans can be assured of a good game.

The teams will get away at 6.15 sharp and the large crowd of Wednesday night should be equalled tonight.

HERE TOMORROW

Petes Will Have Best Team of Year to Meet Them.

Oshawa General Motors, under the leadership of Billy Benson, former Central Ontario League umpire, will invade Peterborough tomorrow for a game with the Peterborough seniors, and a letter from Secretary Harold Luke declares that they will have their strongest team in action.

They have Duke Dainty, Ted Delaney, Sandy Somerville and Chuck Matthews ready for mound duty, and Cameron and Whitely on the receiving end. Herb Wolfe, former Peterborough player, will be in the outfield.

Manager Swanston expects to have his best line-up of the year in the field against the invaders, and will call upon Al. Heckman to hold them in subjection, with Hardill and Osterland in reserve.

The game will be played at James Stevenson Park, and will be called at 3 o'clock sharp.

SOCCER GAME ON SATURDAY

Masseys and Quakers To Play Game to a Finish at King Edward Park.

A real cup-tie in soccer takes place on Saturday afternoon at the King Edward Park between the League leaders—Masseys and the Quaker Oats—in the final game of the Holloway Injured Players' Cup. Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

This is the second time that these two elevens have met in this trophy competition. In the early stages of the previous encounter, the Quaker boys had a margin of two goals to nothing in their favor, but they fell away in the second half to allow their opponents to equalize before the final whistle. In all probability if the umpire cannot declare a winner at the end of the period, both teams will play the game to a finish.

The fans are very anxious to witness this match and it is hoped that they will not forget the collectors when they call around. The proceeds go to the benefit fund.

The Quakers' team will be chosen from the following players: W. Curtis, H. Curtis, Stan. Maker, Alf. Maker, Jack Wade, Carmichael, A. Wilson, Mitchell, T. Wilson, T. Williams, Joe Mayette, J. Horn, F. Honour and R. Walker.

Masseys' team will be: Fowler, goal; Wade and Fowler, backs; W. Logan, H. Mann and Laidler, halves, Willis, G. Logan, Beggs, Buchan and Sharman, forwards. Reserves, James Nicholson and Darling.

All players be at the Pavilion not later than 2.45 promptly.

WILSON'S BACHELOR

Only a few seasons ago the St.Louis Cardinals, now champions of the National League, were so hard up they had to start the season with the players wearing old uniforms.

The famous Lonsdale belts are worth $2500 each and can only be won in the arena of the National Sporting Club, London. The boxer who wins one of these belts three times becomes its owner, and is entitled after reaching the age of 50, to a pension of five dollars a week.

At some of the French trotting meetings they "sandwich" races to saddle between the heats of the regular harness races, and the feature is said to be extremely popular.

If you are a motorist, ask any auto salesman how much your old car is worth—then read this and weep!

In "Rubber Tires," which features Bessie Love and Harrison Ford, a second hand car of the vintage of 1910 turns out to be worth $10,000. It is around this car and its surprising value that the plot of "Rubber Tires," which will be shown at the Regent theatre to-day, revolves

Miss Love, as Mary Ellen Stack, after losing her job in New York City, trades the Stack household furnishings for the car, and with her dependent family, her mother, her indolent Irish father, and her little brother, starts Westward via the auto camps.

En route, Pa Stack apparently negotiates a most advantageous swap of the 1910 model for another car of a later model. Then to the digust of the family and himself he learns the car he has traded is Car Number One of its manufacturers, and that its builder has offered a reward of $10,000 for its return to the factory. The pursuit of the Stacks Westward after Car Number One, aided by Harrison Ford, the hero, furnishes laughs galore.

In addition to Miss Love and Ford, the cast includes May Robson, Junior Coghlan, Erwin Connelly, John Patrick, and Clarence Burton. Alan Hale directed.

The 1921 census in Great Britain showed that females outnumbered males by slightly less than 2,000,000.

LIGHT ON RIFLE AID IN SHOOTING

Possible To Train Marksmen Without Wasting Ammunition.

SHOWS MOVEMENT.

TORONTO, July 8.—An invention which bids fair to revolutionize the training of troops in the use of arms was demonstrated at the Armories last night by its inventor, Brig.-Gen. J. F. Lamont, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., of the Imperial Army.

The mechanism of the device is set so that the light remains on the target for three-fifths of a second after the trigger has been pulled. As the light reaches the target before a bullet would have had time to leave the bore of the gun, and remains for a time on the target, it is easily discerned whether or not the marksman moves the gun between the time he pulls the trigger and the time the bullet would leave the barrel. This period of time is almost infinitesimal, yet a very slight movement of the rifle while the trigger is being pulled will put the bullet off the mark.

"There has been small-arm ammunition by the millions of rounds and gun ammunition by the thousands of rounds which has been wasted under the old system by men who have not had sufficient training in aiming their arms," said Gen. Lamont. "This device will prevent that waste. The men can see what they are shooting at and how they would have hit their targets. Thus they are kept interested, which is the cardinal requirement of all training."

The "Flashspotter," as it is called, has been patented in all civilized countries, and Gen. Lamont has just come here from Washington and Ottawa, where he demonstrated the device.

The four teams face a hard campaign for the balance of the schedule. To permit sufficient time for play-offs, there will be three, and in some cases four games a week when Saturday afternoon contests will be played.

Cogs and Crescents did not play last evening. Additional players are being signed by the clubs, and Cogs have added Ab. Delahaye and Grant Miller to their squad.

GOLF NEWS.

A team from the Peterborough Golf and Country Club went to Belleville yesterday afternoon and played the annual game with the Bay of Quinte Country Club. The Belleville Club lived up to its reputation of numbering in its ranks many long and powerful drivers, as one of the Belleville members, while driving, hit a cow on the Provincial Highway which adjoins the Bay of Quinte course and broke its leg. The home team also had better luck in the match itself, winning eight games to the visiting club's six. The players and the score by points are as follows:

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, VILAK, who masquerades as her attorney under the name of DAVIS. Vilak, a curious mixture of American and Oriental blood, is a student of criminology. He tries to persuade Elise to leave the country, letting him stay with his friend, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery.

After her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped, to be found again by the alert Vilak, and another attempt is made on their lives, Elise agrees.

Her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers ride through the countryside, warning the natives. Vilak decides to go to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a recluse and a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of a knowledge of the conspiracy against her. Nevertheless, she agrees it is their duty to warn him.

Vilak learns that the flood warning was a ruse to get Prentiss out of his house and so informs him. The party is besieged in a small stone tower next to Prentiss' house by armed attackers Vilak finally disperses them by dynamiting a dam and causing a real flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss has gone.

The next day, TINKY, Elise's little nephew, is stolen again. The trail leads into the jungle. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with a baby. Vilak makes preparations for a long pursuit, and with native trackers they take up the trail. They come upon a tribe which has never seen white men.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The caravan set out next morning. The withered chieftain, clutching the box of matches tight against his breast, sadly bade them goodby. "You never come back," he murmured. "Devil gods on red mountain kill you. Kill sure. Better, much better, come and live with Bagarundi. Me, Bagarundi, never hurt."

The travelers saw him watching until the thicket blotted him from view.

Up to this time they proceeded without accident. But they had been out of Bagarundi's tiny settlement only three or four hours when they met disaster.

They had reached another river lined on both sides by low cliffs of the interminable red volcanic rocks. Paulos and one of the Indians were standing on an apparently solid rock at the edge of the nearer bank, looking down at the brown water below. Without warning, the rock toppled and dropped into the stream.

The two men tried to leap to safety. But their panic-struck efforts were too late: both tumbled to the water thirty feet below. They were rescued by Vilak and one of the Indians after twenty minutes of strenuous and dangerous labor in beating off the cruel piranhas, the small fierce flesh-eating fish that infest most of the waters of the Amazon valley.

When they were finally brought to shore, Vilak, examining them expertly, found that Paulos had suffered a badly broken leg in falling against a projecting rock; the Indian was bleeding at the mouth from serious internal injuries caused when he struck flatly against the surface of the stream. Obviously they could not accompany the expedition farther.

He gave medicine to one, made a splint for the other, and sent a messenger back to Bagarundi to send bearers to bring them to his village. Thus having made sure that they would not be left to the mercy of some strange beast, he gave the order to proceed. Several times in the afternoon, Nunnally noticed him wheel round and glance quickly up when there was a slight crackle or rustle in the black mat of vegetation hiding the sky.

Calamity, once it had showed its ugly head, began to strike repeatedly. The next night they were compelled to pitch camp in the midst of a huge swamp, where great stretches of enormous reeds alternated with patches of gigantic water-lilies, beautiful with brilliant but unwholesome coloring. The following morning Schwartz, Weson, and one of the half-breeds were helpless with fever, and after a vain attempt to carry them with the expedition, had to be left behind in the care of natives who would take them back to Bagarundi's. More men were lost a day or two later when two of the Indians, who had gone off on the pretext of searching for some berries when the expedition was halted at noon, failed to return. From their actions a few hours previous, Vilak was certain they had deserted.

The losses necessitated a readjustment of the caravan; some of the mules and the canoes which had proved an onerous and practically useless burden were abandoned. The reorganized train pitched its first camp on a low, wooded ridge. Elise and Vilak silently played Canfield by the light of the flickering fire.

The old man, who in the unpacking had noticed a small harmonica about to be thrown away and under a sudden impulse had thrust it into his pocket, now drew it out and after considerable hesitation put it into his mouth and began to play. He ceased after a few plaintive and discordant attempts, despite the vigorous applause of the two card players, and off in a corner, began listening to the muttered conversation and the blood-curdling stories of the superstitious natives huddled in a fantastic circle a few yards away. A little while later he arose and walked over to Vilak.

"I think . . . er . . . we're going to have trouble," he said furtively. "You had better . . . better keep a sharp watch on those two . . . er . . . fellows." He cautiously indicated the two albino-like half-breeds who were sitting near a pot of their favorite touchino and talking in low tones with their motley companions.

"I heard them . . . er . . . talking a little while ago when they were playing cards. They didn't know I was listening. I couldn't hear what they said. It was something about . . . er . . . killing, I think. And then robbing. They say we have much . . . er . . . money with us . . . Much—money."

Vilak tossed the stone of a fruit he had been munching into the brush. "I've been keeping an eye on them. I've noticed that they might be working for our . . . friends . . . ahead and came with us just for that reason. Though I'm not at all sure.

"The guide, too, has been developing some rather queer habits. Schwartz said these fellows were bad, but I didn't believe they could be as bad as they've proved. I certainly would rather have gone without any men. They've been absolutely useless. Worse than useless. A lot of my energy that I could be devoting to something else I have to expend in watching so that they don't get a good chance to put a knife into our ribs."

The trail, still continuing unbroken and always to the west, for the first part of the next morning led them through a sea of green and dun-colored thistles, each covered with fire ants which stung vigorously when the travelers unwittingly brushed against them.

Once they passed an open spot where a number of cigaret stubs like those they had seen some days before lay on the ground. Vilak stooped and picked up several. The tobacco was rolled in small printed squares of paper which were the checking forms used in the warehouses on Elise's fazenda and which Limey Potts, like all the other foremen, generally carried in his pocket.

At dusk they camped on the shore of another river, wide, clear, attractive. Vilak and the old man decided to take advantage of the few remaining minutes of daylight to bathe. They strode up the bank to a grassy spot a few hundred yards above the camp. They stripped. Vilak peered into the depths of the shining water, then satisfied that no piranhas were about at the moment, stepped in.

"We're taking chances, Nanny," he said to his companion as they waded out toward the middle where the water was deeper and the bottom lined with smoot hwhite pebbles. "There isn't one of these rivers that isn't cursed with piranhas. But I do need a bath. And I think you do, too." He drew a deep breath of contentment. "Um-m-m. This is luxury. Splash around as much as you can. Noise is apt to keep them off. They're afraid of it."

He was assiduously scrubbing himself with a thick bar of soap when he turned sharply to glance at one of the albinos who had followed them up the shore and taking a seat at the water's edge had begun lazily to whittle a twig with a knife.

"Wonder what that chap's up to?" he murmured.

He went on with his washing. Suddenly he commenced speeding toward the land, taking great plunging steps through the water which came half way to his waist. The albino saw him; began to run. Swiftly Vilak caught up with him. The other wheeled; struck viciously with his knife. But Vilak was too quick. In an instant he lay on the ground, whimpering with pain as Vilak's steely fingers dug into his flesh.

The old man had followed at a curt command from his friend. He noticed that the water at the river's edge was tinged with red; saw that the albino's finger was bleeding profusely. "What's he done? . . . er . . . done?" he stammered.

Vilak did not answer, but motioned that he wanted a stout, rope-like liana hanging from a nearby pecova tree. Nunnally cut a section of it free. Vilak bound it securely about his captive's quivering limbs. "I'd be justified if I hung you for this," he grunted.

BRATIANU WINS BY TERRORISM

His Party Holds Two-thirds of Seats—Harsh Methods Used.

OPPONENTS ARRESTED.

BUCHAREST, July 8 (United Press) —Premier Bratianu's position has been strengthened substantially by yesterday's elections. The Liberal party and allied groups, overwhelming victors, won more than two-thirds of the 387 seats in the second Chamber. The Peasant party won 60 seats, Minorities 25.

Terrorism Reported.

LONDON, July 8 (United Press).—The Daily Mail's Vienna correspondent reported to-day that alleged terrorism by the Rumanian Government, including a ban of opposition meetings, had assured overwhelming victory for Premier Bratianu, favorite of the King and Queen.

In Transylvania, the correspondent reported, all Socialist candidates were arrested and taken in chains to prison; Hungarian priests were detained at police stations; Jewish leaders were ordered to withdraw their candidates or be flogged. Members of the Hungarian party, the correspondent continued, were forbidden to leave towns and villages; numerous Opposition voters were called into military service; barricades on highways enabled the police to detain all automobiles. Revolver shots were fired at Konstantin Stere, President of the Peasants' party, but he was not harmed.

FISHERMAN DROWNED.

Four Newfoundland Men Lose Lives on Grand Banks.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., July 8.—(Canadian Press.) — Four Newfoundland fishermen have been drowned on the Grand Banks, according to a report received here from the C. G. S.S. Arras. Nodetails of the drownings were given in the wireless report.

EXECUTIVE OF CONFERENCE IS TO SIT TO-DAY

Will Try To Straighten Some Secondary Questions on War Craft.

BRITISH COMMENTS.

Proposal Only Practical One, Says Westminster Gazette.

GENEVA, July 8). Canadian Press. —While the position of the tripartite naval conference is still critical as regards the cruiser question, because of the failure of the British and the United States delegates to get closer together on the maximum tonnage for this class of war craft, the executive committee was to meet to-day to iron out some of the secondary questions and possibly get along with the discussion of a tentative date for reconvening the plenary session.

Hugh S. Gibson, U. S. Ambassador, who heads the delegation, and W. C. Bridgeman, the first lord of the admiralty, are continuing their private talks with a view to reaching a compromise.

Experts must Meet.

The date of the plenary session is still nebulous, as the technical experts must first study the new Japanese proposal for fixing the total tonnage of cruiser and destroyer classes for three powers, and allowing them to adjust their strength according to their needs within the limit thus set.

Then there is the third class of auxiliary warships which the conference has under consideration—submarines.

Here, too the Japanese have submitted a new proposal for considerably increased total tonnage. This followed a defeat for the Japanese on their demand that they be permitted to build an unlimited number of small undersea craft.

U. S. Obession.

LONDON, July 8. Canadian Press. —The possibility of a breakdown in the naval negotiations at Geneva, was emphasized in the despatches from Geneva, Washington and New York, displayed in to-day's newspapers.

Indicative of the opinion in some quarters is the comment of the Westminster Gazette, which refers to "trying to remove the obession of the United States that Great Britain either is removing parity or forcing the pace in cruiser building."

The paper intimates that the deadlock is due to the United States' refusal to agree to the British cruiser plan, which it describes as "the only practical one before the conference."

MANY ATTRACTIONS WITH BIG MIDWAY

Amusing and Educational Features Combined in Tented Entertainment.

Coming with the Miller Brothers' Exposition all next week at the Exhibition grounds will bt the greatest assemblage of clowns, fun-makers, freaks, exhibtions, shows, riding devices, and novelties ever assembled on one Midway.

One of the many feature attractions is the Freak Animal Show with over seventy-five cages and dens of animals from the remote corners of the earth. The Circus Side Show, with a host of freaks, strange people and curiosities. Here you will find the sword walker, sword swallower, two-headed girl, Human Pin Cushion, Ray the Ossfied Boy, Knife-throwing, Mysticism, Black Art, Levitation, Impalement, Illusion and many other wonders and marvels.

The Pirates' Den is a series of electrical contraptions, conducive to hilarity and mirth. The Georgie Minstrels, one of the principle features, is a galaxy of ebony-hued artists, singers, dancers, and comedians, twenty-five in number, augmented by a hot jazz orchestra in a full hour's entertainment. This show plays the principal theatres of the country at two dollars top price but has been condensed into tabloid form for the tented season.

The Athletic Stadium is also a very popular attraction with a group of champion wrestlers and boxers. In this attraction the show's mat artist challenges and meets all comers. The Monkey Speedway is a collection of trained apes with almost human intelligence in a repertoire of feats, juggling acrobatic and racing with miniature autos on the speedway.

The Magic City is a very educational feature being a working world operated entirely by electricity and using the smallest lighting and power plant in the world. Happy Jack Ebert, the show's fat man, weighs seven hundred and fifty-eight pounds and is known as the Biggest Elk, Heaviest Moose, and Fattest Woodman in the world. The Filipino Midgets are the smallest people alive. These are only a verly few of the many features offered.

COUNTESS VERY ILL.

Rumors of Death of Sinn Fein Leader, However, Are Unfounded.

DUBLIN, July 8.—(Canadian Press.) —The serious condition of the Countess of Markievicz, following two operations for appendicitis, gave rise to reports today that she had died. However, at the hospital here, it was said that while she was still in a serious state she was doing as well as could be expected.

$100 floats around in your washtub every washday

WHEN you sort out the soiled clothes from the hamper, try to decide which articles cost so little that you can afford to endanger them by washing them with anything but Lux.

Shirts, pyjamas, house dresses, the children's clothes, sheets, linens,—just think how quickly they total up to $100 or over.

You know how Lux saves your fine things. How it guards your pretty silks and chiffons, your soft woollens —keeps them always looking like new! Why not use it for the everyday things too?

Because they've learned it is true economy, the thriftiest women are now plunging the regular family washing, every stitch of it, into bubbling, penetrating Lux suds each week. Lux saves many, many dollars by prolonging the usefulness of both simple and costly fabrics.

In many homes Lux alone is used for the whole family wash, week in and week out, at a real saving.

You, too, will find that to use Lux for everything washable is cheaper in the end.

Use nothing but LUX for washday.

For Death of Claude Wilton, Struck Down on Highway.

JURY'S VERDICT.

PORT HOPE, Ont., July 8.—Without new evidence of any kind being heard, the coroner's inquest into the death of Claude Wilton, whose body was found lying on the Provincial Highway just north of Port Hope on the night of June 5th, was closed Wednesday night. Wheat Prices Drop On Reassuring News

CHICAGO, July 8. — Canadian Press. — Influenced by re-assuring advices about black rust in the north west, wheat averaged lower to-day. Unlooked for downturns in quotations at Liverpool were also a bearish factor. Opening at a half cent decline to 3-8c advance, Chicago wheat underwent a moderate general set back. Corn, oats and provisions were relatively strong, corn starting unchanged to 1¼c higher, and subsequently showing a general upward trend.

Opening prices were: Wheat, July, 146; September 144 7-8; corn July, 95 5-8; September, 106. Oats, July 45 3-8; September, 46 7-8.

WINNIPEG, July 8. Canadian Press. — Opening prices of wheat were: July 1-8c higher to 1-8 lower at 161 3-8 to 5-8; October unchanged to ¼c lower, at 147 7-8. Dec., ¼c lower at 144⅜. Oats, October 1-8 higher at 53 7-8. December 1-8 higher at 50.

Standard Mine Market Active and Firm To-day

TORONTO, July 8. Canadian Press. — Trading was active and the price trend stronger on the Standard mining exchange to-day. The gains outnumbered the losses by a considerable margin, with dividend-paying gold stocks leading the upward movement. McIntyre recorded the greatest gain of the day when it advanced 35c to 2610. Dome Mines sold up 25c to 750; Hollinger 15 to 1830; Lake Shore 15 to 1875; and Wright Hargreaves 1c to 553. Nipissing moved forward 15c to 590; Noranda continued its upward swing to 2235—a gain of 5c. Amulet experienced a wave of selling liquidation sending ti down to 244, a decline of 6c.

New York Market Firm In Spite Of Large Loans

NEW YORK, July 8.—(Canadian Press.)—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone to-day in face of the announcement of record-breaking stock exchange member loans. Professionals, who sold stocks early in the session, encountered strong supporting orders, and in some cases, covered their commitments at higher prices by the early afternoon.

General Motors dipped below 200, but strong support appeared in some of the other automotive issues. Jordan Motors, which touched a new low at 13 5-8, only a few days ago, sold above 18 on a revival of merger rumors.

ONTARIO FIRE LOSS LOWER

More Fires in 1926 Than in 1925, But Damage is Less.

STILL LOWER THIS YEAR.

The annual report of the Fire Marshal of Ontario, received by Chief Geoerge Gimblett of the Peterborough Department, of 1926, shows a substantial reduction in the loss by fire to the provincial wealth (including forest and bush fires), although the number of fires which occurred in Ontario during the year is in excess of the previous year.

The comparative figures are:

1926	10,880 fires
1925	10,386 fires
Increase	494 fires

In 1926 there was a loss of $12,482,993 while fewer fires in 1925 show a loss of $13,845,534, making a decrease of $1,362,531. The insurance loss decrease is $441,329 and non-insurance covered fire of $921,202. Nineteen twenty-six shows the lowest fire waste since 1920. In 1922 the normal waste was $15,648,966.00, but the Northern Ontario conflagration caused an additional loss of $6,369,126 In 1925 the loss was $18,344,587, and in each subsequent year there has been a gradual and consistent reduction.

It is not possible to satisfactorily explain the causes which have brought about this happy result, but it is fair to assume that the various prevention agencies at work in the province have contributed largely to it. It is the general belief that there is a very different sentiment now existing in the minds of the people generally to what was felt ten years ago in respect to the conserving of the material resources from the ravages of fire.

In 1926 there were seventy persons killed from fire causes, while 1925 showed only sixty-three. Nineteen twenty-six saw one hundred and nineteen injured while only ninety-four were hurt in 1925.

Many visitors to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto last year noticed the booth erected showing the protective value of lightning rods, and also types of chemicals equipment, etc., for smaller towns and villages. A large quantity of literature was distributed, making the exhibit one of great educational value, which accomplished much good.

A great decrease in fire and fire loss is also prevalent this year. A report for the month of May from the Fire Marshal shows 1,086 fires, with a loss of $1,124,735 in 1926, while the same month this year records only 851 fires and a loss of $410,815.

CAR LAY IN DITCH.

PORT HOPE, Ont., July 8. — Valued at $2000, a truck owned by J. A. Pardell, a Cobourg fruit dealer, was destroyed by fire on the Provincial highway near Dale on Wednesday night. The owner believes the blaze to have been of incendiary origin. The truck was being brought from Peterboro to Cobourg on Wednesday afternoon when it was crowded into the ditch near Dale Corners by a passenger automobile. The driver escaped injury and proceeded to Cobourg. It was decided to leave the truck, which was little damaged in the ditch until Thursday morning.

Standard Oil Chief, Still in Good Health, Changes Daily Routine.

NEW YORK, July 8.— (Canadian Press.)—John D. Rockefeller, reputedly still ruler of the destinies of the Standard Oil Co., and was the central figure in one of Wall street's greatest struggles of the past twelve months, was 88 years old to-day. In extraordinarily good health, the man long known as "the richest man in the world" decided to make his birthday on his estate at Pocantico Hills, N.Y., follow his usual daily programme with a slight deviation, work and golf in the morning, a drive in an automobile in the afternoon, and dinner with the family and a few friends was the announced course for the day.

SAPIRO READY TO DROP SUIT AGAINST FORD

Expresses Conviction Ford's Announcements Do Much to Lessen Harm Done.

REPORT CONFIRMED.

Editor of Independent Not Notified of Change in Policy.

NEW YORK, July 9.— (Canadian Press.)— The $1,000,000 libel action against Henry Ford seemed last night in a fair way to be speedily settled out of court in return for the automobile man's ordering permanent discontinuance of "all articles hostile to the Jewish people" in his Dearborn Independent, but neither the editor nor the business manager had been notified of any change in policy.

Aaron Sapiro in Saskatoon, acknowledged that negotiations were under way to drop his $1,000,000 libel suit and expressed conviction that Ford's announcement "of the abandonment of the attacks of the Dearborn Independent against the Jews will do much to lessen the harm that has been done." The Sapiro suit was declared a mistrial in its first trial and was soon to come to trial again.

Louis Marshall, noted lawyer, confirmed at Saranac Lake the report that he had the original of a signed statement from Ford announcing withdrawal of anti-Jewish material from his paper.

Ford himself, whose decision to alter the policy of the Independent was announced through Arthur Brisbane, could not be reached for comment or elaboration, subordinates at his Detroit office saying that he was out of town.

Not Notified.

W. J. Cameron, editor of the Independent, who assumed full responsibility at the libel action of the policy of the publication said that he had received no instructions to discontinue articles hostile to the Jewish people. It was an article for which Cameron stood sponsor, naming Sapiro in connection with "an international band of Jews seeking to dominate American agriculture" that caused the libel suit.

Paul L. Black, business manager of the Independent also said that nothing was known at the offices of the publication of any change in policy.

William Henry Gallagher, chief counsel for Sapiro, in the libel action, said that negotiations toward a settlement had been going forward for some time. He said he had a copy of the Ford statement in his office for some days and "confidently expected" that the suit would be settled out of court.

No Animosity Felt.

He expressed the opinion that the articles objected to had been printed without Ford's knowledge and said that "no animosity" was felt against the manufacturer.

"I accepted Mr. Sapiro's retainer," he said, "with the confident expectation that the prosecution of this claim, though it might engender animosities as it progressed, would nevertheless eventuate in the elimination of so-called Jewish question from the lives of the American people. I cherished the hope that Mr. Ford would eliminate the question of his own act. I am gratified indeed that this hope has been realized."

Louis Marshall, who holds the original of the Ford statement in the safe at his New York office, is counsel for Herman Bernstein, who has a libel action similar to the Sapiro suit pending against Ford. It was generally believed that Marshall's expression of pleasure at receiving the document indicates that the Berinstein action as well as Sapiro's would be dropped as a result of a changed editorial policy for the Independent.

LARGE MAJORITY FOR GOVERNMENT

Rumanian Liberal Party Has 295 Seats To Opponents' 83.

BUCHAREST, (Rumania, July 9 (Canadian Press).—The Government (Liberal) party won an overwhelming victory in Thursday's Parliamentary elections, getting about 295 seats, while the National Peasants' party returned seventy candidates and other parties an aggregate of thirteen. A few returns are still outstanding today but cannot change the result.

FLIERS LEAVE PARIS.

Big Crowd Cheers Byrd and Companions as They Start For Home.

PARIS, July 9 (Canadian Press).—Commander Byrd and members of the crew of the trans-Atlantic monoplane America bade farewell to Paris today, leaving [illegible] just after noon. There were no formalities, but a big crowd was on hand at the station to cheer the aviators.

Kilauea Stages Awe-Inspiring Eruption; Hawaiians Offer Berries to Calm Volcano

HILO, Hawaii, July 9 (A.P.).—The huge Kilauea volcano, slumbering for ages, awoke yesterday and poured streams of lava from its crater, Halemaumau, 4,000 feet above the earth, which trembled as the giant roused to activity.

Native Hawaiians cast berries and other offerings into the fire pit to appease Pele, goddess of the volcano.

Warning of the impending eruption was registered by the seismograph of the observatory at the crater rim, which recorded four slight tremors of the earth in the two hours preceding midnight.

An earthquake at Hilo, thirty miles from the volcano, awoke a few residents at 3.21 a.m. and they gazed upon a beautiful but awe-inspiring sight.

Four huge fountains of fire 125 feet high were spouting upon the lofty slopes, and from the fire pit ran three rivers of lava, forming a blazing lake of rock 1,000 feet across.

Crowds that rushed toward the pit to watch the display were driven back by bursts of sulphur fumes, dust and sand.

A tremor, accompanied by a rumbling sound, at 12.30 a.m., a sure indication of activity in the pit, forewarned watchers at the observatory that lava was in motion underground. Eruptions began within thirty minutes.

Wife Admits Giving Baby Ammonia Dose

DETROIT, July 9.—Mrs. Alfred Cocking, twenty, yesterday admitted she poured ammonia down the throat of her ten-months-old son to still his cries, according to police. The child died shortly afterward. The baby's illness had kept her awake for several nights, she said.

A post mortem revealed that a thymus gland near the heart was the direct cause of the child's death.

UNION'S ACTION BLOW TO LABOR

Socialist Element of Movement Loses Support of Civil Servants.

OTHERS TO FOLLOW.

LONDON, July 9 (United Press).—The greatest significance is attached to the announcement that the Union of Post Office Workers, the largest organization of workers in the employ of the Government, has accepted the restrictions imposed upon trade unions under the now famous Trade Unions Bill.

This is a decided blow to the Socialist party, marking, as it does, the secession of the Post Office Union from alliance with the Socialist element in British Labor and also the beginning of a big break away from the same party, as it is anticipated that the six other Civil Service unions will follow the example of the Post Office Employees.

FLOOD IN GERMANY CAUSES 75 DEATHS

The flood-stricken towns today included Berggiesshuebel and Dohnaglashuette.

FOUR AVIATORS LEAVING PARIS

One of America's Crew in Amsterdam To Meet Plane Makers.

LEVINE IN LONDON.

PARIS, July 9 (United Press).—Four American fliers, after a week of receptions and banquets, planned to leave Paris today. One of them, Charles A. Levine, will return next week.

Commander Richard E. Byrd, Lieutentant George Noville, and Bert Acosta prepared to start on a tour though the industrial regions of Northern France. Bernt Balchen, fourth member of the crew of the America, was at Amsterdam conferring with manufacturers of planes for the South Pole expedition.

Levine, with his wife, arranged to fly to London in an Imperial Airways plane for a week-end visit. He flew to London yesterday with Clarence Chamberlin and Morris Drouhin, the Frenchman who will pilot the Columbia back to New York. Chamberlin, who made the flight across the Channel in the Columbia to instruct Drouhin in the operation and navigation of the Bellanca plane, remained in London. His wife joined him, arriving in an Imperial Airways plane.

The Chamberlins and Byrd and his companions are booked to sail for New York on the Leviathan next Tuesday. Drouhin wanted to return to Paris at once because his wife was expected to become a mother. Levine flew back with him and said he was entirely satisfactory as an aviator.

BOYCOTT SPREADS AGAINST JAPANESE

Cantonese Government Has Many Troubles at Present Time.

CANTON, July 9 (Canadian Press)—The increasing anti-Japanese boycott in protest against the landing of Japanese forces in Shantung, radical activities, and the shipping strike are causing grave unrest and anxiety in Canton.

Japanese goods reaching here have been seized and deposited in police stations. A cargo from Hong Kong, consisting of the personal baggage of Europeans was seized by strikers while being taken from a British steamer to be transferred to the Shameen, the foreign settlement. Strong Consular protests have failed to secure release of the baggage, and English and Americans who registered protests were arrested and fined.

More Japanese Land

TOKYO, July 9 (Canadian Press).—Nine hundred Japanese blue jackets were landed at Tsingtao, Shantung Province, yesterday, to perform guard duty until the arrival of military, reinforcements from Dairen on Monday, the Navy Department announced today.

MANY ARE KILLED AND INJURED; VANCOUVER APARTMENT BLOCK IS SWEPT BY DISASTROUS FIRE

Seven Lives Lost When Seven-Storey Building Bursts Into Flames.

TENANTS ENTRAPPED.

Lighted Match Dropped Among Inflammable material is Believed Cause.

VANCOUVER, July 9 (Canadian Press).—Seven persons are dead, victims of Vancouver's worst fire tragedy in years, which occurred when the upper storeys of the Royal Alexandra Apartments in the west end of the city, were gutted by flames, which claimed their toll within an hour yesterday.

The dead are: H. J. Griffin, 40, Winnipeg; E. Fitzgerald, 9, Edmonton; Mrs. J. Barber, Vernon, B. C.; Mrs. Emily Bickaby, Vancouver; Grant Lockhart, 16, Toronto; an unidentified child, believed to be Lockhart's sister, Jean; an unidentified woman believed to be the wife of Griffin.

Five were injured, including P. Fitzgerald and his daughter.

With the fire finally extinguished, the firemen are now removing cornices and hanging timbers that might be dangerous to pedestrians or others.

When the fire-fighters were able to turn to the work of fighting the blaze, it was found that the fire had originated on the fourth floor in a suite where David Henderson, a painter, had been working. Henderson declared that fire started when fumes from the paint exploded after some one had dropped a match or cigarette butt into some papers. Henderson turned in the alarm, and is being held on a manslaughter charge.

Carrying death through the hallways and apartments of the building, flames which broke out shortly before two o'clock trapped men, women and children on the fifth and sixth floors of the structure, while firemen and police fought desperately to save them, carrying them down ladders, while some were lowered to the ground.

So rapidly did the flames mushroom through the halls of the north wing on the upper floors that within three minutes of the alarm being given the hallways were filled with smoke, fire and fumes. Men, women and children, their escape cut off, fled screaming through the apartments or to the blazing roof.

Started in Vacant Suite.

The fire started in a vacant suite on the fourth floor, according to a statement made by Fire Marshal J. A. Thomas by David Henderson, painter, who said he was working in a vacant suite on the fourth floor, when he noticed the flames coming out of another vacant suite. He immediately rang in an alarm.

Mrs. Grace Luckhart, with her family of three children, who arrived in Vancouver only a few days ago from Toronto, was trapped on the sixth floor. Ted, her 14-year-old boy, managed to escape, while a smaller boy was badly burned. Mrs. Luckhart is a frequent contributor to newspapers.

Archie McDiarmid, fireman, was badly burned. He made one of the first rescues when he brought out a little girl named Vanderberg. Another fireman named Holden was badly burned while searching through the flaming building for occupants.

Among the injured are Mrs. Ogden, who is painfully burned about the head and breast, and a Miss Fitzgerald, who arrived only a few days ago from Edmonton with her mother. The latter clung desperately to a rope swinging from a window for ten minutes before being rescued. Her back is burned.

Many out-of-town visitors are occupants of suites in the Royal Alexandra building, which was constructed in 1911 at a cost of $250,000. It was one of the biggest structures of its kind in the city.

BODY IS FOUND IN TRENT RIVER

Relatives of Man Drowned Gave Wrong Name To Spare Mother.

WAS RALPH CAPWELL.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 9. — The body of Ralph Capwell, 40 years of age, a railroad man, of Binghampton, N.Y., who lost his life on Thursday in an endeavour to rescue his sister-in-law, who had fallen into the Trent River at Healey Falls, was taken out of the water at 2.30 yesterday afternoon. The remains were shipped to his home this morning.

Yesterday's issue gave the deceased's name as Ralph Murray, and his address as Niles, Ohio. This information was given to The Examiner by relatives of the unfortunate man, who took this method of keeping the news from the mother until the body was recovered.

The body was recovered by Provincial Constable N. F. Maker and R. C. Smith, of Peterborough, after half an hour's dragging with irons they brought with them.

VETERAN ACTOR PASSES AWAY

John Drew Dies To-day in San Francisco—Suffering From Arthritis.

ILL SEVERAL WEEKS.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9 (United Press).—John Drew, who made history on the American stage for half a century, died to-day after weeks of suffering from arthritis.

Drew was stricken six weeks ago in Portland, Ore., while touring with a revival of Trelawney of the Wells, a hit in the days when Drew was at the heighth of his fame.

The illness grew more serious and the actor was removed to a hospital here. This condition was reported "improved" or "unchanged" daily until a few days ago, when physicians announced he had grown weaker.

Drew is 73 years old.

The body was taken to his home in Chicago by special train from Little Current. Rush's body was also recovered and it has been taken to his home in Little Current. No trace of Fleshman's body has yet been found.

Two Fliers Hurt in Nose Dive of Plane Crowd Watching Manoeuvres See Plunge

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., July 9.—Samuel S. Bent of 85 North Broadway and Arthur Kellogg of Denver were in the White Plains Hospital yesterday following the crash of the Eagle Rock plane, piloted by Kellogg, at the landing field on Wilmont Road, Scarsdale.

Bent has a broken right arm and internal injuries and Kellogg is suffering from shock and a fractured thumb. The plane dropped to the soft earth of the field in a nose dive when the engine failed to function as Kellogg circled the field in view of several hundred persons. The aviators were taken from the ruins of the plane and rushed to the hospital by members of the crowd that witnessed their arrival.

The plane belonged to F. W. Dalrymple of New Rochelle, who intends to start an aviation school at the field where the accident occurred. Bent was a passenger from Iowa City, Iowa, after the plane in which he was flying to Scarsdale was forced down. The plane that was wrecked was being brought here for Mr. Dalrymple.

When the craft was sighted it was greeted by the tooting of automobile horns and shouts of the crowd. Suddenly the roar of the engine stopped and a moment later the plane plunged to the earth.

PRODUCE SELLS QUICKLY TO-DAY

Green Peas Prominent— Eggs Plentiful This Morning.

MUCH FRUIT OFFERED.

Produce on the farmers' market had a quick sale this morning, as far as the majority of offerings was concerned. Buyers of fresh new green peas were particularly prominent. "We'll have chicken and green peas for to-morrow's dinner," announced one lady triumphantly, as she waited for a three-quart bag, price twenty-five cents, to be filled with the bright green pods.

Butter went quickly this morning, selling from 35 to 38 cents a pound. Eggs were plentiful at 32 to 35 cents a dozen. Broilers had a slow sale, and were offered at from 30 to 35 cents a pound. Domestic strawberries were 18 and 20 cents a quart box. Cherries were $1.10 a basket, and honeydew melons 75 cents a-piece. Gooseberries were 15 cents a quart.

In the basket section, a group of ladies from George Street Church sold dainty things made by girls in mission schools in India, China, and Japan, including some lovely linens and pretty things in brass.

On the open market one vendor of flowers, with 200 bouquets on hand, was cleaned out in a couple of hours.

Little hount pups were selling at $2.00 apiece, and small Yorkshire pigs were $12.00 a pair. White Leghorns were 70 cents apiece.

New potatoes were a novelty on the market this morning, with one vendor having the visible supply, at 75 cents a peck. Asparagus was selling at 2 bunches for a quarter.

The table where old Mr. George Benton, the octogenarian kho passed away suddenly yesterday morning, was wont to display the products of his beloved garden in which he died, was empty this morning, and neighbours of the brisk old gentleman recalled memories of his kindly qualities and unfailing energy about his work.

Police Seek Woman Waiting In Station

WINDSOR, Ont., July 9. — While John Foerster, of Santa Barbara, Cal., was searching with the police for his wife, Julia, on Thursday afternoon at Windsor, Mrs. Foerster, suffering from loss of speech, was being held at her request in the woman's cell block at Police Headquarters.

Mrs. Foerster became parted from her husband in the downtown section of the city early in the afternoon, and soon afterward was overcome with a recurrence of loss of speech, which she first experienced in a California earthquake last year.

Realizing she had little chance of finding her husband, she went to Police Headquarters and awaited her husband there. Meanwhile Foerster began his search for her, and eventually asked the police to assist him. The officer to whom he made the report of her disappearance did not know Mrs. Foerster was in a room adjoining the cell block, and her description was broadcast to officers on the beats.

After several hours Mrs. Foerster regained her speech sufficiently to make her identity known, and when her husband appeared yesterday morning at headquarters they were re-united.

The couple left the city for Winnipeg and Vancouver immediately.

Canada Has One Auto For Each 11 Persons

WASHINGTON, July 9 (Canadian Press).—Canada has one automobile in operation for each 11 persons of her population. This was disclosed in figures issued by the automobile division of the department of commerce yesterday. The United States has one car for each five of its citizens.

Statistics for the world as a whole showed 27,650,367 machines in operation at the beginning of the year or one for each 66 of population. New Zea-land has 1 to 12; Australia and Denmark 1 to 17; Great Britain 1 to 43; Argentine 1 to 45, and France 1 to 46.

GOOD HARVEST THROUGH WEST

Free Press Report Shows Great Progress in Three Provinces.

CROPS RATHER LATE.

WINNIPEG, July 9 (Canadian Press).—"The state of crops in all the provinces is such that, given at all suitable weather from now on until the middle of September, a large harvest is pretty well assured, but it will take all of that time to fully insure maturity as a whole," says The Manitoba Free Press in a crop report published today.

"Since June 18, when the last crop report was presented, the crop of the Canadian West has had substantial progress and while it has not yet made up the time lost in late seeding, more progress in growth has been made than expected. Of the three provinces, Alberta has enjoyed the best conditions, and Manitoba the poorest during the past twenty days," the report says.

SEVEN KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Woman and Six Children Lose Lives When Home Burns.

FATHER MAY DIE.

READING, Pa., July 9 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Catharine Fair, 35 and her six children, ranging in age from one to fifteen, were burned to death early today when flames following a terrific explosion destroyed their farm home at Bernville, near here. County police blamed a still. The father, Mark Fair, and Angelo Consoli, the farm owner, were seriously burned and the father may die. The explosion occurred about 1 a.m., while the mother and children were asleep. The father said he and Consoli arose at that time to begin work and prepared breakfast on an oil stove. A few minutes after leaving the house, Fair said, he heard an explosion and saw his home a mass of flames.

"We both ran back and tried to get upstairs to my wife and children, but the heat and smoke drove us back. Our clothing caught fire and we were painfully burned," he said.

Prisoner Escapes At Jailer's Request

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 9. — The question of whether or not an agile prisoner could escape from the women's yard of the county jail by using a door that swings outward against the wall was answered on Thursday by a prisoner named Howay, who, on the invitation of Governor Luton, scaled the wall in a moment's time. He gave a second demonstration for county officials yesterday. In consequence, the Jail Committee of the County Council, in special session, made provision for the changing of the door.

BOY DROWNED WHILE FISHING NEAR BANCROFT

Russell Gray, 11, Falls From Moore's Bridge When Hook Catches on Snag.

BODY RECOVERED.

Companion's Attempt at Rescue Fails—Coroner Urges Education in First Aid.

BANCROFT, July 9 (Special to The Examiner). — While attempting to free his fish hook from a snag, Russell Gray, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gray, was drowned last night at Moore's Bridge, six miles from here. The body was recovered shortly afterwards.

The boy was fishing with a chum, Johnny Sutherland. He was standing on the bride, but when his hook caught a snag he jumped down on to a boom log, which gave way, letting him fall about ten feet into the swiftly flowing stream.

His companion thrust out a plank within reach, but the boy was apparently slightly dazed and did not see it. Their big dog, Caesar, swam out around the spot and would possibly have caught his clothing if he had come up a third time.

The shouts of the two boys attracted Elvi Ferguson and Walter Mullett, who were crossing a bridge in a car. Zach Ray also stopped and assisted in the recovery of the body.

Coroner Dr. S. S. Lumb was called. On hearing the facts and viewing the scene, he decided that an inquest was unnecessary. That the boy might have been brought back to consciousness by the application of proper methods immediately after the recovery of the body was indicated by his statement:

"The practical instruction in first aid and artificial resuscitation should be given more attention in the public schools and swimming should be encouraged more among the young.

The funeral was held this afternoon, the Rev. N. R. Stout of St. John's Anglican Church conducting the service.

BOYS EFFECT MAN'S ARREST FOR ASSAULT

Trail Man Wanted For Attacks on Toronto Women.

GIRLS IDENTIFY HIM.

Supposed Gas Inspector Held on Charges of Assault.

TORONTO, July 9.—Trailed around Bellwoods Park yesterday afternoon by two 11-year-old boys, who pointed him out to a police constable, Samuel Sherbourne, married, aged 59, of 42 Halton Street, was arrested, and is being held in custody as the man who attacked women in the west end of the city. Sherbourne was first held as a vagrant, but, on being identified by two young girls, police changed the charge to that of "assaulting and beating a female."

Sherbourne is alleged to be the man who posed as an inspector for the Consumers' Gas Company to gain entrance to houses on Shaw Street and Bellwoods Avenue. On reaching the cellar of the houses he is said to have turned on the women and young girls.

Children Enlisted.

Detectives Stewart and Hutchinson have been hot on the trail of this man for three days. In their work they urged children living on these streets to be on the lookout for the man, and if they happened to see him to follow until they saw a policeman.

Two young boys, who had been told how the man was dressed, were playing in Bellwoods Park yesterday afternoon, when they recognized Sherbourne. Remembering what the detectives had told them, they walked behind the man until they saw Constable Bradley (435). Running over to the constable, the boys told their story, and Bradley approached Sherbourne, and took him to Claremont Street Station.

When arrested, Sherbourne was wearing a shabby blue suit with grey fedora hat. His hair is grey, and he answers descriptions given by those attacked by the man.

Ethel Blake, aged 12, of 181 Shaw Street, who was struck on the head by a man representing himself as a meter inspector, was brought before Sherbourne at No. 3 Station last night, and she identified him. Annie Greenwoody, aged 11, of 944 King Street West, a friend of Ethel's, was also positive that Sherbourne was the man she had seen attacking the girl.

Hit With Hammer.

Ethel Blake said she had answered a call to the front door of her home on Thursday afternoon. A man, said by her to have been Sherbourne, asked to be shown the gas meter. The gas was lighted in the basement, and on going over to the meter, the girl says, Sherbourne asked her for a hammer. She lifted a hammer from a shelf and handed it to him, when, she charges, he turned and struck her on the head, causing a wound that necessitated three stitches.

Annie Greenwoody said she had entered the Shaw Street house in search of her girl friend. She saw her fall to the floor, and the man ran up the stairs, passing her to get to the street. Another woman who lives on Strachan Avenue, and who claimed to have been attacked by the man, could not positively identify Sherbourne last night.

Bail was set at $3,000. Late last night the accused was still being held in Claremont Street Station.

MANY TO ATTEND CHURCH EXCURSION

Quinte Conference Conducting Boat Trip to Rochester Next Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 9. — Many from here will take in the excursion to Rochester on July 13th. The Rev. Charles D. Daniel, who is in charge of publicity in connection with the trip, which is under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Conference has the town and countryside in this district well covered with advertising matter in connection therewith.

One is not only promised a delightful sail on a palatial steamer, but an added attraction of being entertained while in Rochester by the young people of the Flower City, is in store for those who go.

Among the high officials of the church who will be on the boat are: Dr. F. C. Stephenson, leader in missionary activities for young people; the well known Archie Wallace, Geo. Williams, a returned missionary; Dr. M. Doyle or a representative from his department; Prof. Roy Rickard of Belleville College, and G. H. Holton, president of the group.

On the boat informal conferences will be held on the way over.

HERDED LIKE CATTLE ON FRENCH STEAMER

Coolies Shanghaied With Doped Cigarettes at Kwangchow, They Claim.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., July 9. — With 400 Chinese coolies herded like animals behind iron bars, under armed guards, the steamer Haihum arrived yesterday at Townsville, en route from the French concessions in China to the New Hebrides.

The wretched coolies are mostly under five feet in height and 18 years of age and the startling allegation is made in messages smuggled ashore from the steamer that they were shanghaied at the French concessions at Kwongchow.

It is further alleged that they were given drugged cigarettes by labor recruiters prior to be herded on board the Haihum and that during the voyage from China a sick man was thrown overboard.

In order to cook their meals, according to the meagre information available the prisoners, if prisoners they are, had to utilize escaping steam from the ship's engines.

The Haihum's officers declare that the signing of the coolies' indenture was legally performed.

At 11 o'clock the bride entered the living-room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Velma Beaman, sister of the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. H. Moyer of Norwood, under an arch of evergreens ond orange blossoms, banked with ferns, in the presence of the immediate relatives.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of white georgette trimmed with vale green. She wore the customary veil caught with orange blossoms, and carried a large bouquet of Ophelia roses and babies breath. Little Jessie Wilson, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a dress of sky blue georgette and carried a basket of sweet peas and babies breath.

After the signing of the register adjournment was made to the dining room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and partook of a sumptuous wedding luncheon, which was followed by several toasts.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes, motoring to Norwood and leaving on the three o'clock train for Toronto, thence to Quebec by boat.

The bride travelled in a gown of radio blue crepe with hat to match and coat of cream flannel. On their return they will reside at North Gower.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party, accompanied by a number of friends, motored to Lindsay and took the early train for Toronto and points west.

SCREEN ROMANCES ENDING IN COURT

Constance Talmadge and Anita Stewart Soon Will Seek Divorce.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 9 (United Press).—Two more shattered romances of the film colony will be recorded soon in the divorce courts, it was learned today.

Constance Talmadge and Anita Stewart will seek severance of their marital relations. The time and place are yet undecided, they said.

Miss Talmadge has been separated from her husband, Captain Alastair Mackintosh, formerly of the British army, for many months, and the announcement that she would sue for divorce was not unexpected.

Miss Stewart will seek a divorce from Rudy Cameron Brennen, of Washington, D.C., on the grounds of incompatability. They have been married eight years.

CHINESE AVIATOR IN CONTEST

Captain Theodore Ching, Chinese army aviator, a contestant for the big prizes offered for the trans-Pacific flight to Honolulu.

GIRLS—KEEP THE BOYS IN CANADA.

SAY, GIRLS! DOES THIS MEAN ANYTHING TO YOU?

We sometimes wonder if girls—young girls, older girls, working girls, married girls, girls of any age—give much thought to one important question of today for Canadians.

The subject is covered in a few words:

"More work for our men in Canada. Without trying to follow this subject in all its different directions, we should like to suggest some sidelights from the girls' point of view because the girls of Canada can do more than anybody else to bring "more work for our men in Canada" to pass.

It has been reliably estimated that in the last few years 80,000 of our young men have emigrated to the States to obtain work. Many of them will settle there, marry some American girl, and become good U. S. citizens. We have at home far too large a proportion of our men working part time, or working at anything that turns up because they cannot get the skilled work for which they were trained.

There is also too large a proportion of our older men, men with families, working part time and underpaid. We have thousands of trained business men whose salaries would be double what they are if business were heavier and in greater volume. We also have the condition where many of our special tradesmen get only four to six months work a year.

Now, girls—What does this mean to you? It means that there are fewer men to go round. It means that many men who would be glad to marry dare not for financial reasons. It means that many a mother with grown-up sons is deprived of the financial assistance that they would bring into the home.

It means that the girls just out of school are deprived of a lot of fun that they might have had.

If we had still with us the men who have left Canada, and the men who are still here were earning bigger money—would it not make a lot of difference to every girl—in some way or another?

Girls—You can do more to bring this about than anybody. All you have to do is to remember to buy "Made-in-Canada" goods and the more completely "Made-in-Canada" your purchases become, the near you are approaching to this ideal condition.

Women spend two-thirds of our income, and it is to the women we must look if this money is going to be spent on Made-in-Canada goods.

So, Girls! Women! Remember—when you set your heart on a high-priced imported automobile, you are doing the equivalent of putting a Canadian out of a job for a year. We only use the automobile as an instance; the same applies to a gramophone, washing mahine, radio, in fact anything down to a jar of pickles, a pair of gloves or a dozen clothes pins.

Examine the labels; look for the "Made-in-Canada." Remember that Canadian goods usually do not cost quite so much. They are frequently more dependable. If it is something which lasts for a period of time, repairs are more easily obtained. You get better service from our own manufacturers and in most cases Canadian goods are better adapted to our particular needs.

Girls! Women! Buy "Made in Canada goods and build up our own country. Keep oud men at home. Increase the wages and salaries of our men and attract others to our country. You can do more to this end than anyone else.

Mr. G. H. Daymond is responsible for this splendid write-up, which should cause us to think when we spend our money. Mr. Daymond, who is District Representative for Beatty Bros., Ltd., Fergus, is spending some time with F. R. J. McPherson Co., Ltd., displaying Made-in-Canada goods that every housewife should have. So make him a visit.

MANY ARE KILLED

Heroic Rescue Work.

One of the first to be rescued was Jean Vendenburg, fourteen. She was cut off by flames and smoke and badly scorched, but calmly seated herself on a window sill until firemen climbed ladders to reach her. Motorcycle Officer Macdonald joined in the work of rescue and carried two women, overcome by smoke, down a fire escape. Later Macdonald found a small bull dog lying apparently dead on the floor. He tucked it under his arm and when he emerged from the building the dog revived.

Fire Captain McDermid, entering a suite, found Mr. and Mrs. P. Conway trapped by smoke and flame, badly burned and almost unconscious. Sustaining terrible burne about the face and arms, the fire fighter succeeded in getting the couple to a ladder, where comrades took them to safety.

Just as this rescue was completed, the fireman saw the figure of a girl flit through the flame and smoke toward an apartment at the rear of the building, and though suffering intensively from his burns, he went after her, but lost her in the inferno that existed on that floor. He kept on with the rescue work until almost collapsing, when other firemen forced him to leave the building.

Woman Saves Four.

Miss B. Erickson saved four persons, who were almost overcome by smoke, and who had become dased and lost. Miss Erickson had been visiting friends and was just leaving when she heard cries from the fourth floor. She was met by a rush of smoke as she mounted the stairway, but kept on until she found the prostrate body of a woman. She dragged the body to the third floor and returned three times, each time taking some one to safety. She then collapsed and was assisted by fire fighters to the ground.

RAIN DELAYS HAYING

Good Crops in Warsaw District —Warsaw News.

WARSAW, July 9.—Wednesday and Thursday's rains put a stop to haying operations, to a certain extent.

There is some good hay in the district. One farmer reported sweet clover six feet tall and very close on the ground.

Fall wheat still looks well and is well shot out.

Lindbergh's fleet passed within four or five miles of Warsaw, and was distinctly heard and seen by several.

There were no Jubilee medals being sent to Dummer. Thanks to the reeve, Mr. James Hawthorne, one hundred were obtained, and the children who attended the service on Sunday afternoon were given them. Many of the Dummer teachers are changing this year and the children were not taken to Peterborough.

The open-air meeting on Sunday afternoon in Mr. Brown's woods was well attended. Mr. E. Hawthorne gave an address on the early times. He remembered when in the old Bible Christian church the men sat on one side and the women on the other. A newly married couple might sit together for two Sundays. After that they had to do as the others did.

Pastor Ekaner gave the religious address and Rev. H. B. Herrington took charge of the religious service and Mr. James Hawthorne, reeve of Dummer, was chairman. He had taken a good deal of pains to have the gathering a success.

TEA AND PRESENTATION.

Mrs. Wesley Sherin Receives Gift From Members of Bridge Club.

LAKEFIELD, July 9.—The members of the Octagon Bridge Club were hostesses at an afternoon tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sherin on Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs Wesley Sherin, who is leaving the village this week. There were about twenty-five ladies present, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent. Mrs. H. J. Stuart and Mrs. F. J. Burgess poured the tea, and Mrs. G. G. Connell, Mrs. W. D. Leonard, Mrs. Wagar, Mrs. J. H. Sherin, and Miss Graham served.

Before the ladies dispersed, Mrs. Leonard informally presented Mrs. Sherin with an overnight bag as a remembrance from the ladies present, and hoped it would serve as a pleasant reminder of old Lakefield days.

BIG CELEBRATION IS BEING PLANNED

Orange Lodges of North Hastings Will Meet at Springbrook.

MARMORA, July 9. — Preparation are almost complete for the big County Celebration which is being held at Springbrook on July 12th. The new Orange Hall, erected in this village a year ago, is one of the largest and most imposing in Hastings County, and the proceeds of next Tuesday's event go towards the extinction of the debt. A large number of lodges have signified their intention of participating and the imposing list of advertised speakers includes such names as Hon. J. R Cooke, M.P.P.; Rural Dean B. F. Byers, Rev. A. L. Geen, and Rev. J. P. Gardiner. Also in the afternoon, baseball teams of Bethel and Minto will clash, the winner to play Springbrook.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, July 9.—Rev. William Spencer was in Port Dover for the week-end, being invited to be the speaker at a combination I.O.O.F. and Union service. There was a very large attendance, and Mr. Spencer's address was impressive and inspiring and was heartily appreciated.

Safety First.

In the safety campaign that was put on in connection with all the cement plants in Canada during the month of June, the Lakefield plant won a flag for having no lost time accidents during the month. The Lakefield plant (No. 7) leads all the plants of the Canada Cement Co. with 225 days (on July 1st) with no lost time accidents. This record is one of which all the employees of the company are proud and also the people of the village. It is in a large measure due to the excellent work of the safety committees under J. R. Hill, safety engineer.

The members of L.O.L. No. 122, Beresford Lodge, will parade to the Lakefield Baptist Church on Sunday evening, accompanied by the citizens' band. This year the Juvenile Lodge will parade also for the first time as the lodge recently organized by Mr. J. Blakeley has been organized within the last few weeks.

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday a procession of cars passed through the village en route to the northland, with its lakes and rivers and countless attractions to the holiday maker. Many cars bore the license plates of various American States, but the majority were Ontario cars. Most of the cars were loaded with baggage and camping equipment.

Goldfish and certain varieties of stickleback, if introduced into a pond or stream, will wage successful war against mosquitoes.

Mayor Steele of Woodstock, England, and his daughter Beatrice, have come to Canada to visit Woodstock, Ont., for the purpose of his worship conveying the greetings of his Old Country Council to the mayor and councillors in the Ontario town.

who believe that success comes to the working girl who submerges her sex and personality in her efficiency are due for a shock. The modern philosophy of business has changed. A few employers know it. Many girls know it. Cynthia Grey knows it, too. Read the first of her five letters of advice to modern girls, starting on the Women's Page today. They are written for the girl of 1927 and not for the girl of 1926.

ONTARIO

Every Motor Car Driver must now secure a LICENSE TO DRIVE

EVERY person, not being a licensed chauffeur, driving a motor vehicle in Ontario must secure an Operator's License to drive. This law came into effect on July 1st. Application forms for Licenses may be obtained from every garage and issuer of motor car licenses in the Province.

Operator's Licenses will be granted without examination, upon filling up the application form, to all those who have been driving a car continuously for at least six months and who have driven at least 500 miles, and who have no physical or mental disability which may interfere with the operation of a motor car. A nominal fee of $1 is charged.

Inexperienced drivers and those suffering from disability as above will be given opportunity to pass an examination by Inspectors of the Department. These Inspectors are located at convenient points throughout the Province. Your garage knows the name of the nearest examiner to you. The examination fee is $1.

All drivers must carry their Operator's Licenses at all times when driving. If a car is driven by two or more persons, each must have a license. Traffic patrol officers may call for the production of Operator's Licenses, both on city streets and country highways. You will be open to a penalty under The Highways Traffic Act if you are not able to produce yours.

Operator's Licenses issued now will be good until January, 1929. In Provinces and States which require an Operator's License, the possession of an Ontario Operator's License will be necessary by every one driving a motor car registered in this Province. Do not attempt to leave the Province in charge of a car without your Operator's License.

FOR YOUR PROTECTION ON THE HIGHWAY

The Department of Highways is determined to keep the highways safe for you and all other users. With the higher speed limit and the abnormal increase in motor traffic, incompetent drivers must be weeded out and identification of all drivers must be made possible.

The Department has enjoyed the heartiest co-operation from the vast majority of motor car drivers in the past. It anticipates that this new measure for safety will meet with the same sensible and public spirited support.

Don't delay in securing your application form. Fill it out at once so that your Operator's License may be issued without delay.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WHAT is the preacher's task if it is not to call men to repentance and faith in Christ; and, on the basis of that call, create a Christian consciousness and build up Christian character? Every minister should stand before his people, knowing that in the moments of public worship he brings them "the deep and dear facts of life and love, the great lines of destiny." Like every individual who seeks to serve the public, he must expect to be the object of criticism. And if he has eyes to see and ears to hear, there will be much in the nature of sharp criticisms to disturb his ease. A certain professor has said, "If the church is to live, not merely as an establishment, but in any form at all, preaching must be either abolished or reformed." Perhaps people do want preaching, but their state of mind reminds us of a recruit in Coxey's army who said, "We don't know what we want, but we want something awful bad, and we want it quick."

THE PREACHER'S BUSINESS.

A preacher friend of mine says that in his perplexity and dismay he sometimes feels, as he thinks of his sermons, as an amateur artist felt when he asked a friend how much he ought to get for his picture, and the candid friend replied, "About six months." Perhaps some of our hearers have a lot of sympathy with the answer given by one friend to another when they were both listening to a lady playing very badly upon the piano. Said the one friend to the other, "What do you think of her execution?" and the reply was, "I am in favor of it." No doubt many of those who listen to our preaching have their own way of rendering the text, "Suffer the word of exhortation." Their inclination probably is to place all the emphasis upon the word "suffer." One is sometimes urged to "preach the old gospel," without getting any explanation as to how it can be made new. Some of the phrasemongers should be pulled up with a jerk and asked for a definition of the phrases they so glibly use.

QUESTIONS OF THE HOUR.

Surely, all will agree that the business of the minister is to preach Christ. His message is the gospel, God's revelation of eternal life. It is a gospel which can meet every need of human life, rebuild the waste places of manhood and prepare for a long and noble career. In the preparation of his sermons he is called to enter every field of thought, use any subject, truth or argument which shall establish men in Christian character and the practice of Christian principle. There is no secular field which he should not penetrate with the gospel.

Of course, we must deal with questions of the hour. We can scarcely hope to interest people if we do not. It is the present that most people live in. But don't let us be blind to the danger of catering to the present and forgetting the future with the judgment that there awaits mankind. A story is told of a minister of the Church of England in a floating Bethel, whose zeal surpassed his controversial reading. He was asked whether his Bethel was High Church or Low Church, and replied, "That depends entirely on the tide." The man who told that story says, "We must watch the tide and control it."

DULLNESS IS DEADLY.

Christ once said, "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men." If the minister is not that he has no business to be in the Christian ministry. And as a minister and preacher he requires a level head and a sense of humor. Dullness is an unpardonable sin. Questions of the hour need discussing in the light of Christ and common sense; any other notion would seem to imply that the gospel is a system of barren abstractions with little or no bearing on daily life. If we have any fear it should be, not that we shall widen the field too much, but that we shall make it too narrow. If a sinful practice is going on within the parish and we do not strike it we fail in our duty. Henry Ward Beecher said:

"It seems to me to be a very dangerous thing to preach Christ so that your preaching shall not be a constant rebuke to all the evil in the community."

If we do not so use the moments of worship that the secular life shall be more intelligently Christ-like, pure, rich, strong, of what value is preaching.

IS LAUGHTER WRONG?

A visitor to the city of Glasgow, in the company of his host, was passing a church at the close of one of the Sabbath services when the first part of the congregation commenced to come out. The visitor said to his host, "Who are these?" and the host made answer, "I suppose these are the first-fruits of them that slept."

On another occasion a certain preacher was preaching from the text, "He giveth His beloved sleep," when, noticing that some of his congregation had gone to sleep, he paused, and said, "It seems to me that the Lord has been specially kind to this congregation."

Our dryness is not always due to the depravity of the people who slumber before us, than sometimes to shadows of puritanism upon us which overlook the grace of humor and that sunny side of our nature which is as divine as solemnity.

The preacher is the only orator in the world who neglects the power of laughter in pleading for life and death.

When Spurgeon was once blamed for making a congregation laugh, he said:

"Bless your heart, if you saw congregations as I sometimes see them you would be glad to see an opening anywhere."

Billy Sunday says that even God must have a sense of humor or He wouldn't have made the monkeys and some people he has met!

POSITIVE PREACHING.

If we really believe that sin is dangerous, cruel, deadly, and that Christ delivers, how can we be other than positive preachers? Men and women burdened, discouraged, indifferent, perplexed, look to their minister to float them heavenward; equip for temptation; strengthen for struggle; prepare them to face the near and distant future with a cheer.

It is time for the pulpit interrogation mark to hear the sunset gun. The upward inflection tires. The affirmative, the positive are needed today. People have doubts enough of their own. The best apologetic is a clear, straight message. A powerful gospel is iron in the blood, certainty in the voice, conviction in the soul.

John McNeill says, "God, give us to preach a perpetual sense of a glad and wonderful surprise at our own salvation."

What we need is to have with every sermon we preach the conviction that the truth it conveys comes straight from the Christ of the twentieth century for the need of the passing hour to form an event in some life. This will give us that sense of newness and vitality which the apostles had.

PRACTICAL PREACHING.

The expression of our message will vary in form, but there must be a passage of the clear light of infinite truth living in the eternal Son of God through the preacher's mind to human souls, or the pulpit confuses and hurts. It is not always easy to apply the truth wisely and conclusively to social unrest, commercial and industrial injustice, or to intellectual doubt; but we must believe absolutely that there is an answer for every question, a solution for every difficulty, a medicine for every hurt, a tonic for every weakness. It has been said that Christ's ambassador is a thinking lens for the passage of gospel light. In our eagerness to keep abreast of the latest fad we are being tempted to think that psychotherapy is on a level with repentance. Alleviation of insomnia is not in the same class with faith in Christ. There is a danger of coming to think that conducting a swimming tank is of as much importance as baptism. A holy life is natural and happy for those who have been born from above by the operations of the spirit of God. Sin is unnatural, the Kingdom's invisible laws are here, and its resources ample for the humbled, footsore, hungry children of the Father.

PREACHER OR POLICEMAN?

Some people seem to think that the preacher is a sort of moral policeman, or a conductor on a trunk line to heaven, or a superintendent of a cyclopedia of mild and beneficient endeavors. His is a far bigger work! He is called to tell men that the Christian ideal of life and conduct needs applying to the workshop, the mill, the home; it is meant for employer as well as for employed. The minister who clearly, convincingly and practically applies spiritual laws to every-day life; who helps people see exactly what it is for them to be Christians; who preaches "as though Christ were the head of the firm," is doing the work of God. Many bear the burden of "duty unfulfilled" because they are not sure what their duty is. It is the preacher's business to declare in an interesting way what that duty is.

DEFECTIVE THEOLOGY.

Our theology is defective if we think that human fatherhood is deep and broad enough to represent the fatherhood of one who is our creator and the infinite reason as well as father. It is the preacher's duty to summon men to face God in their present responsibility. Reacting from the preaching which called men to meet an angry judge armed with deathless terrors, we have good reason to fear lest we present God as a mild and fatherly old gentleman, too tender or polite to hurt any one.

We are untrue to the Bible, the intrenched sins and defiant moods of selfish men if the pulpit does not become a frequent rehearsal of what used to be described as a standing before the great white throne.

Flowers and rose water will not take the place of pressing home to the conscience the sinfulness and peril of an impenitent life. It is imperative that a breeze from Sinai should play about the mountain of Beatitudes.

We may use modern terms to describe the peril of the great refusal, but if the pulpit does not call a sharp halt to unrighteousness and lead men to see that they are on the right road or the wrong road, that eternity is long, life precious, and the human will free and responsible for character and destiny, the gospel loses its ring of power and the preacher is a failure.

—Allan Fairbairn.

A THROB OF SYMPATHY

ONE who knows more than we about the inner side of Providence, assures us that the twitter of the fallen sparrow calls forth a throb of sympathy in the heart of God. We cannot think that God is unfeeling, that Providence is only a cold, pitiless force, running on age after age, mangling, crushing, killing, with no ear for shrieks and groans.

A Pen Picture

TWO bodies of men in a great struggling mass, one has been surrounded by the other and has been overpowered, but not without difficulty; knives have gleamed and terrible cries have been uttered on both sides. Yet this is no battle in the usual sense of the word; so far as I can observe not a single soldier is present: some hundreds are grevi-ously wounded, but that was before the present struggle took place. It is a terrible contest, but there is no doubt as to the issue, numbers prevail, the victors must be reckoned at probably over a thousand, the vanquished appear to be less than half that number. Clouds of dust have been raised by this awful turmoil, for it is a fight for life or death, and though not a blow is struck by the conquerors it is known that no quarter will be given to the vanquished. Slowly the infuriated crowd moves in one direction with their backs to the evening sun, yells and savage cries are heard until a certain place in reached, then there is a stop—stern judicial orders are given—the cries grow fewer and fewer, and soon one of the two companies whom we saw at first, and only one, hurries from the place.

A Minister's Wife

THE wife of a Congregational pastor said, recently: "What a pity that Jesus, so kind and gentle, could not have had the advantage of one of our modern universities." It is quite the fashion to pity Paul for his limited vision and lament that the Apostles could not have had the benefits of the counsel of the wise men of today. All this is simply pitiful. It reveals an utter lack of appreciation of the intellectual pre-eminence of a spirit-filled mind and heart. Right here is the weakness of the academic viewpoint.

Christ The Lion Of Judah

THE tribe of Judah had for its emblem on its banner the figure of a lion. In their marches this tribe headed the column, and their flag first challenged the enemy. "Judah is a lion's whelp," said Jacob, Gen. 49:9. The heroism of the tribe was well-known. From this tribe the Saviour came. He took up the banner to lead His hosts to victory. The Revelator notes His progress. "The lion of the tribe of Judah, He hath prevailed. His banner leads all, floats above all, and shall triumph over all."

Churches And Churchmen

BY I. SEEWELL

Good Risks.

THAT ministers are good insurance risks seems to be proved by the fact that within the Presbyterian Church in the United States 178 ministers died during the year 1925-6. The oldest member was 98 years of age. The average age was 59 years. This long list of deceased clergymen includes seven who were 90 years of age and over; 26 who were 80 years old; and 59 who were between 70 and 80 years of age. Only eight were under fifty years.

Unitarianism a Deadly Error.

A HUNDRED years ago Lyman Beecher was thundering against Unitarianism in New England. In a letter to a Mr. Cornelius, he wrote:

"You are right in thinking the Unitarians are gaining. Their power of corrupting the youth of the commonwealth by means of Cambridge is silently putting sentinels in all the churches, legislators in the hall, and judges on the bench, and scattering everywhere physicians, lawyers and merchants. . . .

"They have sowed tares while men slept, and grafted heretical churches on orthodox stumps, and this is still their favourite plan. Everywhere, when the minister dies, some society's committee will be cut and dried, ready to call in a Cambridge student, split the church, get a majority of the society, and take house, funds and all.

"And there is no remedy while the orthodox sleep. . . . You are right in saying that the apathy of the orthodox is more ominous than the activity of the Unitarians. It is time, high time, to awake out of sleep, and to call things by their right names."

For years Unitarianism has been creeping into the churches, colleges, seminaries and religious papers of the whole North. It is a deadly error. The best way to fight this and all other errors is to fortify the individual mind so completely that false doctrine cannot get a hold. False doctrine can occupy a vacant place, but it cannot get into a place already occupied by the truth.

Unbelief the Result of Ignorance.

IT will be found that a thorough study of the word of God is the best defence against all attacks upon it. Thoroughly saturate the reasonable mind of any human being with the facts and truths of the Bible, and all the skeptics, rationalists, "modernists," "liberals," and self-appointed critics together will not be able to undermine and get out of the mind the conviction that the Bible is the word of God. Unbelief is always the result of ignorance—of lack of intimate knowledge of and prolonged meditation upon the entire contents of the Bible itself.

The Call to Worship.

FOR worship there must be the real and mutual presence of two spirits, the one worshipped and the worshipper. Divine worship is making real and present the Holy One, and his personal relations to the worshipper by adoration, praise, thanksgiving, supplication, abasement, giving, faith, love. Human worship is human thought and feeling glorified by the Father's presence. "In Thy light shall we see light."

Public worship is sharing with others the various experiences of worship under a common leader. That makes the leader's suggestion of thought and feeling, his reality of audience with the divine, a call to all to wait on the Lord in worship.

The above is taken from a very interesting article, entitled "Let Us Sing Hymn 209," which comes from the pen of A. W. Burr, LL.D. As I include it in these notes I am wondering how many will read and reflect. If we could get all church folks to meditate for fifteen solid minutes along the lines thus set forth I feel sure that a marvellous transformation would come over the face of our worship.

What is Fundamentalism?

UNDER this caption, the Presbyterian writes at some length regarding an address given by Dr. W. B. Riley, President of the World's Christian Fundamentals Association, at its ninth annual conventison at Atlanta, Georgia.

In answer to the question, "What is Fundamentalism?" Dr. Riley says that,— there are at least three major propositions that must appear in any adequate reply, and they are these: It is the Christian creed, it is the Christian character, it is the Christian commission.

It is under these three heads, therefore, that he discusses his theme. Central interest attaches to the creed of Fundamentalism. For while Fundamentalism exists in any real sense only where that creed is lived and preached, yet it is that creed that expresses what is most distinctive of Fundamentalism and that determines the sort of life it commends and the nature of the commission it seeks to carry out.

* * *

The Fundamentalists' Creed.

1. We believe in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament as verbally inspired of God, and inerrant in the original writings, and that they are of supreme and final authority in faith and life.

2. We believe in one God, eternally existing in three persons, Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

3. We believe that Jesus Christ was begotten by the Holy Spirit, and born of the Virgin Mary, and is true God and true man.

4. We believe that man was created in the image of God, that he sinned and thereby incurred not only physical death which is separation from God; and that all human beings are born with a sinful nature, and, in the case of those who reach moral responsibility, become sinners in thought, word and deed.

5. We believe that the Lord Jesus Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures as a representative and substitutionary sacrifice; and that all that believe in Him are justified on the ground of His shed blood.

6. We believe in the resurrection of the crucified body of our Lord, in his ascension into heaven, and in his present life there for us, as high priest and advocate.

7. We believe in "that blessed hope," the personal, premillennial and imminent return of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

8. We believe that all who receive by faith the Lord Jesus Christ are born again of the Holy Spirit and thereby become children of God.

9. We believe in the bodily resurrection of the just and the unjust, the everlasting felicity of the saved and the everlasting conscious suffering of the lost.

Rubbing It In.

SMITH, the druggist, had lost his wife—she ran away with another man, so he inserted the following in the newspapers:

"This is to notify the man who so kindly relieved me of my wife that I can supply him liniment, arnica, salve, bandages, absorbent cotton, iodine, sleeping powder and crutches at very low prices."

My only excuse for incorporating this story is that I found it in a magazine which is published specially for church people.

A FACT or FANCY

A tornado was blowing up in a little town in the Highlands of West Africa. The poor pagans flocked to the mission-house for shelter. The missionary overheard one "enquirer" say to another as they watched the black cloud overcome the sky:

"I wonder whether Isa (Jesus) is coming in THAT cloud?"

But the tornado ceased and the world goes on as before. Yet He shall come again! Note the triumphant ring of certainty in the words. Not He WILL come again. He SHALL come again—that is more certain than death; and no ignorance on our part, and no hindrance on the world's part, can prevent His coming.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

THERE appeared to a beggar one day, by the wayside, a beautiful being, with her outstretched hands laden with treasures. As he gazed at her in stupid surprise, she glided past him; but she returned with her treasures still held out to him, and once more, with bleseeching eyes, as if she would compel him to take what she offered, she passed slowly by and disappeared. She had no sooner gone than, as if waking from a dream, he hurried eagerly in the direction she had taken. He met a traveller, and said, "Have you seen a beautiful stranger, with her hands full of the very things I want, going along this road?" "Yes," replied the traveller; "her name is Opportunity. But once offered, and once refused, she never returns."

History or Fraud

THE GOSPEL is either true history, or it is a consummate fraud; it is either a reality or an imposition. Christ was what He professed to be or He was an impostor. There is no other alternative. His spotless life in His earnest enforcement of the truth, His suffering in its defense, forbid us to suppose that He was suffering an illusion of a heated brain. Every act of His pure and holy life shows that He was the author of truth, the advocate of truth, the earnest defender of truth and the uncompromising sufferer for truth. Now, considering the purity of His doctrines, the simplicity of His life and the sublimity of His death, is it possible that He would have died for an illusion? —Daniel Webster.

LIARS

LIARS, like railway travellers, go in three classes:

1st class—Politicians.
2nd class—Newsmongers.
3rd class—Shopkeepers.

And all for the same reason, because, in the exercise of their vocation, a strong motive is constantly acting upon them which leads them to be more than usually careless about the exact truth of their statements. With politicians the love of power, with newsmongers the love of rumour, with shopkeepers the love of sale, constantly render a judicial attitude in reference to truth, with the majority of men, impossible.

TOO MANY TEACHERS?

Are we turning out too large a crop of school teachers in Ontario?

The fact that an advertisement for a kindergarten teacher in the Campbellford school was answered by no fewer than thirty-five applicants would seem to justify a positive answer to this question.

If there are thirty-five kindergarten teachers ready to accept employment, it is safe to conclude that the number of other teachers without positions for next year must be fairly large, and each year sees the competition become keener as the Normal Schools of the Province turn out fresh quotas ready to accept positions.

The change in the system by which a two-year course at the Normal School is to become necessary may help to save the situation, which must be giving some worry to those who have been inclined to adopt the profession of teaching.

PETTING AND SAFE DRIVING.

A Toronto youth was fined twenty dollars yesterday for driving in heavy traffic with his arm round the waist of a girl companion.

It may be said that the sense of romance is dead in the heart of any magistrate who would inflict a fine for such an offence, but there is a time and a place for everything, and impulsive youths who select a busy street and the front seat of a motor car as the most suitable place for showing their affection for their girl friends need to be reminded that petting and safe driving do not go together.

Drivers of this temperament will have to be confined to the old back porch or the hammock where their encircling movements will not constitute a menace to the general public.

Cautious driving is called for at all times under modern traffic conditions, and there is no place in the scheme of things for the over-affectionate youth who tries to divide his attention equally between the lady of his choice and the task of handling the wheel safely.

There are a few Peterborough motorists of this type who ought to read of the Toronto fine with a good deal of interest.

TOYS FOR THE CAMP.

The appeal made in connection with the Peterborough Health Association's summer camp at Jackson Park for toys to entertain the small children who are daily visitors at the camp should be speedily answered.

In many Peterborough homes there must be toys of which the children have grown tired, but which would be of great service in amusing the little folks at the health camp.

Citizens who would like to help meet this demand should send their gifts to the camp or inform members of the Health Association.

The good work being carried on by the association has impressed itself so thoroughly upon the people of Peterborough generally that The Examiner is satisfied that it is only necessary to point out the need of toys for the children at the camp to a speedy offering of a bountiful supply.

If the donors feel that any reward is necessary they will be able to find ample recompense by visiting Jackson Park and seeing the enjoyment their gifts will give the many children there.

ACTION IS NEEDED.

The decision of the ratepayers of the township of North Monaghan and Otonabee to have their Municipal Councils and Boards of Health seek an injunction against the city of Peterborough in regard to the sewage disposal plant will bring that question to a head.

The residents of the two townships cannot be blamed for their action.

They have been patient over this matter for a long period.

A good many Councils throughout a good many years played football with the sewage disposal question, and the people of the townships, having at last succeeded in prodding the city fathers in action, can be pardoned now for showing indignation over the manner in which the system has worked out.

The plant as at present constituted has failed to function; not only has it been necessary to resort to the river as the ultimate disposal agency, but the plant has been responsible for a smell that is penetrating, long-travelling and obnoxious.

Citizens who sat in the Exhibition grandstand on the evening of Dominion Day found that an odour resembling not in the least that of geraniums was being distributed generously through the night air.

Residents of the townships, as well as of the southern portions of the city and the campers along the banks of the Otonabee, have a right to protest against this condition.

The plant is not right.

Placing the blame for that state of affairs is not so important as finding the remedy and applying it quickly.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH IN CANADA.

The Federal Government's decision to expand the activities of the Honorary Advisory Council for Scientific and Industrial Research is of national importance. That body has more than justified its creation, but it is unable for financial reasons to take full advantage of its opportunities. The aim will be to place intensive research work in Canada on a level with its industrial possibilities, and with the efforts of other progressive countries. A first step will be the establishment at Ottawa of national research laboratories directly under the control of the National Research Council. The laboratories will carry on standardization work similar to that performed by the Bureau of Standards at Washington or the National Physical Laboratories in Great Britain, and will be open to private firms desirous of conducting investigations into any problems affecting their own business. Many manufacturers cannot afford the cost of laboratories but can bear the expense of individual and supervised research.

Last year the United States spent $50,000,000 and Great Britain £5,000,000 on research, but without laboratories Canada can do little by comparison. The National Research Council, thus handicapped, has done much that is valuable, however, and has co-operated in some sixty researches with Government departments, with various industries, and with universities where laboratories exist. An official statement issued at Ottawa says:

"While it is realized that pure science must be pretty well left to the universities, it is the aim of the Government to co-ordinate all the forces now engaged in industrial and scientific research under one common aim, with a system of laboratories as the national brain for the direction of the entire activity. It is the desire to concentrate present earnest, but more or less haphazard endeavor under one head, to bring about uniform activity and effort, and to eliminate so far as possible wasteful duplication. The men and the brains are available. The Research Council has effected an aggressive co-operative system. It is now proposed that there shall be established a national institution, thoroughly equipped and efficiently manned, whereby all effort shall be focused on one aim."

A study of the British methods of research is one of the objects of the present visit of Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, to England. Upon his return plans will be formulated so that they may be laid before the next session of Parliament and receive adequate discussion.—London Advertiser.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNORS.

The decision of the Dominion Government to confer the title of "Honorable" upon all persons serving as Lieutenant-Governor and all persons still alive who have served in that capacity, is one befitting the positions which these gentlemen occupy as Provincial representatives of the Sovereign and a recognition which they richly earn by their services in that connection. Many people unfamiliar with the table of titles used in Canada have already accorded Lieutenant-Governors the rank of "Honorable" and have continued to accord it to them after their retirement from office. This has been a distinct abuse, since a Lieutenant-Governor has hitherto been but "His Honor" while in office and mere "Mister" after having left it, unless he happens to be entitled to the title of "Honorable" by reason of other services rendered.

The granting of the title of "Honorable" for life to Lieutenant-Governors is a Diamond Jubilee gesture which will undoubtedly lead to greater dignity being attached to the office. Those who occupy the Government Houses of the Provinces are now placed upon an equality with members of the Privy Council so far as title is concerned. They have an advantage over members of the Senate, in that the latter abandon the title once they resign office as, infrequently happens, and they also have an advantage over judges of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts of the Dominion, judges of the Provincial Supreme Courts and members of Provincial Executive Councils, all of whom hold the title only during office. The Lieutenant-Governors are to be "Honorable" not only during office, but after it and as long as they live. And the decision is retroactive to include men now living who have served in that capacity. It is, therefore, quite proper now to refer to Harry Cockshutt as "The Honorable Mr. Cockshutt," to C. H. Mackintosh as "The Honorable Mr. Mackintosh," and so on.

It was about time that somebody came to the relief of the Lieutenant-Governor. Great things are expected of him. To be popular, he must entertain lavishly and he must give leadership in many other directions, all of them involving a severe drain upon his purse. In addition, he is bound to occupy a Government House which in several cases requires a small fortune to maintain. Although the Lieutenant-Governor receives a salary which is handsome enough (in seven of the nine Provinces it amounts to $9,000, and in Ontario and Quebec to $10,000), that salary is rarely equal to the demands made upon its recipient. In consequence of this, it is quite impossible for any person of only average means to think of accepting the office and, in the principal Provinces, at least, it has become the practice to appoint to it only persons of wealth who are able to meet the demands for entertainments and display without being obliged to travel the road to the poorhouse. There are many men of eminence in their respective Provinces who have richly earned elevation to Government House through the services which they have performed, but who are debarred from accepting it because they feel that their finances are unable to support the expense involved.

Something more than merely granting Lieutenant-Governors the right to wear the title of "Honorable" for life should be done in order that gubernatorial office may lie within the grasp of men who have rendered public services worthy of reward. Either the salaries should be increased so that the Lieutenant-Governor may be in a position to do what is expected of him without having to raid his own bank account, or expensive Government Houses should be abandoned for converted and less lavish entertainment demanded by the public. But great would be the hue and cry which would arise if a Lieutenant-Governor was courageous enough to resist that demand. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Ont., July 9. — With the market overloaded this week with unfinished and a common quality lot of grass cattle, there has been a readjusting of values with a tendency downward along the line.

A small proportion of choice quality, well finished butchers cattle, held about steady, with a keener demand for this class as the supply became smaller toward the end of the week.

For the bulk of the total week's offering, there was an average decline of about 25 cents. A heavy carry-over from the first of the week proved a steady drag all through, and at the close there were still a couple of hundred or so of stale cattle still in the market and unsold.

The obvious inference is that for unfinished cattle the demand next week will be very light, and stock of this class would be better left on pasture for the next few weeks. For well cattle the demand is likely to be steady and at good prices right on till the fall. In that case it will pay better to keep the cattle on grass for a while, than to rush them into a poor market during the hot weather season.

There was a steady demand for calves, prices firming up a little towards the close.

There was an over-supply of sheep and lambs, and prices were lowered a dollar in the closing market.

Scarcely any demand for springers and milkers.

Stockers and feeders, mostly western and of poor quality, but held at too high prices to be attractive to the stock feeder.

Hogs held steady all week, with a firmer feeling at the close.

Choice grass butcher steers and a few very choice dry fed steers sold steady from $8.75 to $9.00. General run of good to choice butcher, grassers, $8.25 to $8.75. Plain common, $6.50 to $6.75. Good stocker type, $6.50 to $7.00.

Choice fat cows, steady, $6.25 to $6.50.

Calves steady from $10.50 to $12.00.

Lambs lower at $13.50 tops.

Hogs steady at $9.75 off car, selects. Hog market looks firmer.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 9 (Canadian Press). — The demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain continued of an indifferent character on the Montreal market yesterday.

There was some demand from local buyers for Canadian Western No. 1 feed oats, and sales were made at one cent per bushel over the Winnipeg July option, c.i.f. Montreal.

In sympathy with the further strength in the Winnipeg market for oats, spot prices at the close of the day were marked up one cent per bushel. No. 2 C.W. closed at 75 cents and No. 3 C.W. at 71½c per bushel.

The movement of spring and winter wheat grades of flour continued limited, but the undertone was firm.

A moderate amount of business was done in most lines of millfeed, and values were unchanged. Business in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but the feeling was firm.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 2,648 cases.

The demand for new crop American potatoes was fair and prices were unchanged. Car lots of No. 1 grade were quoted at $6.00 to $6.25 per barrel, and No. 2 grade at $3.75 to $4.00 per barrel, ex-track. The trade in old crop Canadian potatoes was slow with car lots of Quebec white B grade offering at $1.50 to $1.80 per bag, and reds at $1.30 to $1.40 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

A fair trade was done in butter, and prices were steady. Eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 34¼c to 34½c per pound. The receipts were 4,293 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade was the improved demand from English importers, and a little business was done in this respect. The local demand was quiet. The receipts were 7,042 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 9 (Canadian Press). — Disconcerting black rust news from both north and south of the Canadian boundary did much to lift the wheat market yesterday after early declines. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅝c to 1½c net higher, with corn ¼c to 1⅝c up, oats at 1c to 1½c advance, and provisions 2c to 5c to 17c gain.

In addition to unfavourable developments concerning the spring wheat crop north-west, threshing returns from many sections of the winter wheat belt were more and more disappointing. Canadian reports of black rust were confined to wheat in Manitoba, but advices at hand said the crop there is still 10 to 14 days later than last year, that hot, moist weather in Manitoba has been adapted to bring out rust, and that well developed spores have been discovered. Meanwhile, late advices yesterday said experts were finding black rust fairly well scattered over the Dakotas and Minnesota, and that apprehension of damage exists notwithstanding that domestic weather conditions have so far been against any immediate hazard.

Corn rose with wheat, and as a result of expected falling-off in receipts next week. Oats displayed independent strength. Provisions went upward.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

ST. JOHN'S CENTENARY.

Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—You have been kind enough to give extended notices in regard to the Centenary of St. John's Church and the celebrations that have been held in connection therewith. You would confer an added obligation if you would give publicity to two corrections of mistakes that unfortunately crept in in the Centenary history of the church. The first of these is in reference to the Langton family. I am informed by Mr. W. A. Langton, of Toronto, that the Miss Langton who is mentioned in one of two places in the booklet was not his sister, as stated therein, but his aunt.

The second error, which may be more correctly termed an omission, is that the name of Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, who was for many years a resident of Peterborough, was left out of the list of churchwardens. As Mr. Hughes-Charles was a strenuous worker in the church, it is only fitting that his name should be recorded among those who helped to guide its destiny. Mr. Hughes-Charles was churchwarden in the year 1906-1907.

Since the booklet was printed additional information has come to light with regard to the origin of the picture of Government House, which appeared in the booklet. The illustration from which the picture was taken was copied from a painting in the possession of Mr. James F. Smith, of Toronto. It was painted by his mother, whose maiden name, Mary E. Sanford, appears in the margin of the illustration. The drawing was given by Mr. Smith to His Honour Judge Huycke, and Judge Huycke generously presented a copy of the drawing to the rector of St. John's Church and a second copy to the Public Library.

These facts are given in order that all those who have purchased a copy of the booklet may insert them in its pages.

Yours, etc.,

F. M. DELAFOSSE.

WOMEN ATTACKED BY FAKE INSPECTOR

Man Gaining Admittance to Houses, Assaults Toronto Women.

TORONTO, Ont., July 8.—Within the past two days three women have been assaulted in their homes on Givens and Shaw Streets and Strachan Avenue by a man posing as a Consumers' Gas Company inspector. In two cases the victims were struck on the head with a hammer by the fellow, and otherwise maltreated. That they were not more seriously hurt is due to their screams and the fear of their attacker that their cries would be bring about his capture.

All the cases seem to centre about the same man. He is described as about forty years of age, five feet nine inches tall, with hair turning grey, and attired in a blue suit and grey felt hat. He is clean-shaven and slight of build.

The modus operandi of the man is to gain admittance to the house by representing himself as a gas company employee come to examine the meter. Generally the housewife shows him the way to the meter in the cellar. There, generally, is where the attack takes place. The Strachan Avenue resident was victimized in this way, when she gained the cellar being set upon by the man and struck on the head. Though dazed by the blow, she pluckily fought her assailant, at the same time crying for help. One girl, living on Shaw Street, was attacked in the kitchen of her home by the desperado, and rendered unconscious.

For some weeks past the police have been hunting for a man disguised as a woman, who was posing as a telephone inspector, and by this means gaining access to various houses.

The Consumers' Gas Company stated yesterday that their inspector had called at two of the houses the day previous to the attack to make the regular inspection. The company warns all householders not to allow any man representing himself as a gas company inspector to enter unless he can show his credentials.

CHRYSLER Scores Again

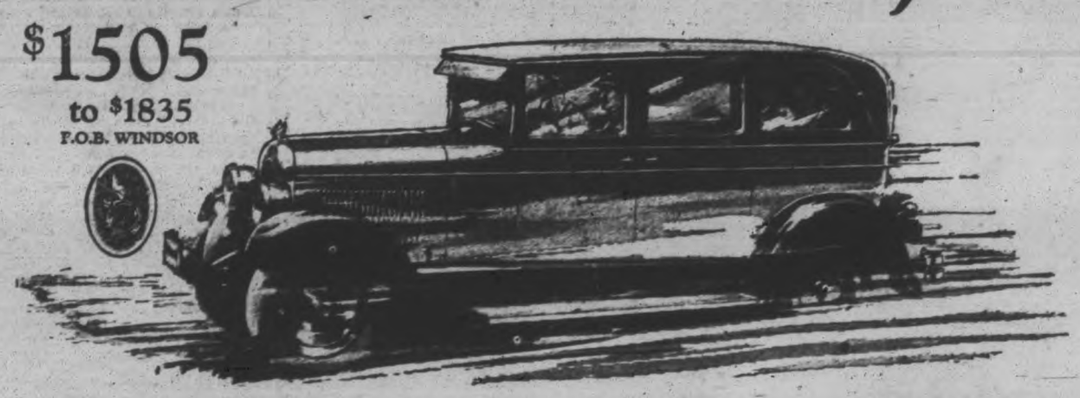
$1505 to $1835 F.O.B. WINDSOR



GREAT NEW "62"

WALTER P. CHRYSLER and his engineers present today a new car—the great six-cylinder "62"—which carries the name Chrysler still more emphatically to the head and front of the procession of engineering and manufacturing progress, and gives the buyer higher quality and greater value than was ever before possible in its class.

The great new Chrysler "62" surpasses even its predecessor the "60", hailed heretofore as the finest piece of six-cylinder engineering and mechanism ever produced in its field.

It was conceived and executed in obedience to the Chrysler conviction that the pioneer of new motoring principles and greater values must keep on pioneering to deserve and hold the leadership the public confers on him.

The great new Chrysler "62" is deliberately designed to give so much more for the money invested than any other six in its price-class, that the shrewd buying sense of Canadian buyers will bring realization that they simply cannot approach "62" value in any other cars.

No one can see, or drive, or even read the general specifications of the great new "62" without marveling at the value which Chrysler Standardized Quality has packed into its appearance, its manufacture and its unapproached performance.

New Chrysler "Red-Head" Engine

The Chrysler "Red-Head" is the first engine scientifically designed to anticipate—with its rigid 7-bearing, counterbalanced crankshaft construction—the wide-spread utility of high-compression fuels. It offers in standard production, the fullest advantages of extra speed, acceleration and hill-climbing ability inherent in modern high-compression gas.

Drive the great new "62" today. Any Chrysler dealer will gladly give you complete proof of its supreme value.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

The long, terrible hours when they thought Cherry would die in giving birth to her baby were the blackest that Faith had ever lived through. Not even those days when she had sat in the courtroom beside the Cherry whom the state was prosecuting as a murderess had been so packed with horror as were the hours during which she sat in the reception room of the hospital, waiting for the word that would tell her whether her adored sister was to live or die. Bob waited with her for long stretches, then charged, hatless and wild-eyed and haggard-faced, out into the street, to hide his terror from his wife. She had never felt so helpless in her life. There was absolutely nothing she could do, but incoherently.

At eight o'clock Bob forced Faith to go to dinner with him, but she ate almost nothing but strong, black coffee. They had little to say to each other. To Faith, the man sitting opposite her, smoking furiously, his blue eyes narrowed upon the cigaret he held between trembling fingers, seemed a stranger. It was inconceivable that this was her husband. Her husband! The very word sounded strange and alien. Through the agony of her anxiety over Cherry pushed darting tongues of doubt and suspicion. Of course he was worried about Cherry too. Of course! But if had been Cherry's husband he could not have looked more stricken.

Never since she had known Bob, except for those three blissful days immediately following their marriage, had she been able to forget that Bob first loved Cherry, had even been engaged to her for a brief time. Now she felt that she had stolen Bob from her sister, that he, and not the reprobate, Chris Wiley, should have fathered the child that was even now struggling to be born.

"Shall we go?" he asked at last harshly, abruptly, and she followed him out of the restaurant and back into the hospital where the interminable wait for news went on and on.

Jim Lane and Junior and Fay joined them at nine o'clock. Cherry's father sat, a huddled heap of misery, in an incongruously gay chair, tears slipping slowly and regularly down his pallid, sagging cheeks that needed a shave. Fay cried a little, too, sheltered in Junior's arms, but Faith could not weep, and Bob sat at a distance from her, his face turned sharply away, as if he wanted to spare her the sight of his agony.

It was five minutes past one that night when a young interne came hurrying into the reception room, a broad smile on his pink-cheeked face. He paused before Faith, as if he recognized that hers was the greatest anxiety.

"Your sister is the mother of a little daughter, Mrs. Hathaway."

Faith rose and swayed dizzily before Bob could spring forward to support her. "How is—Cherry?" she gasped, her voice sounding small and far away

"We hope the worst is over," the interne assured her. "But—in cases like this—"

"You don't think she'll get well?" Faith wailed, on a long-drawn note of fear and horror.

"Of course we hope she will, but she will require the most careful nursing and perfect quiet. She has been in great danger to-night and I don't want to mislead you—"

Bob clasped his wife's sagging body tightly in his arms. His voice rang out loudly, almost roughly: "Don't faint, Faith! Of course she'll get well. Don't you know that nothing can break Cherry?"

GIRLS IN BUSINESS

A Series of Five Messages

By CYNTHIA GREY

NO. 1—BACKGROUND MORE IMPORTANT THAN TYPING.

Not long ago a girl whom I know startled me by telling me that she had obtained a position with the firm of Blank & Blank, decorators. Blank & Blank are the Mecca for every girl with business aspirations in our town. There is something about this marble and circassian walnut establishment with its tapestried walls and galleries full of jade and copper and brass that spells elegance to the girl just out of business school.

But Marjorie, who announced her job to me, had never been to business school. She had graduated from High School a year or so ago, and had stayed home, reading and studying music and writing poetry in odd moments.

Marjorie laughed as she told me how she got her job. Her eye had caught a unique ad in the "Female Help Wanted" column. The ad read: "Do you like Tschaikovsky, and have you read 'Constant Nymph'? We have a job for you."

Many Applied.

Marjorie applied. She found a waiting throng of girls. Most of them didn't know whether Tschaikovsky was a sea food or a new dance step, but the ad had appealed.

The employer corralled them in an office and gave them blanks to fill out with "my favourite author, my favourite composer, my favourite book, etc."

It seems that Marjorie's artistic bent pleased the High Mogul most and she was hired for the position of private secretary.

"He told me," said Marjorie, "that any girl with $46.00 for tuition could take dictation and use a typewriter, but that he could never quote even whom he was sure had real taste and a reading background which would make him feel perfectly free in having her meet anyone in his absence and wouldn't cramp his style when he dictated letters.

"He said that his last secretary could spell 'received' with the 'e' first, but that he could never quote even the most commonplace quotation without being forced to stop to remind her that quotation marks should be used.

"He lets me take dictation in longhand now and gives me an hour if I need it to pick it out on the machine."

I find Marjorie tale significant of what is being demanded of the office girl to-day.

Not every employer, of course, can afford, as can Mr. Blank, a secretary who knows how to spell "Ming dynasty" but who may take an nour for a letter.

But the fact remains that practically all employers hail with open arms a girl with a rich background of reading and observation, whereas there are hundreds of thousands of plain business school graduates who can type accurately and take dictation rapidly who are not in such demand.

I think one of the big jobs of the modern office girl is to realize that a business position to-day can use everything that she can bring to it.

Don't Be Mere Typist.

Don't be only a typist. Be an individual wide-awake to the many interests of life. Stake your claims over the entire world of music, art, books, science, philosophy.

Even knowledge of recipes does not come amiss. I once knew a girl who got a raise because she was able to furnish the boss' wife with a popover recipe!

Rio de Janeiro has a flourishing business girls' club, one of the few organizations of its kind in South America.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Sunday, July 10, 1927.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This is read as rather an uneventful day by astrologers who find that benefic aspects dominate.

Again there is to be an interest in spiritual matters, it is foretold, for the world will meet many distresses.

War will loom on the horizon of the Pacific, the seers prophesy, and there will be much excitement in the United States.

The churches are to undertake great tasks and to assume big responsibilities it is foretold.

This should be a day encouraging to preachers for the stars incline the human mind toward receptiveness and thoughtfulness.

There is a sign of promise for writers, who will benefit from world events.

Newspapers and magazines are to profit because readers will increase in numbers.

For many months the seers have counseled thrift and they emphasize the need of wise administration of domestic finances.

The cost of living is to advance and there may be many unexpected demands on the family purse with reduced numbers of workers.

It is prognosticated that an extra session of Congress will be advocated, owing to supposed need of legislation on national needs of an unusual nature.

Increase of commerce is prophesied for Pacific ports and much activity for which the federal government is responsible is indicated by the stars.

The rising generation is to prove its advance over those that have preceded it by brilliant world service, astrologers prognosticate.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of a year of many new experiences.

Children born on this day may be adventurous and successful in whatever they undertake.

Monday, July 11, 1927.

According to astrology the early worker may not be at all lucky to-day. Sinister aspects, which later give way to benefic rule are foretold.

Women may be unfortunate under this sway which makes for many disappointments and inclines toward reactionary policies.

Men may incline greatly to lovemaking, while this planetary government prevails, but while romance will give them joy it may be most unfortunate for those whom they woo.

Farmers continue under a direction of the stars conducive to discontent, but they have the promise of change.

Power in politics is indicated for agriculturists who will profit greatly rom new developments in world conditions.

There is a sign of great promise for merchants and manufacturers. Trade and commerce are to expand enormously in the United States.

This is an extraordinarily favorable rule for aviators and aviation. Commercial uses for aerial navigation will develop speedily.

Interest in health and the value of human life will be keen at this time when there will be much world upheaval.

Under this planetary government there should be progress along many lines of invention.

Motors and fuel for them will engage attention that will be profitable, if the seers are to be believed.

Hotel proprietors everywhere in the country should enjoy great prosperity all through the summer in which people will crave change and recreation.

Fires in hospitals and other public buildings appear to be presaged by the stars. Explosions on battleships also are indicated.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of change that may prove advantageous.

Children born on this day probably will be self-reliant and positive in character. They succeed best in independent ventures.

Women of Japan are making an active campaign for prohibition.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Green kid slippers and ribbon bow of matching green were chosen to complete the color scheme of this summer evening frock of beige chiffon and lace.

The wide black ribbon bow with long ends worn at the back of the black spring coat was one of the fads that was almost too apparent a month or so ago. That with the black heels on beige stockings was the thing that the small-town girl saw when she visited her friends in the city, and the bow and the black heels were the two city fashions that she was most eager to launch in her own community. But neither the black heels nor the shoulder ribbon bows seem to have been injured by their intense popularity. The spring coat has been laid aside, but the shoulder bow in one form or another still flourishes.

The simple little evening frock of flowered georgette or chiffon takes on new distinction if there floats from the back of one shoulder a bow with long ends of wide ribbon to match the rose or green or blue that predominates in the print. Afternoon frocks of figured organdie of the garden-party sort are also embellished by this characteristic adornment of ribbon.

We usually take it for granted that the glittering pin that adorns a woman's hat is composed of rhinestones or paste brilliants, and women who would not think of wearing these "imitation diamonds" as brooches or bar pins on their frocks and who would recoil from the idea of rhinestone bracelets and necklaces are nothing loathe to wear them on their hats.

But don't imagine that all that glitters on women's hats is of the cheaper sort, for many smart women are following the fashion of wearing their diamond brooches and pins on their hats, and a close scrutiny of these adornments usually reveals their precious nature. Simple little hats of felt or pliant straw braid are sometimes ornamented by a brooch that is worth infinitely more than the hat.

PEOPLE DEMAND SECOND INQUEST

Petition From Residents of Espinola Results in Re-opening Case.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 9.—Petitions signed by Espanola citizens, asking for a re-opening of the inquest into the death of Mrs. Peter Therrien, which occurred under mysterious circumstances about May 12, have had the result of bringing Crown Attorney McKessock of Sudbury to investigate.

Mr. McKessock stated that he did not know what action would follow. A report, he said, of his inquiry into the petitions would be made to the Attorney-General's Department.

Two petitions were signed and forwarded to the Attorney-General's Department, it is learned. They requested that a new inquest be conducted into the death of Mrs. Therrien, maintaining that witnesses whose evidence might have proved valuable in the solution of the crime had not been produced at the investigation on Friday, June 17. It is stated that about 400 names were affixed to the petitions.

Omer Dube, for seven years a boarder at the Therrien home, vanished after the woman disappeared. Subsequently he was arrested at Dalton and brought to Espanola for the inquest. The man denied any knowledge of the crime and was allowed to go.

Lysol As Gargle; Mistake Is Fatal

GALT, July 9.—A few hours after he had used lysol as a gargle by mistake, some of which, it is believed, he swallowed, Edward Gillespie, aged 42, died in the hospital.

He was found by his wife in a state of collapse, and medical aid summoned. He had made up a gargle himself, which he had used for some time, and is believed to have taken the wrong bottle. There will be no inquest.

THE WHY OF IT

If a cake is coarse grained, this is usually the result of too little beating or too slow an oven.

SPONGE CAKE

Never grease the pan in which you are going to bake a sponge cake. Instead, line the pan with ungreased paper.

Mrs. G. Cloke, a Peterborough Housewife, says:

"I have been using Rinso since it came on the market. It does wonders for me—makes my work lighter and shorter — gives a nice white washing. I used to rub all my clothes on the washboard. But not now—Rinso soaks out the dirt and leaves me ever so little rubbing—and the clothes last longer for not being rubbed so hard. I recommend Rinso highly to friends and neighbours. There is nothing like it."

CANOEISTS SAVED AS BOAT GOES DOWN

Toronto Young People Rescued From Sinking Canoe By Party in Launch.

OSHAWA, July 9.—Taken from a canoe several hundred yards from shore just before it sank, Evelyn Thompson and Mark Fraser, a young couple attending the picnic of the Scarboro' United Church, held at Lakeview Park on Thursday, narrowly escaped a watery grave. The rescue was effected by William Cullings and a party who were out in a launch at the time.

High waves had been pouring into the canoe, and the couple were unable to make land in the face of an off-shore wind, which was blowing vigorously at the time.

The couple were out for some time, and all went well until they attempted to return. Fraser found it impossible to force the canoe toward the shore, and in his attempts the frail vessel shipped considerable water.

Their cries for assistance were in vain against the wind, and with the canoe continuing to ship water their condition became increasingly precarious as the minutes passed by. Just as they were taken out a particularly high wave filled the canoe which sank.

THIN, WATERY BLOOD ALWAYS DANGEROUS

If Not Corrected Serious Results Sure To Follow.

In no trouble is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anaemia—thin, watery blood. It is very common in young girls and in persons who are overworked or confined within doors. It makes its approach in so stealthy a manner that it is often well developed before the trouble is recognized.

But taken in time the tonic treatment through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so enriches the blood that good health and strength is speedily regained. The correction of anaemic conditions by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is as certain as anything can be. Miss Teresa Heafey, Dunraven, Que., is one of the many anaemic sufferers who has found new health through the use of this medicine. She says:—"I cannot express too warmly my thanks for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was suffering from a badly run-down condition. I was very nervous, had little desire for food, and would feel tired out at the least exertion. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before using them very long found my health gradually improving, and under their continued use was completely restored. For this reason I earnestly advise all weak girls to take these pills, feeling sure that they will do for others what they did for me."

Send your name and address to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will mail you free a useful little book on "Building Up the Blood." The pills can be obtained through any druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Trading Dull To-day On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, July 99 Canadian Press — Trading was exceptionally dull and practically featureless during to-day's short session of the Toronto stock exchange. Price movements generally were confined to fractional declines, with Dominion common up ¼ to 171½; King Edward Hotel up 1¾ to 37, and B. A. Oil with a gain of 1¼ to 25 5-8, proving exceptions to the general trend. Massey Harris was the leader in activity of the listed issues and it declined 3-8 to 35¼; Nickel droed ¼ to 61½, and Industrial Alcohol to 31. Brazilian Traction sold down one point to 162, while Atlantic Sugar was off ½ to 24½. Northern Bakeries was active and strong in the unlisted section, gaining ¾ to 28.

Mine Market Strong; List To-day Is Broad

TORONTO, July 9. — (Canadian Press.)—Continued strength prevailed on the Standard Mining Exchange today in a brisk and broad market. Lake Shore was an outstanding feature of the session with an advance of 25 cents to 19.00 on a fiarly large turnover. Hollinger was another dividend paying gold stock to soar upwards, recording a gain of 20 cents to 18.50. Keeley advanced 3 cents to 105, Mining Corporation 5 to 315, Nipissing 5 to 595, and Wright Hargreaves two cents to 553. Amulet was the most active issue on the board, but liquidation caused this stock to sag 3 cents to 240. Towagamack was a weak feature at 375, a decline of 15 cents. Norand awas up 3 cents to 2243.

Merger Being Planned Of Lock Manufacturers

It is learned that negotiations are under way having for their object the merging of the interests of at least five of the six factories located in Canada and engaged in the manufacture of locks and similar builders' hardware. While negotiations are still in the early stages, Hardware and Metal states this week that three out of the five firms engaged in this line have declared themselves unofficially as beingn agreeable to a merger of interests and options have been given on at least two of the properties. It is understood that the sixth concern, being the Canadian branch of a large United States firm, is unlikely to consider the proposed amalgamation. It is felt by some of the lock companies that certain economies can be effected and other advantages accrue from the merging of their interests.

Stock Prices Higher On New York Market

NEW YORK, July 9. — (Canadian Press.)— Stock prices worked higher to-day under the impetus of pool operations in many specialties. The late rally was stimulated by the announcement that building and engineering contracts in June set a high record, with the prospects for the current month unusually favorable.

The unexpected declaration of an extra dividend on Nash Motors infused new life into several of the motor shares, although renewed heaviness cropped out in Mack Trucks, U. S. Steel common was sluggish, pending publication of the June unfilled tonnage statement at noon.

A sudden outburst of buying in Commercial Solvents 'B' and Mathieson Alkali sent both stocks up about 6 points. The last named touching a new peak price. Manhattan Supply also reaced new high ground, but Electric Refrigerator sank to a new low.

Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, which recorded a sensational 20 point advance yesterday, moved up four more points to-day.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 700,000 shares.

RECORDS THAT KEEP HUDSON-ESSEX CARS IN THE LIMELIGHT

Public Demand Greater Than the Supply—Orders Pouring In on the Makers at a Rate Twice That of Last Years.

Hudson-Essex closed on June 30 the biggest and most successful half year in its entire history, with between 165,000 and 170,000 six-cylinder cars built and shipped to all parts of the world.

Despite this extremely large six-cylinder volume, the company has been continuously behind the public demand for its cars, particularly the Essex, according to Hudson officials. The estimates are that the public would have bought 40,000 or 50,000 additional cars if they had been available.

It was in view of this demand for the cars that the Essex plant was re-arranged and enlarged. At the same time the Essex cars themselves were made more powerful and attractive, and a plan of manufacturing laid out which is designed to effect prompt delivery to all buyers. From all important centres of the Unitetd States, the orders are pouring in for these new Essex Super-Sixes at a rate approximately twice that of a year ago.

"The feature of the year," said Mr. Brewer, Hudson-Essex distributor, "is the great stride ahead made by Hudson-Essex. As soon as these cars were displayed at the New York Show last January, it was immediately apparent that a season of success was ahead. The Hudson-Essex show booth was the center of attraction. From the minute the show opened the public continuously demanded more Essex cars than Hudson could manufacture.

"With such success, nine out of ten business concerns would have been more than satisfied, but the Hudson organization went ahead with its program of consistent improvement. Now these new Essex Super-Sixes are here, and are being greeted with an enthusiasm exceeding anything we have previously known.

"Essex is not a small or light car; it is a sturdy, roomy, rugged automobile, with 2,400 pounds of weight; an abundance of horse-power; big strong axles, frames and other units. It is meant for hard, exacting service, and yet it has a velvety smoothness and driving ease that make it equally the car for the boulevard."

Roadside Flowers, Lawns and Trees

Improved Highways inspire the Improvement of Home and Farm

Good roads in Ontario are promoting the beauty of the Province. They have inspired owners of homes and farms to improve the appearance of their properties. New fences have been built, lawns have been made, trees and flowers planted, and homes and barns treated to paint.

The appearance of whole neighborhoods has been transformed by the creation of these roadside beauty spots. They make Ontario a nicer place to live; they advertise Ontario to every passer-by.

To those who have thus improved the property along the highways and given encouragement to others to do the same, the whole Province is indebted.

The Government is not unmindful of the public advantage of such improvements. It is ready to render substantial assistance to property owners in the planting and care of trees along the highways.

No Car should go on the Road unless it is in good Condition

It is unsafe to the occupants, and a menace to the public, to drive an automobile which is not in good condition.

Check your brakes and steering gear often and replace parts worn or broken. Don't take a chance. Your car may fail you at a critical time.

Keep your headlights adjusted. See that your lenses are according to law. The Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department will send you without charge a list of approved lenses and simple instructions for adjusting headlights. Your license number must be clean and so placed as to be easily read.

Neglect on any of these points makes an automobile unsafe and a dangerous character on the road. Penalties are provided by The Highways Traffic Act for this neglect and they are being enforced.

See Ontario from her Highways

Good roads will take you almost everywhere in old Ontario and far into the north country.

You will never see the Province fully till you travel it by automobile. Plan a vacation trip to parts you do not know. No Province or State has finer roads or better scenery.

And get to know the people in other parts of Ontario, too. It will widen your vision to know what they are thinking of and what their ambitions are.

Travel is a great educator. No other form of travel acquaints you so closely with the country through which you pass or the people who live there.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

RIGHTEOUSNESS IN PUBLIC LIFE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 10. Righteousness in Public Life. I Samuel 12:1-5, 19-25.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

Text: I Samuel 12: 1-5, 19-25.

And Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you.

And now, behold, the king walketh before you: and I am old and gray-headed; and, behold, my sons are with you; and I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day.

Behold, here I am: witness against me before the Lord, and before his anointed: whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I received any bribe to blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you.

And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand.

And he said unto them, The Lord is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that ye have not found ought in my hand. And they answered, He is witness.

And all the people said unto Samuel, Pray for thy servants unto the Lord thy God, that we die not: for we have added unto all our sins this evil, to ask us a king.

And Samuel said unto the people, Fear not: ye have done all this wickedness; yet turn not aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart;

And turn ye not aside: for then should ye go after vain things, which cannot profit nor deliver; for they are vain:

For the Lord will not forsake his people for his great name's sake: because it hath pleased the Lord to make you his people.

Moreover, as for me, God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you: but I will teach you the good and the right way:

Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart: for consider how great things he hath done for you.

But if ye shall still do wickedly, ye shall be consumed, both ye and your king.

This lesson is the story of Samuel's farewell. It marks the life of a man whose service began in the quiet of early days in the service of the tabernacle and continued with great faithfulness and regard for righteousness and truth and with devotion to the people, only to find in his declining years that he had lost something of the fullness of his influence with them.

There is a somewhat tragic aspect to these last days of Samuel's life, though there is about it no such moral tragedy as ultimatly marked the career and the ending of Saul. Regardless of whether the people stood by him or not, Samuel pursued his course with great fidelity with regard only to the approval of God.

A Perfect Life.

It is a very beautiful life this life of Samuel, and like the life of Jesus of Nazareth, it comes near to every stage of the human way. As in the case of Jesus there is the story of a beautiful babyhood and childhood; a mother yearning for a son and loving her newborn babe with great sincerity and consecration to the service of the Lord; a childhood in which the heart was early accustomed to hear God's call and to respond even though the childish heart was too young to understand; a manhood with singleness of purpose in the yearning to serve the people and be a faithful priest of God; and an old age with a touch of outward disappointment but with a keen sense that though he was now old and gray, he had walked before the people and before the Lord with deep sincerity and with absolute honesty and unselfishness.

It is a great ideal of public righteousness that he reveals in his questions to the people. "Whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I taken a ransom to blind mine eyes therewith?" And the response of the people shows that Samuel's questions were no mere rhetoric of a man whose life had belied his words, whose patriotism had been a thing of vain pretense and whose professed public service had been merely, as it so often is in modern times and has been in the past, a blind for safe ends.

"Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken aught of any man's hand:" It is of a great thing when a leader of the people can thus stand approved in his own conscience and before God.

Service His Ideal.

Possibly Samuel was more a priest than a prophet, more a public official than a teacher, yet we find in him not simply an ideal for the religious life, but a fine and beautiful embodiment of the service of the state. He was an expression of what true religion is when it influences a man's relationship to his fellow men and his duty to society.

We may not all have the splendid heredity that was Samuel's. Much as men honor their mothers it is not given to all men to have such mothers as Samuel had. But Samuel made much of his own way by faithfulness to his mother's God on his own behalf. It was his own spirit to be right and to do right that made hus public life so beautiful and strong.

Nurse Tells How To Relieve Eczema

Lady had face disfigured with Eczema. Skin now clear.

Mrs. Wm. Campbell, a graduate nurse of Morden, Man., reports a very interesting experience she had recently with a distressing case of eczema. The patient was a lady who had suffered keenly both mentally and physically because of the way her face was disfigured and by the itching, burning sensations of the skin. She had become discouraged because doctors considered her case incurable.

Mrs. Campbell had known of similar cases and by patient persistent treatment was able to obtain complete relief and restore the natural beauty of the skin.

Mrs. Campbell writes:—"A patient under my care was so severely afflicted with eczema on her face that the doctors considered it incurable and could do nothing for it. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and never found anything like it for the first application stopped the itching. By continuing the use of the Ointment, the eczema was entirely removed and the complexion greatly improved. No one would ever know that my patient had previously been so disfigured by this annoying and torturing ailment."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the recognized standard treatment for eczema. It should never be confused with ordinary salves for it is a medicinal ointment of proven merit and effectiveness. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

Belmonts Win City Softball Championship

DEFEAT GENERAL ELECTRIC TEAM IN SECOND GAME FOR TAYLOR CUP

Teams Put Up Great Battle For the City Softball Championship.

SCORE SIX TO THREE.

Harrison Gets Two Home Runs in Four Times to Bat.

The Belmonts defeated the Canadian General Electric team last night in the second game of the finals and with it captured the Taylor Cup, the emblem of the City Softball Championship. Both teams were of championship calibre and the C.G.E., who won the cup last year put up a strenuous fight until the last man was out. The final score was six runs to three.

Harrison, who hurled for the Belmonts had the best of the argument throughout the game, as he walked three men and he kept the C.G.E.'s nine hits well scattered. Nichols, for the losers, was a little wild, especially at first, as he walked three men in the first innings, but after that he tightened down somewhat.

The C.G.E. failed to win the game on account of being unable to hit safe; they connected oftener than the Belmonts, but were not there in the pinches when they had runners on.

The outfield on both teams were called upon to handle very few flies and the infield gave goth pitchers the very best of support. Harrison was the hitting star of the game, getting two home runs and a walk in four times to bat. Batten sacrificed twice, which scored a run each time.

The Game

F. Jones, the first man up for the Electric boys, struck out; Maudsley singled to right; Wilson singled into left; Corbett lifted on to Delahaye. Heard singled, but Maudsley was caught advancing to third.

Green and Haskill for the Belmonts got passes on the first eight balls pitched, Frick popped ont to Nicholls; Harrison walked; Green was caught stealing, and Holyman went out on a foul fly.

In the second, Ross was given a pass, Grant singled Dyer; Dyer singled, but Ross was caught making third. Nichols went out on a foul fly; Jones walked; Maudsley made first when Batten dropped the ball, and Grant scored; Wilson lifted one to Delahaye.

TheBelmonts in the second got two hits and a pass for two runs with Fanning striking out, and Batten sacrificing.

Heard got the only hit in the third for the C.G.E., and Frick singled and Harrison got a homer, scoring Frick for the Belmonts. Neither teams scored in the fourth with Hall getting the only hit.

Wilson doubled in the fifth for the C.G.E. and Corbett sacrificed, but Heard lifted one to Batten for the third out. Harrison got his second home run in this innings, when he sent the ball over onto Murray Street. In the sixth, neither team got a hit or scored, but in the seventh the C.G.E. made a rally which endangered the crown of the Belmonts, but poor base running only gave them two runs when they got six men on

In the eighth the Belmonts scored their final tally and in the last two frames Maudsley was the only man for the losers who got a hit.

A NEW HIT— "SWIMMING SIMPLIFIED"

Learn to swim—learn to dive!

Everyone should know how to swim—either as a safeguard against drowning or as a means of providing good summer fun.

The Examiner will start a series on how to swim and dive prepared by the athletic director of one of the largest athletic clubs on the continent.

The series embraces the fundamental principles of swimming and diving. It is written simply and understandably. It covers breathing, stroking, kicking and diving and other hints for those who already can swim, as well as for those who cannot swim now.

James A. Lee, athletic director of the Cleveland (Ohio) Athletic Club, is the author. Lee teaches hundreds of beginners how to swim every year and aids hundreds of other swimmers in perfecting their strokes and dives. The club he is connected with has more than 2,400 members and is one of the best known clubs in the world.

The series is of twelve articles. Each is illustrated. It starts on Monday, in The Examiner. Be sure to follow it.

BAN JOHNSON QUITS POSITION

Contract Had Eight Years To Run at $40,000 Per Annum.

NEW YORK, July 9.— (Canadian Press.)—Under strong pressure exerted by a majority of the club owners and chiefly because of ill health, Ban Johnson yesterday resigned from the presidency of the American League. He will quit the office he has held since the founding of the circuit twenty-seven years ago not later than November 1 and probably much sooner.

Simultaneously with his abrupt resignation, which the club owners accepted "with regret," the 61 year old executive, in a characteristic gesture, refused a proposal that he become "president emeritus," and retire on full pay under a contract which still has eight years to run at annual figures of $40,000. In rejecting an arrangement which would have meant $320,000, for the life of the contract, the veteran stipulated in his 33 word statement of resignation that his compensation will "end upon my retirement."

Johnson is to decide when he will formally go out of office, if he decides to do so before November 1, but it is understood he will relinquish his job within a few weeks or as soon as the affairs are in shape to be turned over to a successor.

Who that successor will be the club owners did not decide yesterday at their suddenly called special meeting here. It was believed that magnates were prepared to name one of their own members, E. S. Barraro, president of the Cleveland Club, but decision of his choice, if it has been made, was withheld in view of the indefinite tenure of Johnson's reign.

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

I suppose by this time you're all over the jubilee. Wasn't she a wow? And how! They ain't been anything to beat that parade here if you go back to the day when Adam Scott stepped out of his boat down about where the Geo. st. wharf now is and said, "Here's the logical site," and started Peterboro going. The best thing about it was the way everybody clubbed together to put the thing over. With that kinda team-work they ain't nothing that this burg couldn't put across, and right. The whole town and a lot of the country was determined the celebration would hit on all eight, and, believe me, Mac, she did.

They ain't been a great deal of sporting news since my last, Mac. The softballers is working down toward the end of the piece, and the local hardball leagues is also getting through their schedule, with the East Peterboro in particular putting on a pretty show.

Meanwhile the seniors is waiting until it's time to get into the Lakeshore League play-offs, and, by the way, if the boys hope to get anywhere from now on they gotta work hard to get in shape. They was bumped off in Deloro the other day. Nothing new, by the way, because the Petes in their palmiest days always fell down in the mining camp, but the weakness of the gang with the willow stood out like Mister Lou Marsh's familiar red vest at a funeral. Mister Carl Wood, a Peterboro product, held them in check pretty near all the way, and while Mr. Wood has developed speed and pitched a nice game, his brand shouldn't have bothered real senior hitters. However, the lads has some time to get in shape, and with a new outfielder what can hit, so they say, added to the string they oughta give the winners of the other section of the Lakeshore League a real battle. The game Sat. with Oshawa oughta give the fans a good chance to judge for themselves.

Wasn't it tought about Mister Joe Wright? You couldn't come closer to winning and then lose out than that bird did in the diamond skulls set-too, and to get nosed out like that'd be enough to break the hearts of anybody. But young Mister Wright is made of the right stuff, and he'll be heard of plenty before he gets too old for the shell game.

Well, Mac, take care yourself till you hear from me again.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

THALHEIMER WILL PLAY IN FINALS

Defeated Rennie For Place in Ontario Lawn Tennis Play-offs.

OTTAWA, Ont. July 9 (Canadian Press).—Louis Thalheimer of Texas and Gilbert Nunns of Toronto will fight it out for the tennis championship of Ontario here to-day. Thalheimer defeated Leroy Rennie, of Toronto, former Canadian champion, in four sets in the semi-final round yesterday afternoon, and Nunns won from Marcel Rainville of Montreal in straight sets.

In each case the result at no time appeared to be in doubt. Thalheimer was quite master of the situation during the first two sets, and although he weakened in the third to lose at 6-1, he tightened up in the fourth, after the rest, and ran it out at 6-3. Rennie never being in the picture at all during this set.

Both matches were an anti-climax, after the splendid battle of the morning session between Nunns and Lewis N. White, American star. Nunns' play yesterday was of the inspired variety, and he has never performed within reach of it on any previous appearance on local courts. It appears certain that he will get the third Davis Cup position, although the selection committee are silent on the matter, and refuse to make any statement whatever. The final match today, in which he will play against Thalheimer, will be a final test of his strength, and a good performance in this event is expected to settle the matter.

Thalheimer's play has also been a revelation. So far in the tournament he did not appear to show anything of particular note, but both yesterday morning and afternoon he quite excelled himself, and apparently went out to show just what tricks he had in his bag.

The ladies' event also produced a surprise in the semi-final round. Miss G. Gallery, of Montreal against Miss M. Bremner, of Ottawa, in this event, won the first set with almost ridiculous ease, allowing Miss Bremner only one game, and making her appear rather ordinary throughout. From this point on, however, the tables were turned, and Miss Bremner ran out the match by winning the next two sets, 6-2, 6-3, and completely reversing the form of the first set.

The other bracket in this event was between Miss P. Grierson and Miss P. S. Rykert, both of Ottawa, and Miss Grierson had little difficulty in disposing of her opponent at 6-1, 6-1. The match in the final will be an all-Ottawa event therefore.

The mixed doubles event is down to the semi-final round, which will be played this morning. The contestants in this round will be Miss E. Billings and L. Clegg, of Montreal, against Miss P. S. Rykert of Ottawa and C. G. Spanner of Toronto. In the other section Miss M. Parker and A. S. Cassils, also Montreal players, will meet the winners of an event to be played late last evening, between Miss P. Grierson of Ottawa and Sam Hardy of New York against Miss R. Gallery of Montreal, and D. H. Martin, Newton, Mass.

YANKEES SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER

Defeat Tigers in Second Game 10-8 After Losing First 11-8.

HOMER FOR RUTH.

NEW YORK, July 9 (Canadian Press).—The Yankees opened their second invasion of the West yesterday, splitting a double programme at Detroit, winning out in the second contest by 10 to 8, after losing the initial struggle by 11 to 8. Ruth connected for his twenty-seventh circuit wallop with two on base during a five-run rally in the second inning of the final. Besides his homer the Babe got a single. Ruth went hitless in the opener, while Gehrig banged a triple and two singles and another single in the night-cap. Stoner came out victor over four opposing hurlers in the Detroit victory.

Washington broke its long losing streak at Cleveland by taking both ends of a double-header, 7 to 4 and 4 to 3. Speaker's hitting was a factor in each defeat of his former team. Goslin and Cullop each hit a homer in the first game with one man on. Burns made his thirty-first and thirty-second doubles of the season, one in each game.

The Philadelphia Athletics pounded Sam Jones for thirteen hits in seven innings at St. Louis and won the first game of the series from the Browns, 7 to 5. Nevers held the visitors hitless in the last two frames. Simmons starred at bat with a triple and a homer.

Boston bunched their hits behind errors at Chicago and defeated the White Sox 11 to 5, forcing the local team into fourth place. Chicago had numerous opportunities to score but failed to hit in the pinches.

CUBS TAKE SECOND GAME

Win From Pirates 1-0 For Firmer Hold on First Place.

SCORED ON ERROR.

NEW YORK, July 9 (Canadian Press).—Charley Root allowed one hit at Pittsburgh yesterday and Chicago defeated the Pirates 1 to 0. The victory, the ninth in a row for the Cubs, gave them a firmer hold on first place—one full game ahead of the Pirates. The only run of the battle was scored on an error in the second inning when, after Grimm doubled and two were out, the Cub first baseman tallied on Traynor's wild throw to first in an effort to get Beck, who had grounded to the Pirate captain at shortstop. Root scored his fifteenth victory of the season and incidentally was the first big league moundsman to turn in a one-hit game so far this year.

Greenfield pitched effectively against the world champion St. Louis Cardinals at Boston and Boston won 3 to 2. The Braves fielded well behind the pitcher. In the fifth Bancroft singled to drive in two runs what proved to be the winning run was scored in the next inning on High's triple and Gibson's third consecutive single.

The Giants broke Bill Doak's winning streak of six games at New York yesterday and defeated Brooklyn in the second game of the series by 6 to 2. New York bunched seven hits in the first and fourth innings to score all their runs. Benton pitched a strong game, turning in his first complete contest since joining McGraw's club.

Cincinnati made it two straight over the Phillies at Philadelphia by a score of 8 to 5 in eleven innings. The Phillies tied the score and drove Rixey out of the box in the eighth and would have won but for poor base running.

FORMER CHAMPIONS GRADUATE FROM SEMI-FINALS OF TOURNEY

Thompson Defeats McCarthy, While Carrick Wins From Somerville.

SHOW LOW CARDS.

Final Play Will Be International, The First Since 1914.

HAMILTON, Ont. July 9. — Sandy Somerville's hopes of entering his fourth successive final for the Canadian amateur championship were shattered yesterday when he was defeated by his persistent rival, Don D. Carrick, of Scarboro, in the semi-final round by 2 to 1, the victory giving Carrick his fifth win in seven matches played against Somerville in championships in the last three years. Carrick will be making his second appearance in the final for the title in three years, and to-day in the thirty-six hole final will meet Frank Thompson of the Knollwood Club of Chicago, who has won the title twice previously, in 1921 at Winnipeg and in 1924 at Rosedale. Thompson's presence in the concluding match of the twenty-ninth annual championship is due to his 3 and 1 victory over Maurice J. McCarthy of the Old Flatbush Club of Brooklyn.

The matches were close, both of the semi-finals ending on the thirty-fifth hole, and they were just as close as the results indicate. Carrick and Somerville played a see-saw struggle all day, and the greatest difference between the pair was on the thirty-fifth hole, when Carrick sank a twelve foot putt to win the hole to increase his margin to two and, at the same time, ending the match. The two rivals were on even terms going to the thirty-second hole, with Carrick winning that one to take the lead for the last time and he held Somerville even on the next two and then slipped in the long putt for the win on the concluding hole after the London player had missed one of about three feet longer for the half which would have sent the engagement to the home hole at least.

McCarthy was never up on Thompson after the twelfth hole in the morning, but he was well within striking distance until some time after they made the turn for the last nine holes in the afternoon. Thompson was only one up going to the eleventh in the second round of the day, but then picked up two in succession and from there until the concluding hole was played McCarthy did no better than get halves, except on the fifteenth.

As far as the medal scores indicate the Thompson-McCarthy match provided the better golf, Thompson having an approximate 137 for the thirty-five holes, McCarthy 141, Carrick 143 and Somerville 145. Both McCarthy and Carrick had two stroke penalties, the former in the morning at the twelfth hole, where he lost his ball and also his first hole of the match, and Carrick at the fourth in the afternoon, where placed his drive out of bounds, but managed to keep his standing intact by sinking a twenty-five foot putt for a six when Somerville failed to take advantage of the opening and played the hole in a sloppy manner. The morning rounds in both matches provided the best scoring, Thompson having a 71 and McCarthy at 73, giving him a six at the twelfth, while both Carrick and Somerville's cards showed 35 out and 38 in. Thompson came in for the noon rest with a lead of one, while Carrick and Somerville might not have played the first eighteen as far as the results of the morning round affected the final result.

Rivals Attract Big Gallery.

Owing to their many meetings in the past and the fact that both players are well known to the followers of the game, the Carrick-Somerville match attracted the largest gallery of the two, both in the morning and the afternoon, and considering the tension under which both players labored the golf was a fine brand, but there were some mistakes, most of them by Somerville, and they proved costly, as Carrick took advantage of every one. If one wished he could name several occasions where Somerville tossed away his chances of victory, but the fourth hole in the afternoon was the most glaring, and it also marked a great uphill struggle by the winner.

Starting out in the afternoon they were all square, but Somerville won the first and halving the next two held his lead. At the fourth he had a drive well down the centre for about 290 yards, and Carrick, in his effort to match it, slapped his out of bounds. His third from the tee was sliced and found a resting place in the rough in a gully. He was well out with his iron, his fourth stroke, while Somerville was short of the green in two, wisely deciding to play the hole safely. Carrick was twenty-five feet beyond the pin in five, but Somerville messed up his third, was twelve feet away in four. Carrick then electrified the gallery by dropping his putt for a six and he secured half when Somerville failed to drop his putt. Instead of increasing his lead at this hole Somerville passed up his best opening of the match and while he staved off Carrick's challenge for a while he did not appear to have his game as well in hand afterward and was erratic in his play. Carrick on the other hand came strong and made few openings for Somerville.

AT THE REGENT.

GIVE 'EM ENOUGH ROPE.

"Don't Tell the Wife," Irene Rich's latest starring vehicle for Warner Brothers, directed by Paul Stein, is a swift-foot merry comcedy of Paris and young love.

Huntly Gordon supports Miss Rich as the husband who becomes interested in a vivacious blonde portrayed by Lilyan Tashman. Irene fights with his own weapons by lavishing her attentions on William Demarest, the blonde's fiance. This doesn't work, and when Huntly has to wait up for wife's return things come to the breaking point.

Otis Harlan, as a divorce magistrate friend of the family tries to fix things up by giving them plenty of rope to find out how much they really do care for each other. He gives them a phony divorce and performs false marriage ceremonies for the two couples whom he thinks will sicken of the bargain before any damage is done.

They apparently don't and the fat judge chases them to tell them the true state of affairs. Quite accidentally they have picked the same hunting lodge in which to spend their honeymoon—a very merry situation for all concerned, not to mention the audinece.

"Don't tell the Wife" from a scenario by Rex Taylor, comes to the Regent Theatre next Monday for a run of two days.

Although the need for the expert use of the sword has almost disappeared, a pitch of perfection has been reached in defence that was unknown in the days of duelling. Men to-day are more skilled in swordsmanship as an exercise than they were when it was used in deadly earnest.

That it's Dad who pays the bills.

It is Mother on a Sunday
Gets the children off to church,
But it's Father on a Monday
Helps the pastor in a lurch.
Mother's soul need ever bother,
She is saved from earthly ills,
But they're not so sure of Father—
Though it's Dad who pays the bills.

Now, I know the sin of money,
And I know the curse of gold;
But wouldn't it be funny,
When the final tale is told,
Though no crowning he expected
On the great eternal hills,
If St. Peter recollected
It was Dad who paid the bills?

CANADIANS BEATEN.

Touring Soccer Team Loses Third Set Match By One Goal.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., July 9 (Canadian Press). — In the third test match of their tour, the Canadian All Stars were defeated by the New Zealand representative soccer team here today by 1 to 0. The one goal was scored in the last two minutes.

A Scandinavian fisherman some time ago showed a well-known English golfer a bag of 250 golf balls that he had collected off the coast of Jutland. In all cases they were British-made balls. It is thought that these balls were played at golf courses on the east coast of England and Scotland. At the time the prevailing winds were westerly. The balls were washed out to sea and curious cross-currents washed them over to the Danish coast.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON BABY

July—the month of oppressive heat; red-hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

No dressing should be used except a little salt if desired.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. A. H. writes: "I have a lump under my arm about the size of a walnut that hurts me at times. I have been to a doctor, and he told me it was an enlarged gland, but I am afraid of cancer. Do you think the fruit fast would help me? Or would I be able to stand it, as I am quite thin and rundown now?"

ANSWER: Your doctor was probably right, and you are needlessly worrying about your trouble being cancer. Lumps under the arm usually form after a cancer of the breast has developed, but your doctor would have been able to discover this during his examination. The fruit fast is the best treatment I know of for absorbing enlarged lymphatic glands. Being thin, you will get quicker results than if you were overweight, and when your system has become thoroughly cleansed you will then gain weight more easily than before.

QUESTION: Mrs. M. writes: "I am troubled with a bad breath, and have a slight case of catarrh which I contracted from a friend a few years ago. I am very constipated and will go for days without a movement if I do not take a purgative."

ANSWER: The only why you could contract catarrh from a friend is to practice the same bad habits of improper eating that your friend must have practiced in order to have developed catarrh. You have practically answered your own question when you tell me you are constipated. Get rid of your constipation through proper dieting, and your catarrh and bad breath will disappear at once.

For example, a prominent merchant recently wrote:

"There are certain business connections which a man makes and which he regards with considerable pride and satisfaction. I can conscientiously say that this is the way I feel towards my connection with the Confederation Life Association."

The last tragedy deepened the gloom ...which had begun like a cloud to over...hang the travelers.

The murmuring among the men increased. When the cook was preparing supper the other albino shuffled forward to Vilak, and announced that he ...and his fellows would go no farther. ...It was certain death for all of them if ...they proceeded, he mumbled. Everyone except foolish white men knew that the country which they were approaching was haunted; the closer they came to it, the tighter the evil spell was woven about them. He and the other natives had decided to turn back.

To their astonishment, Vilak quietly replied that he and his friends were at liberty to depart any time they liked. Further, that their departure would ...dehit him.

...dawn the expedition split, the ...five mutineers sullenly going back in ...direction from which they had come, ...the three whites and the silent ...Ban guide, who after some vaccilat... had refused to join in the rebels' ...ancils, tramped on toward the west.

As they traveled the three friends conversed little, the humid heat of the jungle and their steady, unflagging pace consuming all the energies of Elise and the old man.

Day after day they went on uninterruptedly through the tangle of grim, towering trees, always with the feeling that they were being watched, followed. Soon the increasing density of the underbrush made traveling extremely difficult for the remaining mules, which, on the point of exhaustion, were now mere breathing skeletons through the ravages of tiny winged and crawling parasites.

Reluctantly Vilak decided to abandon them, shift as many of their burdens as possible onto human shoulders, and for the rest, live on the country. Two days after they had so decided they came upon a tribe of dwarfed, blackish Indians, almost pygmies, who lived in the branches of trees or in mere windbreaks which they hastily constructed wherever they might be.

The chief, whose favor Vilak won by a gift of jewelry, said in answer to the other's question that he had heard from a neighboring chief how strange men had passed that way not long before. But he could only say what he had heard from the lips of others; none in his own tribe had seen.

"Where you white men go?" he grunted in thick Guarany.

Vilak pointed toward the setting sun. "Other Indian tell me, white man, no good there. What there?"

The old chief shuddered, closed his ferret-like eyes, and did not answer.

As the sun disappeared and the cool damp night enveloped the jungle, the chief took two pieces of wood, and rubbing them together while his followers murmured a dismal ceremonial chant, kindled a fire.

The new comers sat around it to eat birds' eggs and a large sort of squirrel. Their hunger satisfied, the women danced, then the chief folded his legs under him, and like Bagarundi, began to tell the heroic legends of his race.

He continued until his shrill piping voice grew weary, bade the visitors good night and slowly climbed up into the trees, the other men and women following, leaping from limb to limb and liana to liana with all the dexterity of monkeys.

"More proof that there is a pronounced Oriental influence all through the Indians," Vilak said to Nunnally as they sat by the fire.

"Even a tribe in such a low state of development as this one. This chief, too, told the story about the man who walked through the fire and became a god. These men probably got the Oriental traces in their culture indirectly through the Incas, whose civilization was undoubtedly an Oriental one, possibly Egyptian.

"Certainly that's where these fire legends came from, for the incas had the most elaborate fire-worship ritual the world has ever known.

"Incidentally, if we keep on going west this way, we ought to be getting out of the jungle onto the uplands pretty quickly and probably see some Inca ruins. We're heading straight for the Andes plateau, and they weren't confined to that narrow area by any means. They were too vigorous and too colonizing a people. They were spreading out tremendously when the Spanish came and put a sudden end to their empire."

Another week they traveled through the gloomy, unbroken forest. Then they lost their last native adherent. They had seen a jaguar lurking in the underbrush as they were about to pitch their camp; Vilak and the Indian guide had gone out to stalk it to prevent the animal from springing upon them while they slept.

They separated to approach it from two sides; Vilak killed it with a well-placed bullet. Striding back to the camp, he rejoined Elise and the old man. The guide did not return. Vilak and the others began to beat the brush.

The setting sun swiftly put an end to the search. Long into the night, they sat by the fire shouting and shooting their rifles to guide the other back to the camp.

"Either he's lost in the thicket or he's chosen to disappear for his own purposes," Vilak grunted. "Almost certainly the latter, for he's one of the few men I've met who really know the jungle. However, we'll look again in the morning."

At daylight they renewed their efforts until Vilak decided that they could afford to look no longer. They pushed on. The next day the jungle began to lessen perceptibly. The trees became fewer and smaller, the trail they were following became a narrow but well-beaten path. Soon the jungle was behind them, and they were on a wide rocky plateau covered here and there with dwarfed palm-trees with leaves like knives, or patches of spiny cactus and thickets of thistles and thorns. Great vulture-like caranchos circled in the sky, hopefully searching for some dying bush-deer which would soon provide them with a sumptuous meal; tiny gossamer spiders drifted everywhere on their fine webs. Mountains showed dimly in the distance. The trail led toward them.

They pitched camp on a wide red rock which formed part of a low bluff rising from the plain, delighted to be in the open once more. Two days later the mountains were much nearer. With a little straining of their eyes they could now distinguish the different peaks and ranges, all of the same brilliant red which had characterized the rock about Porto Verde.

Some were short and jagged, resembling great red icicles; other were long and rolling like huge dunes of vermillion sand. Over the highest, cone-shaped and looking rather like the upper half of an enormous pear, drifted a thin black cloud.

"Looks like an extinct volcano," said Vilak, pointing to it. "This whole western part of the continent is volcanic. Undoubtedly why they have so many earthquakes. This one doesn't look as if it compared in size with Chimborazo, but it must have been a good one in its day."

Another day and a half brought them to the foothills. The trail dropped sharply into a long mountain-girded valley which led like a highway built by giants to the great red heap in the distance. It was practically treeless, except for a few bare outcroppings of rock, being almost entirely covered by continuous matted stretches of cactus and the other thorny plants which occurred on the plateau. Swarms of purple butterflies drifted lazily over the tops of the green vegetation. Here, too, caranchos wheeled lazily in the sky.

"This is obviously the devil valley Bagarundi warned us of," Vilak grunted as he stood on a high rock and looked down on the wide vista spread before him. "And that extinct volcano is undoubtedly the red mountain." He took some betel. "We'll know in a little while whether he had any real reason to be afraid. Keep to the center of the path. Remember that. Keep to the center of the path. Our lives may depend upon it."

They descended. They had tramped cautiously down the valley for only three or four miles, when Vilak noticed that the caranchos over them had suddenly ceased their listless flying and were concentrating over a spot in the road about half a mile ahead.

He quickened his pace. In a few moments he had reached a rocky outcrop a few feet higher than the general level of the path. He stopped short. Ten yards ahead was a circle of fifteen or twenty caranchos, all motionless, silent, patiently watching an object which lay in the middle of the road.

The object was a man. He was on his back, his legs and his single arm at rigid angles with his lean body. Vilak saw a velvet jacket bright with brass buttons. He did not need to look at the swarthy cheeks or the mouth, where four teeth had been broken off as though by a crowbar.

It was Detto Cicerone. He lay as dead, though there was no outward sign of a wound or bruise on his small body. Only his eyes seemed alive, drawn and gleaming with anguish like the eyes of the faithful Tony Barbetta as he lay dying on the road to Porto Verde weeks before.

BIG SHOW ARRIVES LATE TO-MORROW

Miller Brothers Coming Here From Kitchener—Tented City.

The long orange and black show train comprising thirty-five railroad cars, all show owned ,and containing the animals, wagons, equipment, properties, effects, and personnel of the Miller Brothers' Exposition Shows will arrive here over the Canadian National lines from Kitchener late to-morrow afternoon. The train will arrive in two sections and will be parked at the Ware street crossing.

On Monday the Exhibition Park will assume the aspect of a tented city, with seas of billowing canvas and a myriad of incadescent lights. Everything will be huste, bustle, and activity in preparation for the inital apipearance and opening on Monday night. Admission to the grounds is free and ample parking space for autos has been provided.

Among the various shows and exhibitions are Law and Outlaw Show, with its exact reproductions in wax of notorious outlaws and law enforcers. Here also you will find Lindbergh or Lucky Lindy as he is known. Miller Brothers' Wild West Show is an added feature, especially booked for the Canadan engagement, with a host of Cowboys, Indians, Rough-Riders and an Indian Band. Other features are the Streets of Cairo, Hawaiian Show, Sahara, The Show Beautiful and the Underworld Show.

This mamonth amusement enterprise carries its own electric-lighting plant, water sprinkling system, and blacksmith shop with a crew of trained mechanics in each department. Veritably the Miller Brosthers' Exposition Shows is by far the greatest tented amusement enterprise ever to exhibit here and it is really Coney Island transplanted.

LAND CRUISES

Have you ever wondered at the scanty experience of some travellers? "Banff"? they say, "Oh, yes, that is out west:" Lake Louise, the Windermere drive, Over the Great Divide. Have you had the pleasure? Has the joy of your trip been marred getting meals, shelter and reservations so that you saw hastily, or not at all, the very beauties you went so far to view.

Canadian Pacific Land Cruise members are not encumbered with the cares and worries of the individual traveller. Free from all petty details, you can cruise along the wonder belt of the world, over the Great Prairies, through the Canadian Pacific Rockies, Across the Great Lakes, the two inspiring motor drives, seeing everything worth while, bringing back a rich store of vivid impressions, unspoiled by the memory of annoyances and discomforts. You never get into difficulties, Sinclair Laird the director, has made the way smooth beforehand. Ask J. Skinner, local C.P.R. representative, for Cruise literature. 28-9-16

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND MR. POKE

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Hold on there a moment! Wait a minute, if you please!" called a voice as Mr. Longears hopped along beside the brook one afternoon on his way to look for an adventure. The tall grass, weeds and hollow reed stems grew so thickly along the brook that, for a moment or two, Mr. Longears did not know who had called him.

"It couldn't have been the Bob Cat, Wolf or Fox, anyhow," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "They would never be so polite as to say 'please.' So I can count them out. But who was it?"

Just then the voice called again:

"I want to speak to you, Uncle Wiggily!"

Then the rabbit saw, swimming in the brook, Mr. Poke, the mud turtle gentleman, who seemed in more of a hurry than usual.

"Are you in trouble, Mr. Poke," asked the bunny gentleman. Mr. Poke was so named because he was a bit slow. But he was kind, good and polite, so what did slowness matter, I ask you? Nothing, you answer.

"Oh, no, I'm not in trouble," replied the turtle. "In fact I was never so happy in my life. I am so busy serving as a ferry-boat to take bugs, worms and ants across the brook that I don't have time to think of troubles. And I want to thank you for getting me this job."

"Why, I didn't get you any job," said the rabbit.

"Yes, you did," croaked the voice of the turtle. "Up to yesterday I only had very little to do being a ferryboat and taking little turtle boys and girls, who were just learning to make their way in this world, to and fro across the brook. But yesterday you had me ferry Grass Hopper over; don't you remember?"

"Oh, of course I remember!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. And I hope you children have not forgotten. I told you that story last night.

"Well," went on Mr. Poke, "after the other grasshoppers and July bugs and worms and ants and fireflies saw how nicely I carried your jumping friend across the brook on my back, they all wanted me to give them boat rides. And I have been kept busy ever since. I am doing a regular ferry service now and making money at it."

"Glad to hear that!" said Mr. Longears, as a party of ant ladies crawled down to the edge of the brook and had Mr. Poke ferry them over to attend a bridge whist party on the other side.

"That's the way it is all day!" explained Mr. Poke, "and I am very grateful to you for showing me how to get into a paying business for I didn't make a cent taking little turtles on my back. They were all distant relatives and never thought of paying me," explained Mr. Poke, when he returned after taking the ant ladies across.

"I am glad you are so happy and busy," remarked Mr. Longears, and then, all of a sudden, there was a rustling in the bushes and the turtle gentleman, raising his head, whispered:

"Quick, Uncle Wiggily, hide! I see the Bob Cat coming and I guess he is after you. He must have followed your tracks."

"Very likely!" agreed the rabbit. "I'll hide until he goes."

The bunny slipped back into the bushes, hopping on hard ground where his paws would leave no marks. Then, all of a quickness, out of the thicket sprang the Bob Cat.

"Where is Uncle Wiggily?" snarled the bad chap at Mr. Poke.

"How should I know where Mr. Longears is?" coldly asked the turtle.

"Well you know all right!" snarled the Bob Cat. "I followed his tracks here and I heard his voice a moment ago. I know what happened! You took him to the other side of the brook on your back. I heard you had become a ferry-boat turtle. But Uncle Wiggily can't get away like that! You took him across the brook on your back!"

"Oh, I never did!" croaked the turtle.

"Yes, you did!" growled the Bob Cat. "And now you must take me over on your back so I can chase that rabbit."

"I can't! You're too heavy for me!" objected Mr. Poke.

"Heavy or not, you'll ferry me across the brook, because I don't like to get wet!" snarled the Cat. Before the turtle could swim away, the Bob Cat jumped on his back. But the turtle's shell was slippery, the Bob Cat's claws could get no hold and, all of a sudden, the bad chap slipped into the water where he floundered about getting all wet and howling for help!

"Help you? Not I!" cried Uncle Wiggily laughing in his hiding place.

"Nor I. Get out the best way you can! croaked the turtle swimming away. Then Mr. Longears hopped safely to his bungalow leaving the Bob Cat in the brook, where he may be yet for all I know.

On Thursday, morning, July 7, the marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, in Oshawa, of Alma Margaret, eldest daughter of Mrs. Isabel Cox and the late Mr. Cox, to Fred Collins Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Maxwell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Cameron Cox, was unattended. She wore a lovely gown of pale blue georgette, with silver shoes and hose, and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. She also wore the gift of the bridegroom, a platinum bar pin set with diamonds.

After a wedding breakfast had been served, Mr. and Mrs. Walker left by motor for Huntsville, Muskoka, the bride travelling in a black and white costume. On their return they will reside at 409 Walton Street, Peterborough.

HEMPSTEAD—NORTHCOTT.

On Thursday, June 30th, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, a pretty wedding took place when Florence Alice, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Northcott, was united in marriage to Alfred Thomas, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hempstead, of Cobourg. Rev. William Allan officiated. Mr. A. C. Northcott of Toronto, acted as best man, Mrs. A. C. Northcott as matron of honour, and Miss Maude Fife as bridesmaid.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of peacock blue brocaded canton crepe, with silver trimming, a grey hat, and grey shoes and stockings. She carried a bouquet of deep yellow roses. The matron of honour wore a dress of French blue crepe de chine, with hat to match, and grey shoes and stockings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid was in baby blush crepe, with white picture hat and blonde shoes and stockings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

After the ceremony a luncheon was served on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents, where a large number of guests were present.

Steel Worker Still Living 14 Days After 26-Foot Red-Hot Rod Pierced His Head

HAMMOND, Ind., July 9 (Canadian Press).—Paul Kosty was still cheating death in hospital here today, the fourteenth day since his head was pierced by a 26-foot red hot steel rod. Kosty, working in a steel mill, was struck in the neck by a rod, which passed through his head. He has been conscious ever since and his first full meal since the accident consisted of tomato soup, mashed potatoes, string beans, apple pie, custard pudding and two glasses of milk yesterday.

The jagged hole in Kosty's neck, more than an inch in diameter, is rapidly healing. Surgeons removed two square inches of bone from his skull and an x-ray examination shows four definite skull fractures.

QUESTION OF GARBAGE DISPOSAL BOTHERS CHEMONG COTTAGERS

Some Burn Refuse, Others Bury It, Few Use Lake.

COLLECTION FAILS.

Rates Levied Too High, Say Cottagers, Who Charge Profiteering.

Problems occupying the attention at present of the summer residents at Chemong Park, are the lack of adequate transportation facilities and the ever-present question of a satisfactory method of garbage disposal. People who lack cars are at a loss to know how to get in and out of the park, as the bus service is not yet properly established.

The question of garbage disposal is a burning one in more ways than one. Those who have cook stoves do burn their garbage, but the majority have not such a means at their disposal, and are compelled to resort to all sorts of measures, from the digging of sundry small pits, which rapidly become filled, to the surreptitious practice of stealthy nocturnal visits to the lake, when surplus garbage is dumped into the concealing waters. This last practice meets with general disapproval, as the residents are not anxious to bathe in waters so polluted.

Some years back there was a collector of garbage but the residents declare that his rates became impossibly high, and the service was discontinued through lack of patronage. Again certain gentlemen undertook to inaugurate a system of their own, and were later accused of profiteering over the business, which duly immediately stopped in indignation.

Some of the hazards of the question of garbage may be guessed when the disposal of such hefty refuse as piles of corn cobs, melon rinds, and skins of all sorts are considered, and then there are eventualities, like the instance where a skunk made his home in a garbage heap and burrowed too deeply to be disturbed, or to be able to make his way out later. His subsequent demise added considerably to the general atmospheric aroma.

The park has its nightly quota of dancers, who appear to enjoy to the utmost the excellent music at the pavilion.

ARMED BURGLARS LOOT THREE STORES

Escape After Long Chase in Early Morning Through Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont. July 9.—(Canadian Press.)—After having entered three stores in the east end of the city, two armed thugs engaged in a gun battle with Police Constable Percy Short early to-day and escaped after a long chase through the city. The thieves gained entrance to two of the stores by cutting the screening at the rear doors and inserting a skeleton key in the locks, while one store door was opened with a "jimmy."

Fortunately, there was not much cash on hand in any of the shops and the amount stolen did not amount to much more than seventy dollars, though the robbers carried off a considerable quantity of goods.

NASSAU MAN UNVEILS TABLET COMMEMORATING ANCESTOR IN ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN CHURCH

Stewart Brown is One of 177 Descendants of City Pioneer.

FAMILY RE-UNION

Experiences of Early Settlers Re-Told in Sermon by Rector.

Fitting tribute to the worth of two of the pioneer figures of the city of Peterborough was paid yesterday at the morning service in St. John's Church by Rev. R. C. Blagrave at the unveiling of a memorial tablet to the Hon. T. A. Stewart and his wife, Frances, erected by 177 of their descendants residing in various parts of the North American continent.

The memorial was unveiled by Stewart Brown, of Nassau, one of the Stewart Clan.

The memorial was unveiled by of the re-union of the members of the Stewart family, many of whom have greeted each other during the past three days in Peterborough after years of separation. The re-union wound up yesterday afternoon when the visitors were entertained by the Church Women's Association of St. John's to tea in the Parish Hall.

Placed on the west side of the church, the tablet bears the following inscription:

In Memory of
Hon. Thomas Alexander Stewart,
And His Wife,
Frances Stewart,

Who in 1826 Organized a Congregation, and held Services in the Schoolhouse; in 1836 £700 had been subscribed, as a result of which St. John's Church was erected. First Service held July, 1837, conducted by Rev. Samuel Armour.

This Memorial, placed July, 1927, by 177 Descendants.

"Lord, Thou has been our refuge from one generation to another."

Dr. Blagrave took his text from Psalm xl., 1,2: "I waited patiently for the Lord ;and He inclined unto me and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings."

Dr. Blagrave said:

"These words interpret the life of Frances Stewart. The volume of her letters and correspondence collected in 'Our Forest Home,' by Miss Dunlop, show the inside of her mind through many trials and hardships, shared by many others, and how she found strength to bear through them from Him Who alone can give strength. 'I inclined my heart unto Him and He heard my prayer.

"There is no need here to recount the hardships of those pioneer days except that they are not appreciated by most of us. Think of a time when there was only a blazed trail from Cobourg to here, when a few settlers lived to the south among them on the east side of the river Capt. Rubidge, who afterwards moved to town and was so instrumental in the building of this church, when there was only one white settler in 'The Plains,' when north of here there was not one settler, but thick forest, where Indians carried on their primitive practices. In 1818 this place was chosen for a town site, but not until 1825 was it surveyed by Mr. Birdsall. In that yearyear we are told of a priest and a Dr. Reade coming, also of a Baptist missionary doing work among the Indians. It was prior to 1826 that the worst trials were endured. In that year there was a considerable colony, and the city was given its present name at a banquet to the Governor (the first visit), the name being suggested by Mrs. Stewart, in memory of Peter Robinson, and also, I am glad to say, after the city of Peterborough in England.

"With this background in our minds we can better appreciate the beginning of the life of the Stewart family (and others, of course) in this north country. In the spring of 1822 the Stewarts and Reids left Belfast, Ireland, to settle in Upper Canada. They belonged on all sides to distinguished families in the Old Land, and were accustomed only to cultured surroundings and to the advantages that family connection and wealth provide. A reverse of fortune (things were bad in Ireland) forced them to emigrate. They arrived at York in the summer of 1822, and were given virgin land in the Township of Douro. Fortunately, they had many friends in York and Cobourg. They arrived in Douro after many trials of travel, with children, to see the site of their future habitation. Then Mrs. Stewart returned to Cobourg, whence in February of 1823, when a log cabin had been built, they returned to their home in Douro, where the Hamilton homestead now stands, afterwards named Auburn. They were then the only white settlers in the township, the rest being Indians. Thos. Stewart was afterwards made a member of the Upper Chamber of

Preparations Made For Atlantic Flight

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., July 11 (Canadian Press).—Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, who, with Sir John Alcock, first flew across the Atlantic, will witness the take off of Captain F. T. Courtney, the British ace, from Southampton waters on the latter's initial hop in the flight which is designed to bring Courtney fame as the first aviator to span the Atlantic westward.

All preparations have been made to start for New York on Wednesday in the Duralumin Dornier flying boat, the "Whale," it is stated by R. B. Wainwright, Courtney's business manager. Wainwright will accompany the aviator of the first hop, which will take the "Whale" to Valentia, in Southern Ireland, where a base has been established.

FIRST PARADES SMALL AFFAIRS

Only 10 Persons in the Orange Parade Here in 1843.

RAPID GROWTH.

Like most other things in this country ,the annual Orange parade on July 12 has developed from a comparatively insignificant affair to a celebration of great proportions.

At the Orange parade at Peterborough on July 12, 1843, 10 persons—six men, three women, and one boy—made up the entire procession. This may be largely explained by the fact that in these days, Peterborough was an insignificant community, boasting of only one brick house, situated on Charlotte Street.

The succeededing years have witnessed large additions to the number of those participating. In 1910, no less than 1,100 members of the Loyal Orange Lodges of this city took part in a monster demonstration of about 14,000 persons at Lindsay in celebration of the 220th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

The Peterborough contingent found itself one of a large army from points in the extreme north country and from beyond Cobourg and Havelock in the east. There were lodges from Simcoe, Haliburton, Northumberland, Durham, Victoria, North Ontario, in attendance, as well as those from our city. Lindsay was en fete for the occasion, the streets being beautifully decorated. The long procession was the largest of its kind which Lindsay had witnessed up to that date.

Heavy rains caused a curtailment of the speeches, and saturated the banners and decorations, but failed entirely to damp the ardor of the men and women who turned out to do honor to King William and his doughty warriors, who struck a decisive blow for freedom in Britain.

The band of the Peterborough Rangers was in attendance on that day, in 3 sections, one heading Nassau, another Emily and the third leading the van of march of the lodges of the City of Peterborough.

Four years ago Cobourg entertained the largest crowd in its history, when the Orange lodges descended on it for the July 12th ceremonials.

Forty-five lodges were represented in a parade which boasted 23 fife and drum bands, 5 brass 2 pipe and 1 bugle combinations.

Peterborough with 500 members in line furnished the largest delegation in the march, which was distinguished by the presence of 1500 visitors from lodges in various parts of the States.

The Bowmanville drummer covered himself with glory by accomplishing that feat so dear to the hearts of all wielders of the stick in a fife and drum band. He stove in the side of his drum.

To-morrow's procession in Cobourg bids fair to equal ,if not to surpass, its predecessor of 1923.

Good weather, declare loeal Orangemen, that indispensable requirement for a successful procession, is all that is necessary to ensure a day that will stand out in the history of Orangeism in this neighborhood.

Wireless Is Used To Summon Brigade

LIVERPOOL, Eng., July 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Wireless was employed Saturday for the first time in England to summon land fire engines to a burning ship nearing port.

With her hold ablaze, the steamer Patriotic of the Belfast Steamship Company, en route from Belfast, radioed for the Liverpool fire forces and then made a mad dash for shore.

The waiting fire brigades, after an hour's battle with the flames, saved the Patriotic's valuable cargo of cloth and hemp twine.

SNIPE SHOOTING IS AUTHORIZED

Yellow Legs May Also Be Shot For Three Months.

FROM SEPTEMBER 1.

Capt. R. W. Carson, local game inspector, has received notification of the passing of an Order-in-Council, upon the recommendation of Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines and Fisheries ,authorizing the taking of Wilson or Jack Snipe and the Greater and Lesser Yellow Legs from September 1 to December 1, both days inclusive.

Although sandpipers and plovers are common enough in this neighborhood, snipe for many years have been comparatively scarce. Forty years ago however, snipe of all varieties were abundant, particularly in and around Spalding's Bay, where the MacDonald Lumber Yard now stands. The late R. S. Cooke, afterwards Mayor of Prince Albert, was a noted hunter of snipe in this district.

The habits of the snipe were favorable to the securing of large bags. The snipe frequented the west side of the bay. When the sportsman made his first attack, obtaining several of their number ,the snipe usually flew east to the islands on the river which were then entirely treeless. The hunters rowed to the islands and had a second opportunity following which the fowl flew back to the west side—a mode of procedure which often continued till the bag was filled.

HUNDREDS PERISH IN SAXONY FLOODS

Incalculable Damage Done By Floods Following Cloudbursts on Saturday.

DRESDEN, Saxony, July 11 (Canadian Press).—A vast area in Saxony is deep under water; hundreds of people are believed to have perished, and incalculable damage done by the floods which followed cloudbursts on Saturday.

So great was the sweep of the waters that they came down the valley at a height of from five to seven feet, carrying all before them.

Official figures on the catastrophe issued by the Berggieshubel Municipality place the known dead at 93 in that district alone. But this is not thought to be the full extent of the casualty as many of the inhabitants are still missing. Half the population of this popular spa are homeless and only a small grocery store is left to supply the survivors with the necessaries of life. The town's main street is practically demolished and many bodies repost in the ruins of the church and the Turner Hall.

Berggieshubel is one of the greatest sufferers in the disaster, the effects of which are assuming such dimensions that 450 additional emergency workers were recruited from the surrounding townships to aid in the salvage.

The suddenness of the disaster which occurred in the middle of the night, is illustrated by the fact that three men engaged in a game of cards at Glaghuette were surprised and instantly drowned by a gigantic wave. Most of the victims were drowned in their beds, or swept away, still alive, by the rushing torrent.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 11 (Canadian Press). — The meetings of the first and second preference shareholders and common shareholders of the British Empire Steel Corporation were held here to-day for the purpose of passing on the plans of re-organization submitted by the management. All three meetings were adjourned until to-morrow, when an announcement will be made as to whether or not the management succeeded in securing control of a sufficient number of shares to ensure the acceptance of the plan.

LOCAL ORANGE LODGES HOLD CHURCH PARADE

Rev. J. E. Todd Addresses Members at George Street United Church.

LAW OF ORDER.

Formed By Persons Respecting Principles of Religion and Obeying Law.

Over three hundred members of the Loyal Orange Order attended George street church last night, led by the L. O.L. 50 Band, and marshalled by A. Holden. The address, given by the Rev. J. E. Todd, was taken from the second chapter of the Book of Zechariah, "I lifted up mine eyes again and looked and beheld a man with measuring line in his land. Then said I, Whither goest Thou? And he said to me To measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length therof."

In welcoming the Orangemen last night Mr. Todd read some laws in the Order and showed that these could not be measured by a tape line. "The Loyal Orange Order is formed by persons supporting principles of religion keeping the laws of the country and assisting in performing good services to mankind. The Association also demands a qualification from each member on entering the organization to defend all the loyal subjects of the King, and to have the right attitude towards God, King and Country and Mankind, or pronouncement in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of Man. "With this in view," continued the minister, let us all pray and hope that God will aid in the principles of the Orange Order Association."

Going back to the time of the Bible, Mr. Todd remarked that just as it was impossible for the young man there to measure the city of Jerusalem, so was it impossible in our lives to measure many things. As an example of this the speaker told of an expeerience two men had some time ago in the city of Niagara Falls. Here these men were on a small scow above the Falls and it broke loose from its moorings. Sweeping down towards the Falls the boat caught on a snag and they were eventually saved. But even though the men were a short distance from shore it was impossible for them to cross the swiftly moving current to safety.

"Some men would try to measure the Bible," continued Mr. Todd, "but the Bible is a human, throbbing thing, foretelling scenes such as the Great War, and like the sea, is measureless. Others would attempt to measure the church, but only disaster awaits the man who would speak against the church, and in the end will be forced to reckon with it.

I challenge all the members of this church and of others that you are in great peril if you are indifferent and that in a while you will need the church a great deal more than the church needs you at the present time.

Another vital thing that cannot be measured is manhood. A man may be measured by dollars and cents on a market, but it is the character that counts. An illustration of this point would be the heroic deeds that predominated in the recent World War, where men died, not only for country and friends at home, but for their chums on the battle field, and thus, "Greater love hath no man than to lay down his life for his friend."

In closing the minister stated that when the end of this life came it would be not what we are paid that would count, but God's words that would mean the most, 'Well done, good and faithful servant.'

When the Orangemen returned to the hall last evening after the service a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Brother J. J. Cunningham, and seconded by Bro. E. F. Reid, to Rev. J. E. Todd for his impressive address, and also to the soloist and choir and to the officials of the church, for the manner in which the visitors had been treated.

Berlin Air Wedding Pastor Is Suspended

BERLIN, July 11 (Associated Press). — Berlin's "flying sky pilot," the Rev. Newspapers condemn the innovation. The bridegrooms in the weddings were employees of the Rohrback Airplane Works.

TWO MEN DEAD; CROPS RUINED

Great Damage Done By Hail Storms in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

MANY AREAS VISITED.

WINNIPEG, July 11. Canadian Press. — Two men are dead a third believed to be fatally injured, and several other persons have been seriously injured, while the crop and property damage will run into millions of dollars as a result of wind, hail and rain storms which have swept through many districts in western Canada since Friday last.

Alberta and Saskatchewan, following cyclones terrific hail and rain storms report great damage, while the Province of Manitoba has been practically immune from storm damage, Roblin being the only district to report any serious damage.

Damage in Saskatchewan.

SASKATOON, July 11. Canadian Press. — Severe hail damage is reported from several points as follows: Loverna, hail cleaned out crop in this district about 60%; Eatonia 100% loss. A strip three miles wide through the entire district; Big River, bad hail; heavy damage.

Heavy property damage and loss to crops is reported in Alberta, though definite news of the crosp loss is not available. Saskatchewan reports that thousansd of acres of grain are ruined the losses running as high as 100% in some districts.

The deaths are reported from Saskatchewan, where S. Furcryk and M. Ailkowiski, Polish immigrants, were killed near Watskiewin, when a granary in which they were sleeping was blown over during a severe wind and hail storm. A companion is not expected to live.

BOYS TURN IN FALSE ALARM

Wanted "To See the Reels Go" and Call Out Whole Fire Brigade.

EXAMPLE TO BE GIVEN.

At 8.50 last night an alarm was sent in to the Fire Hall, from Box 29. On arriving at the box, the firemen could find no trace of any fire. But they did find the instigators of the alarm —two small boys, who had rung the box "to see the reels go." It was a sorry time for the boys, however, for it is understood by The Examiner from an interview at the hall this morning, that the two lads are to be made an example of to prevent future foolish pranks of other children.

When a box alarm is sent in, it usually means a large fire, and practically all of the fire apparatus is sent out, and both shifts of the brigade, if possible responds, thus endangering many men's lives.

At 1.40 p.m., the brigade responded to a chimney fire at 585 Chamberlain street, where overheated pipes had caused a small blaze.

STEWART FAMILY PLACES WREATHS

Graves of Ancestors and Park Monument Are Decorated.

During their re-union visit here, the members of the Stewart family were not unmindful of the graves of their honored kinsfolk. On Saturday, prior to a trip to Stoney Lake, the members of the Clan proceeded to Little Lake Cemetery, where, after a minute of silent meditation, a wreath was deposited by Miss Dunlop, in the name of the Clan, on the graves of the founders of the family, Hon. T. A. Stewart and his wife, Frances Stewart. The memorial fountain of Captain E. T. Brown on Confederation Square was also decorated by a wreath placed by E. Herbert Brown of Montreal, a cousin and a boyhood friend of that gallant Peterborough officer who perished at Batoche.

The decoration of these graves was not on the programme as first drawn up, and was carried out in response to an impulse which originated simultaneously among numerous members on Saturday morning.

ODDFELLOWS HOLD ANNUAL DECORATION

Members of Local Lodges Honor Memory of Dead Brethren.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

Rev. David Wren Delivers Fitting Address To Members and Friends.

Peterborough Oddfellows yesterday paid honor to their departed brethren when they held the impressive decoration service of their Order at Little Lake Cemetery.

Headed by the Salvation Army Band, about 250 members of the Order, consisting principally of members of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, but with many visitors in line, marched from the hall on George Street to the cemetery. Here hundreds of relatives and friends, not only of the members who lie in the cemetery, had already done their share in decorating the many graves, and the plots of the hallowed spot were in many cases covered with masses of flowers.

The Rev. David Wren of Trinity United Church was the speaker for the occasion, while Bro. J. H. Price, P.G., read the service of the Order. "Lest We Forget," was the theme of the short but fitting address delivered by Mr. Wren. He commended the members of the Order for their thoughtfulness in preserving and honoring the memory of their brethren who had gone before, many of whom had been instrumental in founding and building up their lodges.

The speaker said that the folk of yesterday had achieved many great things, which are not being forgotten by their descendants, who owe so much to them. Canada has honored especially this year, in the great Jubilee celebration of a week ago, the pioneers of the country, particularly those who brought about the confederation of the provinces.

The people of the present owe much to those who carved out this Dominion from the wilderness and those who succeeded them and joined its separate parts into one great nation. The Oddfellows set other citizens an example by their remembrance of the pioneers and other members of their Order who have passed from this life.

Hymns sung, led by the Salvation Army Band, were "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

The service concluded, the Oddfellows separated into several companies and visited the graves of their brethren. The brief ritual as the flowers were placed in the dignified vases bearing the emblem of the Order was most impressive. The leader would call out the name of the departed and his lodge, after which one of the brethren would place his bouquet while the chaplain of the party repeated some suitable verse or quotation.

About 230 graves were decorated. The entire ceremony was in charge of Bro. R. G. Martin, P.G.

MURDER FOUND BY DUBLIN JURY

O'Higgins Murdered By Three Persons Unknown, is Verdict.

FRIEND TESTIFIES.

DUBLIN, July 11 (Canadian Press) —A verdict of wilful murder by three persons unknown was returned at the inquest on Kevin O'Higgins today.

Testifying at the inquest, Prof. John MacNeil told how first Mr. O'Higgins said, as the professor stopped over him, "I forgive my murderers." The dying man then continued, giving directions for taking charge of his papers.

"He told me," said the professor, "to give a message of love to his wife ;to tell her he loved her, that he loved her eternally."

Free State Minister Is Slain By Bullets While Going To Mass

Kevin O'Higgins Is Attacked By Three Men in Automobile Near His Residence—Assassins Escape With Other Confederates.

DISPENSED WITH ARMED ESCORT FOR FIRST TIME IN MANY MONTHS

Dying Patriot Forgives Them—Father Victim of Assassins in 1923—Dictates Will in the Presence of Friends.

DUBLIN, July 11. — Kevin O'Higgins, known as "The Strong Man" of the Irish Free State, was shot down yesterday, and killed by assassins. As in the case of another "strong man," Michael Collins, his murderers lay in wait for him, and as he was walking alone from his home at Black Rock, a short distance from Dublin, to mid-day mass, an automobile pulled up beside him, and three men pumped bullets into him.

The assassins drove away, and thus far have escaped the police.

As he lay on the road mortally wounded, O'Higgins, vice-president of the Free State Council, Minister of Justice and Foreign Affairs, gasped out: "I forgive them all."

Nothing could be done to staunch the flow of blood which was streaming from half a dozen wounds. Four bullets had gone through his neck, one passed into his chest, and another through the ear to the base of the brain.

But the sorely wounded man retained consciousness, and to those about him said: "I am dying at peace with my enemies. I die for my country. I go to join Michael Collins."

Dispensed With Escort.

Mr. O'Higgins was usually accompanied by a detective, but yesterday, when starting for the Booterstown Catholic Church for mass, he told his escort for the first time in three years to remain at home. He was taken entirely by surprise when attacked. The first shot struck him in the abdomen, but he managed to stagger across the road, where he collapsed . His assailants fired five or more other bullets into his head and body before springing into the car and driving furiously away.

The first to reach the wounded Minister were Eamon Flemming, an official of the Ministry of Finance, his brother, and Prof. John MacNeill, former Minister of Education.

Fleming raised his head, and Kevin whispered huskily: "They've got me, just as they got my father," and later, "I forgive them. I die at peace with my enemies and my God."

Turning to Prof. MacNeill he said: "There is no hope; I want to dictate my will."

Dictates His Will.

MacNeill knelt on the blood-stained footpath, and in a clear voice O'Higgins dictated his will, leaving everything he possessed to his wife and baby daughter.

The best surgeons in Dublin were summoned to his home, where he was taken, but they could do nothing to save his life. Despite his terrible wounds his mind remained clear to the end, and the doctors marvelled at his vitality. He embraced his wife and child, and said farewell to scores of friends.

"Kevin, while there's life there's hope," one of them said encouragingly.

"Ah! there is no hope," the Minister declared in his old cynical manner. "But I was always a bit of a diehard."

"Irish Mussolini."

Kevin O'Higgins was known as the Irish Mussolini on account of the strong measures he adopted for suppressing the Republican attempt to smash the Free State by force of arms. He was probably the most respected and at the same time the most hated man in Ireland. A nephew of Governor Tim Healy, he shared the Governor's gift of incisive and bitter speech. Combined with this was a keen analytical mind and inflexible will. But for him it is considered doubtful if the Free State could have survived the civil war of 1922.

The dead Minister was always particularly outspoken in his denunciations of the Republicans and the De Valera party in his political speeches and for this and other reasons was provided with police protection when he went about.

A particularly touching coincidence is that his assassination follows the similar fate of his father, Dr. O'Higgins, who was shot dead by armed raiders in his own home in 1923.

Other Murders

The assassination of Kevin O'Higgins recalls a long series of similar crimes having to do with Ireland between 1919 and 1922.

Serious Damage and Loss of Life in Territory Surrounding Jerusalem.

JERUSALEM, July 11 (Canadian Press).—The Holy City escaped lightly in the earthquake felt in this region today, but loss of life and serious damage occurred in the surrounding country. In Jerusalem, a small dome of the holy sepulchre was badly cracked and otherbuildings in the old city collapsed. Several persons were injured but no deaths were reported

BIG SWEEPER LOADED ON CAR

Track Cleaning Device of Street Railway Going To Windsor.

HEAVY MACHINE.

After fifteen hours of strenuous labor during which two men sustained minor injuries, the street car track sweeper formerly used by the Peterborough Radial Railway, was yesterday mounted on one of the long flat wagons of the C.P.R. at the station, where it now awaits shipment to Windsor, to be used in the Western division of the Hydro street railways.

The sweeper, which was removed from the car barns on King Street on Thursday evening, was towed to the station by one of the trucks of a city cartage company. At the station, under the supervision of J. L. Clifford, the 17-ton sweeper was turned around, jacked up and placed on the rails—an operation which was attended with great difficulty. The jack slipped three times under its heavy burden and Bert Rate, barn foreman, was injured about the head, while one of his assistants, A. Kitchener, had his foot slightly crushed.

From the ground, a slightly sloping runway was built, on which rails were placed and the sweeper was drawn up by the truck until it was raised sufficiently to be placed on the railway car. This accomplished, the sweeper was firmly braced on the wagon by a large number of stout railway ties.

While the work was in progress, a crowd of spectators gathered around the five men on the job and tendered a considerable quantity of unsolicited advice. One of the workers humorously suggested that the passing of the fare box formerly in use on the cars might be effective in dispersing the onlookers.

It is expected that the sweeper will begin its journey to Windsor late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Workmen are still engaged in taking down the wires of the now defunct tramway system in this city.

C.P.R. LINER RAMS ICEBERG

Montcalm Delayed 44 Hours in Ice Field in Mid-Atlantic.

SLIGHT DAMAGE.

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 11. — (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Pacific steamer Montcalm, two days out from Montreal, ran into an iceberg, but eventually came off without much damage, though she was delayed 44 hours in the ice field.

The Montcalm had the closest kind of an escape when, on July 3, after passing several small bergs in the Strait of Belle Isle, the ship suddenly slid on to a submerged ledge of a big berg and canted steeply. It had been foggy for many hours, and the Montcalm consequently was proceeding slowly, with a keen lookout. But the tall iceberg appeared to rise suddenly out of the mist.

It was 2.30 in the afternoon, and many of the passengers were on deck. Others rushed up, feeling the shock. They were ordered to don life-belts. Life-boats were swung out and crews stood ready to launch them.

In the meantime the Montcalm righted herself and slid off the ledge. An examination showed that a propeller blade was gone, but otherwise only the paint was scraped.

The fog continued for two days, and the ship was unable to proceed. Other vessels were similarly held up and sirens were heard on all sides.

Eventually the fog lifted and the Montcalm, although somewhat crippled, was able to proceed at reduced speed.

BARN IS BURNED; CAUSE UNKNOWN

Bonar Law Man Loses Part of Season's Crop With Buildings.

SOME INSURANCE.

BONAR LAW, July 11. — A large barn belonging to David Wallace was destroyed yesterday afternoon by a fire that endangered his home for some time.

Shortly after four o'clock the fire broke out from an unknown cause and although a large number of neighbors gathered immediately after the conflagration started, it was impossible to save either the barn or the adjoining driving sheds.

Mr. Wallace had part of the summer crop in, which was all burned. The barn was partly covered by insurance.

Turin Landlords Get Severe Punishment For Defying Fascist Law Curbing Rents

ROME, July 11.—Measures of almost unprecedented severity have been taken in Turin against three landlords for attempting to evade the recent Fascist decree which fixes the maximum rental of apartments and shops. Two landlords, Luigi Grassi and Giovanni Crovella, have been condemned to forced domicile, while another, Angelo Lingua, has been "admonished." They were found guilty of demanding exorbitant rentals from their tenants, mostly workmen and poor people, and attempting to evade the housing decrees.

Persons sent to forced domicile are obliged to live under police supervision in some locality indicated by the police authorities. It is usually an island formerly used as a penal settlement, but now given over to those condemned to forced domicile. They are free to do anything thy please, but may not leave the island until their sentence expires.

Persons "admonished" live under police vigilance in their own homes. They are quite free, but must not leave their homes between sundown and sunrise.

The stern measures taken against these landlords have created a great sensation, especially in the case of Luigi Grassi. His case was aggravated by the fact that he was a Fascist and attempted to use his standing with local chiefs to cloak his attempted evasions of the law.

Heroine of Flood Gave Life to Duty

LOGAN, Ohio, July 11 (Associated Press).—Devotion to duty in the face of peril cost Mrs. Albert Storer, thirty-five, her life, friends assert.

Mrs. Storer was night operator at the Murray City telephone exchange and during the cloudburst and flood last month remained at her board until she had warned everybody she could reach. She then waded into the flood waters and assisted those who had not escaped before the town was inundated.

After the excitement had subsided, Mrs. Storer collapsed. She died Thursday.4

Five Persons Killed In Religious Clash

BAGDAD, Turkey, July 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Two soldiers and three civilians were killed and a number on both sides were wounded yesterday in a clash between Mohammedans and a detachment of the Iraqui army. A hundred thousand Mohammedans had gathered to take part in the pious lamentations at the famous Shiah Mosque of Kadhimain, a few miles outside of Bagdad. The occasion was the annual passion play commemorating the death 1,200 years ago of Hosain, who is venerated as a martyr.

The origin of the trouble is obscure, but the crowd, angered by some real or imaginary affront, attacked the soldiers, who were unarmed.

OLD MASTERS

The bubbling brook doth leap when I come by,
Because my feet find measure with its call;
The birds know when the friend they love is nigh,
For I am known to them, both great and small.
The flower that on the lonely hillside grows,
Expects me there when spring its bloom has given;
And many a tree and bush my wanderings knows,
And e'en the clouds and silent stars of heaven;
For he who with his Maker walk aright:
Shall be their lord, as Adam was before
His ear shall catch each sound with new delight,
Each object wear the dress that then it wore;
And he, as when erect in soul he stood,
Hear from his Father's lips that all is good.

INSTITUTE MEETING HELD AT ROSENEATH

Routine Business Transacted at Meeting Held in Home of MOUNT PLEASANT, July 11.—The Mount Pleasant branch of East Durham Women's Institute held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. H. Lowes on Wednesday afternoon, July 6.

There was a small attendance of members owing to the busy season of the year and also the inclement condition of the weather prevented some from attending.

Several items of business were discussed and disposed of. Suggestions were given for the spending of the portion of district funds which is to be divided equally among the branches, but nothing definite was decided upon.

The secretary was asked to send an invitation to the Cavan Institute requesting them to meet with the local Institute at the home of Mrs. Harry Bland, the first Wednesday in August.

Miss Finley and Mrs. George Jamieson were the ladies in charge of the programme the latter, who is at present visiting with friends in Michigan, was unable to attend. Miss Finley gave a very inspiring paper on "Our flag, and what it stands for." Mrs. Thomas Graham also contributed an interesting reading on "Confederation."

A social half hour was enjoyed while the hostess assisted by the lunch committee, Mrs. Norman Fee and Mrs. Thomas Graham served five o'clock tea.

the Legislative Council of Upper Canada, and so is known as the Hon. Thos. Stewart.

"From the time of their arrival, they were very much concerned about having a church and a clergyman. They were brought up in the church's life and atmosphere, and numbered among their connection many eminent leaders in the church in Ireland and England. They were pious people who prized religion and knew the value of Divine Grace both for themselves and for their children in the days to come. At first they used to hold service in Mr. Stewart's house, when Mr. Reid read service and Mr. Stewart read the lesson. When little Bessie died of ague (a very common disease among settlers) in 1823, Mr. Reid took the funeral service. At that time the nearest clergyman lived at Millbrook, also the nearest doctor, Dr. Hutchison. In that year a friend who came to visit left £25 for some charitable purpose, which was put aside for the building of a church on the spot where little Bessie was buried. In 1824 Mrs. Stewart wrote Mrs. Mountain, wife of the Bishop of Quebec, for a missionary, as they are donig now in parts of the West, and received very sympathetic replies to her letters. As a consequence Mr. Armour came two years later, and so commenced the history of St. John's Church. In January, 1827, there were 74 persons at service in the Schoolhouse, and in 1828 over one hundred. The congregation then got together, and commenced raising funds for this church into which £75 already collected from friends by the Stewarts went, and so still in these walls, they being dead yet speak to us.

"It is very fitting that we should dedicate a tablet here one hundred years later, given by 177 of their descendants to the memory of the Christian pioneers who were so concerned about their church and religion in these early days. It is a tribute to their memory by those of their own family in which we as a church share and rejoice. It has brought together also members of the Stewart family from all directions and great distances who have not met for many years. There are not many remaining in this community — the Stewart Browns, the Collins, Miss Dunlop, and Mrs. Mathias are all that remain here. May the memory of those spiritual as well as material pioneers inspire us all to a greater devotion to the cause of the Master Whom they so faithfully served. 'I inclined my heart unto Him and He heard my prayer.'"

GIFT FOR TEACHER FROM HER PUPILS

Miss Kathleen Lancashire Has Resigned From Zion School.

MILLBROOK, July 11.—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Miss Kathleen Lancashire on a recent evening when the pupils of her school at Zion, with their parents, gathered at her home and presented her with a handsome cut-glass flower basket, with candlesticks in matching design.

Jack Coulter read the following address, the gifts being presented by two other pupils, Lazelle Brown and May Kennedy:

"Miss Kathleen Lancashire.

"Dear Miss Lancashire,—It is with sincere regret that we have learned that you are leaving our school.

"We know that you have always done your best for us, not only in our lessons, but also in teaching us to become useful citizens in the future.

"We ask you to accept these gifts as a slight token of our appreciation of your work for us.

"Signed on behalf of the Zion School."

Miss Lancashire, who has filled the position of teacher at Zion School for the past three years very acceptably, was much touched by the kindly words and remembrances from her scholars, and expressed her gratitude and appreciation in a few well-chosen words.

Games, music and social intercourse filled out the remainder of the evening happily, the service of dainty refreshments bringing the pleasant occasion to a close.

Miss Lancashire is not returning to the Zion School when the fall term opens.

NEW CRUISER BUILDING PLAN BEFORE COUNCIL

Proposals Rejected By Technical Experts Re-advanced in Modified Form.

HOPE FOR AGREEMENT.

Generally Expected Plenary Session Set For To-day Will Be Postponed.

GENEVA Switzerland, July 11. — Canadian Press. — It is generally expected that the plenary session of the Tripartite naval conference set for to-day, will be postponed.

W. C. Bridgman, First Lord of the Admiralty, has written to Hugh S. Gibson, Chief of the United States delegation, detailing a new British cruiser building plan, on which an agreement may be effected. The British state that the plan was considered at a session of the technical experts, but that the United States rejected it. It is now readvanced in modified form.

Mr. Gibson has replied asking for further information and intimating that as the British has asked for Monday's plenary session it was incumbent on them to say whether it should be held or not.

Great Britain's endeavors have been directed toward support of the point that large cruisers are aggressive weapons whereas small cruisers may more properly be called defensive. They lay emphasis therefore rather on the type of cruiser built than on the total tonnage. The United States on the other hand is anxious to protect the coffers of the nation by keeping down the total tonnage. It is estimated that if the British estimate of 465,000 tons were accepted it would involve the United States in an expenditure for a building programme of half a billion dollars. It is thought to be exceedingly questionable whether or not any such sum for naval construction could be got through Congress.

Near Break.

Reports of Saturday's private session received by the Associated Press indicate that the conference almost broke up there and then. In the course of a tumultuous discussion of the cruiser problem Admiral Hilary Jones of the United States delegation delivered an explanation of the American angle. The Associated Press understands that Admiral Jones' discourse caused Lord Cecil to exclaim, "This is perfect nonsense."

The correspondent further understands that on representations made by Mr. Gibson Lord Cecil withdrew his exclamation. The total tonnage argument of the United States' delegation came in for some comment from Vice-Admiral Field of the British delegation. He said: "Total tonnage?—why it means no more to the average mind than mere gallons."

Indications to-night were that while the Japanese want to hold down all classes of warships as far as possible, they are inclined to increase their support of the British as against the United States' desire for swift powerful cruisers.

The British spokesman declared last night that the door was still open and that he could not dream of failure of the conference.

Condemn Proposals.

TOKYO, July 11. Canadian Press. —Tokyo's vernacular newspapers almost unanimously condemn the proposals for increased tonnage made at the Geneva naval conference.

The Nichi-Nichi asserts that while Great Britain has no reason to possess 600,000 tons of cruisers neither is the United States justified in requesting parity in auxiliary craft.

The present Anglo-American plans mean naval expansion the Hochi declares and this is most unsatisfactory to Japan.

The Asani terms both the British and United States proposals regarding tonnage as "Astonishing," and continues: "We ask for what purpose Great Britain and America must strengthen their navies, which are already sufficiently strong."

MONDAY, JULY 11, 1927.

CANADA'S BIRTHDAY.

With the suggestion of The Brockville Recorder and Times that henceforth, following the successful celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee, more attention should be paid to the observance of Dominion Day each year, The Examiner is in hearty accord.

The First of July is Canada's own national holiday, and it deserves more in the way of a proper celebration than it has hitherto been accorded.

Each year there should at least be an effort made to recall Canada's history and to impress upon newcomers in particular the significance of the occasion.

The birthday of the Dominion should mean something more than a mere holiday; it should stand for a distinctly Canadian celebration that will act as a yearly tonic upon Canadians of long residence and have a most beneficial educative effect upon those citizens who have but recently thrown in their lot with ours.

Surely, at least, one day a year we should recall the debt of gratitude we owe to the pioneers of this favoured land and at the same time rejoice in our Canadian citizenship.

THE FLYING GAME.

It looks as if the airmen and their exploits will continue to monopolize front page space for some time to come judging by the number of long flights announced to take place in the near future.

But while these spectacular feats are attracting the lion's share of attention it should not be forgotten that there is a quiet development in the commercial use of aircraft that is of immense importance, and that a great deal of flying is being done about which little is being said, but which is setting up a consistent record so far as the scarcity of accidents is concerned.

Byrd, hero of the latest trans-Atlantic flight, declares that learning to run an aeroplane is only a little more difficult than learning to operate a motor car, and with the vast improvement in power facilities for aircraft the art of flying is becoming safer each day.

Here in Peterborough young flyers are being taught the secrets of the game, and there seems not the slightest doubt that a new and fascinating occupation in the field of commercial flying is being opened out to the graduates of this and other flying fields.

NOT ALL ON THE WRONG SIDE.

Jack Miner's article in The Examiner the other night, "Fishing on the Wrong Side of the Boat," in which he stressed the desirability in making highways of paying more attention to the welfare of little children instead of giving all the consideration to motorists, was both timely and interesting.

The child is the best asset we have, and in this matter, referred to by Mr. Miner and generally, should be given every chance.

Fortunately, that fact is becoming more and more recognized.

Never at any time in Peterborough's history have so many agencies been working on behalf of local children.

Such service clubs as the Rotarians and the Kiwanians make work on behalf of under-privileged children one of their principal aims.

The Rotary camp at Clear Lake, providing an ideal holiday for boys who might not otherwise get a chance, the supervised playgrounds where children may play in safety under careful instructors, the supervised bathing beach with the services of a swimming instructor available, the Health Association's summer camp at Jackson Park where youngsters whose health is below standard are given an opportunity to develop—these are all agencies for the welfare of children that were unheard of here a few years ago.

We are not doing all our fishing on the wrong side of the boat.

PUTTING TEETH IN IT.

Hon. J. S. Martin, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, whose efforts to improve agricultural conditions in the Province have been outstanding, is to be commended not only for putting teeth into the law regarding the extermination of weeds but for the campaign of advertising by which he is putting the matter before the people.

It would be difficult to estimate the amount of loss occasioned to Ontario farmers through noxious weeds—certainly the total must be very large—but a bit of evidence quoted in one of the advertisements of the Department of Agriculture throws some light upon the loss in value.

An inspector valuing a certain farm for loaning purposes reported:

"It is badly infested with sow thistle, as are all farms in the neighborhood. I have valued $1,000 less than I would if clean of this weed."

In other words, the presence of weeds took 12 per cent. value off the farm.

Local farmers should ask themselves how much they are losing from the same source, and resolve to fight the pest.

In fact, they have no choice.

Under the provisions of the Weed Control Act passed at the last session the destruction of harmful weeds is no longer option; it is compulsory.

Every occupant of land and every owner of unoccupied land, according to the Act, is required to destroy the weeds before the seeds ripen, while Municipal Councils are likewise compelled to destroy weeds growing upon streets or highways.

Hon. Mr. Martin's campaign should receive wholehearted co-operation; its success means much to Ontario.

THE PRESS AND THE PEOPLE.

No finer tribute has ever been paid to the press than that of Viscount Grey. Lord Grey of Falloden, as he is familiarly known, has for many years been afflicted with failing eyesight, and is now threatened with total blindness. Speaking of the newspapers of today, he says:

"I am unable to read anything in extenso, and this has made me aware of one great merit in the press of this country, namely, the admirable way in which a man suffering from my disability can keep in touch through the press with all the most important things going on in the world. It is no mean intellectual feat to give summaries in short articles, omitting every thing unimportant yet giving the maximum of what is important."

Coming from a man of the standing of Lord Grey this statement is of tremendous importance. Because of his wonderful record during the war and his well-known reputation as a scholar and a thinker, the words of Lord Grey are always carefully listened to, but by no class will this latest utterance be more appreciated than by newspaper men themselves. These words will help them to forget the carping, unfair criticism that comes from so many thoughtless people who, without any idea of the amount of strenuous work involved in turning out a daily newspaper, are always ready to find fault with their local paper. It will help the men who are laboring day in and day out to give the people good newspapers to realize that their efforts are appreciated at their true worth by the most thoughtful people of the world.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

THE GREAT EXPERIMENT.

Contrary to the expectation in some quarters, the advent of Government control of the sale of liquor in Ontario has come with a minimum of trouble, a maximum of sobriety and a pleasing absence of sensational features.

This condition of affairs should be highly satisfactory to the people of this Province, regardless of various schools of thought on the subject of prohibition. Recalling the hectic experiences that attended the introduction of "four-four" beer a year or so ago, many persons looked for unpleasant incidents with the issuance of permits and the opening of Government stores for the sale of all kinds of alcoholic beverages. Those who did so have been disappointed—happily, one hopes.

To start with, there has been no unusual rush of visitors as a result of the launching of the new system. Our tourist traffic is large, but it has been large for several years and may be expected to keep on growing without reference to the opportunity for securing liquor. Those who had visions of thoroughfares congested with would-be liquor buyers and of streets filled with drunken men and women, were poor prophets. These conditions have simply not materialized.

Practically the only grumbling in connection with the new law has centered about the Control Commission's lack of speed in opening stores. Critics point to the fact that the people asked for the new measure on December 1, 1926, and that in the intervening period there was plenty of time to prepare for the new business. This is quite true, but one suspects that the slowness that has marked the commission's activities has been largely deliberate. A great social change was taking place. The better way, the commission apparently reasoned, was to have it come slowly. And that is the way it has come.

A Toronto dispatch says that of the 3,000,000 inhabitants of Ontario only about 120,000 have taken out liquor permits to date. There has been no wild rush for them. The average man knows that he can secure liquor if he desires it and when he desires it. Consequently, the strain on permit issuers and on the liquor stores has not, for the most part, been heavy. More persons will take out permits, of course, but the comparatively small number that have done so shows that the new system has been quietly accepted by the people. Little or no flurry has been caused, which is in keeping, of course, with the conservative traditions of the people of this Province.

What are the results of the operation of the law to date? Unbiased observers find them satisfactory. There are difficulties to be ironed out, it is true. The Act, like all other pieces of legislation, is probably far from perfect. Probably no perfectly satisfactory manner of handling the liquor traffic will ever be found. Taken by and large, however, the Act looks like a sensible piece of business and the feeling is that it has been well received by the people. When one considers that the Province has been under at least theoretical prohibition for 10 years, it is no small thing to drastically change the law overnight, so to speak, and have as little commotion about it as we have experienced in connection with this innovation.

As The Border Cities Star said at the time the measure was up for consideration and the people's decision, the Liquor Control Act is a great experiment. It is not by any means the last word in dealing with the problem. It may, and likely will, be subject to a number of amendments. But it is a law that the people endorsed by an overwhelming majority. It may not have been satisfactory to all who voted for it—it probably was not—but they considered it a step in the direction of better conditions and voted accordingly.

There has not been sufficient time, of course, to fairly judge the working of the new Act. Ten or twelve months hence the Province will be in a better position to say. The opening conditions, however, have certainly been far from unsatisfactory. Those who enthusiastically supported the change when it was proposed feel that their support has been justified by events, while those who opposed it as a retrograde step must admit that their fears for the public welfare were, despite their sincerity, not well founded.

The Liquor Control Act is the law of Ontario. It has strong public backing, officially, and it deserves strong support from an individual standpoint. It can fully succeed only through individual respect and observance. If the Act is wrong, the people will force a change. In the meantime every good citizen should give it his best assistance.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is to be hoped that all those prize hens to be shown at the World's Poultry Congress at Ottawa will not get the civil service habit and want every third day or so off.

There were 568 convictions in Toronto for breach of the Liquor Control Act during the first month of the new system. It sounds big until you size up the population of the Queen City.

Many visitors to the Toronto Exhibition this year will get wet in the marathon swim, and many others will find it wet without that.

To make it a safe vacation time Peterborough children should be encouraged to play in supervised playgrounds and swim at the supervised bathing beach.

Aspirants for the Conservative leadership can spend a profitable summer preparing their convention speeches. Tommy Church will probably have three or four ready.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 11 (Canadian Press). — The local grain market was extremely dull here on Saturday, but a steady trade continues to be done in corn with domestic and country buyers. United States grain merchants are beginning to show some interest in the market for Argentine corn c.i.f. Montreal, and lake freight agents are quoting 2 cents a bushel to bring this to Port Colborne, Buffalo or Bay ports, and 3½ cents to Chicago. Flour trade bookings so far this season have been much smaller than last year, and are now below normal. Present demand is of a hand-to-mouth character.

The trade in millfeed is unchanged, with prices nominal, while business in standard grades of rolled oats is quiet. The overseas market for Canadian hay is weaker, and a decline in prices of 60 cents a ton is noted. The local market is dull.

There ws no important change in the egg trade, with the consumptive demand good. Usually egg prices are affected during the latter part of June by the arrival of small fruits on the market, but these fruits are now fully two weeks late, which condition has helped the egg trade. Egg receipts on Saturday were 1,279 cases against nil for last Saturday (holiday).

The butter trade is unaltered, the demand being principally of a local character, and chiefly for broken lots.

The export trade in cheese is still slow, although there is indication of an awakening of interest on the part of English importers. Prices are nominal.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 11 (Canadian Press). — Increasing uneasiness over black rust in the North-West gave an upward trend on Saturday to wheat. Predictions were current that serious crop damage will appear about the middle of July in domestic wheat and during the last of July in Canada, if weather conditions are of a kind to promote rust development.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅛ cent to ½ cent net higher, with corn showing ¾c decline to ⅝c gain, oats ¼c off to ¼c up, and provisions at a rise of 2c to 12c.

With reports at hand showing rather general black rust infection of the spring crop North-West, wheat traders took particular notice of despatches from a leading Chicago authority who has personally observed conditions up into Canada, and who wired on Saturday that he is convinced the infection will spread all through most of Minnesota and the eastern half of the Dakotas, as well as Manitoba and south-eastern Saskatchewan. He named definite dates when probable damage will develop, but added that injury would be light if the weather were to remain cool.

Somewhat rising temperatures in the North-West suggested adverse prospects for wheat, especially as black rust was reported at additional points in Manitoba. A good deal of hesitation, however, was shown by many traders here as to following price upturns, it being admitted that current news showed bullish possibilities, but that actual conditions were still favourable on the whole. Meanwhile, there was said to be a better export inquiry, with some transatlantic business done on a higher basis than has recently been the rule, but there was also much profit-taking on advances and likewise evening of accounts to prepare for the Government crop report on Monday.

Corn prices were easier owing chiefly to scattered showers and warmer temperature over the central West. Oats trade was light, with the market keeping to a narrow range of values.

Provisions reflected indications of improved demand from consumers.

A Thought For To-day

Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward.—JoJb v:7.

Troubles, like babies, grow larger by nursing.—Lady Holland.

The first municipal public conveyance was used in Nantes, France, in 1825. A few years later the omnibus was introduced in London.

This Man Puts Away $200 Each Year in a Private Strong Box

HARRY EDDY has a plan by which he saves money and, in saving it, makes it do three other wonderful things.

Each year he lays away $200 in a North American Life Four-Way Policy. He calls this policy his "private strong box" because it contains the money on which he plans to retire.

But Harry Eddy's Four-Way Policy represents more than savings for old age. It provides for the payment of:

$10,000 to his family if he dies before his planned retirement age.

$20,000 to his family if his death is accidental.

$100 a month, during the remainder of his lifetime, to him, if he becomes unable to work—and $10,000 will still be paid to his family when he dies.

Do you blame Harry Eddy for being enthusiastic about an insurance policy that offers such advantages?

By placing your savings in a North American Life Four-Way Policy you and your family automatically benefit by this triple protection. Send the coupon for full particulars.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

After two doctors and a nurse had assured her that she could not see Cherry that night, and that there was no immediate danger, although Cherry was still unconscious, Faith permitted her husband to take her home and put her to bed. She believed that she could not possibly go to sleep, but when Bob awakened her by accidentally dropping a hair brush, she found that she had slept nearly six hours.

"Have you heard from the hospital?" she demanded fearfully, her face red with shame that she had been able to sleep while Cherry's life was in danger.

Bob strode to the bed and smiled down upon her, almost gaily. Color had returned to his tanned cheeks and his eyes were bright blue again—not that fearsome slate-gray which had so terrified her the night before.

"I telephoned at six—it's eight now—and they told me Cherry was conscious and reacting normally. Plucky little devil! One of her two special nurses answered the phone and said Cherry had begun to issue orders already. Doesn't like the placing of the furniture or the color of the rug, or something. Now smile, honey! Everything's all right!"

Faith closed her eyes over sudden tears, and a shudder of relief relaxed her fear-rigid body. "And—the baby?" she whispered, pressing Bob's hand hard against her cheek.

"Little but loud, they tell me," Bob chuckled. "Probably yelling its head off right now for a sight of its Aunt Faith. We're going over to the hospital—got a nine-thirty appointment with your young neice and your sassy little sister, but you're going to have a three course breakfast before I let you out of bed, young woman."

She lay relaxed on her pillows, a smile quivering on her lips, her eyes brimming with tears, her heart swelling with love for the whole world while Bob gossiped with Mrs. Lundy in the pretty blue-and-white kitchen, overseeing preparation of her tray.

And later, as he sat on the edge of the bed while she ate hungrily of the delicious breakfast he had brought her she wondered how she had ever doubted him, had ever felt that he did not truly love her. His eyes and his voice and his hands caressed her, as if he could not get enough of her, could not tell her in enough ways that he loved her.

She found, when she was ready to leave for the hospital with Bob, that Jim Lane had already gone to pay his respects to his first grandchild, and she was glad of the opportunity to be alone a little longer with her husband in his loverlike mood, It was a heavenly day in late June, a steady breeze tempering the heat of the sun.

"Oh, it's nice to be married!" Faith spoke suddenly, her breast rising on a wave of exultation. "I love you, Bob."

"And I love you, beautiful!" he assured her, his hand closing tightly over hers, his blue eyes very soft with emotion.

It was in that gentle mood that they arrived at the hospital, to be told by the head nurse, pattering swiftly down the corridor on her noiseless rubber heels, that Cherry and her baby were awaiting them. Jim Lane had come, adored, and gone, she told them, and Cherry could see them for ten whole minutes, if they took care not to excite her.

Faith paused in the threshold of her sister's room, trying to realize that beyond that closed door was a new life—Cherry's own baby—which would soon become one of the most important persons in the world, so far as Faith Hathaway was concerned. Even then she felt some premonition of what the child was to mean to her.

GIRLS IN BUSINESS

A Series of Five Messages

By CYNTHIA GREY

No. 2.—SUCCESS WITHIN YOU, NO PLACE ELSE.

Once upon a time when I was talking with Mary Garden, she said to me:

"I think that I would have made myself succeed no matter what profession or business I had entered. There is something in me which always makes me do my particular job just a little bit better than anyone else, just a little bit different.

"If I had started making my living as an elevator girl I think that to-day I would have a national service of elevator girls. I would have a trained corps of good-to-look-at, pretty, soft-voiced girls, slow to wrath and quick to smile.

"I would have made Mary Garden's Elevator Service famous over all America. Tired business men would cry for 'em! They would know the value of Mary Garden's kind of elevator service."

And I believe they would! I believe that Mary Garden, waitress; Mary Garden, cashier; Mary Garden, dishwasher, would have managed somehow to get her name on perfume and cold cream just as has Mary Garden, singer and actress.

I am more and more convinced as years go on that "the stuff" is in a business or professional woman or it isn't, and it is just as bound to come out in one job as another.

Cites Alice.

I am thinking of Alice who came into a newspaper office where I once worked. Alice, fresh from a journalism school, hankered for a real reporting job. She wanted to start as the star reporter, writing the lead story with an eight-column head every day, with her name signed in capitals.

There was an opening as assistant society editor. At $15 a week. It meant sitting at a telephone all day long calling all the city's blue bookers, asking them if they had given a party, gone to a party, or knew of any engagements, weddings, or social festivities.

Alice took the job. She was positive that in spare moments she could unearth the solution of a mystery murder which had baffled the police or get an exclusive interview with the president of the United States by telephone and wouldn't be at the society phone more than a day or so.

Alice was very superior to her assistant society job. She phoned once in a while, but most of the time she wrote offerings for various other departments of the paper.

Meanwhile, the society editor was in despair. She had little or no help. The column grew shorter and shorter, for it was the assistant's job to get the items.

As a result, Alice was fired with rapidity and dispatch.

She Won Out.

Alice's successor "buckled down" to the job. She phoned like a fury. She collected more items in an hour than Alice had collected in a month. She, too, more or less scorned this society job, had merely taken it as an opener, but she had sense enough to see that any chance of promotion was dependent upon doing the job well that her boss wanted and needed done at that particular time.

The successor worked out her new ideas right in the society department. Readable, sprightly little features about mothers and daughters in society together, sisters making debuts together, she collected cunning pictures of "society babies."

To make a long story short, the editor within three months decided that Alice's successor was too good for her job. He made her editor of the woman's page with carte blanche to do what she wanted with it, even to firing the society editor if she wanted to. And her salary jumped.

That's what I mean by making the most of your job even if you don't want it for keeps.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Tuesday, July 12, 1927.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Again the stars appear to smile on the Earth, according to astrology, which finds many benefic aspects active.

Under this sway men holding public office are likely to covet continuance in power.

The rule appears to give promise of added importance to those already in places in the Sun.

Many schisms and dissensions within party organizations are presaged by the stars that seem to warn of surprises in political developments of various sorts.

Both army and navy interests are now subject to the most stimulating planetary influences, making for activity that is favorable to officers in both branches of the service.

The rule is most fortunate for constructive enterprises and Uncle Sam is to have opportunity to demonstrate his supreme ability in world affairs.

Since the new Moon of June 29 caused London astrologers to predict war for Great Britain the seers have read many sinister signs that have apparently involve the United States in new responsibilities.

Interest in army pensions, hospitals and whatever contributes to the welfare of soldiers will be keen here as well as abroad, all through the summer, it is forecast.

This should be an auspicious day for sea voyages and again much foreign travel is prognosticated for residents of travel s prognosticated for residents of the United States.

Increase in wisdom as well as knowledge is foretold for Americans who are to enjoy a period of spiritual and intellectual development.

Good judgment should prevail while this configuration prevails. Domestic forbearance that prevents quarrels should be easier than it is under other planetary governments.

Persons whoe birthdate it is have the augury of success, especially in military affairs. The year may bring dangerous love letters to men and women.

Children born on this day should succeed in positions of authority. They should be trained to poise and caution in every-day life.

DON'T NEED FREEZER.

If you have no ice-cream freezer, you can make ice-cream in a tin pail, packed in a wooden one. Whirl the small pail around by its handle, taking off the cover occasionally to scrape down and beat the cream.

The youngest mistress of the White House was Frances Folsom Cleevland. Mrs. Coolidge comes next in the list at the age of 49.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A square scarf with polka dot border is tied at the side of the neck in the manner endorsed by many well-dressed women this summer.

The square neckerchief had, to a great extent, taken the place of the oblong scarf in Paris last summer. There were many more of them offered in the shops of Paris than in cities in this country, but now the neck square is as well liked here as abroad and American women seem to be making up for lost time about it. One decided advantage of the square over the oblong scarf is that it has no long ends to hang in the way at the front. A disadvantage that is sometimes apparent is that its bulkiest section as often tied comes right at the back of the neck. Some women have objected to it as an accessory for the jacket suit on this account. But there are ways and ways of tying the scarf, and it is comfortable when it is adjusted with one corner passed and around the neck with the rest of the square allowed to hang as it will over one shoulder.

If you like you may fold your square across from one corner to another, place the triangle thus formed shawl fashion over the shoulders, and knot the ends right at the front. But you may like a less demure effect and then you can arrange your triangle so that the knotted points come over one shoulder. This is the way usually chosen when the scarf is worn as an accompaniment to the sport frock.

Some women have adopted the fashion for the square neckerchief with such enthusiasm that they have at least one such square for each sport or daytime frock. There really need be nothing elaborate about it. Some of the most effective, in fact, are made of the material of the frock itself with an applied hem or stripe of the material used for trimming. Thus the skirt of pleated white crepe de chine that shows a narrow banding of red about the hem is worn with a white knitted jacket, and a square scarf of the crepe de chine with a narrow applied band of the red around the four sides of the square.

You may have neck squares that express your favorite sport or your latest enthusiasm. Within a few days of the time that Lindbergh made his great transatlantic hop some of the shops offered neck squares showing painted designs of the famous airplane, sailing over the ocean. Your neck square may show conventionalized tennis players on a tennis court. Some of the more expensive hand-decorated squares show the signature of the artist who decorated them.

YOUR WEDDING DAY

By INEZ HAYNES IRWIN

Suddenly you become aware that the sun is pouring through the window.

You aren't surprised. You knew it would be fair, even when just before going to bed, everybody looked so dubious because there were no stars in the sky.

It doesn't seem to you that you closed your eyes all night. But you must have slept because you waked up.

And in spite of all the strange thoughts and fantastic ideas that streamed through your mind before sleep came, you feel singularly refreshed, light even, and—not happy exactly.

But you would be happy, you know, if you could be certain how much the great event was going to CHANGE EVERYTHING. But no time for thinking, for there's mother's knock on the door. Her voice tries so hard to seem commonplace.

"Do you feel like getting up now, dear? I have answered all the telephoning so far. But Alice says she must speak with you!"

You look at the clock. Nine o'clock! And YOU'RE TO BE MARRIED AT NOON.

"Mother!" you gasp. "Why didn't you wake me?"

"There was nothing to wake you for?" your mother answers. "Everything's attended to and I wanted you to look rested! You seemed so tired last night."

Your mother kisses you once, twice—then on a sudden impulse hugs you hard. You dash down to the telephone. Over it comes Alice's little chattery gasps:

"Oh, Esther, darling—do you mind—I hope you won't—but seeing as I'm the maid of honor and walk alone—do you mind if I bend my bonnet into a pointier poke than the others? I have been experimenting with it and it is so much more becoming that way!"

"Of course not," you laugh. "Turn it into a bathing cap if it's more becoming, honey."

"Aren't you frightened, Esther?" Alice quavers. "I am!"

"Not a bit!" you say stoutly, although of course in your heart you know that you're going to make some terrible break. But you wouldn't mind even that, if you weren't AFRAID of that TERRIBLE DIFFERENCE marriage is going to make.

Your father strolls into the room as you finish telephoning. "Hello, Miss Bride!" he greets you. "Up for all day?"

You run to him and hug him hysterically. You want to ask him what marriage did to him.

Was he ever the same man again? Did he like to do the same things? Or did it change him overnight into a quite different person.

But somehow you don't. You only say:

"Father, I know I'm going to make a perfect fool of myself in church. You pinch me, won't you, if I stand there like a dumbell—pinch me hard—hard, you understand, Father?"

Your father agrees to pinch you. He volunteers to shake you, if necessary.

You wander through the rooms. Mary Saunders and Aunt Josephine are tacking up the last greens. It is a pink and white wedding, and there are wonderful BOWERS OF GREEN everywhere.

And, oh, the roses! It seems to you you've never seen so many in your life. Mary and Josephine call sternly to you in unison:

"Go and lie down!"

"But," you object, "I've just got up."

"It doesn't make any difference," they insist strongly, "you musn't tire yourself out."

Your brother gets down from a stepladder and comes toward you to show you his banged thumb. You throw your arms around his shoulder and for the first time in his life he doesn't shy demonstration.

"Arthur," you say to him, "you'll come to see me often, won't you?"

"Sure!" Arthur answers with a strange huskiness in his voice. "If you promise to have griddle cakes for me."

This is the first time he has even referred to your cooking in anything but scathing terms.

Oh, it IS going TO BE DIFFERENT!

Your little sister Ruth comes running up to you.

"Oh, Esther!" she exclaims, "my slippers have just come. They've got buckles with pink roses on them. Come and see my slippers."

She drags you with all her baby strength in the direction of the stairs and of course you go. On the bed lies the little rose-colored dress that she is going to wear—the white silk stockings.....the little hat.

Mother says that I can get married some time, too", she gurgles. "Oh, I think it's such fun!"

Ruth married! Yet it will come! And then Ruth will be different.

First you're going to be different. Then Ruth's going to be different. Oh, WHY WAS MARRIAGE EVER INVENTED?

Why did you get engaged?

But after that you don't have much time for thought. For now somewhere in the house a bell is ringing all the time.

Esther the telephone is delivering anxious questions from bridesmaids or ushers; or the doorbell is demanding somebody's signature for a telegram, a belated wedding gift; or thanks for the flowers which arrive unexptctedly from neighbors.

Every other minute, it seems to you, John calls up. He apologizes for troubling you, but he says he never has been married before, and he adds, parenthetically:

"God knows I'll never be married again."

He says you're his bethrothed bride, that you got him into this situation and you must get him out of it.

He says that he is so pale that he's thinking of sending out for a make-up box and he thinks that bridegrooms ought to wear the veil because brides are naturally bold as brass or they wouldn't have a wedding.

You laugh at all of this, but somehow a little absently. After a while, even John is going to be different.

He is going to be—not John, but your husband.

Oh, suppose he turns out to be one of those bossy husbands; or the horrid, nasty, neat kind who go snooping around to see if you keep the kitchen clean; or a philanderer; or—WORST OF ALL, A TIGHTWAD.

But what nonsense—John a tightwad.

Why, John just dribbles his money away. You'll have to be a tightwad—if you're ever going to save anything.

You wander about looking at the decorations, not lifting a finger to help, surveying your wedding gifts, admiring them.

You go into the kitchen where suddenly, to your surprise, you FIND YOURSELF WEEPING on Irish Annie's motherly breast.

But you can't even have a satisfactory weep ;for in the midst of it the caterer arrives with baskets and boxes and two or three assistants who seem to crowd the kitchen. After a while your mother says:

"Time to begin to dress, honey! You don't want to feel hurried!"

Alice has arrived, bringing a handbox with the pointed poke hat. Her clothes are in the guest chamber. She is going to help dress you. Your mother, with the strange understanding of mothers, leaves you alone with her.

You undress and bathe. Alice begins to help you draw on the exquisite, lustrous wedding things. For a moment you are just a girl again and you chatter and laugh, exclaim and extol.

But as you stand before the long mirror you see your own shining columnar whiteness with its TOUCHES OF SILVER and its MISTY VEIL stretching across the room, suddenly you have that strange feeling again.

"Alice," you say, "do you think—what is your idea—is marriage going to make it different from everything you've always been?"

"Certainly not, goose!" laughs Alice. "You've got an attack of briditis. You think you're going to be different just because—....But you won't! Nobody ever is. They're just the same—only more so."

What follows passes like one of those strange dreams in which you seem to float paralzed through vague, violent action. You feel as though you were in one of those slowed-up movies.

Mother appears in white lace. Father appears in his new frock coat. Arthur, incredibly clean and smart—why, Arthur's going to be handsome!

Ruth with her brown curls floating away from her rose-covered hat carrying a basket full of pink roses and forget-me-nots; Alice in her drifting pale blue like a spirit of the air—the pointed poke is more becoming!

And then you're in the motor, you're driving to the church. You alight and go into the vestry where the girls—six of them —are all waiting for you.

They surround you and submit you to little dabbling, pecing kisses.

From the church all the time comes a subdued rich murmur. Suddenly over it all peals the SOLEMN SOUND of the ORGAN. How it happens you will never be able to tell, but you find yourself on your father's arm walking up the aisle.

Back of you is the colorful procession—Ruth, Alice, the six orideamaids, the six ushers. Mr. Gryce is standing at the altar, very severe but handsome. And beside him—

Is that John? How strange he looks! How different! Oh, it's going to be different!

And then somehow the familiar words are rolling out. You find yourself responding in a voice that does not tremble, even though John speaks in a queer, choked tone you have never heard from him.

"I, Esther, take thee, John—"

You say it PROUDLY. You hear the PRIDE in your own VOICE.

You feel the ring on your finger. And then—"let no man put asunder."

The organ crashes, you turn, you walk down the aisle.

Going up you saw nothing but pews holding white blurs ;but reurning—

How pretty Kitty Burnham looks! And old Mrs. West actually got out of bed for your wedding. How sweet of her!

Cousin Molly smiles with tear-wet eyes from an end seat. And if there isn't old Grandfather Martin, way back!

You are on the motor again. John is beside you holding your hand tight.

Your mother and father are sitting opposite you, father still jocular, mother's eyes misting constantly.

Ruth between them says, "Mother, I want to be married, too. How soon can I be married?"

Suddenly at GREAT SERENITY pours into your heart. Of course it's different, but not so terrifying different.

Everything's going to be the same—only nicer.

Father hasn't changed! Mother hasn't changed! John hasn't changed!

You're the same girl who walked up the aisle ten minutes before. You settle back, your shoulder close to John's.

"Oh, I'm SO GLAD I'M MARRIED!"

And you breathe a long sight of relief and happiness.

MISSIONARIES RECEIVE GIFTS

Rev. R. B. and Mrs. Harrison Leave Shortly For Africa.

RECEPTION AT LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, July 11.—On Monday evening a reception was held in the school room of the Regent street United church for Rev. and Mrs. Richard Bruce Harrison, who were married a few weeks ago and who leave on July 26th to enter the mission field in Africa. Mr. Harrison graduated this spring from Victoria College and has been recently ordained. The attendance was gratifying and a spirit of good fellowship prevailed throughout the evening.

Rev. S. A. Kemp was in the chair and after the formal opening with a hymn and prayer, Mr. Kemp expressed, on behalf of himself and his congregation, their good wishes to the young couple who were dedicating their young lives to God's work, counting not the sacrifice but offering their service to their Creator. Mr. Kemp assured them also that the prayers of the congregation will be with them in their future lives and that the people of Regent street church will always feel a deep personal interest in their work. Their going will be a great stimulus to the missionary zeal of the congregation and there is no doubt that they will be successful in their labor of love.

Rev. Bruce Harrison in his address thanked Mr. Kemp for his good wishes and assured him that his players and those of the people of the church would be much appreciated. Mr. Harrison is an earnest young man with a definite consciousness of his responsibilities and his address, brief as it was, made a deep impression on his hearers.

Rev. J. V. McNeely of Bridgenorth also spoke bringing the good wishes of his congregations for this young couple, who have consecrated their lives to the service of their Master and are going far from home and country in His work.

H. R. Wagar, superintendent of the Sunday school gave an address also touching on the lighter side, bringing laughter to the audience, many of whom were near to tears and then turning to the serious he spoke of the many great men of history who were considered failures in the general acceptance of the world; many being outcasts and outlaws, the fools of their generation.

Among these were Socrates, who drank the poisoned hemlock; Isaiah, who spent some years of his life in a dungeon; John Huss, who died a terrible death for his convictions; St. Francis, who lived his life in a leper colony, and our Lord Jesus Christ, who ended His life on the cross, and hundreds and thousands of men who died unknown and unhonored but who fell fighting for the cause of all mankind. From the standpoint of their age and their time their lives were failures, but from the standpoint of eternity their failures have been transformed into beautiful successes and such success we would hold up to the youth of today.

Mr. Wagar, speaking on behalf of the lay member of the congregation, extended the heartiest good wishes to the young couple and assured them of the prayers of the Regent street church on their behalf.

Rev. T. M. Wesley of Knox United church also spoke a few words. "Missionary work", said Mr. Wesley, "is a hard and dangerous undertaking but it affords many great opportunities. In parochial work we are rather conventional and inclined to be governed by past records but in missionary work one is a pioneer and these young people are going in the footsteps of one of the greatest men who ever lived, David Livingstone." The speaker recalled meeting the youngest daughter of Livingstone, during the war, while on leave in Scotland, and regards it as one of the greatest privileges he ever had.

"Our young people are following in the train of a great succession of missionaries", he said, "and only the first, Jonah, was a failure. Think of St. Paul, William Carey, John G. Paton and scores of others who gave their lives in the great work of spreading the gospel of Christ. Jonah failed because he had no consecration and did not want to go. St. Paul, on the contrary, had a consuming desire to go. God needs workers out there and when tired and discouraged remember that the prayers of this community are with you."

Mr. Kemp expressed the regrets of Rev. William Spencer, who was out of town and was unable to be present.

Interspersed with the addresses were songs taken from the song sheets of the C.G.I.T. which were heartily sung by the audience. Mrs. H. E. Moore presided at the piano.

Rev. and Mrs. Harrison were called forward and Mrs. Kemp read the following address and Mrs. Nugent presented Mr. Harrison with a handsome club bag and Mrs. S. Pearson gave Mrs. Harrison a travellette.

"Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Harrison:

"Knowing of your intention and purpose to leave Canada very soon for the work to which God and the church have called you, we have met this evening in order, first to extend to you our good wishes and congratulations on the event that has so recently joined you together as husband and wife and also to express the interest that as a church we naturally feel in the great task that you have undertaken and in which we also are indirectly and vitally concerned. Some of us are called to the firing line where we are in close touch with the burning problems of heathen vice and the struggle of winning the world for Christ while others are stationed further back in order to supply the material that keeps the battle pressing forward against the strongholds of sin.

"As we see you go forward to the dark continent, we are reminded of him, whose body lies in Westminister Abbey and whose heart is buried in the interior of the land he loved so well. David Livingstone's work in the flesh is ended but the influence of his life is still calling men and women to the field where he labored so earnestly and so prayerfully for the soul of the perishing native. You will follow along the train that he blazed in the African forest, sometimes, indeed with weary feet and heavy hearts but you will remember at these times that you are the link between that far off land and the Regent street church in Lakefield and we are following you with deep interest and with more that ordinary concern.

"We cannot allow you to leave us with no tangible expression of our good will, and so we are asking you to accept these small tokens of our regard which will ever remind you of the fact that Lakefield does not forget a distinguished son of one of her homes, while he labors for the kingdom in distant Africa.

"We trust that you and Mrs. Harrison may be spared for many years to labor for the Kingdom in the field of your choice and that in the crimson of life's parting day you joy may be full in the vision of the splendid harvest which has attended your prayer for reaping."

An efficient committee of ladies served delicious refreshments and a pleasant evening closed in the usual manner.

POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR

Archbishop Williams, of London, Ont., head of the Anglican Diocese of Huron, who is mentioned as the possible successor to Archbishop Matheson, Primate of the Church of England in Canada, who is likely to retire in September.

In Holland, lawn tennis is growing more and more popular and the number of tennis courts is rapidly increasing, but the number of players up to "international" standard is still very small. In this respect the game has been greatly handicapped by the recent departure of several of the best Dutch players for other lands. There is said to be only one woman player in Holland of international class, Miss Kea Bouman. Much is expected from her in the future, as she is in a position to devote a good deal of time to the game. This is not the case with most of the others, who have to confine their training to the few hours when they are free from their ordinary occupations. Well-organized tennis clubs now exist in Amsterdam and other leading cities as well as at several of the universities. The Olympic tennis matches at Antwerp next year are expected to increase interest in the game in Holland.

A woman's polo club just organized at the University of Arizona is claimed to be the first in any college in the United States.

Several Arrests.

DUBLIN, July 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Several arrests were reported to have been made to-day, growing out of the assassination of Kevin O'Higgins, but no indication has been made that the actual persons implicated in the crime have been found.

The official account of Mr. O'Higgins assassination says that five men were engaged in it, two of whom acted as scouts. All are believed to have been between the ages of twenty and thirty-five. The account says that one of the men signalled to the others when he saw the minister approaching and that thereupon three men opened fire. Descriptions of the men, which police believe accurate, have been obtained. The official account further states that a stolen automobile, which was supposed to have been used by the assassins, was found abandoned at Milltown.

Peterborough Wins Saturday Exhibition Game

HOMESTERS DEFEAT OSHAWA BY HITTING AT PROPER TIME WHILE VISITORS WASTE HITS

Petes Come From Behind and Win Out, Five Runs to Two.

FIELDING IS GOOD.

Herbie Wolfe, ex-Pete, Plays Well For Motor Town Team.

Peterborough's Senior baseball players found their batting eyes on Saturday and earned a 5—2 victory over Oshawa General Motors. They didn't get any more hits than the visitors, but got them in bunches, while in only one inning did the visitors get two. The greater effectiveness of the Pete's hitting is shown in the fact that they had only eight left on bases to their opponents' twelve.

The Petes had to come from behind for their first win of the season. Unusual generosity on the part of Al Heckman gave the visitors the opening counter in the third and filled the bases for another. Four or the five charities the veteran issued were packed into the one frame, and the lead they allowed looked good until the fifth, when the Petes crashed out a pair of hits after a walk, to score two.

Three more in the seventh put the game on ice and rendered futile Herbie Wolfe's dash for the plate on an infield out in the ninth for the visitors' last marker.

The exPete had a big day. He scored the visitors' two runs and made two of their eight hits one a double. Three stolen bases were also placd to his credit, while three flies to centre field dropped into his waiting hands.

Of the rest of the Oshawa team, only Reg. Fair, Morrison, and Manager Billy Benson were familiar to a Peterborough crowd. The visiting manager quickly drew the attention of the crowd by his irascibility, and his expulsion from the coaching box at first by Umpire LeBarr in the fourth occasioned no surprise. Next inning he tried to coach at third base but did not get away with it.

Rose and Johnston led the Peterborough attack. Each made two hits and one run, the third baseman contributing a couple of sparkling plays for good measure. Rose was guilty of a lapse when he ran Harrison off third with the bases full, nearly getting caught himself in the resultant run-up, but made it up by scoring the Pete's second run the next time he got on the paths.

Visitors Score First

The visitors made the first serious threat. With one out in the third, Wolfe and Little were hit. Holyman let Fair's hard bounder get away and the speedy Wolfe, who had stolen third, scored easily. Little tried to make third on the play and was thrown out by Hall. Walks to Penn and matthews congested the stations, but Morrison struck out.

The Petes nearly got it back, having two hits and a walk, but lost by poor base running. In the fifth they went into the lead. Somerville, who had succeeded Delaney after the third, walked Holyman. Fair went away back on the foul line to take Harrison's high fly. Rose singled, sending Holyman to third. Rose stole second. Johnston bunted a pop fly to Somerville, but Swanston crashed a double off Morrison's knee to score the two.

The seventh made it safe. Harrison walked and advanced on Rose's sacrifice. He went to third on Johnston's single and drew a throw to the plate which allowed the batter to reach second. Swanston rolled to Morrison, who held the runners, but Hardill, batting for Heckman, produced the hit that brought Harrison home and went to second on the throw to head off Johnston. A single by Ash scored Johnston and Hardill, and Hall struck out.

Hardill received a rousing welcome when he went into the box. Penn slamming the first ball down the third base line for a single. A walk to Matthews made things look bad, but Penn broke to third too quickly and was thrown out by Hardill. Morrison struck out, but Kellar singled and Whitley drew a walk to fill the bases. Somerville had a chance to tie up his own game, but struck out.

In the ninth the visitors made their last run. Wolfe singled down the first base line and stole second and third. Williams was passed and stole second. Fair struck out, but Wolfe scored on Penn's roller to Johnston. Matthews struck out and the game was over.

BUFFALO BLANKS BALTIMORE ORIOLES

Mangum Runs String of Scoreless Pitched Innings to 22.

NEW YORK, July 11 (Canadian Press).—Playing marvellous defensive baseball behind two of the greatest pitching exhibitions of the year, the Bisons blanked the Baltimore Orioles in both halves of a double bill at Buffalo yesterday to regain first place from the Syracuse Stars. The scores were 5 to 0 and 2 to 0.

Mangum, in holding the Orioles scoreless, twirled his second straight shut out and ran his string of scoreless pitched innings up to 22 in a row. Warren Ogden limited the Birds to two lonely hits and failed to allow an enemy to reach second base.

The Stars overcame a nine-run lead and defeated Newark at Syracuse 16 to 10. The victory ended a losing streak of five straight. Joe Poetz was the hero, holding Newark to two hits as Stoll's relief and hitting a sacrifice to tie the score at 1-all and a home run in the eighth.

The Jersey City Skeeters got another even break at Rochester by winning the second game 3 to 1, after losing the first by 8 to 6.

TIGERS WIN FIFTH GAME

Whitehill Outpitches Pennock to Defeat New York Yankees 6-3.

RUTH HELD HITLESS

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 11.—(Canadian Press.) — Earl Whitehill outpitched Herb Pennock in a battle of left handers at Detroit yesterday and Detroit took the fifth game of the series from New York. The score was 6 to 3.

The Tigers hammered Pennock for four runs in the fourth, thereby clinching the game. In this inning Jack Tavener, Tiger shortstop, stole second, third and home. He crossed the plate on the end of a double steal on which Woodall went to second.

Babe Ruth went hitless in five times at bat. Lou Gehrig was restricted to a double.

Washington made it five straight in three days at Cleveland when they came from behind ,overcoming a seven run lead to defeat the Indians ten to nine in seven innings. Rain stopped the game. Cleveland knocked Lisenby from the box in the fourth inning, when seven runs were scored but could do little with visiting relief pitchers.

Philadelphia collected 20 hits off three pitchers and won at St. Louis 14 to 11. The only things that broke the monotony of the game were when Simmons stole home in the fifth and when Hale slammed out a homer in the ninth with none on.

Chicago bunched hits at home and defeated Boston 4 to 1, giving Thomas his thirteenth victory of the season. The visitors scored their lone run in the ninth inning when Rollings batted for Summers and started a rally.

THALHEIMER-MUNNS MATCHES FEATURE AT TENNIS TOURNEY

Ontario Tennis Championship Matches Brought to Close at Ottawa.

SETS WELL PLAYED

Brilliant Display of Tennis Given in Open Singles Event.

OTTAWA, July 11 (Canadian Press).—Some of the finest tennis which has been seen here in tournament play in years was witnessed on Saturday afternoon during the concluding rounds of the various events of the Ontario Tennis Championships. A large gallery turned out for the occasion, and were well rewarded. The outstanding event was the Men's Open Singles final between L. Thalheimer, Texas, and Gilbert Nunns, Toronto.

Nunn's play against Lewis N. White, ranking American star on the previous day led many to believe to consider the defeat of Thalheimer not entirely out of the question, and although Thalheimer proved to be the ultimate winner, their match produced many thrills. Nunns won the first set in short order at 6—1, led at 5—2 in the second and 4—1 in the third, but in both of these sets Thalheimer made a fighting recovery, making five straight games in each to win. He took the deciding set with reater ease, Nunns only winning one game.

A brilliant display was given by Thalheimer and his partner, Lewis N. White in the doubles event against Nunns and Brian Doherty, Toronto. As in the singles event Nunns was on the winning end of the first set score. From there on, however, neither Canadian was in the picture at all. The remaining three sets were a rout, with the scores, 6—3, 6—1, 6—0, which just about pictured the story.

Nothing finer than White's service has been seen here since W. Tilden Jr's visit here several years ago. Towards the end of the match the Canadians were being aced repeatedly, in spite of their best efforts. In taking the first set at 6—2, however, they had shot their bolt.

Miss Phoebe Grierson of Ottawa made a record for herself in winning all three titles, singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles. Her play in four three-set matches during the day, including one semi-final was of a very high order. In the singles event she won from Miss M. Bremner of Ottawa, 6—8, 7—5, 6—3, after a driving battle. In the doubles, she and Miss Bremner defeated Miss E. Billings and Miss G. Gallery of Montreal, 6—4, 6—2; the two ladies from the Quebec metropolis fought hard but were unable to solves the drives and placing of the Ottawa pair.

With Sam Hardy of New York, Miss Grierson was a winner in the sixed doubles over Miss P. S. Rykert, Ottawa, and C. G. Spanner, Toronto. The score was 6—1, 2—6, 6—1. The scores tell the whole story. The Junior title was won by A. D. Noble, Newton, Mass., who defeated G. H. Raper, promising young star from Montreal. The final reckoning showed the games 6—4, 1—6, 6—4. The Canadian boy was considered by many as the likely winner, and had he maintained the pace he set in the second set, the result would have been very differentt.

C. H. Meldrum of Toronto, President of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, was a guest, and afterwards presented the prizes won in the tournament at a club dance. During the afternoon he announced the personnel of the Canadian Davis Cup team for 1927, as Willard F. Crocker and Jack Wright, Montreal, and Gilbert Nunns and A. W. Ham of Toronto.

WIN HONORS AT BISLEY CAMP

Canadians Distinguish Themselves in National Rifle Association's Empire Tourney.

SERVICE RIFLE MATCHES

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 11 (Canadian Press Cable). — Shooting remarkably well under difficult conditions, the Canadians distinguished themselves on Saturday in the National Rifle Association's great Empire tournament. The Canadians have always been a big factor at Bisley, but their work on Saturday indicated they will play an even greater part than before in the great team shoots and the famous King's Prize, which will be competed for this week—the last and most important week of the tournament.

It was raining and the light was murky as the hundreds of marksmen shot on Saturday. Three individual service rifle matches were the features. They were: The Times silver trophy, at 200 yards; The Daily Mail at 500 yards, and the Wimbledon Cup at 600 yards. Each was important in itself, yet the three together constituted the Stock Exchange competition.

When the smoke cleared away it was found that Lieut. K. R. MacGregor of Ottawa was among the four tied to win The Times; that no less than six Canadians were among the 17 having top scores in The Daily Mail, and that in Class B of The Daily Mail, Cpl. J. S. Douglass of Montreal had scored a clean win. No Canadian reached the top in the third shoot of the Wimbledon, but C.Q.M.S. Alex. Parnell, of Verdun, scored 49 out of 50.

Wins Stock Exchange.

Lieut. MacGregor, after getting top score in The Times, kept steadily on at the longer ranges, finishing with a higher aggregate score than any other marksman. He therefore won the Stock Exchange prize of $50.00. C.Q.M.S. Parnell came second in the Stock Exchange to win $40.00; Sergt. J. H. Gray of Toronto placed fifth, winning $20.00 ;Lieut. John McAvity of Saint was 13th with $15.00, and the following won $5.00: Lieut. Desmond Burke, Ottawa, who was 64th; Cadet Hunter of Hamilton, 77th; C.S.M. Hawkins of Toronto, 93rd; and Q.M.S. Wood of Victoria, 98th. In Class B Corporal Douglas of Montreal was 22nd to win $5.00 ,while Cadet Hunter was 12th to win $8.00.

The bright feature of the Canadians' success was the brilliant shooting of the team of five Cadets from Hamilton, Ont., under Captain J. R. Cornelius. Cadet Matchett secured a place among the six Canadians tieing with eleven other marksmen for The Daily Mail silver cup, and the youthful marksman will take his place with his older countrymen in the shoot-off for the cup next Tuesday.

Yesterday the disagreeable weather conditions had vanished, leaving glorious sunshine and delightful fresh breezes, a happy promise for the important days to come. There was no shooting to-day.

Tied for The Times.

The four who tied for The Times, and will shoot off for the silver trophy next Wednesday, were: Lieut. MacGregor, Sergt. A. G. Fulton, the King's Prize winner last year, A. Cocks, Rifle Brigade, and Sergt-Major Hawkins, of the Scots Guards. In Class A Sergt. Gray, Toronto, was 13th to win $15.00; Cadet Hunter, Hamilton, 53rd, C.Q.M.S. Parnell 54th, and Lieut. John McAvity 62nd, each winning $5.00. In Class B, Cadet Hunter was ninth to win $8.00, Corp. Douglas, of Montreal, 29th, and Capt. J. R. Cornelius, of Hamilton, 45th, each winning $5.00.

The six Canadians who achieved the highest possible score 50, in The Daily Mail at 500 yards, were Cadet Elwood Matchett of Hamilton, Corp. Douglas of Montreal, Sergt. B. W. Beaumont of Vancouver, Lieut. J. E. Foreman of Hamilton, Q.M.S. W. H. Wood of Victoria, and Lieut. John McAvity of Saint John. In Class A of The Mail, C.S.M. Hawkins of Toronto, was 48th, and Lieut. MacGregor 61st, to each win $5.00. In Class B Corp. Douglas of Montreal had top score to win, receiving $30.00.

GIANTS SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER

25,000 Spectators Watch Cards and Giants Battle in Twin Bill.

CHICAGO WIN 1-0

NEW YORK, July 11 (Canadian Press).—The Giants split a double-headed with the Cards before 25,000 spectators yesterday, New York annexing the first by 5 to 0 and losing the other by 7 to 3.

Virgil Barnes was in rare form and blanked the world champions with one hit, a single by O'Farrell in the second inning.

In the second contest, Bob McGraw checked New York with seven safeties.

Chicago tightened its grip on first place in the National League yesterday by winning at Brooklyn 1 to 0 in the opening tilt of the eastern invasion. Eddie Pick's home run in the seventh decided the issue.

Guy Bush eased the Robins down with five scattered hits. His opponent, Norman Plitt, allowed only six in the seven innings he pitched and twice retired the Cubs with the bases full, once in the third with one out and again in the sixth with none out.

Only two scheduled appearances in the National League.

BELMONTS PLAY EXAMINER TONIGHT

First Meeting of These Two Teams in Post-Season Series.

The Belmonts and Examiner will hook up tonight in a post season fixture at Confederation Square. This is the first time these two teams have met this season. A good game should result from the meeting of these two teams. On their last appearance out the Belmonts won the city championship by defeating the C.G.E. outfit two straight games. The Examiner on their last appearance out were defeated by the Lockworks, but they were short two of their regular infielders. They have since added French, Board and Hilliard to their roster and with these additions should give the Belmonts a great run for it.

Carruthers will likely do the heaving for the Club, while either Dormer or Simmons will send them in for the Newspaper boys.

The game is called for 6.15 sharp and should draw a big crowd of fans as a great battle can be expected.

A deep-sea diver walked on the bottom of the Elizabeth River from Portsmouth to Norfolk, Va., a distance of more than a mile, in 50 minutes recently.

GUARDSMEN FIRE ON RUM-RUNNERS

Illegal Operators Rescued Men From Niagara River and Then Open Fire.

BUFFALO, July 11 (Canadian Press).—United States Guardsmen, in order to comply in the strictest sense of their duties last night were obliged to shoot at three men who had only a few minutes before rescued them from the Niagara River. The guardsmen had captured a motor boat carrying contraband ale across from Canada to the States. Just as the revenue boat had overtaken the ale boat it became embedded in the weeds and called on the captive boat for aid. The crew of the ale runner had a short conference and acceded to the request by towing the Government boat to shore. Once on shore, however, the prisoners made a dash for liberty in the darkness. The coast guardsmen opened fire at the fugitives, who escaped.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND HOPPER'S BOAT.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Walking slowly along the bank of the brook one day, Uncle Wiggily heard a voice shouting:

"Help! Help! I'm drowning!"

"Dear me! It isn't any fun to drown!" thought the rabbit gentleman to himself. "I must help whoever it is. Still I had better make sure this isn't the Weasel and Bear trying to play another trick on me by slinging mud."

So Mr. Longears peered up over the top of the tall weeds that grew along the edge of the brook, and he saw none of the bad chaps. But out in the middle of the stream he saw a bug floating along in the water, squirming with his legs.

"What's the matter?" asked the rabbit.

"Can't you see!" was the answer. "I fell in and I will drown unless some one helps me out."

"Oh, I'll help you all right," kindly offered the bunny and then, taking up a tree branch that lay on the ground, the rabbit thrust it out into the brook where the bug could get hold of it. A moment later the half drowned little creature was crawling out on the bank. He was covered with mud and water, but would soon dry out in the warm sun.

"What is your name?" politely asked Uncle Wiggily, for he could not see exactly what kind of a bug the creature was on account of the mud which partly covered him.

"My name is Grass," was the answer as the bug stretched first one wet leg and then another out in the sun.

"Excuse me for saying it, but Grass seems a queer name," said the bunny. "Are you Grass Green or Grass Pinks or Blue Grass of Kentucky?"

"Neither one," answered the bug. "I am Grass Hopper. I am so excited, on account of nearly being drowned, that I almost forgot my name. But that's it—Grass Hopper—and you may call me Hopper if you like."

"Thank you, I shall do so," said the bunny. "It is too bad that you fell into the brook."

"Oh, I didn't fall in—I jumped in," answered Hopper.

"You don't mean to tell me you jumped in on purpose?" cried Uncle Wiggily, sorry he had wasted his time on such a foolish chap.

"Oh, no, I didn't jump in on purpose," answered Grass Hopper. "You see I wanted to get on the other side of the brook, and as there is no bridge here and no boat I was forced to jump over."

"Oh, do you mean you jumped all the way across the brook, to the other again?" asked the rabbit.

"No! No! I didn't!" laughed Hopper, who was now almost dry. "But the brook was wider than I thought and I did not jump hard enough or far enough. So I fell down in the middle of the water. But I am going to try again!"

"What!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Are you going to jump in the brook again?"

"How funny! Of course I'm not!" buzzed Hopper. "I mean I am going to try another jump, but this time I will go so hard and far that I shall land safely on the other side. You watch me!"

"I'll watch," said Uncle Wiggily. And to himself the rabbit said: "He may fall in again. If he does I'll be here to fish him out."

Surely enough when Grass Hopper jumped again, he splashed into the water and the bunny had to poke him out.

"But I almost reached the other bank that time!" panted Hopper, when he was again drying in the sun. "The next time I'm sure to do it."

"You don't mean to say you are going to try another jump!" said Mr. Long ears.

"Of course I am!" buzzed Hopper. Once more he took a long breath and gave a big jump when he was quite dry. Uncle Wiggily thought surely Hopper would reach the opposite bank. But alas! No! Into the water once more flopped poor Hopper and he was almost drowned before Uncle Wiggily could fish him out.

"But I must get over to the other side!" panted Hopper.

"Then you must go over on the ferry boat," said the rabbit. So he called for Mr. Poke, the mud turtle gentleman, who acted as ferry boat in the brook. The turtle came swimming slowly along, the top of his shell sticking out of the water. On the turtle's back Hopper perched himself and then, high and dry, he was ferried over the brook and reached the other side without falling in and getting wet.

"Thanks for the boat ride, Mr. Poke. And thank you, also, Mr. Longears for helping me," buzzed the Hopper as he soared away amid the green grass. So the bunny and turtle were happy because of the help they had given.

CLEMENCEAU NEARING END OF BUSY LIFE

'Tiger of France' Unable To Shake Off Effects of Cold.

VERY FEEBLE NOW.

Great French Statesman of War Years is 86 Years of Age.

PARIS, July 11 (United Press).—Enfeebled by age, Georges Clemenceau has developed symptoms which make his friends doubtful that his long and arduous career will continue much longer. For more than two weeks the "Tiger of France" has been unable to shake off the effects of a cold, and the weight of eighty-six years has enchained his once firm steps and enslaved his once keen mind.

So serious was Clemenceau's condition last night that friends and relatives came to his little apartment in the Rue Franklin. Albert Clemenceau, his brother, and Mme. Jacquemare, his daughter, slept all night in the apartment. They left together in a taxi at 7.30 a.m. today, probably indicating that the former Premier was feeling better this morning.

It was reported that a few days ago the "Tiger" turned to his cook and said, "My father died when he was 86. I do not think that I will live to be much older."

Clemenceau arises but infrequently. A brief tottering walk in his apartment, and then he returns to bed or sits in an arm chair, immediately dozing off.

He is losing his memory.

"Tiger" Reported Dead.

PARIS, July 11. Canadian Press. — A report that "Clemenceau is dying" was spread through the parliamentary lobbies to-day, and resulted in the quick descent of several deputies and friends of the war premier upon the modest little house in the Rue Franklin, where the "Tiger" dwells while in Paris.

Clemenceau received them himself. He said that he was just recovering from an attack of grippe, but declared that the report that he was dying was "slightly exaggerated."

Dr. Laubrey, who is Clemenceau's regular physician, said that he expected that his charge, who is 86 years old, would leave for his country home in Vendes, within a few days, as is his custom at this time every year.

SHOWS ARRIVE LATE AT NIGHT

Work of Setting Up Great Number of Tents Takes All Day.

OPENING TO-NIGHT.

The two long heavily loaded sections of railroad cars of Miller Bros.' Exposition Shows arrived in the city late last night from Kitchener. The first section of 18 cars arrived at 10.30 p.m. and was followed by the second section of 17 cars a half hour later. At daylight this morning the work of transporting the vast amount of paraphernalia to the Fair Grounds was begun and all day the show grounds presented a scene of great activity as the "Tent City" was placed in position for to-night's grand opening.

The Miller Show is the largest organization of the "week stand" tented class to visit Canada this season. Judging from press reports from cities in Ontario which it has already played this season the attractions are both novel and meritorious. The Midway has twenty paid attractions and seven massive riding devices of the most up-to-date character. Among the feature attractions are The Aquatic Show, the largest water spectacle ever carried by a travelling exposition, with a half score of girl and men swimming and diving champions; "The Follies Revue," a miniature Broadway musical revue with a clever contingent of singers, dancers and posing girls headed by Mlle. Redell, Egyptian dancer; The Giant Autodrome, the largest portable racing 'drome' in show business; "Happy Jack" Eckert, the world's largest man; the original Filipino Midgets, smallest humans on earth and a dozen other novel attractions.

Tuesday night will be Newsboys' Night, when the carrier boys of The Examiner will be guests of the management. Thursday afternoon will be "Childrens' Day," with reduced admission prices to the kiddies.
